5. That he might be justified in the Spirit; as he was begotten in the womb by the Spirit; led up and down in the Spirit, offered up by the eternal Spirit, so he was raised from the dead by the Spirit, and justified in the Spirit at his resurrection. Christ was under the greatest attainder that ever man was, he stood publicly charged with the guilt of a world of sins, and if he had not been justified by the Spirit, he had still lyen under the blame of all, and had been liable to the execution of all; and therefore he was raised up from the power of death, that he might be declared as a righteous person. 6. That he might justify us in his justification; when he was justified, all the elect were virtually and really justified in him; that act of God which past on him, was drawn up in the Name of all his Saints: as whatever benefit or priviledg God meant for us, he first of all bestowed it on Christ; thus God meaning to sanctify us, he sanctified Christ first; and God meaning to justi-fy us, he justifies Christ first; so whatever benefit or priviledg he bestowed on Christ, he bestowed it not on him for himself, but as he was a common Person, and one representing us. Thus Christ was sanctified instead of us, for their sakes

Joh. 17. 19. I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through thy truth: and thus Christ was justified in stead of us, for as by the offence of one, judgment came upon all for condemnation, even so by the righteousness of one, the free gift came on all men unto justification.

7. That he might regenerate us, and beget us anew by his resurrection; blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again—by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

And this he doth, two ways. 1. As our pattern, platform, Idea, or exemplar; like as Christ was raised from the dead, even so we also should walk in newness of life: and likewise reckon ye also your selves to be alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. 2. As the efficient thereof, for when we were dead in sin, he hath quickened us together with Christ; and ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead. O the power of Christ's resurrection in this respect! if we saw a man raised from the dead, how should we admire at such a wondrous power? but the raising of one dead soul is a greater work than to raise a Church-yard of dead bodies.

8. That he might sanctify us, which immediately follows after the other, — but yield your selves unto God as those that are alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God. In our regeneration we are risen with Christ, it is the Apostles argument, if ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, — set your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth. We usually reckon two parts of Sanctification, viz. Mortification, and Vivification; now as the Death of Christ hath the special influence upon our Mortification, so the Resurrection of Christ hath the special influence on our Vivification; he hath quickened us together with Christ, and hath raised us up together with Christ.

O my soul, Look to this main design of Christ in his rising again; and if thou hast any Faith, O set thy Faith on work to draw this down into thy soul. But here is a question, how should I manage my Faith? or how should I act my Faith to draw down the virtue of Christ's resurrection for my Vivification? I answer.

1. Go to the Well-head, look into the resurrection of Jesus Christ. This one act contains in it these particulars; As, 1. That I must go out of my self to something else; this is that check that lyes upon that work of Grace, to keep out pride, that Faith sees the whole good of the soul in a principle extraneous, even the springs of Jesus Christ. Alas! if this Vivification were in me, or in my power, what swellings and excrescencies of pride should I quickly nourish?
 God therefore hath placed it in another, that I may be kept low, and that I may go out of my self to seek it where it is. 2. That I must attribute wholly, freely, joyfully, all that I am, to Jesus Christ, and to the effectual working of his Grace, I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. And by the grace of God I am what I am; and,
 I laboured more abundantly than they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me. The life of grace springs only from the life and resurrection of Jesus Christ, and therefore as I must deny my self, so I must attribute all to him from whom it comes. 3. I must lye at his feet with an humble expectation of, and dependency upon him, and him alone for the supplies of grace; this was the Apostles practice: O that I may be found in him! O that I may know him, and the power of his resurrection! O that by any means I might obtain unto the resurrection of the dead! he lay at Christ's feet with an humble expectation to feel the Power of Christ's resurrection, in raising him first from the death of sin to the life of grace, and after from the death of nature to the life of glory.

2. Lay to these springs thy mouth of Faith; it is not enough to have all the treasures of grace, all the actings of Christ for thee, laid before thee, but thou must act thy faith upon that object; O then go to Christ's resurrection and believe, make a particular application of those glorious effects of Christ's resurrection upon thy soul. Say, Lord, thou dyedst that I might die to sin, and thou wast raised from the death, that I might be raised to newness of life. Come Lord, and quicken my dying sparks, give me to lay hold on Christ's resurrection, give me to adhere to it, and to rest upon it, and to cleave with it. I see without faith I am ne're a whit the better for Christ's resurrection; and thy commands are upon me; open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it: why Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief. This faith is necessary to our Vivification as well as Christ. Christ is the fountain of life, but faith is the means of life; the power and original of life is intirely reserved to Jesus Christ, but Faith is the radical band on our part, whereby we are tyed unto Christ, and live in Christ; and thus saith Christ himself, I am the resurrection and the life. Is that all? no, be that believeth in me, tho he were dead, yet he shall live. And I am the bread of life. Is that all? no, be that cometh to me shall never hunger, and be that believeth on me shall never thirst.

3. Suck and be satisfied, milk out and be delighted. Christ's resurrection is a brest of consolation; there is in it abundance of life and glory, and therefore we should not believe a little, but much; the word suck, is as much as to exact on Christ; draw hard from Christ; the more we exercise Faith, the more we have of Jesus Christ and of Vivification; there is a depth in Christ's resurrection that can never be fathomed; when the soul hath as much as its narrow hand can grasp, whole Christ is too big to be inclosed in mortal arms; only the longer our arm of Faith is, the more we shall grasp of him; and therefore suck, and pull, and draw hard. And to this purpose, —

1. Pray for an increase of faith, complain to Christ of the shortness of thy arm, tell him thou canst not believe as thou wouldst, thou canst not get in so much of Christ into thy soul as thou desirest, thy Vivification is very poor and small; Oh when Christ hears a soul complain of dwarfishness in faith and grace, then is he ready to let out of his fulness even grace for grace.

2. Act thy faith vigorously on Christ's resurrection for a further degree of quickning, activity, and lively ability of grace. Christ is an ever-flowing fountain, and he would have believers to partake abundantly of what is in him; he cannot abide that any should content themselves with a present stock of grace; Christ is not as a stream that fails, or as a channel that runs dry; Christ is not as water in a ditch, which hath no living spring to feed it; no, no; Christ is the fountain of life, he is the chief ordinance of life that ever God set up. I know there are other means of Christ's appointment, but if thou wilt live at the spring, and drink in there, yea drink abundantly according to the overflowing of this fountain, O the life, and growth of life that would come in! Oh the virtue of Christ's resurrection that (Christ's Spirit meeting and assisting) would flow into thy soul for thy Vivification.

Thus for directions, now for the encouragements of our Faith to believe in Christ's resurrection.

1. Consider the excellency of this object. A sight of Christ in his beauty and glory would ravish souls, and draw them to run after him; the wise Merchant would not buy the pearl, till he knew it to be of excellent price; great things are eagerly sought for; Christ raised, Christ glorified, is an excellent object: O who would not sell all to buy this pearl? who would not believe?

2. Consider of the power, virtue, and influence of this object into all that golden chain of privileges; if Christ be not raised, you are yet in your sins; then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. From the Resurrection of Christ flows all those privileges, even from justification to salvation. The first is clear, and therefore all the rest.

17, 18.

3. Consider that Christ's resurrection and the effects of it are nothing unto us, if we do not believe: it is Faith that brings down the particular sweetness and comforts of Christ's resurrection unto our souls: it is Faith that puts us in the actual possession of Christ's resurrection; whatsoever Christ is to us before faith, yet really we have no benefit by it until we believe; it is Faith that takes hold of all that Christ hath done for us; and gives us the actual enjoyment of it; oh let not the work stick in us! what, is Christ risen from the dead? and shall we not eye this Christ, and take him home to our selves by faith? the Apostle tells us that he that believed not, hath made God a liar, because he believeth not the record that God hath given of his Son: Unbelief be-lyes God in all that he hath done for us. O take heed of this, without faith, what are we better for Christ's resurrection.

4. Consider of the tenders, offers, apparitions that Christ raised makes of himself to our souls? When first he arose (to confirm the faith of his Disciples) he offers himself, and appears to Mary Magdalen, to the other women, to Peter, Thomas, and all the rest; and all those apparitions were on this account that they might believe, these things are written that ye might believe. In like manner Christ at this day offers himself in the Gospel of grace; and by his Spirit he appears to souls. Methinks we should not hear a Sermon of Christ's resurrection, but we should imagine as if we saw him, whose head and hairs are white like wool, as white as snow, whose eyes are as a flame of fire; whose feet are like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; whose voice is as the sound of many waters; or if we are dazzled with his glory, methinks at least we should hear his voice, as if he said, fear not, I am the first and the last, I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold I am alive for evermore. Amen. q. d. Come, Ver. 17. 18.

Rev. 1. 14,

cast your souls on me; it is I that have conquered sin, death, and hell for you: it is I that have broke the serpents head, that have took away the sting of death, that have cancelled the bond of the hand-writing against you, that have in my hands a general acquittance and pardon of your sins: come, take it, take me, and take all with me: see your names written in the acquittance, that I tender; take out the copy of it in your own hearts; only believe in him who is risen again for your justification. — O my soul what sayst thou to this still sweet voyce of Christ? shall he who is the Saviour of men, and glory of Angels desire thee to believe, and wilt thou not say Amen to it? Oh how should I blame thee for thy unbelief? what aspersions doth it cast on Christ? he hath done all things well, he hath satisfied wrath, fulfilled the Law; and God hath acquitted him, pronounced him just: Faith is contented, he can desire no more; but thou sayst by unbelief that Christ hath done nothing at all, unbelief professeth Christ is not dead, or at least not risen from the dead: unbelief professeth that justice is not satisfied, that no justification is procured, that the wrath of God is now as open to destroy us as ever it was. Oh that Christ should be crucified again in our hearts by our unbelief; come, take Christ upon his tenders and offers, embrace him with both Arms.

S E C T. VI.

Of Loving Jesus in that respect.

6. Let us love Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in his resurrection; surely if we hope in Christ, and believe in Christ, we cannot but love Christ; if Christ's resurrection be our justification, and so the ground both of our hope and faith, how should we but love him, who hath done such great things for us? she that had much forgiven her, loved much; and if by virtue of Christ's resurrection we are justified from all our sins, how should we but love him much? but that I may let down some cords of Love, whereby to draw our loves to Christ in this respect, let us consider thus.

Love is a motion of the appetite, by which the mind unites it self to that which seems good to it.

You may object that Christ is absent, how then should our souls be united to him? but if we consider that objects, tho absent, may be united to the power of their species and images, as well as by their true beings, we may then be said truly to love Christ as raised, tho he be absent from us: come then, stir up thy appetite, bring into thy imagination the Idea of Christ as in his resurrection; present him to thy affection of Love, in that very form wherein he appeared to his Disciples; as gazing upon the dusty beauty of flesh, kindleth the fire of carnal love; so this gazing on Christ, and on the passages of Christ in his resurrection, will kindle this spiritual love in thy soul: Draw near then, and behold him; Is he not white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousands? is not his head as the most fine gold? are not his locks bushy, and black as a raven? are not his eyes as the eyes of doves by the rivers of water, washed with milk, and fitly set? are not his cheeks as a bed of spices, as sweet flowers? thus I might go on from top to toe; but that thou mayst not only see his glory and beauty wherein he arose, but that thou mayest hear his voice; doth he not call on thee, as sometimes he did on Mary, on Thomas, on Peter, or on the twelve? As the Angel said to the woman, remember how he spake, when he was yet in Galilee: so say I to thee, remember how he spake while he was yet on earth; surely his lips like Lillies dropped sweet smelling myrrhe. As thus.

1. In his apparition to Mary, Jesus saith unto her, woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? were not these kind words? and hast not thou had the like apparition? hast not thou heard the like sweet words from Jesus Christ? how often hath thy heart sobbed and sighed out complaints, O where is he whom my soul loveth? I charge you O daughters of Jerusalem, if ye find my beloved, that ye tell him I am sick of love? And then was not Christ seen in the mount? was not thy extremity his opportunity to do thee good? did not he bespeak thy comforts with these words, Sweet soul, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? what wouldst thou have that I can give thee? And what dost thou want that I can give thee? If any thing in heaven or earth will make thee happy, it is all thy own;

wouldst thou have pardon? Thou shalt have it, I freely forgive thee all the debt; wouldst thou have my self? Why, behold I am thine, thy friend, thy Lord, thy husband, thy head, thy God. Were not these thy Lord's reviving words? were not these melting, healing, ravishing, quickening, passages of Christ his love?

2. In his Apparition to the ten, Jesus stood in the midst, and saith unto them, peace be unto you. Lo here more words of Love: in the midst of their trouble Christ stands in the midst, speaking peace to their souls; and hath not Christ done the like to thee? hast thou not many and many a time been lapt into troubles, that thou knewest not which way to turn thee? hast thou not felt the contradictions of men, railings of Rabsheeks? and hast thou not sometimes shut the doors upon thee for fear of such Jews? and then, even then, hath not Christ come to thy spirit with an Olive-branch of peace? saying to thy restless soul, peace, and be still? hath he not wrought wonders in the Sea of thy restless thoughts? hath he not made a calm; and more then so, hath he not filled thee with joy and peace in believing? hath he not sent thee away from thy Prayers and complaints, with a piece of Heaven in thy Soul? so that thou wast forced to conclude.

In his Apparition to the Eleven, Jesus saith to Thomas, reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand and thrust it into my side, and be not faithless, but believing. O sweet condescending words! how far? how low would Jesus stoop to take up souls? and O my soul, are not these the very dealings of Christ towards thee? he that called Thomas to come near, hark how he calls to thee, Come near poor trembling, wavering, wandering soul; come view the Lord thy Saviour, and be not faithless, but believing; peace be unto thee, fear not, it is I. He that called on them who passed by, to behold his sorrow in the day of his humiliation, doth now call on thee to behold his glory in the day of his exaltation; look well upon him, dost thou not know him? why his hands were pierced, his head was pierced, his side was pierced, his heart was pierced, with the stings of thy sins, and these marks he retains even after his resurrection, that by these marks thou mightest always know him; is not the passage to his heart yet standing open? if thou knowest him not by the face, the voice, the hands; if thou knowest him not by the tears, and bloody sweat, yet look nearer, thou mayst know him by the heart; that broken healed heart is his; that dead revived heart is his, that soul-pitying melting heart is his; doubtless it can be none but his, love and compassion are its certain signatures. And is not here yet fuel enough for love to feed upon? doth not this heart of Christ even snatch thy heart, and almost draw it forth of thy breast? canst thou read the history of love any further at once? doth not thy throbbing heart here stop to ease it self? if not, go on, for the field of love is large.

4. In this Apparition to the seven, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? — And he said to him the second time, Simon, Son of Jonas lovest thou me? — he said to him the third time, Simon Son of Jonas lovest thou thou me? Oh the loves of Christ in drawing out man's love unto himself; how often, O my soul, hath Christ come to thy door, and knocked there for entrance? how often hath he sued for Love, and begged Love, and asked thee again and again, Ab soul, dost thou love me, more than these? come, tell me, dost thou love me, love me, love me? come, wilt thou take me for thy Lord? wilt thou delight in me as thy Treasure, thy happiness, thy all? O fy! shall Christ raised, a glorious Christ, thus wooe, and sue, and call, and wilt thou not answer as Peter did, Yea Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. — Yea Lord thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee. Nay, art thou not grieved that Christ should ask the third time for thy love? art thou not ashamed out of thy stupidity, and forget to say, O my blessed Lord, I have been too proud, too peevish, but thy free grace, and undeserved love, hath beaten me out of all my pride, so that now I fall down at thy foot-stool, and lay my self flat before thee; at first I wondered to hear Preachers talk so much of Christ, and I was bold to ask thy friends, what was their beloved more than another beloved? but now I wonder that I could be so long without thee; truly Lord, I am thine, only thine, ever thine, all that I am is at thy command, and all I have is at thy disposing, be pleased to command both it, and me?

I might thus go on to consider other passages in other Apparitions; but are not these enow to draw thy love? Oh what love was this! Oh what humility was this? that Christ after his resurrection should converse with men during the space of forty days; worthy he was after so many sorrows, sufferings, reproaches, after so cruel, ignominious, and bitter a death, immediately to have rid his triumph to glory; And for the confirmation of his Disciples faith, he might have commanded the Angels to have Preached his Resurrection; oh, no, he himself would stay in person, he himself would make it out by many infallible proofs that he was risen again; he himself would by his own example learn us a lesson of love, of meekness, and patience, in waiting after suffering for the reward.

Methinks a few of these passages should set all our hearts on a flame of Love; we love earth, and earthly things; we dig into the veins of the earth for thick clay; but if Christ be risen set your affections on things above; and not on things on the earth. Oh if the love of Christ were but in us, as the love of the world is in base worldlings, it would make us wholly to despise this world, it would make us to forget it, as worldly love makes a man to forget his God; Nay it would be so strong and ardent, and rooted in our Souls, that we should not be able voluntarily and freely to think on any thing else but Jesus Christ; we should not then fear contempt, or care for disgrace, or the reproaches of men; we should not then fear Death, or the Grave, or Hell, or Devils, but we should sing in triumph, O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? — now thanks be to God which giveth us victory through Jesus Christ our Lord.

SECT. VII.

Of joying in Jesus in that respect.

Letus joy in Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our Salvation for us in his resurrection. This is the great Gospel duty, we should joy in the Lord, and again rejoice; Yea, Phil. 4. 4. rejoice evermore. A Christian estate should be a joyful and comfortable estate, none have such cause of joy as the Children of Zion, Sing O daughters of Zion, shout, O Jerusalem, be glad and rejoice with all thy heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. And why so? a thousand reasons might be rendered; but here is one, a prime one, Christ is risen from the dead, and became the first-fruits of them that sleep. A commemoration of Christ's Resurrection hath ever been a means of rejoicing in God.

Some may object, What is Christ's Resurrection to me? indeed if thou hast no part in Christ, the Resurrection of Christ is nothing at all to thee; but if Christ be thine, then art thou risen with him, and in him; then all he did was in thy name, and for thy sake.

Others may object, Supposing Christ's Resurrection mine, what am I better? how? do not all the privileges of Christ flow from the power and virtue of his Resurrection, as well as Death? tell me what is thy state? what possible can be the condition of thy Soul, wherein thou mayest not draw sweet from Christ's Resurrection? As —

1. Is thy conscience in trouble for sin? the Apostle tells thee, the answer of a good conscience towards God, is by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. 1 Pet. 3. 21.

2. Art thou afraid of condemnation? the Apostle tells thee, he was delivered for our offences, and he was raised again for our justification. Rom. 4. 25

3. Dost thou question thy regeneration? the Apostle tells thee he hath begotten us again by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. 1 Pet. 1. 3.

4. Art thou distressed, persecuted, troubled on every side? the Apostle tells thee wherein now consists thy confidence, comfort, courage; to wit, in the Life of Christ, in the Resurrection of Christ. We always bear about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life of Jesus might also be made manifest in our body; for we which live are always delivered unto death for Jesus sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh. And thus Beza interprets those following words, knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise us up also by Jesus; (i. e.) unto a civil Resurrection from our troubles; Paul was imprisoned, and in part Martyred, but by the Virtue of Christ's Resurrection he foresaw his enlargement. And this Interpretation Beza grounds on the word following, and foregoing, wherein Paul compares his Persecutions to a Death, and his Preservation from them to a Life; as he had done before also, chap. 1. v. 9, 10. 2 Cor. 4. 10, 11.

5. Art thou afraid of falling off, or of falling away? why, remember, that the immutable force and perpetuity of the new covenant is secured by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. I Ha. 55. 3. will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the

the sure mercies of David: this the Apostle applies to the Resurrection of Christ; as the bottoming of that sure covenant, and as concerning Acts 13.34 that he raised him up from the dead, he said on this wife, I will give you the sure mercies of David.

6. Art thou afraid of Death, Hell and the power of the Grave? Why, how rememberest thou Christ is Risen from the Dead, and by his Resurrection Death is swallowed up in Victory; so that now thou mayst sing, O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory? now thanks be to God which hath given us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. It is the voice of Christ, thy dead men shall live together, with my dead body shall they arise, awake and sing ye that dwell in the dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead: David was so lifted up with this Resurrection, that he cryed out, therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth, my flesh also shall rest in hope; for thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thy holy one to see corruption. But especially Job was so exceedingly transported with this, that he brakes out into these extasies, O that my words

Job 19.23, 24, 25, 26, 27. were now written, O that they were printed in a book! that they were graven with an iron pen and lead, in the rock for ever: for I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and tho' after my skin worms shall destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for my self, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another, tho' my reins be consumed within me. No man ever since Christ did speak more clearly of Christ's Resurrection and his Own, than Job did here before Christ. Observe in it, O my soul, Job's wish, and the matter wished: his wish was, That certain words which had been cordial to him, might remain to memory; and this wish hath three wishes in one. 1. That they might be written.

2. That they might be registered in a book; enrolled upon record, as publick instruments, judicial proceedings, or whatsoever is most authenticall. 3. That they might be engraven in stone, and in the hardest stone, the rock; records might last long, yet time might injure them, and these words he would have last for ever; O that they were graven in the rock for ever! Moses and Job are said to have lived at one time; now Moses writ the Law in stone, and considering that these words were Gospel, there was no reason the Law should be in tables of stone, and the Gospel in sheets of paper; no, no; it were fit that this should be as firm and durable as that; O that my words were written, O that they were printed in a book, &c.

2. The matter wished, or the words he would have written, are these, I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that I shall live again. Here's first his Redeemer and his Rising. 2. His own rising and his seeing God. O this was the matter of his joy, his Redeemer must Rise again; and he must rise too, and see his Redeemer; it was a point that exceedingly ravished and revived Job, and therefore he iterates the same thing over and over, I shall see God, and I shall see him for my self, and I shall see him with my eyes, and not with others. As Christ said of Abraham, Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it and was glad. So it appears of his Servant Job, he saw Christ's day; both his first day, and his latter day, and he rejoiced and was glad. Away, away all scrupulous doubtful, dumpy thoughts! consider what joys were of old, at the foresight of Christ's Resurrection; but especially what joy was all the World over when he rose again from the Dead; then came the Angels from Heaven, and appeared in white; then the Sun danced for joy, (so it is storied) or shone sooner, and brighter than ever it did before; then I am sure the Disciples were exceeding glad, when they saw the Lord, yea so glad that they believed not for joy: it is worth our observing, to see how all the Primitive Saints were affected with this news; and because of it, with the very day on which Christ arose, some call it, The first day of joy and gladness; and because of the joy occasioned on this day, the Apostle (say they) devoted the first day of the week to the honour and service of Jesus Christ. Augustine applies the words of the Psalm unto this day, This is the day which the Lord hath made, let us be glad, and rejoice in it, Psal. 118. 24. Ignatius, who lived in the Apostles age, and was John's Disciple, calls it the Queen, the Princess, the Lady Paramount among the other weekly days. Chrysostom calls it a Royal day, and Gregory Nazianzen Orat. 42. saith, it is higher than the highest, and, with admiration, wonderful above other days. Certainly the Lord's day was in high esteem with the ancient Church, and the principal motive was because of Christ's Resurrection from the Dead. O that on these days we could rejoyce in the Lord, and again rejoyce: it is observed, that, Many Christians look upon broken-heartedness, and much grieving and weeping for sin, as if it were the great thing that God delighteth in, and requieth of them; and therefore they bend all their endeavours that way, they are still striving with their hearts to break them more, and they think no Sermon, no Prayer, no Meditation, speeds so well with them as that which can help them to grieve or weep; but O Christians understand, and consider, (saith my Author) that all your sorrows are but preparatives for your joys, and that it is an higher and sweeter work that God calls you to, and would have you spend your time and strength in. Delight thy self in the Lord, and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart. — Never take your hearts to be right, till they be delighting themselves in their God: when you kneel down in Prayer, labour so to conceive of God, and bespeak him, that he may be your delight? do so in hearing, and reading, and meditating, and in your feasting on the flesh and blood of Jesus Christ at his Supper. Especially improve the happy opportunity of the Lord's day, wherein you may wholly devote your selves unto this work. O spend more of this day in spiritual rejoycing, especially in commemoration of Christ's Resurrection (yea and of the whole work of Redemption) or else you will not answer the institution of the Lord.

Of Calling on Jesus in that respect.

8. Let us call on Jesus; that is to say —
 1. Let us pray that Christ's Resurrection may be ours, and that we may be more and more assured of it. Let us say with the Apostle, O that I may know him, and the power of his Resurrection; O that I may find the working of that power in my Soul, which was shewed in the Resurrection of Christ from the dead; O that the Spirit of Holiness, which quickened Christ from the dead, would by the same glorious power beget holiness, and faith, and love, and all other graces in my poor Soul. O that Christ would by his Resurrection apply his active and passive obedience to me; O that he would be to me the Lord of the Living, and the Prince of Life, that he would overcome in me the death of sin, and that he would Regenerate, quicken, renew, and fashion me by the power of Godliness to become like himself. O that all the virtue, power, priviledges, and influences of Christ's Resurrection might be conferred on me, and that I might feel them working in me every day more and more.

2. Let us praise God for Christ's resurrection, and for all the priviledges flowing from Christ's Resurrection into our Souls. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath begotten us again by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Christ is risen, by his Resurrection he hath justified, sanctified, quickened, saved our Souls; and therefore, Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; surely God requires a thousand thousand Hallelujah's, and that we should bless him upon a thousand-stringed instrument: here is fewel enough, the Lord kindle a great fire in every one of our hearts, to burn out all our lusts, and to enflame all our hearts with a love to Jesus Christ. Can we ever too much praise him for all his actings in our behalf? are not all God's creatures called upon to rejoyce with us, and to bless God for his redeeming of us? Sing O ye heavens, for the Lord hath done it, shout ye lower part of the earth, break forth into singing ye mountains, O forrest, and every tree therein, for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel. This is the duty we shall do in Heaven, and I believe we are never more in Heaven (whiles on earth) than when we are in this exercise of praising God, and blessing God for Jesus Christ. Come, let us praise God for Christ, and especially on this day, called therefore the Lord's day, because of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ: it is the design of God, to Glorify Christ redeeming us, as much, or more than he glorified himself creating us; and therefore he purposely unhinged the Sabbath from the last day to the first day of the week, that it might be spent as a weekly day of praise and thanksgiving for the more glorious work of our redemption: that love might not only be equally admired with power, but even go before it. It is the advice of a Godly Divine, that we should improve the happy opportunity of the Lord's day wholly to devote our selves to his work. And he ad-viseeth Ministers and others, that They spend more of those days in praise and thanksgiving, and be briefer in their confessions and lamentations; — that they would make it the main business of their solemn assemblies on those days to sound forth the high praises of their Redeemer, and to begin here the praises of God and the Lamb, which they must perfect in heaven for ever. — That they would spend a greater part of those days in Psalms, and solemn Praises to their Redeemer. — And that some Hymns and Psalms might be invented as fit for the state of the Gospel-Church, and worship, to laud the Redeemer come in the flesh, as expressly as the work of grace is now expressed. O that these directions were put in practice? O that our Churches, and Families, would make our streets to resound with the Eccho's of our praises! O that this were the burthen of each day on these days. Now blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath begotten us again unto a lively hope, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

Of Conforming to Jesus in that respect.

6. Let us conform to Jesus in respect of his Resurrection.

In this particular I shall examine these Queries. 1. Wherein we must conform? 2. How this conformity is wrought? 3. What are the means of this conformity as on our parts?

For the first, wherein we must conform? I answer in a word, in our Vivification. There is a resemblance of our Vivification to Christ's Resurrection; and if we would know wherein the Analogy, or resemblance of our Vivification to Christ's Resurrection doth more especially consist; the Apostle's answer is very express, Like as Christ was raised up from the dead, by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. Christ's Resurrection was to newness of life; it was a new life, a life different from that which he lived before, and so is our Vivification a new life; it is a life of a new principle; of new actings, of a new state, of a new relation, of a new income, and of a new kind, or manner.

1. It is a life of a new principle; before Vivification our principle was the flesh, or world, or devil; In time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the Prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience; but now we have a new principle, a Spirit of holiness, or sanctification, the Spirit of God; even the same Spirit which dwelt in the human nature of Christ, and raised him; If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you; it is an in-dwelling Spirit; even as the soul dwells in the body, so doth the holy Ghost dwell in the soul of a regenerate person, animating, and actuating, and enlivening it. This is the new principle that God puts in us after Vivification.

2. It is a life of new actings. According to our principle, so be our actings; They that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are of the Spirit, the things of the Spirit. If some men hear of a good bargain, they mind it, they find their souls going on with much activity, activity, there is something in them proportionable to that which is propounded; but if they hear of Divine Love, and of the riches of Grace, they find their Souls flat, unmoveable, and dead, they mind no such things; now on the other side, they that are Vivified, according to their principle, they put forth their power more or less; if they hear of the glorious things of the Gospel, they find inward workings (unless it be under a temptation) they find their Souls drawn out to close with the goodness of the thing propounded: They mind the things of the spirit, (i.e.) they muse, and meditate, and think on these things; they affect them, and love them, and like them, they care for them, and seek after

Gal. 5. 26. them with might and main; they live in the Spirit, they walk in the Spirit, they are led by the Spirit, they serve in newness of the Spirit.

Rom. 7. 6. How might we try our Vivification even by these actings of our principle within? what? do we mind the things of the Spirit? do we find things Heavenly and Spiritually to be sweet, and savoury, and best pleasing to us? is the Sabbath our delight? do we long for it before it come? do we rejoyce in it when it is come? do we consecrate it as glorious to

Isa. 58. 13. the Lord? do we come to the exercises of Religion, whether publick or private, with much delight, and with chearfulness, as to a Feast? what is this but the Life of God? but if these things be harsh and unpleasant, if the Sabbath be a burthen, if holy exercise be irksome and tedious, if in attending on the Word we are heavy and drowsy, and we find no relish, no sweet, no savour in the Ointments of Christs, no goings out of the Soul with an activity to the things propounded, O then deceive not our selves we have no good evidence of our Vivification.

3. It is a life of a new state: before Vivification we are in an unjustified estate; sins are unpardoned, we are unreconciled; And such were some of you (said the Apostle to his Corinthians) but now ye are washed, now ye are sanctified, now ye are justified in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by the Spirit of our God. This justification denotes a state, and is universal and unalterable. I know Arminians deny such a state; for as by their Doctrine no man can be absolutely Elected till he die, so neither absolutely justified; for (say they) he may fall into such sins, as that tho formerly justified, yet now he may be condemned; yea, to day he may be justified, and to morrow thrown out of that estate. But against this we hold, that those that are once justified, are never again cast out of God's favour. As Christ once died, but rose again never to die more, death hath no more power over him; so a justified man once allyed to God through Jesus Christ, doth from that time forward as necessarily live, as Christ himself by whom he doth live; there is an immortal and indissoluble union betwixt Christ the Head, and every Believer; our justification depends not on our own strength, but it is built on Christ himself, who is the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever; and hence it is that a justified man can no more cease to live in this state of justification, than Christ can cease to live in Heaven.

4. It is a life of new relations; this immediately follows our state: if once we are justified, then we are related to God, and Christ, and to the Covenant of Grace.

1. To God. Before we were Vivified, God and we stood at a distance, God was our enemy, and we were his enemies; At that time (saith the Apostle) ye were without God in the world; but now in Eph. 2. 13.

Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were afar off, are made near by the blood of Christ. God that was a stranger, stands now in near relation, he is a Friend, a Father, a God Allsufficient to us.

2. We are Related to Christ; before Vivification we were a Christless people, At that time Eph. 2. 12.

ye were without Christ; but now we are united to Christ, and (which is more) now we make use of Christ with the Father: O the comfort of this relation! A troubled spirit looks on his sins, and they thrust him away from God, What communion hath light with darkness? but then comes the Lord Jesus, and takes him by the hand, and leads him to the Father, and says, Come soul, come along with me, and I will carry thee to the Father, wilt thou make use of me? It is the Apostle's saying, that Through Eph. 1. 18.

him we have an access by one spirit unto the Father; we have a leading by the hand; Christ hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God. By nature we are severed from God, and if he manifested himself, he is dreadful to us, Your iniquities have 1 Pet. 5. 18.

separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not bear; but in Christ we approach boldly before him, because Christ hath took away our sins which are the mountains of separation; in Christ we have boldness and access with confidence by the faith of him. Here is the difference betwixt a man related to Christ, and a meer stranger; the stranger knows not how to go to God; God stands as a Judge, he is as a Malefactor, the Law an Accuser, Sin his Indictment; and what is the issue? Every mouth is stopped, and all the Rom. 3. 19.

world is guilty before God. But he that is related to Christ, Christ takes him by the hand, and so he goes with boldness and confidence, and pleads his righteousness before the Father; Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's Elect, it is God that justifieth, who is he that condemneth? it is Christ that dyed, yea rather that is risen again?

In the very matter and cause of justification, wherein no man can stand, or dare to appear, or shew his face, a Christian coming with Christ his Advocate, he dares to appear, and to plead his case, and to stand upon interrogatories with God himself, yea, and to ask God himself (humbly and with reverence) what he hath to lay to his charge? what more he will, or can in justice require for satisfaction, than his Surety hath done for him? — 3. We are related to the Covenant of Grace; before Vivification we had no such relation; At that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the Commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenant of promise; but now the Covenant is ours, that fountain or bundle of promises is ours, God is our God, and we are his people. O the blessedness of this priviledg! Happy is the people that be in such a case, Eph. 2. 12.

yea, 15. Psal. 144.

yea happy is the people whose God is the Lord. The Covenant is reckoned all happiness; it contains in its bowels all benefits in Heaven, or under Heaven; as a man may say of any thing he hath in possession, This is mine; so may they who are in covenant with God, say, He is mine, I have God himself in my possession. How might we try our vivification even by this communion we have with God, and Christ, and the Covenant of Grace? Christians, look into your own hearts, have you not felt in your approaches to God some railings or workings of the Spirit of the Lord concluding the pardon of your sins? hath not Christ taken you by the hand, and led you to the Father? It may be your own guilt made you afraid, but the discovery of Jesus your righteousness made you bold to go to God; you felt boldness coming in on this ground, because all your approaches or drawings near to God were bottomed on Jesus. Hath not God married you to himself? hath he not conveyed himself (through his holy Spirit) into your hearts by way of covenant? Hath he not sometimes whispered to your souls, Thou art mine? and have not your souls echoed back again unto the Lord, Thou art mine? Much of the truth of all this would appear, if Christians would but daily observe the movings of their own hearts; for as he that hath the Spirit of Satan, shall ever find him putting on and provoking to evil, so he that hath the Spirit of God shall most what (or at least frequently) find and feel it active and stirring in the heart, to the reforming of the whole man; the holy Spirit is not idle, but he rules, and governs, and maintains his Monarchy, in us, and over us, in spite of the power of Satan, and privy conspiracy of a mans own flesh.

5. It is a life of a new in-come; I mean of a saving in-come, as of Grace, Power Light, &c. Before vivification there was no such in-come; A man before his conversion might hear, and pray, and do all duties; but alas! he feels no sweet, no power, no virtue, no communion with Christ. If I might appeal unto such, I beseech you tell me, you have been often at prayer, what have you gotten there? what in-come hath appeared? If you answer truly, you cannot but say, I went to prayer, and I was satisfied that I had prayed; I never observed whether I had got any power, or strength, any thing of mortification, or vivification; I never found any lively work of God on my soul, either in prayer or after prayer; or you have been often at this Ordinance of hearing the Word, what have you gotten there? what in-come hath appeared? Why truly nothing at all; it may be a little more knowledge, but nothing that I can say was a saving work of God; some one that sate with me in the same seat found much stirrings of God. Oh what meltings, cheerings, warmings of the Spirit had such a one? and such a one? the Word was to them as hony, and as the hony comb, but to me it was as dry bread; I found no sweet, I got no good at all. Or you have been toiling the Bible, and you have observed this or that promise; but O what in-come hath appeared? Surely nothing at all; I wonder at Saints that tell of so much sweetness, and comfort, and ravishing of heart, *that with joy they should draw water out of these Wells of Salvation, Whereas I find therein no joy, no refreshing at all: Ah poor soul, thou art in a sad case, thou art not yet vivified, thou hast not the life of God in thee. After vivification thou wilt in the use of Ordinances (at least sometimes, if not frequently) feel the saving in-come of God. In prayer thou wilt feel the spirit breathing in, and carrying up thy soul above it self, declaring there is another power than thy own, which makes thee not only to exceed others, but thy self also. In hearing of the Word thou wilt see the Windows of heaven set wide open, and all manner of spiritual comforts showered down upon thee; thou wilt hear the rich treasury of everlasting glory and immortality unlocked and opened, so that thou maist tumble thy self amidst the mountains of heavenly pearls, and golden pleasures, yves no heart can comprehend but that which is weaned from all worldly pleasures. As it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things? In meditation of the promises, or of Divine love, thou wilt find meltings, quicknings, encouragings, filling thy heart with gladness, and glorying, and thy mouth with praises and songs of rejoycing. O what fountains of life are the promises to a living man, to a soul that is vivified? what food? what strength? what life is a thought of Christ, of Heaven, and of God's love to a spiritual man? whereas all these glorious things of the Gospel are to the natural man but as a withered flower, a sealed book, a dry and empty cistern; he hath no use of them.*

6. It is a life of another kind, or manner. Before vivification our life was but death, because we our selves were but dead in sin even whilst alive. She that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth; and you were dead in your sins, and the uncircumcision of your flesh. But after vivification we live: how live? a spiritual life, I live by the faith of the Son of God; an heavenly life, for our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ; an immortal life, Christ being raised from the dead, dyeth no more, death hath no more dominion over him; likewise reckon your selves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. You know the meaning of Christ; Whosoever loveth, and believeth in me, shall never dye; he shall never dye a spiritual death, never come under the dominion of sin, never totally fall away from grace; that incorruptible seed by which he is regenerate shall abide in him for ever. If Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the spirit is life because of righteousness; the body indeed is subject to corporal death through the remainders of sin, but the spirit is life, even that little spark of grace, through the most perfect righteousness of Christ imputed, is life here, and shall be life hereafter, even for ever. And herein is our vivification answerable to Christ's resurrection; like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, raised up to a new life, even so we also should walk in the newness of life.

For the second question, how is this conformity or vivification wrought; I shall answer only to the state, and so our vivification is usually wrought in us in this manner. As first, in the understanding. Secondly, in the will.

First, the understanding lets in the verity and truth of what the Gospel hath recorded.

John 1. 4. In him was life, and the life was the light of men.
John 6. 35. I am the bread of life, he that cometh to me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.
John 11. 25. I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live.
John 14. 6. I am the way, the truth, and the life.
John 5. 11, 12. And this is the record, that God hath given to us, eternal life, and this life is in his Son; he that hath the Son, hath life, and he that hath not the Son, hath not life.

2. This light let in, the understanding thence inferreth as to a man's own self, that by the assistance of the Spirit of holiness, who raised up Jesus from the dead, it's possible for him to attain this life; others have attained it, and why not he? Thou hast been quickened who were dead, in trespasses and sins; here's a president for a sin-sick soul; In time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the Prince of the power of the air, the Spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience; this was the state of the Ephesians. But were they all? no, no; ye, and we, also, among whom also we had all our conversation in times past.

But God who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, that in ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness towards us through Christ Jesus. Christ's dealings with some, are as flags and patterns of mercy hung forth to tell, and to bring others in: whence the understanding infers, it's possible for a dead soul, yea for my dead soul to live; others have lived, and why may not I? I discover in those Scriptures, even in these presidents, a door of hope to myself; why Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean; yea, if I may but touch thy garment, I shall be whole; if thou wouldst but say, O ye dry bones hear the word of the Lord, then breath would enter into me, and I should live; surely if Christ be risen again from the dead, there's no impossibility but I may rise; if others have been raised by the virtue of Christ's resurrection, why may not I? However this may seem to be little or nothing, yet considering the soul in a mourning, dark, disconsolate frame, under deep apprehensions of sin, guilt, and wrath; full of confusions, distractions, despondencies, staggering and sinking terrors; it will find it something, yea it will look on it as a glorious work to discover, but the morning Star, through so much darkness, any thing of life, in such a valley and shadow of death.

3. The understanding hath yet some brighter believing beams; it confidently closeth with this truth, that it is the will of the Lord that he should come, and live, and believe, and lay hold on Christ; it apprehends the particular designs of mercy to him, and doth really principle the soul with this, that God doth particularly call, invite, and bid him come to Christ the Fountain of life for life. Now the understanding takes in general Gospel calls in particular to himself. It is my poor languishing soul which the Lord speaks to, when he says, Come to me all ye that are weary, and I will give you rest.

Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. Surely this is a great work when set home by the Lord, that the soul acts in its addresses to Christ in the strength of a particular call from God.

2. And now the answer to this call is wrought up in the renewed will; as thus.

1. The will summons all its confidences, and calls them off from every other bottom, to bestow them wholly upon Christ; and this consists in our voluntary renouncing of all other helps, excepting Jesus Christ alone; now the soul says to Idols, Get ye hence, Asshur shall not save us, we will not ride upon horses, neither will we say any more to the works of our hands; Ye are our Gods, Asshur shall not save us. Not only cannot, but shall not save us; now as the soul is dissatisfied in Judgment, as to the resting on any thing but Christ alone, so the heart and will is disaffected to all other helps but Christ alone; now it renounceth its own righteousness, and worthiness; not only because of their inability to save, but mainly because their glory is swallowed up in that unmatched excellency, which appears in the way of life and salvation by Jesus Christ. It calls home dependance from every other object.

2. Hereupon there is a willing and chearful receiving of Christ, and resignation of our selves to his actual dispose, to quicken us, and save us in his own way. A great part of the answer of Faith to the call of Christ, lyes in this; for as Faith sees life and salvation in the hands of Christ, so it considers it to be given forth in the methods of Christ; and so believing lyes not only in assent, but consent of heart, that Christ shall save us in his own way; this is called receiving of Christ; As many as received him, to them he gave power to become the Sons of God. Many a soul would be saved by Christ, that sticks and boggles at his methods; they will not pass to happiness by holiness; nor set him up as a King and Lord, whom they could consent to set up as a Saviour: Oh but now Christ that stood at the door and knocked, is received in consent hath made up the match, and the door is opened that never shall be shut again.

3. Upon this follows the souls resting and relying; the souls confidence and dependance upon Jesus Christ for life and for salvation; this closeth up the whole business, believing unto righteousness; those various expressions used in Scripture of committing our way and selves to God; of casting our care upon God, of rolling our selves on him, of trusting in him, of hoping in his mercy, &c. wrapt up faith in this affiance, dependance, not without some mixture of confidence, and resolved resting upon Jesus Christ: a clear beholding of God in Christ, and of Christ in the promises, doth present such variety and fulness of Arguments to bear up hope and affiance, that the heart is resolved, and so resolved that we commit our selves, and give our souls in charge to Christ. I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day.

4. The upshot of all is this, that the same close which the soul makes in believing with Jesus Christ as to justification, and righteousness, is not fruitless to this effect of conveying life and virtue from Jesus Christ as to grace and holiness; for

James 2. 16. for that union which then and thereby comes to be enjoyed with Christ, is such an union as is fruitful in begetting a quickening power and principle in the heart; and this is that which we ordinarily intend by saying, saving faith to be operative; that faith which brings forth nothing of holiness, what is it but a dead faith? As the body without the Spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also. Justification and sanctification are twins of a birth; and hence it is, that vivification (which is one part of sanctification) is wrought in the soul after the self-same manner: As first, the understanding is illightned. 2. The will is changed. 3. All the Affections are renewed. 4. The internals being quickened, there ensueth the renewing of the body with the outward actions, life and conversation. And now is fulfilled that saying of Christ in a spiritual sense, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live. Now is the soul vivified, now it begins to live the life of God, now it feels the power of Christ's resurrection, and is made conformable to it. And immediately upon this, joy is made in heaven by the Angels, God himself applauding it, For this my Son was dead, and is alive; he was lost, and is found.

Luke 15. 24.

Thus is the state of vivification wrought. I know it is not in all men after one manner, for every circumstance, the methods of God are exceeding various; and we cannot limit the holy one of Israel: I have sometimes concerning this, desired the communication of other thoughts, whom I looked upon as such, who had more than ordinary communication with Christ's Spirit; and from one of such I received this answer, I must profess to you, I have in all my speculations in divinity found dissatisfaction in the writings of men in nothing more, than in the work of clear and distinct conceptions concerning regeneration; which yet is of such a Cardinal importance, as, that the great doors of heaven move upon the hinges of it; the Lord enlighten us more, for we see but in part, and prophesie but in part.

For the third question, what are the means of this conformity, or vivification which we must use on our parts? I shall answer herein both to the state, and growth of our vivification. As—

1. Wait and attend upon God in the ministry of the word; this is a means whereby Christ ordinarily effecteth this vivification. By this means it was that those dead bones were quickened in Ezekiel's prophesie, viz. by the Prophets prophesying upon them. And he said unto me, Son of man, prophesie upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord. And by this means it is that dead souls are quickened; the Ministry of the word is the Trumpet of Jesus Christ; when that sounds, who knows but he may quicken the dead? hearken therefore to this word of God.

Ezek 37. 4.

2. Act faith upon the Lord Jesus as to justification. As is the clearness and fixedness of our souls in bottoming our selves on Christ for righteousness, so will be our quickness, and successful progress in the work of holiness; because Maries sins which were many, were forgiven her, therefore she loved much; but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little. Many a soul loseth much of vivification, for want of clearness in its justification, or for want of settledness, and stronger measure of acting faith. Oh what life would be raised as to holiness? what working, binding, filling the laws of love, retribution, thankfulness would there be, when we see our selves clearly reconciled with God, and wrapt up in the foldings of everlasting love?

3. Trace every Ordinance, and every duty for the appearances of the Son of God. Be much in prayer, hearing, reading, fellowship with Saints, living in the fulness of Sacraments; be much in secret conversings with God, in meditation, expostulation, enquiries, searchings; and (which is a precious work) be much in diligent watching of, and hearkening and listening to the movings, workings, hints, intimations of the Spirit of God; be much in observing the methods and interpreting the meanings and language of God in all his secret dispensations with the soul. Certainly there will be abundance of the life of God conveyed to him that walks in these paths. Blessed are they that dwell in thy house, might David well say, and one Reason is pertinent to this case, because, In our father's house is bread enough, and to spare: while the Prodigal that goes out from it shall feed upon husks, and with Ephraim swallow up the East-wind. Oh for a Spirit of Prayer, Meditation, &c. Oh for a Spirit even swallowed up in communion with God! Thou meetest him that worketh righteousness, and those that remember thee in thy ways.

Ira. 64. 3.

4. Look much at Christ raised, Christ Glorified; Christ's Resurrection was the beginning of his glory, and therein is comprehended both the glory that draws desires towards Christ, and the grace and power that establisheth faith in its dependancy. They looked unto him, and were lightened—unto thee lift I up mine eyes, O thou that dwellest in the heavens; behold as the eyes of the servant look unto the hand of their Masters, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her Mistress, so our eyes wait upon the Lord our God. It is said of Moses, that he endured affliction, as seeing him who is invisible. Oh could we keep our hearts in a more constant view, and believing meditation of the glory of Christ, our faces would certainly bring some beams of Divinity with them from the Mount; We all with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same Image from glory to glory. The very beholding of Christ hath a mighty conforming and assimilating vertue to leave the impressions of glory upon our Spirits.

Psal. 34. 5.
Psal. 123. 1, 2.
Heb. 11. 27.

5. See our own Personal vivification linked unseparably unto, and bottomed unremoveably upon the resurrection of Christ; when we can by faith get a sight of this, it is not to speak how courageously and successfully the soul will grapple in the controversies of the Lord against the Devil, and our own deceitful hearts; with what strength could Joshua, Gideon, &c. go on, when backed with a promise, and their Spirits settled in the perswasion of it? and what use will the promises be in this kind? and (more than all) the life and resurrection of Jesus Christ, when we can clearly and steadfastly rest upon this, that there is an inseparable connection betwixt the resurrection of Christ and our personal holiness, and perseverance to the end? Oh that I could act my faith more frequently on Christ's resurrection, so that at last I could see it by the light of God to be a destined principle of my vivification in particular! what a blessed means would this be?

2 Cor. 3. 18.

6. Walk as we have Christ Jesus for an example. This example of Christ, though it be not ours ours, as it is the Socinians totum Christi, yet certainly it yields much to our vivification; who can deny but that acting with the pattern ever in ones eye is very advantageous? Come then, and if we would live the life of God, let us live as Christ lived after his resurrection. But how is that; I answer.

1. See that we return to the grave no more; take heed of ever returning to our former state. You may say, what needs this Caveat? hath not Christ said, He that liveth and believeth in me shall never dye? or never fall away? I answer, it is true, they shall never totally and finally fall away, yet they may fall foully and fearfully; they may lose that strength and vigour, that sense and feeling which sometimes they had; they may draw so nigh to the grave, as that both by themselves and others they may be accounted amongst them that go down to the pit, free among the dead, as Heman, faith of himself. The Apostle faith something that might even startle Christians; he tells of some who have been once enlightened (by the word) and have tasted of the heavenly gift (some flashes of inward joy and peace) and were made partakers of the holy Ghost (the common gifts and graces of the Spirit) and have tasted the good Word of God (have found some relish in the sweet and saving Promises of the Gospel) and the powers of the world to come (have had some ravishing apprehensions of the joyes and glory in Heaven) and yet fall away (by a total Apostacy.) Christians! how far goes this? I know it is said only of such who have a name to live, and no more; but surely a warning to us all that we come not nigh the verge, the brink of the grave again, let us not give away to any one sin, so as to live in it.

2. Let us evidence our resurrection; Christ being raised, he shewed himself alive by many infallible proofs; so let us evidence our vivification by many infallible proofs; (i. e.) Let us yield up our selves unto God; as those that are alive from the dead; let us walk as men of another world. If ye be risen with Christ seek the things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God; let us serve God in holiness and righteousness all the dayes of our life; surely this is the end for which we are delivered out of the hand of our enemies, sin, death, and hell. Ye were sometimes darkness (during your abode in the grave of sin) but now (being risen) ye are light in the Lord, walk therefore as children of light, [Walk] (i. e.) bestir your selves in the works of God; Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. When God doth let the Sun of Righteousness arise, it is fit we should be about the business of our Souls. We see that the night is dedicated to rest, and therefore God that doth order all things sweetly, he draws a curtain of darkness about us, as which is friendly to rest; like a Nurse, that when she will have her little one sleep, she casts a cloth over the face, and hides the light every way; but when this natural Sun ariseth, then men go out to their work: so must we, tho in the darkness of the night we snorted in sin, yet now we must bestir our selves, seeing the Sun of the spiritual world is risen over us.

And yet when all is done, let us not think that our Vivification in this life will be wholly perfect: as it is with our mortification, in the best, it is but an imperfect work; so it is with our Vivification; it is only gradual, and never perfect till grace be swallowed up of Glory. Only let us ever be in the use of the means, and let us endeavour a further renovation of the new man, adding one grace to another, To faith virtue, to virtue knowledg, to knowledg temperance, to temperance patience, to patience godliness, &c. till we perfect holiness in the fear of God, till we shine with those Saints in glory at perfect day.

Thus far we have Looked on Jesus in his resurrection, and during the time of his abode on earth. Our next work is to Look on Jesus carrying on the great work of our Salvation in his ascension into Heaven; and in his session at God's right hand; and in his mission of the holy Spirit.

The object of our view is now the Ascension of Christ, and his session at God's right hand. The object of our view is now the Ascension of Christ, and his session at God's right hand. The object of our view is now the Ascension of Christ, and his session at God's right hand.

SECT. I.

Of Christ's Ascension, and of the manner how.

Acts. 1. 2.

THUS far we have traced Jesus in his actings for us, until the day in which he was taken up. That which immediately follows, is his Ascension, Session at God's right hand, and Mission of his holy Spirit; in prosecution of which, as in the former, I shall first lay down the object; and secondly, direct you how to look upon it:

The object is threefold. 1. He ascended into Heaven. 2. He sat down at God's right hand. 3. He sent down the Holy Ghost.

1. For the Ascension of Christ, this was a glorious design, and contains in it a great part of the Salvation of our Souls. In prosecution of this, I shall shew. 1. That he ascended. 2. How he ascended. 3. Whither he ascended. 4. Why he ascended.

Ezek. 44. 2, 3. 1. That he ascended. 1. The types prefigure it, Then said the Lord to me, this gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened; --- it is for the Prince, the Prince he shall sit in it to eat bread before the Lord, he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same. As the Gate of the Holy of Holies was shut against every man but the High Priest; so was that Gate of Heaven shut against all, so that none could enter in by their own Virtue and Efficacy, but only our Prince and great high Priest, the Lord Jesus Christ; indeed he hath opened it for us, and entered into it in our place and stead, Whither the fore-runner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedech. 2. The Prophets foresaw it, I saw in the night visions, Dan. 7. 13. and behold one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him, and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom. 3. The Evangelists relate it, He was received up into Heaven. --- He was carried up into Heaven. 4. The eleven witness it, For while they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight. 5. The Acts 1.10, 11. 5. The holy Angels speak it, For while they looked steadfastly toward heaven, as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, which also said, ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

6. The blessed Apostles in their several Epistles, ratify and confirm it, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. — he that descended is the same also that ascended up far above all heavens, who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God; Angels, and Authorities, and Powers, being made subject unto him.

2. How he ascended. The manner of his ascension is discovered in these particulars. —

1. He ascended, blessing his Apostles, While he blessed them he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven. It is some comfort to Christ's Ministers, that tho the world hate them, Christ doth bless them; yea he parted with them in a way of blessing; as Jacob leaving the world, blessed his Sons; so Christ leaving the world, blessed his Apostles, and all the faithful Ministers of Christ, unto the end of the world. Some add, that in these Apostles, not only Ministers, but all the elect to the end of the world are blessed: The Apostles were then considered as common persons receiving this blessing for all us, and so those words uttered at the same time are usually interpreted, Lo, I am with you alway even to the end of the world. This was the last thing that Christ did on earth, to shew that by his death he had redeemed us from the curse of the Law, and that now going to heaven, he is able to bless us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places.

2. He ascended visibly in the view of the Apostles; *while they beheld, he was taken up; he was not suddenly snatched from them, as Elijah was, nor secretly and privily taken away as Enoch was; but in the presence of them all, both his Apostles and Disciples, he ascended up into heaven; but why not in the view of all the Jews, that so they might know that he was risen again and gone to Heaven? surely this was the meaning; God would rather that the main points of faith should be learned by hearing, than by seeing; however Christ's own Disciples were taught the same by sight, that they might better teach others which should not see; yet the ordinary means to come by faith is hearing; how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? — so then, faith cometh by hearing; and hearing by the word of God. And as for the Jews (saith the Apostle) have they not heard? yes verily, their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the end of the world.*

by themselves, it was God's power by which they ascended, and it was by the help and Ministry of Angels: *There appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire; and Elijah went up by a Whirlwind into Heaven.*

4. He ascended in a cloud, While they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight. Hereby he shews that he is Lord of all the creatures; he had already trampled upon the earth, walked upon the Sea, vanquished Hell or the Grave, and now the Clouds received him, and the Heavens are opened to make way for this King of Glory to enter in. When Christ shall come again, it is said that he shall come in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. — Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of Heaven. Which verifies that saying of the Angel, This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into Heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into Heaven. He went up in Clouds, and he shall come again in clouds.

5. He ascended in the sound of a Trumpet; not on earth, sounding Hosanna, but in Heaven, crying Hallelujah. So the Psalmist, God is gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a trumpet. Certainly great joy was in Heaven at Christ's ascending thither: the very Angels struck up their Harps, and welcomed him thither with Hymns and Praises.

6. He ascended in triumph, as a Roman Victor ascended to the Capitol, or as David ascended after his conquest up to Zion. Now we read of two triumphal acts in Christ's ascension, whereof the first was his leading of his captives, and the second was the dispersing of his gifts: the Apostle and the Psalmist joyn both together, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. 1. He led them captive who had captivated us. Death was led captive without a sting; Hell was led captive as one that had lost her victory; the Law was led captive, being rent and fastened to his Cross (as it were) Ensign-wise; the Serpent's head being bruised, was led before him in triumph, as was Goliath's head by David returned from the victory; and this was the first act of his triumph. 2. He gave gifts unto men: this was as the running of Conduits with wine, or as the casting abroad of new Coyn, or as the shutting up of Christ's Triumph in his ascension up to Heaven: what these gifts were, we shall speak in the Mission of the holy Ghost; only thus much for the present.

SECT.

SECT. II.

Of the place whither He Ascended.

3. WHither he ascended, the Gospel tells us into Heaven; only Paul Eph. 4. 10 faith, that he ascended far above all heavens. But the meaning is, he went above all these visible Heavens into those heavenly Mansions, where the Angels, and the Spirits of the Just have their abode. Or if the highest Heavens be included, I see no Absurdity in it; the highest Heaven, we usually call The Kingdom of Heaven; which is either Heaven material, or Heaven spiritual; and first for the material heaven, in some sense he may be said to ascend above that, both in respect of his Body, because the Body of Christ is more glorious than any material Heaven. And in respect of his Soul, because the Soul of Christ is more blessed than all things else whatsoever. And 2. For the spiritual Heaven (i. e.) all Angelical or Heavenly perfections, he is said to ascend above them all, both in respect of his humiliation, because he hath vilified himself below all things, and therefore he is worthily exalted above all things; and in respect of his perfection, because the humane nature of Christ is more excellent than any Creature, it being joyned to the Godhead by an hypostatical union. Some there are that understand this place of Christ's ascending far above all Heavens, not so much by a local motion, as by a Spiritual mutation and exaltation of his Person; as earth heightned unto a flame, changeth not its place only, but form and figure; so the person of our Saviour was raised to a greatness and glory vastly differing from, and surmounting any image of things visible or invisible in this Creation; so it is fitly expressed, Heb. 7. 26 He was made higher than the Heavens; he was heightned to a splendor, enlarged to a capacity and compass above the brightest, and beyond the widest Heavens: he transcended all in the spirituality of his Ascension: but I shall not much insist on that.

SECT. III.

Of the Reasons why He Ascended.

4. WHY he Ascended, the Reasons are, Luke 24. 26. 1. On Christ's part, that through his Passion he might pass to glory. Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and so to enter into his glory? I shall not insist on that Controversie, whether Christ merited for himself; this is without controversy, that by his Passion (I will not say he properly merited, but) He obtained glory, because he humbled himself so low, God exalted him above the Grave in his Resurrection, above the Earth in his Ascension, and above the Heavens in placing him at his right hand. And he ascended, that all those Prophecies which were foretold of Christ might be accomplished. Thou hast ascended on high. And thy feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of olives, which is before Jerusalem on the East. Zach. 14. 4. The types of this were Enoch's translation, Elijah's Ascension, Sampson's transportation of the gates of Gezza into an high mountain, the high Priests going into the Holy of Holies, Seeing that we have a great high Priest, that is Heb. 4. 14. passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God. Why all these prophecies, types, figures, must needs be accomplished, and therefore on his part it was necessary that Christ must ascend, and go into Heaven.

2. The Reasons on our part are,——

1. That in our stead he might triumph over sin, death, and hell. In his Resurrection he conquered, but in his Ascension he triumphed; now it was that he led sin, death, and devil in triumph at his Chariot wheels. And this is the meaning of the Psalmist, and of the Apostle, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive: He vanquished and triumphed over all our enemies; he overcame the world, he bound the devil, he spoiled hell, he weakened sin, he destroyed death, and now he makes a publick triumphal shew of them in his own Person; he led the captives bound to his chariot-wheels, as the manner of the Roman triumphs was, when the Conqueror went up to the Capitol. It is to the same purpose that the Apostle speaks elsewhere, Having spoiled Col. 2. 15 Principalities and Powers, he made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them in himself; it is a manifest allusion to the manner of triumphs after victories amongst the Romans; first, they spoiled the enemy upon the place, ere they stirred off the field; and this was done by Christ on the Cross; and then they made a publick triumphal shew, they rid through the streets in the greatest state, and had all their spoils carried before them, and the Kings and Nobles whom they had taken, they tyed to their Chariots, and led them as captives; and this did Christ at his Ascension; Then he openly Triumphed, in a van, in himself, (i. e.) in his own power and strength; other Conquerors do not thus; they conquer not in themselves, and by themselves, but Jesus Christ conquered in himself, and therefore he triumphed in himself. And yet though he triumphed in himself, and by himself, it was not for himself only, but for us; which made the Apostle to triumph in His triumph; O death where is thy sting, O grave where is thy victory? the sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the Law; but thanks be to God, which giveth us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. 1 Cor. 15. 55, 56, 57 If I may speak out what I think was this victory of Christ; I believe it was that honour given to him after his Resurrection by the conversion of enemies, by the amazements of the world, by the admiration of Angels, and especially by his sitting down at the right hand of Majesty on high; for therein is contained both his exaltation, and his triumph over all his Enemies to the utmost.

2. That he might lead us the way, and open to us the doors of glory. It is a question whether ever those doors of Heaven were opened to any before Christ's Ascension? Christ tells us, In my Fathers house are many mansions, if it were not so, I would have sold John 14. 2, 3.

told you, but I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto my self, that where I am, ye may be also. Some infer hence, as if there should be many outer courts, and many different places or states in glory; and yet there is one place whither the Saints should arrive at last, which was not then ready for them, and was not to be entered into, until the entrance of our Lord had made the preparation. Again, the Apostle tells us, that the Fathers received not the Promises, God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect. Whence some infer that their conditions after death was a state of Imperfection; and that they were placed in an outer court on this side Heaven, called Paradise, or Abraham's bosom; and thither also Christ went when he dyed, and was attended with the blessed Thief. For my part, I shall not joyn with such who think all souls of Saints shall go to Paradise, where they must remain till the day of judgment, and then, and not till then, must enter into that heaven, called the third Heaven, or the Kingdom of Heaven. Indeed some of the ancients make Heaven, and the immediate receptacles of souls to be distinct places, both blessed, but hugely differing in degrees: And a modern writer is very confident, That no soul could enter into glory before our Lord entered; by whom we hope to have access; and to that purpose he cites those Texts, John 14. 2, 3. Heb. 11. 40. But I see no ground, why the souls of Saints should be excluded Heaven, either before or after Christ. As for that text of John 14. 2. Christ saith, In my fathers house are many mansions, not many outer courts, nor many different states; and as for the Fathers mentioned, Heb. 11. 40. Surely they without us shall not be made perfect, and we without them shall not be made perfect in some sense until the day of judgment. But our Perfection is not in respect of a more glorious place, but in respect of that perfection whereof all the faithful shall be made partakers as well in body as in soul, at the resurrection of the just. Thus far I grant, that no soul ever entered into Heaven, but by the vertue and power of Christ's Ascension, and that no soul and body jointly ever ascended (except Christ's types) before Christ himself opened those doors, and lead the way; and in this respect he is called, The forerunner of his People.

3. That he might assure us, that now he had run through all those Offices which he was to perform here on Earth for our redemption. He that hath entered into his rest, hath also ceased from his own Works, as God did from his. He was first to execute his Office, and then to enter into his rest;

Heb. 5.
8, 9.

Though he were a Son, and so the inheritance were his own, yet he was to learn Obedience, by the things which he suffered, before he was made perfect, and so to become the Author of eternal Salvation unto all them that obey him. This was the Argument which Christ used when he prayed to be glorified again with his Father, I have glorified thee on the earth, John 17. I have finished the work which thou gavest me 4. 5.

to do: And now, O Father, glorifie thou me with thy own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the World was. This was the order of the dispensation of Christ's Offices; his first work was a work of ministry, and Service in the Office of obedience and suffering for his Church; and this next work was the work of power and majesty in the protection and exaltation of his Church; and there was a necessity in this order. 1. In respect of God's Decree, who had so fore-appointed it, Acts 2. 23, 24.

2. In respect of God's Justice, which must first be satisfied by obedience before any entrance into glory, Luk. 24. 26. 3. In respect of Christ's infinite Person, which being equal with God, could not possibly be exalted without some preceding decent and humiliation: That he ascended (saith the Apostle) what is it but that he also descended first into the lower parts of the earth? 4. In respect of our evidence and assurance; this is the sign that Christ hath finished the work of our redemption upon the earth; first, he was to act as our Surety, and then he was to ascend as our Head, our Advocate, as the first-fruits, the Captain, the Prince of life, the Author of salvation, the forerunner of his People.

Eph. 4. 9.

4. That he might thoroughly convince the world of Believers, of their perfect righteousness, The Spirit when he comes (saith Christ) shall convince the world of sin, and righteousness, and of judgment — of sin, 8, 9, 10. because they believe not on me; — of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more. If Christ had not fulfilled all righteousness, there had been no going to heaven for him, nor remaining there; certainly God would have sent him down again to have done the rest, and the disciples should have seen him with shame sent back again; but his ascension to Heaven proclaims openly.

1. That he hath completely finished the work he had to do for us here, that no more was to be done in this world for us, that the satisfactory work to justice was in it self finished. 2. That God was well pleased with Jesus Christ, and with what he had done and suffer'd for us; yea, God was so infinitely taken with him, and his oblation after his sufferings, as that he thinks it not fit to let him stay above forty daies longer in this World; he cannot be without him in Heaven, but he takes him up into Glory, and gives him a Name above every Name.

3. That we have our share in Heaven with him; he went not up as a single person, but virtually, or mystically, he carried up all the Elect with him into Glory: or otherwise how should the Spirit convince the world by his Ascension of their righteousness? Or otherwise how should the Son of God convince his Father by his Ascension of his righteousness? I look upon Jesus Christ going into Heaven, as a confident Debtor after payment going into a Court,

Heb. 8. 14

Court, and saying, Who hath any thing to lay to his Charge? all is paid, let the Law take his course. When Christ entred into heaven, he seemed thus to challenge Justice, Make room here for me and mine, who should hinder? hath the Law any thing to say to these poor souls for whom I dyed? If any in Heaven can make objection, here I am to answer in their behalf. Methinks I imagine a silence in heaven (as John speaks) at this speech; only Mercy smiles, and Justice gives in the Acquittance; and God sets Christ down at his right hand. 4. That he hath a new design to be acted in heaven for us: he is taken up into glory, that he may act gloriously the second part of our righteousness, I mean that he might apply it, and send down his Spirit to convince us of it. He acted one part in the flesh, in the habit of a Beggar, cloathed with Rags; but now he is gone to act the Person of a Prince in robes of glory, and all this to manage our salvation in the richest way that may be. Three great things Christ acts for us now in glory. First, he is in place of an Advocate for us, Heb. 7. 25 He liveth to intercede for us. He is alwaies begging of favours and love for us, he lies there to stop whatever plea may be brought in against us by the Devil, or Law; yea, he is there to get our fresh pardons for new sins. Secondly, he is the great provider and caterer for us; he is laying in a great stock and store of glory for us against we come Joh. 14. 2. there; In my Fathers house are many mansions. — I go to prepare a place for you. Jesus Christ went before to take up God's heart for us, and now he is drawing out the riches of love from God his Father, and laying them in bank for us, which made the Phil. 4. 19 Apostle say, My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus. Thirdly, He sends down his Spirit to convince us, that Christ's righteousness is ours. Indeed the means of procuring this, was the life and death of Christ, but the means of applying this righteousness, are those following acts of Christ's Resurrection, Ascension, Session, Intercession, &c. By his death he obtained righteousness for us, but by his Ascension he applies righteousness to us; now it is that in special manner he convinceth us of righteousness, Because he is gone to his Father, and we shall see him no more. 5. That he might receive his Kingdom over us in the place appointed for it; look as Kings are crowned in the chief Cities of their Kingdoms, and keep their residence in their palaces near unto them, so it was decent that our Saviour should be Crowned in Heaven, and there sit down at God's right hand, which immediately follows after his Ascension, to which we now come.

SECT. IV.

Of God's right hand, and of Christ's Session there.

2. FOR the Session of Christ at God's right hand, which is a consequent following after his ascension into Heaven, I shall examine, 1. What is God's right hand, 2. What is it to sit there? 3. According to what nature doth Christ sit there? 4. Why is it that he sits at the right hand of God his Father in Glory?

1. What is this right hand of God? I answer, 1. Negatively, It is not any Corporal right hand of God; if we speak properly, God hath neither right hand nor left hand; for God is not a body, but a spirit or spiritual substance. 2. Positively, The right hand of God is the Majesty, Dignity, Dominion, Power, and Glory of God. The right hand of the Lord is exalted, the right hand of the Lord doth valiantly. — Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in Power; thy right hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy. Thou hast a mighty arm, Strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand. — Mine hand hath laid the foundations of the Earth, and my right hand hath spanned the Heavens. I know some of our Divines make this right hand of God something inferiour to God's own power, but others speak of it as every way equal, and I know no absurdity to follow on it.

2. What is it to sit at the right hand of God? I answer, it is not any corporal Session at God's right hand, as some picture him with a crown of gold on his head sitting on a Throne, as if he had no other gesture in Heaven but sitting still; which Stephen contradicts, saying, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God. The words sitting or standing are both metaphorical, and borrowed from the custom of Kings, who place those they honour, and to whom they commit the Power of government, at their right hand; more particularly, this sitting at God's right hand implies two things. 1. His glorious exaltation. 2. The actual administration of his Kingdom.

1. Christ is exalted, Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow. This Session is the supreme dignity and glory given by the Father unto Christ after his Ascension; this Session is the peerless exaltation of the Mediator in his Kingdom of glory. But how was Christ exalted? I answer, 1. In regard of his divine nature; not really, or in it self. Impossible it was that the divine nature should receive any intrinsical Improvement, or glory, because all fulness of glory essentially belonged unto it; but declaratory, or by way of manifestation; so it was, that his Divinity, during the time of his humiliation, lay hidden and overshadowed, as the light of a candle is hidden in a dark and close Lanthorn; but now in his Session, that Divinity and Glory which he had alwaies with his Father, was shewed forth and declared, He was declared to be the Son of God with Power, both at his resurrection and at his Session. 2. In regard of his humane nature; and yet that must be understood soberly, for I cannot think that Christ's humane nature was at all exalted in regard of the grace of Personal union, or in regard of the habitual perfections of his humane soul, because he possessed all these

from the beginning ; but in regard of those interceptions of the beams of the Godhead, and Divine glory ; and in respect of the restraints of that sense and sweetness, and feeling operations of the beatifical Vision, during his humiliation ; in these respects Christ was exalted in his humane nature, and had all the glory from the Deity communicated to it which possibly in any way it was capable of. There was a time when the Office which Christ undertook for us, made him a man of sorrows, but when he had finished that dispensation, then he was filled with unmatchable glory, which before his Session he enjoyed not ; there was a time when the natural consequence and flowings of Christ's glory from that personal union was stayed and hindered, by special dispensation, for the working of our Salvation ; but when that miraculous stay was once removed, and the work of our Redemption fully finished, then he was exalted beyond the capacity or comprehension of all the Angels of Heaven, To which of the Angels said he at any time, sit at my right hand ? In this respect it is said that God highly exalted him ; exalted he was in his Resurrection, Ascension, but never so high as at his Session ; in his Resurrection he was exalted with Jonah from the lower parts to the upper parts of the Earth ; in his Ascension he was exalted with Elijah above the Clouds, above the Stars, above the Heavens ; but in his Session he was exalted to the highest place in Heaven, even to the right hand of God, Far above all Heavens, that he might fill all things.

2. Christ reigns, or actually administers his glorious Kingdom ; and this is the principal part of Christ's sitting at God's right hand. So the Psalmist, The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy foot-stool ; the Lord shall send the rod of thy strength out of Zion, rule thou in the midst of thy enemies. The Apostle is yet more large, God set him, at his own right hand, in the heavenly places, far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come ; and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the Church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all. Some describe this Session at God's right hand to be all one with his reigning in equal power and glory with the Father ; but the Son hath always so reigned, and the Holy Ghost hath always so reigned, who yet is not said in Scripture to sit at the right hand of the Father, I believe therefore there is something in this Session or Reign of Christ, which doth difference it from that reigning Power and Glory of the Father, and of the Son as only God, and of the Holy Ghost ; and if we would know what that is, I would call it an actual administration of his Kingdom, or an immediate executing of his Power and Glory over every creature as Mediator. There is a natural and a dispensatory Kingdom of Jesus Christ ; for the first, the Father reigns immediately by the Son, but by the Holy Ghost the Father doth not reign immediately, but through the Son ; the same order is to be kept in their power, which is in the Persons ; the Father reigns not by himself, but of himself, because he is of none ; the Son reigneth by himself, not of himself, because he is begotten of the Father ; the Holy Ghost reigneth by himself, but from the Father and the Son, from whom he doth proceed. And as in the natural, so in the dispensatory Kingdom, the Father reigns immediately by the Son as Mediator ; and hence it is that the Son, as Mediator, is only said to sit at God's right hand, because the right of actual administration, or immediate execution of the Sovereign power is appropriate and peculiar to the Son, as Mediator betwixt God and man. And this made Christ to say, The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son, as Mediator. You may object. Christ was Mediator immediately after his Incarnation, but he did not actually administer his Kingdom then. I answer, it is true ; Christ for a time did by a voluntary dispensation empty himself, and laid aside the right of actual administration of his Kingdom ; but immediately after his Ascension, the Father, by voluntary dispensation, resigned it to the Son again ; Come now, saith the Father, and take thou power over every creature, till the time that all things shall be subdued under thee. This Right the one relinquished in the time of that humiliation of himself, and this right the other conferred at the time of the exaltation of his Son.

Joh. 5.22

SECT. V.

Of the two Natures wherein Christ sits at God's right hand.

3. According to what Nature is Christ said to sit at the right hand of God ? I answer, according to both Natures ; first he sits at God's right hand as God ; hereby his Divinity was declared, and his Kingdom is such, that none that is a pure creature can possibly execute ; The Lord said to my Lord, saith David, sit thou on my right hand. The Lord said to my Lord] (i.e.) God said to Christ : Now Christ was not David's Lord merely as man, but as God. And 2. He sits at God's right hand as man too ; hereby his Humanity was exalted, and a Power is given to Christ as man, He hath given him power to execute judgment, inasmuch as he is the Son of man. In the administration of his Kingdom the manhood of Christ doth concur, as an Instrument working with his God-head. Hence this Session at God's right hand is truly and properly attributed to Christ, as David's Lord ; and not only to the one nature of Christ, whether Divine or Humane, or it is attributed to Christ as Mediator ; in which respect he is called an high Priest, We have such an high Priest, who is set on the right hand of the Throne of the Majesty in the hea- heavens. — And in which respect he is called a Prince, Him hath God exalted with his right hand, to be a Prince, and a Saviour. Now Christ is not a Priest and a Prince merely according to one Nature, whether Divine or Humane. I deny not, but Christ had a natural Kingdom with his Father as God, before the foundation of the World; but this Kingdom as God-man Christ had not before his Ascension into Heaven. So then Christ sitteth at the right hand of God by a mediatory action, which he executeth according to both natures, the word working what pertaineth to the word, and the flesh what appertaineth to the flesh; Christ is Mediator as God and man, and glory hath redounded unto him as God and man, and living in this glory, he ruleth and governeth his Church as God and man, he ascended indeed into Heaven in his humanity only, but he sitteth at the right hand of God as Mediator in respect of both natures. The Lutherans attribute this Session at God's right hand only to the humane nature of Christ; they say this Session is nothing else but the elevating of his humane nature to the full and free use of some of the divine properties, as of omnipotency, omniscience, omnipresence; the ground of this error is, that they suppose, upon the union of the two natures in Christ, a real communication of the divine properties to follow; so that the humane nature is made truly omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, not by any confusion of properties, nor yet by any bare communion and concurrence of it to the same effect, each nature working that which belongeth to it with communion of the other, (for this we grant) but by a real donation, by which the divine properties so become the properties of the humane nature, that the humane nature may work with them, no less than the Divine nature it self. for the perfecting of it self. Against this opinion we have these Reasons; 1. The Union cannot cause the humane nature to partake more in the properties of the Divine, than it causeth the Divine to partake in the properties of the humane. 2. If a true and real communication did follow of the Divine Attributes, it must needs be of all the Attributes, as of Eternity, and Infiniteness, seeing these are the Divine Essence, which can no way be divided. 3. Infinite perfections cannot perfect finite natures, no more than reasonable perfections can make perfect unreasonable creatures. 4. To what end should created gifts serve, which Christ hath received above measure, if now more noble properties should enter and be conferred on Jesus Christ? other reasons are given in, but I willingly decline all controversial points.

SECT. VI.

Of the Reasons why Christ doth sit on God's right hand.

4. Why doth Christ sit at the right hand of God his Father in glory? I answer, 1. On Christ's part, that He might receive power and dominion over all the creatures: All power is given unto me in Heaven and in Earth; he speaks of it as ^{18.} done, because it was immediately to be performed; Christ at his Session received a power imperial over every Creature; that he hath power over the Angels is plain, both by the reverence they do him, and by their obedience towards him, At the name of Jesus every knee must bow; good Angels, and evil Angels must yield signs of subjection to Jesus Christ; if the Saints shall judge the Angels, how much more shall Christ? Oh what power hath Christ himself this way? And as for the excellencies on earth, they all receive their power from Christ, and are at his dispose; it is Jesus Christ that is crowned with Glory and Honour, and all things ^{Heb. 2.} are put under his feet. And hence it is, that when the Apostle speaks of Christ's Session at the right hand of God, he tells us, he is far above all Principalities and Powers on earth, and Might and Dominions in Heaven: yea, that Angels, and Authorities, and Powers are ^{Eph. 1. 21} made subject unto him. ^{1 Pet. 3. 22.}

2. On our part many reasons may be given.

As —

1. That he might be the Head of his Church, I mean, not head in a large sense, for one who is in any kind before another: for so Christ is the head of Angels, and God is the head of Christ; and to this we have spoken before. But in a strict sense, for one that is in a near and communicative sort conjoined with another, as the Head is conjoined with the Body and Members; and so is Christ the head of his Church. Look as the King hath a more intimate and amiable Superiority over the Queen than over any other of his Subjects; so is it here in Christ our King, he is more amiably tempered, and more nearly affected to his Spouse and Queen, the Church of God, than to any other whomsoever. And to this purpose he sits at God's right hand, that having now fulness of Grace and Glory in himself, he might be ready to communicate the same to his Church, who are as the members of his body, that he might give them Grace here, and Glory hereafter; when he shall deliver up his Kingdom to his Father, and be all in all.

2. That he might be the object of divine Adoration, then especially it was said and accomplished, Let all the Angels of God ^{Heb. 1. 6.} Worship Him: and let all men Honour the Son as they Honour the Father. After Christ's Session, Stephen looked up into Heaven, and saw the Glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God, and then he worshipped; and called upon God ^{Act 7. 59} saying, Lord Jesus receive my Spirit. It is true that the ground of this divine Adoration is the Union of the two natures of Christ, and therefore the Magi worshipped him at his Birth, and as soon as ever he came into the World, the Angels of God worshipped him; ^{Heb. 1. 6.} but because by his Session at God's right hand, the Divine Nature was manifested, and the Humane Nature was exalted to that dignity and glory which it never had before, therefore now especially, and from this time time was the honour and dignity of Worship communicated to him as God and man. And hence Divines usually make this one Ingredient of Christ's sitting at the right hand of God, viz. That Christ, God, and Man, is the object of Divine Adoration. O it is a great thing, and admirable, and full of wonder, that the man Christ should sit above at God's right hand, and be adored of Angels and Archangels. Before this was the grace of Union conferred on Jesus, and so he was adored before he suffered; but after he had humbled himself, and was made obedient unto death, even to the death of the Cross, then (yea and therefore) God highly exalted him, and gave him a Name which is above every Name, that at the Name of Jesus every knee shall bow, of things in Heaven, and things in Earth, and things under the Earth, and that every tongue shall confess, that Jesus is Lord to the glory of God the Father. He was Lord before, in that he is the Son of God, but now he is Lord again by virtue of his humiliation and session at God's right hand. Trouble not your selves with their objection, who say, That if Adoration be due to Christ as God and man, that then the humane nature is to be adored: The Person adored is Man, but the humanity it self is not the proper object of that Worship. There is a difference betwixt the concrete and the abstract; though the man Christ be God, yet his manhood is not God, and by consequence not to be worshipped with that worship which is properly and essentially Divine. Certainly, if Adoration agree to the humanity of Christ, then may his humanity help and save us; but the humanity of Christ cannot help and save us, because omnis actio est suppositi, whereas the humane nature of Christ is not suppositum, a substance or personal being at all.

3. That he might intercede for his Saints. Now of the things which we have spoken, this is the Summ; we have such an high Priest, who is set on the right hand of the Throne of the Majesty in the Heavens, and a Minister of the Sanctuary, and of the true Tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not men: he is set on the right hand of God, as an high Priest or Minister to intercede for us. For as Christ is not entered into the holy Place made with hands which are the Figures of the true, but into Heaven it self, now to appear in the presence of God for us. This appearing is an expression borrowed from the custom of humane Courts; for as in them, when the Plaintiff or Defendant is called, their Attorney appeareth in their names, so when we are summoned by the justice of God, to answer the complaints which it preferreth against us, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, and he standeth up and appeareth for us: Or it may be this appearing hath a respect to the manner of high Priests in the time of the Law; for as they used to go into the most holy place with the names of the Children of Israel written in precious stones, for a remembrance of them, that they might remember them to God in their Prayers; so Jesus Christ being gone up to Heaven, he there presents to his Father, the Names of all his chosen, and he remembers them to his Father in his Intercessions. Certainly, Christ is not gone to Heaven, and advanced to the right hand of God, only to live in eternal joy himself, but also to procure happiness for his Saints: It is to excellent purpose, and to the great good of his Church, that he sits at the right hand of his Father, for thereby he governs and protects his People, and he continually executes the Office of his Priesthood, presenting himself, and the Sacrifice of himself, and the infinite merit of that Sacrifice before the eyes of his Father in their behalf.

4. That true Believers may assuredly hope by virtue of Christ's Session to sit themselves in the Kingdom of Glory. It is true, that Christ, and only Christ, hath his Seat at the right hand of God; To which of the Saints, or of the Angels did he ever say, fit thou at my right hand? It is a Privilege above all Creatures; and yet there is something near it given to the Saints, for him that overcometh, I will grant to sit with me in my Throne, even as I also am set down with my Father in his Throne. There is a proportion, though with an inequality; we must sit on Christ's Throne, as he sits on his Father's Throne; Christ only sits at the right hand of God, but the Saints are to sit at the right hand of Christ, and so the Psalmist speaks, Upon thy right hand did stand the Queen in Gold of Ophir. It is enough to greaten the Spirits of Saints; how should they tread on earth, and contemn the world, when they consider that one day they shall judge the world? Do you not know, that the Saints shall judge the World? Nay, when they consider that one day they shall reign with Christ? If ye suffer with him, ye shall reign with him. Christ living in Heaven, is a very Figure of us; Christ's Person is the great model and first draught of all that shall be done to his Body the Saints; therefore he is said to be the Captain of our Salvation, that leads us on, he is said to be our fore-runner into Glory; he breaks the clouds first, he appears first before God, he sits down first, and is glorified first, and then we follow; Christ wears the Crown in Heaven as our King, and he is united and married to God as our Proxy.

And yet there is another ground of hope; not only shall we sit with Christ in Glory, but even now do we sit with him in glory: Christ is not only gone to Heaven to prepare a place for us, but he sits in Heaven in our room, and God looks on him as the great picture of all that Body whereof he is Head, and he delights himself in seeing them all glorified as in his Son. To this purpose the Saints are said to sit down with Christ at very present, he hath made us to sit together with him in Heavenly places in Christ Jesus. Christ in our nature is now exalted; this is that admirable thing which which carried up Chrysostom into an extasie, that the same nature of which God said Dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt return, should now sit in Heaven at God's right hand: but not only the humane nature, but Christ in Person sits there, as a common person in our stead; he is in his Throne, and we sit with him in supercelestial places. O what structures and pillars of hope are raised up here?

5. That he might defend the Church against her enemies; and at last destroy all the enemies of the Church. Such is the power of Christ's Session, that by it he holds up his Saints in the midst of their enemies, so that the gates of hell shall not prevail against them; true indeed, that many times they are used as Lambs amongst Wolves, but so Christ orders, that the blood of Martyrs should be the seed of the Church; hereby his Church, like a tree, settles the faster, and like a Torch, shines the brighter for the shaking. And as for the enemies of his Church, there is a day of reckoning for them, he that sitteth in the Heavens shall laugh, the Lord shall have them in derision. The day is a coming that he will speak unto them in his wrath, and vex him in his sore displeasure. In the mean while Christ is galling and tormenting them by the Scepter of his Word, and at last he will put them all under his feet. The Lord said to my Lord, sit thou at my right hand, until I make my enemies thy foot-stool. — For he must reign till he hath put all his enemies under his feet: That the enemies of Christ must be made his foot-stool, notes the extream shame and confusion which they shall everlastingly suffer: In Victories amongst men the party conquered goes many times off upon some honourable terms, or at worst, if they are led captive, they go like men; but to be made a stool for the conqueror to insult over, this is extremity of shame; and as shame, so it notes burthen which the wicked must bear; the foot-stool bears the weight of the body, so must the enemies of Christ bear the weight of his heavy and everlasting wrath; such a weight shall they bear, that they would gladly exchange it for the weight of rocks and mountains; rather would they live under the weight of the heaviest creature in the World, than under the fury of him that sitteth upon the Throne. And withal, it notes an equal and just recompence to the Wicked; the Lord useth often to fit punishments to the quality and measure of their sins committed; he that on earth denied a crumb of bread, was in hell denied a drop of water; and thus will Christ deal with his enemies at the last day; here they trample upon Christ in his Word, in his waies, in his members; they make the Saints bow down for them to go over; yea, they have laid their bodies as the ground, and as the street to them that went over, they tread under foot the Son of God, the blood of the Covenant; they tread down the sanctuary; and put Christ to shame: and therefore their own measure shall be returned into their own bosome, they shall be constrained

ned to confess with Adoni-bezek, As I have done, so God hath requited me; yea, this shall Judg. 1.7 they suffer from the meanest of Christ's members, whom they here insult over; the Saints shall be as witnesses, and as it were co-assessors with Christ, to judge the wicked, both men and Angels, and tread them under their feet; they shall take them captives whose captives they were, and shall rule over their oppressors; all they that despised them, shall bow themselves at the soles of their feet. Isa. 14.2

6. That he might send down the Holy Ghost; to this purpose Christ told his Disciples whilst he was yet on earth, that he must ascend into Heaven, and Reign there: It is expedient for you, that I go away, for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him to you. Christ is now in heaven, and sits at God's right hand, that he may send us his spirit, by whose forcible working we seek after Heaven, and heavenly things, where now Christ sits. But on this I shall insist larger, it being our next subject.

SECT. VII.

Of the time when the Holy Ghost was sent.

3. FOR the mission of his Spirit: No sooner was Christ set down at God's right hand, but he sends down the Holy Ghost. It was an use amongst the Ancients in days of great joy and solemnity to give gifts, and to send presents unto men; thus, after the wall of Jerusalem was built, it is said, that the people did eat, and drink, and send portions: and at the feast of Purim, they made them daies of feasting and joy, and of sending portions one to another, and Gifts to the poor. Thus Christ in the day of his Majesty and Inauguration, in that great and solemn Triumph, when he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and did withal give gifts unto men. Eph. 4.8

Concerning this mission of the Spirit, or these gifts of Christ to his Church, I shall discover the accomplishment, as it appears in these Texts; And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place; and suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting; and there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance. Out of these words I shall observe these particulars: the time when; the persons to whom; the manner how; the measure what; and the reasons why the Holy Ghost was sent.

1. For the time when the Holy Ghost was sent, it is said, when the day of Pentecost was fully come; this was a feast of the Jews, called pentecosten & pentecosten from fifty daies; because it was ever kept on the Fiftieth day after the second of the Passover. We find in Scripture sundry memorable things reckoned by the number of fifty. As fifty days from Israels coming out of Egypt unto the giving of the Law. And the fiftieth eth year was that great feast of the Jubilee, which was the time of forgiving of debts, and of restoring men to their first estates; And fifty daies were in truth the appointed time of the Jews Harvest; their Harvest being bounded as it were with two remarkable days, the one being the beginning, the other the end thereof; the beginning was Πεντήκαια τῆς παλῆς, the second of the Passover; the end was Πεντηκοστή, the fiftieth day after, called the Pentecost; upon the Πεντήκαια they offered a sheaf of the first fruits of their Harvest: upon the Pentecost they offered two wave Loaves, the sheaf being offered, all the after-fruits throughout the Land were Sanctified; and the two loaves being offered, it was a sign of the Harvest finished and ended; and now we find, that as there were fifty days betwixt Πεντήκαια and the Pentecost, so there were fifty daies betwixt Christ's Resurrection and the coming down of the Holy Ghost. What was the meaning of this, but to hold harmony, and to keep correspondency with those memorable things? As on the day of Pentecost (fifty days after the feast of the Passover) the Israelites came to mount Sinai, there received they the Law; a memorable day with them, and therefore called the feast of the Law; so the very same day is accomplished that Prophecie, Out of Zion shall go forth the Law, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem; now was the promulgation of the Gospel called by James, The Royal Law, as given by Christ our King, and written in the Hearts of his Servants by this Holy Ghost; it seems to shadow out the great difference betwixt the Law and the Gospel; the Law was given with terrour, in lightning and thunder; it discovers sin, declares God's wrath, frights the Conscience; but the Gospel is given without terrour, there was no lightning and thunder now: no, no; the Holy Ghost slides down from Heaven with grace and gifts; and with great joy sits on the heads, and in the hearts of his Saints.

2. On the Jubilee or fiftieth year, was a great feast; whence some observe, that the Latins made their word Jubilo, to take up a Merry Song; though the word be derived from the Hebrew Jobel, which signifies a Rams-horn: for then they blew with Rams horns, as when they gathered the People to the Congregation, they blew their Silver Trumpets. There were many uses of this Feast; 1. For the general release of Servants. 2. For the restoring of Lands unto their first owners, who had sold them. 3. For the keeping of a right chronology and reckoning of times; for as the Greeks did reckon by their Olimpiads, and the Latins, by their Lustra, so did the Hebrews by their Jubilees; this falls fit with the proclaiming of the Gospel, which is an act or tender of God's most gracious general free pardon of all sins, and of all the sinners in the world; now was the sound of the Gospel made known unto all, out of every Nation under Heaven; now was that spiritual Jubilee which Christians enjoy under Christ; now was the remission published, which exceeded the remission of the Jubilee, as far as the Jubilee exceeded the remission of the Seventh year (i. e.) not only seven times, but seventy times seven times. 3. On the day of Pentecost, they offered the two wave-loaves called the bread of the first-fruits unto the Lord. In like sort this very day (the Lord of the harvest so disposing it) the Apostles by the assistance and effectual working of the Spirit, offered the first-fruits of their Harvest unto the Lord; for the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls. We see the circumstance of time hath its due weight, and is very considerable; when the day of Pentecost was fully come, then came the Holy Ghost.

SECT. VIII.

Of the Persons to whom the Holy Ghost was sent.

2. FOR the persons to whom the Holy Ghost was sent; it is said, to all that were with one accord in one place; who they were it is not here exprest; yet from the former Chapter we may conjecture, they were the twelve Apostles, together with Joseph called Barsabas, and the Women, and Mary the Mother of Jesus, and his brethren; these all continued with one accord in one place, for so was Christ's Command, that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. This promise we read of in the Evangelists, when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he will testify of me. And behold, I send the promise of the Father upon you, but tarry ye in the City of Jerusalem until you be endued with power from on high. It was the great promise of the Old Testament, that Christ should partake of our humane Nature; and it was the great Promise of the New Testament, that we should partake of his divine Nature; he was cloathed with our flesh according to the former, and we are invested with his Spirit according to the latter promise. For this Promise the Apostles and others had long waited, and for the accomplishment they were now fitted and disposed. 1. They had waited for it from the Ascension day, till the feast of Pentecost; he told them at the very instant of his Ascension, that he would send the Holy Ghost, and therefore bid them stay together till that hour; upon which command they waited, and continued waiting until the day of Pentecost was fully come. He that believeth shall not make haste, saith Isaiah; surely waiting is a Christian Duty, for the Vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak and shall not lye, though it tarry, wait for it, because it will surely come, it will not tarry. Well may we wait, and wait for him, if we consider how God and Christ have waited for us and our conversion; and especially, if we consider that the Comforter will come; and when he comes, that

John 14.
16. 2 Comforter will come ; and when he comes, that he will abide with us for ever. But, 2. As they waited for the Spirit, so they were rightly disposed to receive the Spirit, for they were all with one accord in one place. Mark here the qualifications of these persons ; they were all with one accord, &c. To those that accord in the spirit given ; where is nothing but discord, jars, divisions, factions, there is no Spirit of God ; for the Spirit is the author of concord, peace, unity, and amity ; he is the very essential unity, love, and love-knot of the two persons, the Father and the Son : even of God with God : and he was sent to be the union, love, and love-knot of the two natures united in Christ, even of God with man ; and can we imagine that essential unity will enter but where there is unity ? Can the Spirit of Unity come or remain but where there is unity of spirit ? Verily there is not, there cannot be a more proper and peculiar, a more true and certain disposition to make us meet for the spirit, then that quality in us that is likest to his nature and essence ; and that is unity, love, concord : do we marvel that the spirit doth scarcely pant in us ? Alas, we are not all of one accord ; the very first point is wanting to make us meet for the coming of the Holy Ghost upon us. We see the persons to whom the Holy Ghost was sent : they were they that were together with one accord in one place.

SECT. IX.

Of the manner how the Holy Ghost was sent.

3. FOR the manner how he was sent, or how he came to these Apostles; we may observe these particulars. —

1. He came suddenly; which either shews the Majesty of the Miracle that is gloriously done, which is suddenly done; or the Truth of the Miracle, there could be no imposture or fraud in it, when the motion of it was so sudden; or the purpose of the Miracle, which was to awake and affect them to whom it came; usually sudden things startle us, and make us look up. We may learn to receive those holy motions of the spirit, which sometimes come suddenly, and we know not how; I am persuaded the man breathes not amongst us Christians, that sometimes feels not the stirrings, movings, breathings of the spirit of God; Oh that men would take heed of despising present motions! Oh that men would take the wind while it blows, and the water while the Angel moves it; as not knowing when it will, or whether ever it will blow again.

2. He came from Heaven; the place seems here to commend the gift, as from Earth earthly things arise, so from Heaven heavenly, spiritual, eternal things. And this is one sign to distinguish the Spirits: Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God. If our motions come from Heaven, if we fetch our grounds there, from Heaven, from Religion, from the Sanctuary, it is the spirit of God ; or if it carry us Heaven-ward, if it make us heavenly-minded, if it wean us from the World, and if it elevate and set our affections on heavenly things, if it form and frame our Conversations towards Heaven, we may then conclude the motions are not from below, but from above. O that Christians would be much in observation of, and in listening to the movings, workings, hints and intimations of that Spirit that comes from Heaven. Certainly that Spirit is of God that comes down from Heaven, and that lifts up our souls towards Heaven.

3. He comes down from Heaven like a Wind; the Comparison is most apt; of all bodily things the wind is least bodily; it is invisible, and comes nearest to the nature of a Spirit: It is quick and active as the Spirit is. But more especially the Holy Ghost is compared to a wind in respect of its irresistible workings; as nothing can resist the wind, it goes and blows which way soever it will; so nothing can resist the Spirit of God, wheresoever it hath a purpose to work efficaciously; I will not say, but the heart of a man may resist and reject the work of the Spirit in some measure, and in some degrees; Stephen told the Jews, they had always resisted the Holy Ghost; and the Apostle tells of strong holds, and of every high thing that exaltes itself against God: so there is a natural contrariety, a constant enmity, and active resisting of God's Spirit by our spirits; we must therefore distinguish between a prevalent and a gradual resisting; the spirit in Conversion so works, that he takes away the prevalent, but not the gradual resisting;

a man before he be converted is froward, and full of cavils and prejudices, he is unwilling to be saved; he cannot abide the Truth, he doth what he can to stifle all good motions: yet if he belong to the election of Grace, God will at last over-master his heart, and make him; of unwilling, willing; he will omnipotently bow and change the will, and work on his soul by his mighty power efficaciously insupe-rably, and irresistibly. Again, the Holy Ghost is compared to wind, in respect of its free actings; who wind bloweth where it listeth (saith Christ) and so the spirit bloweth where it listeth; who can give any reason why the spirit breathes so sweetly on Jacob, and not on Esau; on Peter, and not on Judas? Is it not the free grace and good pleasure of God? Springs it not from the mere freedom and pure arbitrariness of his own only workings? To you it is which roll on the abysses of the Kingdom of Heaven (saith Christ) that are so careless to neglige them. And Job also saith, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes; both for Father, for for a second good reason by sight. These and the like Texts are to many hummers to beat in pic-ces all these Doctrines of free-will, and of the power of man to supernatural things;

grace makes no gain of man's work ; free-will may indeed move and run ; but if it be to good, it must be moved, and driven, and breathed upon God's free grace. The spirit blows where it listeth.

4. He came like a rushing mighty wind; as the wind is sometimes of that strength, that it rends and rives in funder Mountains and Rocks, it pulls up trees, it blows down buildings; so are the operations of the Holy Spirit; it takes down all before it; it brings into captivity many an exalting thought; it made a Conquest of the World, beginning at Jerusalem, and spreading it self over all the earth; it is mighty in Operation, able to shake the stoutest and the proudest man, and to break in pieces the very stoniest heart; indeed our words without this spirit are but weak wind, we may spend our selves, and never waken Souls; but if the Spirit blow, he will amaze the Consciences of the stoutest Peers, and drive away our sins, as the wind drove away the Grasshoppers and Locusts that overspread the Land of Egypt. Some Analogy there is betwixt this vehement wind and the Spirit's workings; the spirit first comes as a spirit of bondage, and then as a spirit of adoption; the spirit of bondage is as a vehement wind that terrifies, to shew that we are not fit to receive the grace of God, unless the door be first opened by fear and humiliation, others say that the vehement rushing of this wind shewed how irresistably the Apostles should proceed in preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ; they had a Commission to go into all the World, and to teach all Nations, and they had a promise, that though many might oppose, yet the gates of Hell should not prevail against the Church, the Spirit should go along with them, and he in them, and they in him, should prevail mightily like a rushing mighty wind.

He filled all the house where they were sitting; there were none there that were not filled with the Holy Ghost; this Room contained a Congregation of none but Saints. All the men and women (an hundred and twenty as some think) in this room were visited from on high; for the Holy Ghost came upon them, and dwelt in them; so that might David say, Blessed were they that dwell in thy house, they shall not shake. In a word, they in the house of glory God, that is, dwell in the Temple of mystery, of Zion that dwelt in this house, were under a promise that the Spirit should come, and now was the promise accomplished, for it filled all the house where they were sitting. I say, when they were sitting, to signify, that all the other houses of Jerusalem felt none of this mighty rushing wind, there was no assembly of Saints in any part of the City, but only in this house. On in any other assembly might be, this Spirit blew upon none of them, where these men were, not that, and only that house is filled, where they were sitting. And this point of blowing upon one certain place is a property very suitable to the Spirit of God; for he dwells in one place at a time, and then blest that soul that dwells in that place.

not tell whence it cometh, nor whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit. The Spirit blows where it will, and upon whom it will, and they shall plainly feel it, and others about them not one jot: have we not sometimes the Experiences of this in our very Congregations? One sound is heard, one breath doth blow, and it may be one or two, and no more, hears the sound, or feels the breath inwardly, savingly; it may be one here, and another there shall feel the Spirit, shall be affected and touched with it sensibly; but twenty on this side them, and forty on that side them sit all becalmed, and go their way no more moved, than when they came into God's presence. Oh that this Spirit of the Lord would come daily and constantly into our congregations! Oh that it would blow through them and through! O that it would fill every soul in the assembly with the breath of Heaven! Come holy spirit: awake; O North-wind, and come thou South-wind, and blow upon our Gardens, that the spices thereof may flow out.

Căn.4.18

6. He came down in the form of tongues. As one saith well, This wind brought tongues, even a whole shovre of tongues. The Apostles were not only inspired for their now benefit, but they had gifts bestowed on them, to impart the benefit to more than themselves. But why did the Holy Ghost appear like Tongues? I answer, 1. The Tongue is a symbole of the holy Ghost's proceeding from the Word of the Father; as the Tongue hath the nearest affinity with the Word, and is moved by the Word of the heart, to express the same by the sound of the voice: so the holy Ghost hath the nearest affinity that may be with the Word of God, and is the expresser of his voice, and the speaker of his will. 2. The Tongue is the sole instrument of Knowledge, which conveys the same from man to man; tho' the soul be the Fountain from whence all Wisdom springs, yet the Tongue is the channel and the conduit-pipe whereby this Wisdom and Knowledge is communicated and transferred from man to man: In like manner the Holy Ghost is the sole author and teacher of all Truth: though Christ be the Wisdom of God, yet the Holy Ghost is the teacher of this Wisdom to men: And hence it is, that the Holy Ghost appeared in the form of Tongues.

And yet not merely in the form of Tongues, but thus qualified. 1. They were Given to speak to signify that the Apostles should speak in divers Languages, if there must be a calling of the Gentiles, they must needs have the Tongues of the Gentiles wherewith to call them: If they were decreed not only to the Jews but to the Greeks; not only to the Greeks, but to the Barbarians also, then must they have the tongues not only of the Jews, but of the Greeks and Barbarians to pay this debt, and to discharge this duty of to go and teach all Nations.
Surely this gift was bestowed for the preparing of the Gospel far and wide: The tongues were given, that the Apostles might

speaking all Languages, and that all Nations of the World, whithersoever they came, might hear them, and understand them speaking in their own Tongues. 2. They were fiery tongues; to signify that there should be an efficacy, or fervour in their speaking; the World was so overwhelmed with ignorance and error, that the Apostles lips had need to be touched with a coal from the Altar: Tongues of flesh would not serve the turn, nor words of air, but there must be fire put into the Tongue, and Spirit of life into the words they speak; with such a tongue Christ speak himself, when they said of him, Did not our hearts burn within us, while he spake unto us by the way? and with such a tongue Peter spake at this time, something like fire fell from him on their hearts, when they were pricked in their hearts, and said, men and brethren what shall we do? Oh that we of the Ministry had these fiery Tongues! O that the Spirit would put his live-coal into our speeches! Oh that our Sermons were warming Sermons! may we not fear that the Spirit is gone whiles the people are dead, and we are no more lively in our Ministry? It is said of Luther, that when he heard one preach very faintly, cold, cold, saies he, this is cold preaching, here's no heat at all to be gotten; Oh, when the Spirit comes, it comes with a tongue of fire; instead of words, sparks of fire will fall from us on the hearts of hearers.

3. These cloven Tongues sate upon each of them; to signify their Constancy and Continuance; they did not light, and touch, and away, after the manner of Butter-flies; but they sate, they abode still, they continued steddy, without any stirring or starting. This was the privy sign by which John the Baptist knew Jesus to be Christ; upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending and remaining on him, the same is he which Baptiseth with the Holy Ghost. It was not only the Spirit's descending, but the Spirit's remaining on him, that was the sign. The Spirit of God is a constant Spirit; it abides on the Soul to whom it is given; and therefore the Psalmist describes these great transactions of Christ to this very end, that the Spirit might dwell with us; Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led Captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for men, yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them. Not only that he might stay and lodge for a night, as a way-faring man, that comes to his Inn, and then is gone in the morning; no, no; but that he might take up his residence, and dwell in them. I know it is a question, Whether the Holy Ghost may be lost? but certainly of the Elect he is never totally or wholly lost; only I dare not say, but as touching many gifts, he may be lost even of the Elect themselves: David, after his sins, was forced to cry, Cast me not away from thy presence, O Lord, and take not thy holy Spirit from me; restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, and uphold me with thy free Spirit; we find here, that in respect of some gifts even of regeneration, the Spirit is sometimes lost, but that the godly should re- tain no remnants of the Spirit in their worst declinings, I cannot imagine: John teacheth expressly, Whoever is born of God doth not commit sin, (a sin unto death) for his seed remaineth in him, neither can he sin, because he is born of God. David in his fall lost the joy of his heart, the purity of his conscience, and many other gifts which he desired to have restored to him; but the Holy Ghost he had not utterly lost; for if so, how could he have prayed, Cast me not away from thy presence, and take not thy holy Spirit from me? I have done with the manner of the Spirit's mission.

SECT. X.

Of the measure of the Holy Ghost now given.

4. FOR the measure, what or how much of the Spirit was now given? This question is necessary, because we bring in the Spirit's mission after Christ's ascension, as if the Holy Ghost had not been given before this time. That this was the time of the coming of the Holy Ghost, is very plain; but that the Holy Ghost was not given before this time, we cannot say; certainly the Prophets speak by him, and the Apostles had him, not only when they were first called, but more fully when he breathed on them, and said unto them, receive ye the Holy Ghost. So that if ye study the reconciliation of these things, I know not any way better, than to put it on the measure, or degrees of the Spirit's mission.—I know some go about to reconcile it thus, that the Holy Ghost was given before secretly with grace, but now he was given in a visible shape with power. Others thus, that the Holy Ghost was before given in respect of Grace and Ministerial Gifts, but now he was given in respect of virtue, or ghostly ability to work Wonders, and to speak with divers Languages. But we find that the Prophets and Apostles, before this, had not only Grace and Ministerial Gifts, but a miraculous Virtue, even the spirit of powerful and extraordinary operation: only here was the difference, that before this, the Spirit was but sprinkled (as it were) upon them, but now it was poured upon them; before this they were gently breathed on, and refreshed with a small gale, but now they were all blown upon with a mighty wind; without Controversie, a difference there is in the Spirit's mission; and that some lay down chiefly in these three things.—

As,——

1. In the manner of the Spirit's mission: to the old Church the spirit came usually in dreams, or visions, or in a low still voice, or in some latent waies; but now he came in power, in evidence and demonstration, and therefore it is called, the spirit of revelation and knowledge. At the apparition of God to Elijah, it is said, that the Lord passed by;

by; and a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and break in pieces the rocks before the Lord, but the Lord was not in the wind; and after the wind an earthquake, but the Lord was not in the earthquake; and after the earthquake a fire, but the Lord was not in the fire; and after the fire a still small voice, and then Elijah wrapped his face in his mantle, as knowing the Lord's presence was therein: the Spirit came not of old, save in a vision, or dream, or in a still small voice; but now the Spirit came in a rushing mighty wind, in fiery tongues, in earthquakes, inasmuch, that the place was shaken where they were assembled, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost: the Spirit now made choice to come in such apparitions, as should have in them a self-discovering Property, which would not be hidden; and here is one difference.

Aët. 4. 31.

Rom. 8. 9

Aët. 10.

44. 45.

2. Another difference is in respect of the Subjects unto whom he was sent; before now he came only upon the inclosed garden of the Jews, but after the ascension of Christ, the Spirit was poured upon all flesh; now every believer is of the Israel of God, every Christian is a Temple of the holy Ghost; now we receive the spirit too, or else it is wrong with us; for If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his; At Peter's sermon to Cornelius, it is said, that the Holy Ghost fell on all them which hear the Word; and they of the Circumcision which believed were astonished, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the holy Ghost. It was some wonder at first, even to the Apostles themselves, but in this sermon Peter acknowledges, Of a truth, I perceive that God is no respecter of Persons, but in every Nation, he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Mark, In every Nation, upon all flesh, I will pour out my spirit: Here's another difference.

Aët. 10.

34. 35.

Tit. 3. 6.

3. One difference more is in the measure of his mission. At first he was sent only in drops and dew, but now he was poured out in showers and abundance; The Holy Ghost (saith Paul) was shed on us abundantly through Jesus our Saviour. As there are degrees in the wind, aura, ventus, procella; a breath, a blast, a stiff gale; so we cannot deny degrees in the spirit, the Apostles at Christ's resurrection received the spirit, but now they were filled with the spirit; then it was but a breath, but now it was a mighty wind. And indeed never was the like measure of the spirit given to men as at this time; the Fathers before this, and we and our Fathers since this, have but (as it were) a hint of the Spirit to their Ephraim; such a Pentecost as this, never was but this, never the like before or since; it was Christ's coronation-day, the day of placing him in his throne, when he gave these gifts unto men, and therefore that day was all magnificence shewed above all other days. Thus for the measure of the spirit now given to the Church of Christ.

SECT. XI.

Of the Reasons why the Holy Ghost was sent.

5. For the Reasons why the Holy Ghost was sent, they are several: As,—

1. That all the prophecies concerning this mission might be accomplished. Isaiah speaks of a time when the spirit should be poured upon us from on high, and the Wilderness should be a fruitful field. And Zachary prophecies, that In that day I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplication. And Joel prophecies yet more expressly, It shall come to pass, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy: your old men shall dream dreams, your young-men shall see visions; and also upon the servants, and upon the hand-maids in those days, I will pour out my spirit, and they shall prophesy. This very prophesie was cited by Peter in his first Sermon after the spirit's mission, Aët. 2. 17, 18. In which we read of two pourings of the spirit, one upon their Sons, and the other upon his servants; the former concerned only the Jew, they should have Prophecies, Visions, and Dreams, the old way of the Jews; but the latter concerns us, we are not of their sons, but of his servants, to whom visions and dreams are left quite out; and therefore if any now pretend to those visions and dreams, we say with Jeremy, The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell a dream, but he that hath my Word, let him speak my Word faithfully, what is the Chaff to the Wheat? But of all the prophecies concerning the mission of the holy Ghost, our Saviour gives the clearest and the most particular; two great Prophecies we find in the Bible, the one is of the Old Testament, and the other of the New; that of the Old Testament was for the coming of Christ, and this of the New Testament was for the coming of the Holy Ghost: and hence we say, that the coming of Christ was the fulfilling of the Law, and the coming of the Holy Ghost is the fulfilling of the Gospel. In this respect let us search and see those Prophecies of Christ, the great Prophet in the New Testament. I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever, even the Spirit of truth. — But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, he shall testify of me. — And behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you, but tarry ye in the City of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with Power from on high. It is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you: but if I depart, I will send him unto you. Why it was of necessity that all these Prophecies and Promises must be accomplished, and therefore was the Holy Ghost sent amongst us.

2. That the holy Apostles might be furnished with gifts and graces suitable to their estates, conditions, stations, places. To this purpose, no sooner was the Spirit sent, but they were filled with the Holy Ghost.

Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues as the spirit gave them utterance. They were filled with the Holy Ghost; not that they were before empty, but now they were more full of the spirit than ever they were before; and they speak with other tongues; other than ever they had Learned; probably they understood no tongue but the Syriack, till this time, but now on a sudden they could speak Greek, Latine, Arabick, Persian, Parthian, and what not? the Wisdom and Mercy of God is very observable herein, that the same means of diverse Tongues, which was the destroying of Babel, should be the very same means here conferred on the Apostles, to work the building of Sion; that the curse should be removed, and a blessing come in place; that confusion of Tongues should be united to God's Glory; that this should be the issue of Tongues, that neither Speech nor Language should be upon all the Earth, but his praise and glory, and the Gospel should be heard amongst them. And here is something more observable, in that they speak with other Tongues, As the spirit gave them utterance; the word utterance is in the Original ἀποδοῦναι; you have heard of Apothegms, (i. e.) wise and weighty sententious speeches; now such as these the spirit gave them to utter; magnalia Dei, (as in the eleventh verse) the wonderful Works of God; they spake of those singular benefits God offered to the World by the death of his Son; they spake of the Work of our Redemption, of the merits of Christ, of the Glory and Riches of his Grace, of the praises due to his Name for all his mercies; others add that they spake of those admirable Works of the Trinity, as of our Creation, Redemption, and Sanctification; and of whatsoever generally concerned the salvation of mankind: their speeches were not crudities of their own Brain, trivial, base, or vulgar stuff; but magnalia, great and high Points, Apothegms or Oracles, as the spirit gave them utterance. But these reasons are remote to us.

3. That he might fill the hearts of all the Saints, and make them Temples and receptacles for the Holy Ghost, Know you not that your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you, which ye have of God: and ye are not your own? It is said here, that after the mighty rushing Wind and cloven fiery Tongues, they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other Tongues. First, they were filled with the Holy Ghost, and then they spake with other Tongues; the Holy Ghost begins inward, and works outward; it first alters the mind before it change the speech; it first works on the spirit, before on the phrase or utterance; this was the first work of the Spirit, it filled them. And thus for the daily ministration, such must be appointed as were full of the Holy Ghost. And Stephen is said to be full of the Holy Ghost; and Barnabas is called a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost is usually said to fill the Saints; only whether it be the Person of the Holy Ghost, or the impressions of the Holy Ghost, is a very great question; for my part, I am apt to incline to their mind, who say, not only the impressions of the spirit, the qualities of holiness, the gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, or as some think, habitual grace in a special manner; but that the Holy Ghost himself doth fill, and dwell, and reign in the hearts of all regenerate men. And this seems clear to me: 1. By Scriptures. 2. Arguments.

1. The Scriptures are such as these, He John 9. that believeth on me, as the Scripture saith, 38. 39. out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water; but this spake he of the spirit, which they that believe on him should receive, for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, because that Jesus was not yet glorified; for those words, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water; by living water, is meant grace; by rivers of living water, is meant the manifold graces of the Spirit; by the flowing of these rivers, is meant the abounding and communicating of those graces from one to another; and by the belly out of which those rivers should flow, is meant the heart indued or filled with the Holy Ghost. Now the spring and rivers, the fountain and streams are diverse things, and to be distinguished: the one is the cause, and the other the effect; the one is the tree, and the other the fruit; it is the Holy Ghost filling the hearts of Believers, that is the spring and fountain whence all those rivers of living waters flow: And therefore saith the Evangelist expressly, This spake he of the spirit, which they that believe should receive; of what Spirit? even of the Holy Ghost, which in full measure was not yet given, because that Christ was not yet glorified; it is the same spirit which believers receive, whence all these rivers of living waters flow; but those rivers flow not from habitual grace, nor from any of the graces of the Holy Ghost, but from the Holy Ghost himself.

Again, When the Spirit of truth is come, he John 16. will guide you into all truth, and he will 13. shew you things to come. Now the habits of grace cannot guide or teach, or shew a man things to come; the habits of grace cannot speak, and hear; as it is there written, He shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak. This can be no other than the spirit in his own Person, this is the Comforter, that hears, and speaks, and guides into all truth, and shews us things to come.

Again, The love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is given unto us. Besides, the grace of the Spirit, which is the love of God, the Holy Ghost, or the Spirit it self, is said to be given unto us.

And, We are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit. If so be that the spirit of God dwell in you. Here's a plain distinction betwixt the new man, our being in the Spirit, and the Spirit dwelling in us; Now if any man have not the spirit of Christ, (i. e.) the same same holy spirit which dwelleth in our head and Saviour Jesus Christ; he is none of his.

v. 11. — But if the spirit of him that raised Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you. This spirit cannot be meant of habitual grace, for habitual grace did not raise up Jesus from the dead; no, no, it was the same spirit that dwelt in Christ, and that dwells in us.

1 Cor. 3. Again, Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you? — And know ye not that your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you? Now gifts and graces are not properly said to dwell in Temples; this belongs rather to Persons than Qualities; and therefore it is meant of the Holy Ghost himself; Ye are the Temples of the living God: surely graces are not the living God: But ye are the Temples of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

2. The arguments to confirm this, are such as these:

1. Actions are ascribed to the Holy Ghost, as given unto us, or dwelling in us, When the spirit is come, he will reprove the World of sin. — And when the spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth. — And ye have received the spirit of Adoption, whereby ye cry, Abba Father: — And this spirit beareth witness with our spirits, that we are the Children of God. These actions are usually given to the Holy Ghost, I mean to that Holy Ghost which we receive, and dwelleth in us; it reproveth; it guides, it helps, it satisfies, it witnesseth; now, actiones sunt suppositorum, actions are of persons, and not of qualities; habitual grace cannot reprove or guide, or teach, or help our infirmities: these are the actions of the spirit himself, in his own person.

2. The spirit it self is the bond of our mystical union with Jesus Christ, and therefore it is the Spirit it self that dwelleth in us. Look as it is in our body, there is head and members, yet all are but one natural body, because they are animated and quickened by one and the self-same soul; so it is in the mystical body, Christ is our head, and we are his members, and yet both of us are but one mystical body, by reason of the self-same spirit dwelling in both. And hence it is said, that Christ dwelleth in us by his spirit; Know ye not that Christ Jesus is in you except ye be Reprobates? — he that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. — And, I live, (saith Paul) yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. How in me? not corporally; for in that sense, The Heavens must receive him until the time of the restitution of all things; but spiritually, according to the testimony of the Apostle, Because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the spirit of his Son into your hearts. This is the mystery that should be known among the Gentiles, the glorious mystery, yea, the rich and glorious mystery; the Apostle gives it all these Epithetes, the riches of the glory of this mystery, which is, Christ in you the hope of glory. Col. 1. 2.

3. As Satan keeps his residence in wicked men, working them unto all manner of sin, and holding them captive to do his will; so the spirit of God coming and thrusting him out of possession, dwelleth in us, leading us into all truth, replenishing us with all graces, and enclining us to all holy Obedience. There is little question but whilst men remain in the state of Infidelity, the strong man Satan keeps possession, and dwelleth in them, though not after a gross and sensible manner, as in Demoniacks; yet invisibly and spiritually, ruling and reigning in them, and making them his slaves to do his will; and therefore by the same reason, when a stronger than he cometh, even the good spirit of God, he casts him out, and takes possession, and dwells, and reigns, and rules in our souls and bodies.

If the spirit it self dwell not in us, then how would there be three that bear witness? the Apostle tells us, There are three that bear witness in earth (or in our hearts) the Spirit, the water, and blood; now by water is meant sanctification, it is our sanctification that bears witness with us, that we are the Children of God; and this sanctification consists either in the habit of grace, or in the actings of grace; if therefore the spirit of Christ in a believer were nothing else but grace, then it were all one with the testimony of water; but there are three that bear witness, there's the testimony of the spirit, of blood, and of water; not only justification, and sanctification, which are but two witnesses, but the spirit is super-added, and that also bears witness in our Consciences, that we are the Children of God, and that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. Christians! think me not tedious in these proofs; these are not speculative notional points, that tend not to edification, but are exceeding profitable. Only concerning the manner of the indwelling of this spirit in us, it is most difficult to conceive. Certainly it dwells not in us as in Christ, viz. bodily, Col.

2. 9. unmeasurably, Joh. 3. 34. originally, 2 Cor. 3. 17. the spirit is in Christ, as light in the sun; but the spirit is in us as light in the air; neither dare I affirm, that the spirit is in us more essentially than in any other men or creatures, for the essence thereof is indivisible and omnipresent: But this I say, that the spirit is in the faithful above all others. 1. In respect of Covenant, the Saints have the spirit by God's free Grace and Covenant; I will put my spirit within you, saith God in the Covenant, which is not only to be understood of the gifts and graces of the spirit, but also of the spirit it self. 2. In respect of intimate familiarity, and near acquaintance, the spirit is in the faithful like an inmate or co-inhabitant, comforting, directing, ruling, strengthening, and cherishing them; in which respect they are said to be his Houses, and Temples, in which he dwelleth; whereas contrariwise worldlings and

3. In respect of vertue and efficacy; the spirit works efficaciously in his faints; he chooseth them for his own People, he possesseth them as of his own right, he rules in their hearts, as in the chief seat of his Kingdom, he purgeth and purifieth them from their sins; he replenisheth and filleth them with his saving graces, he guides and directs them in the way of holiness, and never leaves them till he brings them to his Kingdom. 4. In respect of union; it was an old error of the Heathens, that the soul remaineth in the body after death; which opinion of theirs, though false, because it contradicts the Word, yet the thing it self is possible, and doth not contradict Reason; for the soul may have its local Being in the body, and yet not give life to the body; for, it is not the souls being in the body, but its being united to the body, which makes the body live; so it is not the Spirits being locally with the soul, but being mystically united to the soul that gives it spiritual life. Now, in all these respects, the spirit is in the faithful above all others.

I know the Objections. As, 1. If the Spirit be united to a Believer's soul, and so made one with him, then may a believer say, I am the spirit; or, I am equal with God, in respect of the spirit in me, though not as Peter, Thomas, &c.

1 Cor. 6. 17. But I answer; this follows not; for though the spirit be really united to a Believers spirit, so that he may say with the Apostle, He that is joyned to the Lord is one spirit, or hath one spirit; yet first, this Union is a voluntary act, and not a natural act; and in that respect the spirit may unite himself to the soul so far as he pleaseth, and no further: And certainly thus far he is not pleased to unite himself to a Believer, so that a Believer should say properly, I am the spirit; or, I am equal with God in respect of the spirit; for then a Believer might be worshipped with Divine Worship. 2. This Union is by way of application, and not by way of mixture; if an heap of Wheat and a Stone should be joyned together, there is an union, they make both one heap; but the Wheat cannot say, I am a Stone; nor can the Stone say, I am Wheat; because this union is only by way of application: but if Wine and Water should be joyned together, then every part may say, I am Water, and I am Wine; because this union is not only by application, but by way of mixture. Certainly there is a great union betwixt the spirit and a believers soul, yet cannot the believer say properly, I am the spirit, or, I am equal with God, because their union is only by way of application, and not by way of mixture. 3. Objection No more was the union of Christ and God, with out making any union by way of mixture; yet could he say, I am God, and I am man. But I answer, Christ's union was not only spiritual or mystical, but hypostatical or personal; and in that respect, though there was no mixture, yet there was such an union as cannot be parallel'd in all the World. Our souls union with the spirit of Christ goes very far, and indeed so far as we cannot express it, though we had the tongues, and heads, and hearts of men and Angels; yet comes it short of that union betwixt the second Person in the Trinity, and the soul and body of Christ; his Union was personal, but so is not ours; A Believer is a Person before he is united to the spirit of Christ; but now Christ's soul and body were not a Person, before united to the Person of the Godhead. Go we therefore as far as we can, and I shall easily yield that our union with the spirit is a true, real, essential, substantial, spiritual, invisible, mystical, intimate union, yet is it not a personal, or hypostatical union; the spirit doth not assume the soul or body of a Believer, as the second Person assumed the soul and body of Christ. Away, away with these Cavils and Blasphemies, wherewith too many unstable souls are now infected! I have done with this Reason.

4. That the Holy Ghost might, according to his Office, endow men with gifts: no sooner he bestows his person, but immediately he fills us with his train.

Now the gifts of the spirit are of these two sorts, some are common to good and bad, others are proper to the Elect only. Those gifts which are common, are again two-fold; for some of them are given but to certain men, and at certain times; as the gift of Miracles, of Tongues, of Prophecies, and these were necessary for the Apostles and the Primitive Church, when the Gospel was first to be dispersed; others are given to all the members of the Church, and at all times, as the gifts of Interpretation, Sciences, Arts, Prudence, Learning, Knowledge, Eloquence, and such-like; the former gifts we have not, but these latter are now given to every member of the Church, according to the measure of Christs gift, as the Calling and Vocation of every member needeth. As for those gifts and saving graces which are proper to the godly, I shall speak of them anon. Now here is another reason of the spirits mission, that he might give gifts unto men; if you ask, what are those gifts? the Apostle tells you in one place, He gave some Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Evangelists, and some Pastors and Teachers. Three of these gifts are now gone, and their date is out; but in the same place we find Pastors and Teachers, and them we have still. Oh how may this teach us to think of such (even of Pastors and Teachers) as of the special gifts and favours of Jesus Christ; if one special friend should but send us from a far Country one of his chief Servants, would we not welcome him? Christ now is in Heaven, and he sends us Ministers, as the stewards of

of his house; sure if we have any love to Rom. 10. Christ, the very feet of them would be pre-
 15. cious, and beautiful, who bring us glad tidings of peace. Again, the Apostle tells us in another place, that there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit; and diversities of calling,
 but the same Lord, or Christ; and diversities
 1 Cor. 12. of works, but the same God and Father 4, 5, 6. worketh all in all. Christ's errand being done, and he gone up on high, the Spirit came down; and in Christ's stead established order in the Church; which order or establishment is here set down, by gifts, callings and works. Here is first, a Gift; Secondly, a Calling; Thirdly, a Work. Gifts are ascribed to the Spirit, Callings to Christ, and Works to God, even to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; where the Spirit ends, Christ begins; and where Christ ends, God begins; if no gift, we must stay there, and never meddle with the calling; and if no calling, we must stay there, and never meddle with the Work; first, the Spirit comes and bestows the Gift, and then Christ comes and bestows the Calling, and then God the Father comes, and sets us to the Work; the gift is for the calling, and the gift and calling are both for the Work. And if this be the order established by the Spirit in his Church, Oh what shall we say of them that either have no gifts, yet step into the calling, as if there were no need of the Holy Ghost; or that have no calling, and yet will fall upon the Work, utterly against the mind and rule of Jesus Christ? Oh what the poor Church of Christ suffers at this time in these respects! certainly these men have no commission from the Holy Spirit; he was never sent to them that break this order; first Gifts, and then Calling, and then the Work.

But why doth the Spirit endow men with Gifts? surely, saith the Apostle, to this 1 Cor. 12. end, to profit wisdom. Gifts are given for
 7. the good of others; gifts are for edifying:
 we should not contemn them, gifts are a Blessing of God, and therefore we are to

 1 Cor. 12. And yet (saies Paul) I shew unto you a more 31. excellent way; and that was true grace, of which he discourleth in the next Chapter; and this brings in another reason of the spirit's mission.

5. That the Holy Ghost might, according to his Office endow men with graces. In doing this, he first gives the inward principle and habit of grace, and then the fruit, or actings of grace. 1. He gives a Power, an Habit, a spiritual Ability, a seed, a spring, a principle of Grace; whatsoever we call it, I cannot conceive it to be a new faculty, added to those which are in men by nature:
 A man, when he is regenerate, hath no more faculties in his soul, than he had before he was regenerate; only in the work of regeneration, those abilities which the man had, are improved to work spiritually, as before naturally: as our Bodies in the resurrection from the dead shall have no more, nor other parts than they have at present; only those which are now natural, shall then by the Power of God be made spiritual. Now this 1 Cor. 15

 Principle is infused, or poured in by the 44 Spirit of God; and hence he is called, The Spirit of Sanctification. 2. He gives the 2 Thes. 2.

 gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; Some call these the diversifications of the actings of that spiritual principle within us; certainly the spirit doth not only at first infuse the principles of Grace, but he doth also enable us to act, and improve those blessed principles: he doth not only give us power to Holy actions, but he works also the Holy actions themselves. God works in us not only to will but to do. God hath a Phil. 2. 13

 nies. This is the actuating grace that we need every hour, and every moment, and must pray for more earnestly than we would pray for our daily Bread. Two priviledges more especially flow from this; As,——1. Hereby the soul will be kept from negligence, and dulness; from gross and foul sins; the Apostle calls it, grace to help in time of need. Heb. 4. 16
 Oh this is admirable, when grace comes in the very nick of need; it may be sometime or other thou wert even falling into such and such a sin, it may be thou wert sometime or other drowning in such and such a wickedness, and this exciting, quickening grace came in, and kept up thy head above the Waters. 2. Hereby the soul will be kept in a frame for every duty: If the spirit come but with exciting, quickening grace, then it is ready to say, My heart is prepared, O Lord, my heart is prepared, I can now do and suffer thy Will; sometimes the principle of grace lies still within us, and begins to rust; but then comes the Holy Ghost, and breathes upon our souls; and so it excites and quickens, and commands, faith, patience, zeal, and other graces, to be in exercise;
 and this is as it were the file to take off the rust: it's the whetting of the edge, it's the stirring up of the coals into a mighty flame. Christians, have you not clear experimental demonstrations of this truth?
 sometimes you are on the wing of duty, and sometimes you are dull and dead; sometimes the least temptation, the least snare, is redy to make you fall; and sometimes again, though strong winds and tempests blow upon you, yet you are able to stand, like Mount Zion, that cannot be removed: Oh what's the reason of the difference? surely according to the incomes of the Spirit of God; this difference comes not from our selves, but from the Spirit: as this exciting quickening grace is ready, or afar off, so is our condition; you know what changes David usually found in his own heart; sometimes he was able to trust in God, and at other times he was so cast down, as if he had no strength within him; and whence all this,

this, but from the ebbings and flowings of exciting quickning grace? well may we cry, come holy Spirit: Oh what a comfortable condition would it be, if our Spirits never lay still, but we were alwayes hungry, thirsting, or moving after God and goodness.

6. That the holy Ghost might according to his Office comfort his Saints amidst all their afflictions: this was that which Christ had so often told his Apostles, I will not leave you comfortless, I will come unto you.

And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever — But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father, will send in my Name he shall reach you all things. — But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father even the spirit of truth which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me. — If I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart I will send him unto you.

But how is it that the spirit comforts Saints? I answer in these particulars.

† See at Large Dr.
Reynolds
on Psal.
110.

1. The Spirit discovers sin, and bends the heart to mourn for sin; and such a sorrow as this, is the seed and matter of true comfort: as Joseph's heart was full of joy when his eyes poured out tears on Benjamin's neck, so there is a certain seed and matter of joy in spiritual mourning; I know they are contrary, but yet they may be subordinate to each other, as a dark and muddy colour may be a fit ground to lay gold upon. Certainly there is a sweet complacency in an humble and spiritual heart, to be vile in its own eyes. But especially the fruit of it is joy, and great joy. A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come; but as soon as she is delivered of her Child, she remembereth no more the anguish for joy that a man is born into the World; and ye now therefore have sorrow, but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoyce, and your joy no man taketh from you.

2. The Spirit doth not only discover, but heal the corruptions of the soul, and there is no comfort, to the comfort of a saved and cured man; the lame man that was restored by Peter, expressed the abundant exaltation of his heart, by leaping and praising God, Acts 3. 8. and for this cause the Spirit is called the Oyl of gladness, because by that healing vertue that is in him, he makes glad the hearts of men.

3. The Spirit doth not only heal, but renew and revive again; when an eye is smitten with a sword, there is a double mischief, a wound made, and a faculty perished; and here though a Chyrurgeon can heal the wound, yet he can never restore the faculty, because total privations admit no regrefs, or recovery. But the spirit doth not only heal, and repair, but renew and redime the spirits of men; as he healeth that which was torn, and bindeth up that which was broken, so he reviveth and raiseth up that which was dead before, Hos. 6. 1, 2.

And this the Apostle calls the renovation of the Spirit. Tit. 3. 5. Now this renovation must needs be matter of great joy, for so the Lord comforts his afflicted people; O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted; behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with Saphyres, and I will make thy windows of Agates; and thy gates of Carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones. The meaning is, that all must be new, and new built up, as for a goodly, costly, and stately structure.

4. The Spirit doth not only renew, and set the frame of the heart aright, and then leave it to it self, but being thus restored he abideth with it to preserve and support it, and to make it victorious against all tempests and batteries; and this further multiplieth the joy and comfort of the heart; victory is ever the ground of joy. Thy joy before thee, — as men rejoyce when they divide the spoyl. And the spirit of God is a victorious spirit. A bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, till he send forth judgment into victory.

5. The spirit doth not only preserve the heart which he hath renewed, but he makes it fruitful and abundant in the work of the Lord. And fruitfulness is a ground of comfort, Sing O barren, thou that didst not bear, break forth into singing, and cry aloud thou that didst not travail with Child; for more are the Children of the desolate than the Children of the married Wife, saith the Lord.

6. The spirit doth not only make the heart fruitful, but gives it the hanel and earnest of its inheritance, and thereby it begets a living hope, an earnest expectation, a confident attendance upon the promises, and an unspeakable peace and comfort thereupon. O when I feel a drop of heavens Joy shed abroad into my soul by the Holy Ghost, and that I look upon this as a taste of glory, and a forerunner of happiness, how should I but rejoyce with joy unspeakable? in all these respects the Spirit is our Comforter; and this is another reason why the Holy Ghost is sent, I will not leave you comfortless, saith Christ, no, no? for I will come unto you by my Spirit.

7. That the Holy Ghost might according to his Office, seal us unto the day of redemption. By sealing, is meant some work of the Spirit, by which he assures a believer that he his Gods: it is all one with the spirits witnessing; only under that notion, I shall speak of it another time.

But all the question is, what is that work of the spirit by which he assures; I answer; this work is many-fold. As —

1. There is a reflex work of faith, and this is the work of the Spirit too, assuring our souls of our good estate to God-ward, and Christ-ward, He that believeth hath the witness in himself; he carries in his heart the Countertpane of all the promises, this is the first seal, or (if you will) the first degree of the Spirits sealing; the first discovery of our election is manifested to us

2. There is a work of sanctifying grace upon the heart, and this is a seal of the Spirit also, for whom the spirit sanctifieth, he saveth. The Lord knoweth who are his, saith the Apostle, ay, but how should we know it? why, by this seal; as it follows, Let every one that Nameth the Name of the Lord depart from iniquity; none are children of God by adoption, but those that are Children also by regeneration; none are heirs of Heaven, but they are new born to it; Blessed be God the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ who hath begotten us anew — to an inheritance immortal. This seal of sanctification leaves upon the soul the likeness of Jesus Christ, even grace for grace.

3. There is a work of assisting, exciting, quickening grace, or of Gods gracious concurrence with that habitual grace which he hath wrought in his people: now this is various according to the good pleasure of his will; the Spirit is more mightily present to some than to others, yea more to the same man at some times, and in some conditions; sometimes the same Christian is as a burning and shining light, sometimes as a smouldering flax; The spirit blows how it listeth; sometimes he fills the soul with fuller gales, sometimes again she is becalmed; a man hath more of the Spirit at one time than another: now when the Spirit comes in thus by exciting, quickning, stirring, and inabling us to act; so that we can say, as sometime the Prophet said, It was in my heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I was weary with forbearing, and could not stay; why then the spirit seals, and gives assurance to our souls that we are his.

4. There is a work of shining upon, or enlightning those graces which the Spirit plants in us, and helps us to exercise; this seals to the purpose; and of this it is that the Apostle speaks. We have received not the spirit of the World, but the Spirit which is of God, that we may know the things that are freely given us of God. The things given to us may be freely received by us, and yet the receipt of them not known to us; therefore the spirit for our further consolation doth (as it were) put his hand and seal to our receipts; he shines upon our graces, or he enlightens our graces, whereby we may know we believe, and know that we live. Indeed this is rare with Gods own People, sometimes (notwithstanding this seal) we may be in such a state as Paul and his company were in the ship, When they saw neither Sun nor Star for many days together; so it may be, that for a time we may see neither Sun nor Star, neither light in Gods countenance, nor light in our souls; no grace issuing from God, no grace carrying the soul to God; yet in this dark condition, if we do as Paul and his company did (i.e.) if we cast anchor even in the dark night of temptation, and pray still for day, God will appear, and all shall clear up; we shall at last see light without, and see light within, surely the day-star will arise in our hearts.

5. There is a work of joy and comfort; and this is a super-added seal of the Spirit; the works of the Spirit you may see are of a double kind; either in us by imprinting sanctifying grace, or upon us by shining on our souls, and by sweet feeling of joy; habitual grace, of Sanctifying grace is more constant, and alwayes like it self; but this work of comfort and joy is of the nature of such priviledges as God vouchsafeth at one time and not at another; and hence it is that a Christian may have grace, and a Christian may know himself to be in the state of grace, and yet in regard of comfort God may be gone. Thus it was with Job, he knew his redeemer lived, and he resolved to trust in him though he killed him; he knew he was no hypocrite, he knew his graces were true; notwithstanding all the objections and imputations of his friends, they could not dispute him out of his sincerity, My righteousness I hold fast, and will not let it go; yet for the present he saw no light from heaven, but he was in a sore and afflicted condition, till it pleased the Lord to reveal himself in special favour unto him. Now this work of joy usually comes not till after faith; and many experiences of Gods love, and much waiting upon God. These are the several works of the spirit sealing.

But why is it that we can neither actually believe, nor can know that we believe, nor can enjoy peace and joy in believing, without a fresh and new act of the Spirit?

I answer, because the whole carriage of a soul to heaven is above nature, where the Spirit makes a stand, we stand, and can go no farther; without the help of the Spirit we can neither make promises, nor conclude for our selves; it is the spirit that sanctifies, and witnesses, and seals our souls unto the day of redemption. Many other Reasons may be rendred, but I shall speak of them in the end of the spirits mission.

Thus far we have propounded the object, viz. the Ascension of Christ, the Session of Christ at Gods right hand, and Christs Mission of the holy Ghost; our next work is to direct you how to look unto Jesus in these respects.

CHAP. II. SECT. I.

Of knowing Jesus as carrying on the great work of our Salvation in his Ascension, Session, and Mission of the Spirit.

1. LET us know Jesus carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in his Ascension into Heaven, in his Session at God's right hand, and in his Mission of the Holy Ghost; these are points of great use, if these transactions had not been, where had we been? these are points of highest speculation, if these transactions had not been, where had Christ been? after his humiliation, herein lay the exaltation of his glorious Person, he was exalted above the Earth, above the Clouds, above the Stars, above the Heavens, above the Heavens of Heavens; O the glorious Majesty of our King Jesus, as sitting down at God's right hand! our salvation is the greatest mystery that ever was, it being made up of the various workings of the glory of God; for us men, and for our salvation Christ was incarnate, and come down from Heaven, and for us men and for our salvation Christ was exalted and went up into Heaven. Here is an object of admiration indeed, the very Angels at the sight of it stood admiring and adoring; it took up their heart, astonished their understanding; surely it was the blessedst sight that ever the Angels did, or could behold; come then, and O my soul do thou take a view of that which they admire, the design is not so principally concerning Angels, as thy self; they are in it only as afar off, and in general; but it concerns thee in special and particular; and therefore study close this Argument, and know it for thy self. Study first the Ascension of Christ, how, and whether, and why he ascended. 2. Study the Session of Christ at God's right hand; O the mines, the riches of that spiritual heavenly knowledge! 3. Study the Mission of the Holy Ghost; not a circumstance in it, but deserves thy Study; worlds of wealth (ten thousand times better than Gold, or Silver, or Precious Stones, may be found in the diggings of these mines; have not many Students beat out their brains on lesser subjects? what endeavours have there been to dive into the secrets of Nature; what volumes have been written of Physicks, Metaphysicks, Mathematicks? and is not this subject Christ? is not every of these subjects, Christ's Ascension, Christ's Mission of the holy spirit of more worth, and value, and benefit than all those? come study that piece of the Bible, wherein these are written, there is not a line or expression of Christ in the Scripture, but 'tis matter enough for a whole Age to comment on; thou needest not to leave old principles for new discoveries, for in these very particulars thou mightest find successive sweetness unto all eternity.

SECT. II.

Of considering Jesus in that respect.

2. LET us consider Jesus, carrying on this work of our salvation for us in these particulars. We must not only study to know these things, but we must meditate on them till they come down from our heads to our hearts. Meditation is the poize that sets all the wheels within a going; it were to small purpose to bid us desire, hope, believe love joy, &c. if first we did not meditate: in meditation it is that the understanding works, that the will is inclined to follow, that devotion is refreshed, that faith is increased, hope established, love kindled; and therefore begin here O my soul; it is a due consideration that gives both life, and light, and motion to thy actings in all proceedings.

And to take them in order. —

1. Consider of Christ's Ascension into Heaven. Methinks souls should put themselves into the condition of the Disciples, When Acts. 1. they looked stedfastly towards heaven as Christ went up; What, shall he ascend, and shall not we in our contemplations follow after him? gaze, O my soul, on this wonderful object, thou needest not fear any check from God or Angel, so that thy contemplation be spiritual and divine. No sooner had Christ finished his work of redemption here on earth, but on the Mount called Olivet he assembles with his Disciples, where having given them commands, he begins to mount; and being a little lifted up into the Ayre, presently a Cloud receives him into her lap. Herein is a clear demonstration of his Godhead; Clouds are usually in Scriptures put for the House, or Temple, or Receptacle of God himself. How often is it said, that The glory of the Lord appeared in the Cloud? Exod. 16. And that He came to Moses in a thick cloud? and 10. - 19. that he called unto Moses out of the midst of the 9. - 24. cloud? and that the Lord descended in the cloud? 16. - 34. Is not the Cloud Gods own Chariot? Behold Isa. 19. 1. the Lord rideth on a swift cloud? — and O Lord my God thou art very great, saith David; great indeed, and he proves it thus, Who maketh the Psal. 104. clouds his Chariot. Jesus Christ in his ascension 3. to heaven enters by the way into a cloud; this was his chariot, led by thousands and ten thousands of his Angels. The Chariots of God Psal. 68. are Twenty thousands, even thousands of Angels, 17. 18. the Lord is among them in Sinai in the holy place, thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive, thou hast received gifts for men. Some are of opinion, that not only thousands of Angels led this chariot, but that many of the Saints which slept, and rose with Christ at his resurrection, now ascended with him, and compassed about this glorious cloud; whence they give this for the meaning of the text, that when he went up through the ayre, and ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, that is, he led a certain number of captives, namely, the Saints that were long held in captivity of death, whose bodies arose at Christ's resurrection, and now they accompanied Christ at his triumphant march into heaven. However he was attended, be not too curious (O my soul in this) the bright cloud that covered his body discovered his Divinity; and therefore here is thy duty, to look stedfastly towards heaven, and to worship him in his ascension up into heaven; O admire and adore! —

But stay not thy contemplation in the cloud, he ascends yet higher, through the Ayr, and through the Clouds, and through that sphere, or element of fire, and through those Orbs of the Moon, Mercury, Mars; of the Sun, Jupiter, Venus, Saturn; and through that azure Heaven of fixed Stars, and through that first moveable, and through those condence and solid waters of the Christaline Heaven; nor stood he still till he came to those doors and gates of the Empyrean Heaven, called The heaven of heavens; in all this triumphant glorious march, some tell us of an heavenly harmony made by those Choristers of Heaven, the blessed Angels; Some going before, and some going after, they chant his praises, and sing Hallelujahs: and that is the meaning of the Psalmist, God is gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a Trumpet. In this meditation pass not over thy duty, which immediately follows, Sing praises unto God, sing praises; sing praises unto our King, sing praises. — Sing unto God, sing praises to his Name, extol him that rideth upon the heavens, by the Name Jah, and rejoyce before him. Thou hast great cause, O my soul, to praise him, and to rejoyce before him, especially if thou considerest that Christ ascended not for himself, but also for thee; it is God in our nature that is gone up to heaven, whatever God acted on the person of Christ, that he did as in thy behalf, and he means to act the very same on thee; Christ as a publick person ascended up to heaven; thy interest is in this very ascension of Jesus Christ: and therefore dost thou consider thy Head as soaring up? O let every Member praise his Name, let thy Tongue (called thy glory) glory in this, and trumpet out his praises, that in respect of thy duty it may be verified, Christ is gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a Trumpet.

And yet stay not by the way, but consider further; Christ being now arrived at Heavens doors, those heavenly spirits that accompanied him began to say, Lift up your heads O ye gates, even lift up your selves; yea everlasting doors, and the King of glory shall come in! to whom some of the Angels that were within, not ignorant of his person, but admiring his Majesty and Glory, said again, Who is the King of Glory? and then they answered, The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle; and thereupon those Twelve gates of the Holy City, of new Jerusalem, opened of their own accord, and Jesus Christ with all his ministring Spirits entered in. O my soul, how should this heighten thy joy, and enlarge thy comforts in that Christ is now received up into glory? every fight of Christ is Glorious, and in every fight thou shouldst wait on the Lord Jesus Christ for some glorious manifestations of himself. Come, live up to the rate of this great mystery; view Christ as entering into glory, and thou wilt find the same sparkles of glory on thy heart: O this sight is a transforming sight, We all with open face beholding, as in a glass, the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same Image from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord. 2 Cor. 3. 18.

2. Consider of Christ's Session at God's right hand; no sooner was Christ entered into Heaven, but he is brought before his heavenly Father; and herein was the vision accomplished, I saw in the night visions, and behold one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the ancient of days and they brought him near before him, and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a Kingdom. This is that we call his Session at God's right hand; a dominion was given him above all creatures, yea a dominion above the Hierarchy of all the Angels: O the glory of Christ at his first entrance into glory! immediately all the Angels fell down and worshipped him, immediately his Father welcomed him with the highest grace that ever yet was shewn. Come (said he) sit thou at my right hand until I make thy enemies thy footstool. One sweetly observes, that usually in the several parts of the performance of Christ's office, either God is brought in as speaking to Christ, or Christ is brought in as speaking to his Father; thus when he chose him first to be our Mediator, God speaks to Christ, Thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedech; and when Christ came to take upon Him our nature, he speak to his Father, Lo I come to do thy will, a body hast thou prepared for me. Again, when Christ hung on the Cross, he speaks to his Father, My God my God, why hast thou forsaken me? but when Christ rose again from the dead, God spake to him, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee; and when Christ ascended into heaven, God spake to him, Son, sit thou down at my right hand. This was the highest point of Christ, elevated; now was the prophesie accomplished, He shall be exalted, and extolled, and be very high. The Calde Paraphrast reads it thus, He shall be exalted above Abraham, he shall be extolled more than Moses, he shall be very high above the highest Cherubin, and Saraphin; O my soul meditate on this Session of Christ at God's right hand, and thence draw down some vertue and sweetness into thy self: what? was Christ exalted? had he a name given him above every name? walk then as becomes those that have so glorious a Head: O defile not that nature which in thy Christ was so highly honoured! it was the Apostles arguing, Shall I take the Members of Christ and make them the Members of an Harlot? so argue thou, shall I take the Nature of Christ, that Nature which he in his Person hath so highly glorified, and make it in my Person the Nature of a Devil? O my soul walk worthy Phil. 2. 10. worthy of such a Lord, unto all well-pleasing; sith now he is in his Throne at God's right hand, O kiss the Son! Honour the Son with divine worship, reverence, and submission; submit chearfully and willingly to the Scepter of his Word, bow to his Name, as it is written, At the Name, the Person, the Power, the Scepter of Jesus Christ, every knee should bow.

3. Consider of the Mission of the Holy Ghost: no sooner is Christ in augurated in his Throne, but he scatters his coin, and gives gifts; When he ascended on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. He gave gifts, or the gift of gifts, the gift of the Holy Ghost; If thou knewest the gift of God, said Christ to the Samaritan woman; that gift was the water of Life, and that water of life was the spirit, as John, who knew best his mind, gave the interpretation, This spake he of the spirit. O my soul consider of this princely gift of Christ! such a gift was never before, but when God gave his Son; God so loved the World, that he gave his Son; and Christ so loved the world, that he gave his spirit; but O my soul consider especially to whom this Spirit was given; the application of the gift is the very soul of thy meditation; Unto us a Son is given, said the Prophet; and Unto us the holy Ghost is given, saith the Apostle: And yet above all, consider the reasons of this gift in reference to thy self; was it not to make thee a Temple and Receptacle of the Holy Ghost; stand a while on this! Admire O my soul, at the condescending, glorious, and unspeakable love of Christ in this! It was infinite love to come down into our nature when he was incarnate; but this is more; to come down into thy heart by his Holy Spirit; he came near to us then, but as if that were not near enough, he comes nearer now; for now he unites himself unto thy person, now he comes and dwells in thy soul by his Holy Spirit: O my soul, thou hast many incomes of the world, though many are above thee, yet many are below thee; but Oh what little contentment hast thou in these outward things? Come! Here's that which will infinitely content thy vast desires; Christ is in thee, really in thee, by his Spirit; will not this content the utmost capacity of an heart? surely he is too covetous whom God himself cannot suffice; if thou hast Christ, thou hast all things; and if thou hast the spirit of Christ, thou hast Christ himself, not notionally, not by the habit of grace only, but really, essentially, substantially by his Spirit; it is the very spirit of Christ, the spirit it self, the Holy Ghost it self in his own person that is united to thee, and dwells in thee; nor only comes he in person, but he brings along with him all his Train; hath he not endowed thee with some gifts? hath he not divided a portion and measure to thee in thy place and calling? take notice, observe it, and be thankfull, if thou hast a gift of prayer, of prophesie, of wisdom, of knowledge, it comes and flows from this Holy Spirit; Unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Or according to the measure of the spirit; who is the gift of Christ. And all these worketh that one and the self-same spirit dividing to every man severally as he will. But besides a gift, hath he not endowed thee with his grace? hath he not planted in thy soul the habit, the power, the seed, the spring, the principle of grace? hast thou not felt sometimes the excitings, quickenings, stirrings of the spirit of God, commanding thy faith, love, zeal, and other graces to be in exercise? hath he not many a time at some dead lift, a some mighty straight, at some prevailing temptation, when thou wast even ready to yield to Satan, come in as betwixt the bridge and water, and given thee grace to help in time of need? O the sweet in-comes of the Spirit of God! as he is an Holy Spirit, so he makes holy hearts; and if there be any holiness in thy heart, what is it but an emanation, influence, effect of the Spirit of God? if ever thou hadst any flowings of exciting, quickening grace, say, This is above nature, above flesh and blood, it comes from the holy and blessed Spirit of God. Some other effects thou mayst consider of, as of the comforts of the spirit; what? hast thou not sometimes felt the joys unspeakable and full of glory? hast thou not sometimes known a mornings joy after a nights sorrow? an healing of thy broken heart? a reviving of thy dead Spirit? a drop of heavens joy given thee as the hanel or earnest of thine inheritance? why all these are but the workings of the promised comforter: And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter that he may abide with you for ever. Another effect is the seal of the spirit; and what? hast thou not sometimes had the seal of the Spirit stamped on thee? I will not say this is absolutely necessary, but hast thou not sometimes been assured of thy salvation, by a reflect act of faith, or by a work of grace habitual or actual? or by an irradiation of the spirit on thy graces? sometimes the spirit is pleased to shine with its bright, and glorious, and heavenly beams into our souls, and then we are assured: hence the Apostle prays for the Ephesians. That they might have the spirit of revelation? And to what end? That they might know what is the hope of his calling; (i. e.) that they might know upon what certain grounds and foundation their hopes were built; and hence the Psalmist prays for himself, Cause thy face to shine upon thy Servant: and again, God be merciful unto us and bless us and cause his face to shine upon us. Selah. 1. If the spirit shine upon our graces, then it seals: O consider of this shining-sealing work, and leave not till the Spirit dart in a spiritual light, and give thee a revelation, knowledge, and perswasion of thy effectual calling. Many other reasons are of the spirit's mission, but amongst them all, consider O my soul, and ponder on these few; think think over Christ's Ascension, Session, and Mission of the Spirit; but in every thought be serious, fruitful, and particular; say, Christ is gone up into heaven for me, and he is sat down at God's right hand for me; and he hath sent down his spirit into my heart. O what workings would there be within, if thou wert but lively and active in the meditations of these several passages!

SECT. III.

Of desiring after Jesus in that Respect.

3. Let desire after Jesus carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in these particulars: who seeing Christ to ascend into Heaven, would not be glad to ascend up with him? who seeing Christ to sit down at the right hand of his Father, would not be glad to sit down with him? who seeing Christ to scatter his gifts and spirit amongst his Saints, would not cry, Come Holy Spirit; O Christ give me thy spirit, thou that givest gifts unto me, come and bestow those gifts on me! even upon me? The believing soul cannot hear of Christ in any true discovery of his grace and glory, but it must needs send out many breathings after him, Oh that Christ were mine! Oh that I had any interest in this transaction! it is true, these transactions are past, but the virtue of them continues still, and accordingly the virtue, power, and influence of these transactions must be the object of our desires; now what is the virtue of Christ's Ascension, but that we might ascend? and what the virtue of Christ's Session, but that we might sit down with him in his Throne? and what the virtue of the mission of his Spirit but that we might partake of the Holy Ghost? Oh let these be the objects of our desires; come let us pant and breath after these things. As—

1. Let us see Christ ascending, and so desire to ascend with him, when Christ ascended it was not merely for himself, but also in our stead; he ascended as a common person; as the high Priest ascending into the Holy of Holies, he carried all the names of the Twelve Tribes on his breast; so Jesus Christ ascending into heaven, he carried the names of all Believers in the world on his breast, thereby shewing that they were likewise to come after him; in this case how should we long after him, and cry after him, as Elisha after Elijah when he saw him ascending. My Father, my Father, the chariots of Israel, and the horsemen thereof? How should we cry after him, O my Lord and my God, see that my name be written in thy Breast, O that virtually I may ascend with thee, and that really and bodily I may at last ascend after thee! There are many can say in their heart, I will ascend above the heights of the clouds, I will be like the most High: but the prophet tells us, Such shall be brought down to hell, and to the sides of the Pit. O the desires, and eager pursuits of men after ambition; what topping and advancing is there, of one over another? in the mean time the Isa. 14. Psalmist's Question is quite forgotten, Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? he that hath clean hands, and a pure heart, who hath not lift up his soul unto vanity. Down, O my soul, with thy top and top gallant; strike sail to God and Christ; know that God resists the proud; How art thou fallen from Heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning? even he that would exalt his Throne above the Stars of God, is brought down to hell: Come, come! a desire after Christ and his Ascension is the way to Heaven; if thou wilt ascend after Christ, set thy desires upon Christ; if thou wilt arrive at true glory, breath after Christ ascending up into his glory; let others ascend up into their heaven upon earth, but O my soul desire thy interest in Christ's Ascension into the Heaven of Heavens. O when will it once be that by the virtue of Christ's Ascension I shall ascend! is Christ gone up, and am I yet behind? is my Head, my Husband, my Lord in Heaven, and am I a poor member of his body groveling here on earth? what, is Christ gone up with a shout, the Lord with the sound of a trumpet? are all the Angels sounding his praise, and bidding him welcome into glory? and am I sinning here on earth, and by my sins crucifying again and again the Lord of glory? O that I might ascend with Christ! O that I were now on the wing towards heaven! Oh what is it that hinders my ascension but this clog of clay? so long as this body remains a natural body I cannot ascend; Oh therefore that the change were come! Oh that this natural body were spiritual! that this corruptible had put on incorruption, and this mortal had put on immortality! then could I move upwards as well as downwards; such is the supernatural property of a glorified body, that it ascends or descends with equal ease; or if this be not possible for my present condition, if this body if mine must first descend before it ascend, if it must down into the grave, before it go up into glory: why yet, Oh that my better part were on the wing! Oh that my soul were mounting upwards! Oh wretched man that I am, who shall deliver my soul from this body of death? Or of the union, be so strong for a while, that neither soul nor body can really or substantially ascend, yet O that I were still ascending in a spiritual way! O that my affections were still on things above, and not on things beneath! yea, I could wish a nearer union even by a dissolution; why, Christ is ascended, and I would fain be where Christ is, though it cost me dear; I desire to be dissolved, I desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better.

Phil. 1. 23.

2. Let us see Christ sitting down at the right hand of God, and so desire to sit with him: when Christ sat down, it was not in his own pure Personal right simply, as it is his inheritance, but with relation to his Saints and Members; He hath quickened us together with Christ, and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. I confess Christ's sitting at God's right hand (as taken for the sublimity mity of his power) is not communicable unto us, for that is Christ's own prerogative; to which of the Angels said he at any time, Sit on my right hand? Yet his sitting in heaven as it is indefinitely expressed, is in some sort communicable unto us, for he sat down as a common person, thereby shewing that we were to sit down with him in our proportion, Him that overcomes, I will grant to sit with me in my Throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his Throne. Christ sits in his Father's Throne, and we sit in Christ's Throne; Christ sits at the right hand of God, and we sit at the right hand of Christ: Oh how desirable is this? The Mother of Zebedees Children understood this mystery very darkly, yet worshipping Jesus, she desired a certain thing of him; what thing? why, grant (said she) that these my two Sons may sit the one at thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand in thy Kingdom: Christ blamed them, because they know not what they asked, and yet he tells them, that to sit on his right hand, and on his left is given to them for whom it is prepared of his Father. O my soul desire after this, for this is worthy of thy desire: this is a great thing, an high exaltation, another manner of honour than any that this world affords; Courtiers desire no more but to sit at the Princes right hand; but O the vertue of Christ's Session, that thereby thou shouldst sit at the right hand of God! this is the very height and excellency of heavens glory; only take heed of apprehending it after a carnal and natural way; this very exaltation consists in the Image of God, and communion with God; it is the spiritual part, and power, and glory of heaven: if any thing be desirable above another, surely this above all; what? that Christ should be exalted above all Principalities, and Powers, and mights, and dominions, and every thing that is named in this world, and in the other? what? that Christ should sit down in his Father's Throne, in the highest part of Heaven, far above all heavens? and that I a poor worm, dust and ashes should sit with him in Heaven, should be one with him in glory, should be as near him in honour and happiness, as such a poor creature is possibly capable of? Oh how should I but hunger and thirst after this? if I might have a wish, I would not wish low things: why, this is the very top, and height and quintessence of Heaven, Christ in his Father's Throne, and I in Christ's Throne; in desiring this I desire all, and therefore whatever thou givest or deniest, Lord give me this, and I have enough for ever.

Eph. 2. 5. 6.

3. Let us see Christ's mission of his holy spirit, and so desire a share in that gift: we cannot expect to sit with Christ, but we must first have the spirit of Christ; and therefore as we would have that, let us desire after this. The greatest gift we can expect in this world is the spirit of Christ. Consider O my soul, all things here below are either temporal or spiritual things; and of things spiritual this is the sum, the in-dwelling of the spirit. O Lord give me thy self, and that contains all gifts; O give me the spirit, and thou canst not but with him give me all things; there be many that say (saith the Psalmist) Who will shew us any good? earthly things are desired of many; but is any thing on earth to be compared with this gift from heaven? if it were only the beauty of holiness, it were certainly a most desirable thing; if we rightly understand it, holiness (though but one effect of the spirit) is a most rare thing; holiness fills the soul with joy, peace, quietness, assurance; holiness entertains the soul with feasts of fat things and of refined wines; holiness carries the soul into the banquetting-house of apples and flaggons; holiness gives the soul a dear communion with God and Christ; holiness brings the soul into a sight of Christ, an access to him, a boldness in his presence; holiness admits the soul into the most intimate conferences with Jesus Christ in his bed-chamber, in his galleries of love, and that which is an argument of more beauty than all the creatures in the world have besides; holiness attracts the eye, and heart, and longings, and ravishments, the tender compassions, and everlasting delights of the Lord Jesus; and if holiness be thus lovely, Oh what is the holy spirit it self? what is the Rise, the Spring, the Fountain of holiness? what? O my soul, that not only grace, but the spirit of Christ should dwell in thy spirit? that thou shouldst be God's building, and that not as the rest of the world is, for his creatures to inhabit; but as a Temple for himself to dwell in, as a Gallery for himself to walk in? Oh what longings! Oh what pantings and gaspings! Oh what faintings and swoonings should there be in thy spirit after this Spirit! Come holy spirit, O come and dwell in my soul! I know thou wilt make the place of thy feet glorious; if I have but thy presence, I shall be all glorious within: O come, come holy Spirit!

SECT. IV.

Of hoping on Jesus in that respect.

4. Let us hope in Jesus, carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in these particulars; thus was the Apostles Prayer, Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and Peace in believing; that ye may abound in hope through the power of the holy Ghost; could we abound in hope that Christ's Ascension, Session, and Mission of his Spirit did belong to us, we should never be ashamed; Hope maketh not ashamed. O then let us look to our hope, and be sure that it be of the right stamp! which in reference to every of these passages we may examine thus. As—

1. If Christ's Ascension be mine, then am I ascended with Christ: I mean not in respect of any bodily Ascension, for that must not be until the last day; nor in respect of any

1. If Christ's Ascension be mine, then am I ascended with Christ: I mean not in respect of any bodily Ascension, for that must not be until the last day; nor in respect of any essential, substantial soul-ascension, for that must not be before the separation of soul and body at our deaths day: but in respect of our spiritual ascension, for so we may ascend into heaven by faith and love; though for the present we are on earth; if ye be risen with Christ, seek those things which are

Col. 3. 1. above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God; set your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth. If Christ our Head be ascended then we that are his Members must needs follow after him in our affections: Christ tells us, Where our treasure is, there will our hearts be also. If Christ our Treasure be ascended into heaven, our loves, our affections, our hearts will follow after him: and if our hearts be in heaven, no question but we our selves both souls and bodies shall at last ascend; when Christ ascended, we ascended virtually with him, now we ascend spiritually, and at last we shall ascend bodily; for he that ascended shall descend, and then we shall meet him in the air, and so shall we be ever with the Lord. In the mean time to maintain our hope, let us ascend daily by faith and love; and this is our character, that Christ's Ascension is truly ours.

2. If Christ's Session be mine, then am I set down with Christ in heavenly places; I mean not bodily, but by faith, which faith makes it as sure to my soul as if I had a foot already in heaven; Faith is the substance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things not seen. By faith I now sit in heavenly places, in that I verily believe I shall do it one day; my hope is now certain, in that I am as sure of that I look for, as I am of that I have already received; it is the common objection, We see it not. As the Apostle said of Christ, We see not yet all things put under him; but he presently answers, We see Jesus who was made a little lower than the Angels, crowned with glory and honour, and so we may be sure the thing is as good as done; for if he be above, all must come under; in like manner we see not our selves in present possession, but we see Christ crowned, and our selves sitting with him virtually; and therefore at last we shall see our selves actually crowned, and sitting together with Christ in heavenly places. In the mean time faith takes possession of the Kingdom of Heaven; faith makes the soul even now to converse with God, and Christ, and Saints and Angels; Faith lays hold upon eternal life, it puts the soul as it were into heaven, and sets it down at the right hand of Christ; and this is our character, that, Christ's Session is truly ours.

3. If Christ's spirit be mine, and sent to me, then have I both the person, and train of the spirit of Christ; it is the having the spirit, and the working of the spirit in me, that is my evidence of the spirit's mission; I look upon this as the greatest Question, and the weightiest, and most important case of conscience that can be propounded or known of us; viz. Whether the spirit of Christ doth reside in us? or whether we have a well-grounded hope to say of our selves that we have the indwelling of the spirit of God? Know ye not that ye are the Temples of God (saith the Apostle) and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you? And again, Know ye not that your bodies are the Temples of the holy Ghost? In this Question he seems to put it out of Question, that true Christians should know, and in right temper do know that the spirit of God dwells in them; if we know not this, we cannot know that we have any part in Christ; because the holy spirit is the principal bond of our union betwixt Christ and us; if we know not this, we cannot know that we are justified, for we have nothing to do with Christ's Righteousness, by which we are justified, until by our spiritual union Christ is made ours; if we know not this, we cannot know we are the adopted Children of God, for it is the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry in our hearts, Abba Father: if we know not this, we cannot know that we are sanctified, for it is the spirit which is the beginner and perfecter of our sanctification: if we know not this, we cannot know that our prayers are heard, for it is the spirit that helps our infirmities, and that makes intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered; if we know not this, we cannot know whether we are in error or truth; or whether our Religion which we profess be true or false, for it is the spirit who enlightens us, and teacheth us, and leadeth us into all truth; if we know not this, we cannot know our own comforts, for he is the only true Comforter, from whom all sound comfort springs. Come then and put we our selves to the trial; Let us search whether we have the spirit of Christ, which we may resolve (if we will not deal deceitfully with our own hearts) by these following signs.

1. The spirit of Christ is the spirit of illumination; if he dwell in us he will enlighten our eyes, reveal to us those saving truths of God as they are in Jesus; But the Comforter which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things. But ye have an anointing from the holy One, and ye know all things. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you, but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things; and hence it is that this holy spirit is called the Spirit of wisdom, and revelation in the knowledge of God.

2. The spirit of Christ is the spirit of adoption; it brings our souls into that blessed estate that we are the Children of God: Ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but we have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry Abba Father. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the spirit of his son into your hearts, crying, Abba Father.

3. The

Zach. 12. 10. Rom. 8. 16. 3. The spirit of Christ is a spirit of prayer, I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem the spirit of grace, and of supplication.—Likewise the spirit also helpeth our infirmities, for we know not what we should pray for as we ought, but the spirit it self maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. It is not said that the spirit teacheth us words, and fluent phrases, but it teacheth us to pray in the heart and spirit with sighs and groans.

1 Cor. 6. 11. Rom. 1. 4. 4. The spirit of Christ is a spirit of sanctification; the Apostle having told the Corinthians that they had been notorious sinners, saith further, that they were washed and sanctified by the spirit of God. Hence the holy spirit is called The spirit of holiness; because he makes us holy who were in our selves corrupt and sinful. If we have this spirit, it inclines our hearts to the things above, it mortifies our lusts, it brings us nearer unto God: the spirit therefore that is impure and encourageth men in sin, and cries up carnal Liberty, is certainly none of the spirit of Christ; and by this one sign many carnal pretenders of our times may be justly convicted.

1 John 4. 16. Gal. 5. 22. 1 Thel. 4. 2. 5. The Spirit of Christ is a spirit of love. God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him; as the spirit is love, so it begets love in the hearts of his people; The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. All these graces are the fruits of the spirit, but the first grace in the link is love: by his spirit we are taught to love God, not only for his benefits, but in respect of his nature; for his goodness, mercy, justice, holiness, and all other his saving attributes; by his spirit we are taught to love any thing that hath but the stamp and image of God upon it: but as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you, for ye your selves are taught of God to love one another; The most of the Heretical spirits of these times do hereby shew that they have not the Spirit, their very religion lyeth in rayling at Ministers, and reproaching those that are not in their way; this is far from the spirit of love that is in God's Children; certainly where there is malice, hatred, strife, bitter-envyings, raylings, revilings, for such kind of persons to lay claim to the spirit of unity, it is a piece of impudent vanity, and a false suggestion from their own corrupt erring spirit, or from the spirit of error himself, who is an hater, reviler, and the accuser of the Brethren.

Rom. 8. 14. The Spirit of Christ is a leading Spirit; As many as are led by the Spirit of God they are the Sons of God. But what is this leading of the Spirit? I Answer—

Cant. 1. 4. 1. It is a drawing of the soul Christward; Draw me (saith the Spouse) and we will run after thee. There must be a drawing of the soul in every duty to Jesus Christ; I say to Jesus Christ; for a man may be furnished with eminent gifts, and with suitable assistance in the laying out of those gifts from the Spirit, and yet he may be without the leadings of the spirit; gifts exercised cannot suppress corruptions in a man's own heart, and hence they that used their gifts are called workers of iniquity; gifts do not carry out the heart towards Christ, but graces do; I will cause him to draw near, and he shall approach unto me, for who is this that engaged his heart to approach unto me, saith the Lord.

2. It is a giving liberty to the soul to walk in the wayes of Christ. Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty; I mean not a liberty to sin, but to duty, nor yet every liberty to duty; for a man may exercise himself in the external part of all duties, and yet be without the leadings of the spirit; but I mean such a liberty, as when a soul accounts it an high favour from the Lord if he will but use him in any services for himself, when it finds more delectation in these, than in any other wayes; I have chosen the way of truth, (saith David) and therein is my delight. And I delight in the law of God, after the inner man (saith Paul) for the law of the spirit of life in Jesus Christ, hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

2. It is a corroborating or a strengthening of the soul against all those impediments, that would hinder it in the wayes of Christ; Israel is said to be led by the spirit of the Lord; and how did he lead them, but by dividing the waters before them, and by keeping them that they should not stumble? many times God's holy ones are beset with temptations, they find their hearts full of deadness, hardness, unbelief, and all manner of distempers; now if at such a time the mountains have been made planes, if at such a time corruptions have been born down; and their hearts have been let out towards Christ, certainly these are the leadings of the spirit: If ye through the spirit do mortifie the deeds of the body, ye shall live; for as many as are led by the Spirit of God, are the Sons of God: the particular [for] argues mortification to appertain unto the leadings of the spirit. There is in the Saints a constant opposition between the works of the flesh, and the works of the spirit; now when the works of the flesh are kept underneath and prevailed against, then a soul enjoyeth the leadings of the spirit; I know such oppositions are not in any but Saints; carnal men would wonder that any should complain for want of strength unto duties, why, they can easily come up to them, and be in the exercise of them; but alas! this arises either from Satans not molesting them in the performance of duty, because they look not beyond the external part of it; or from their own insensibleness of the working of corruption, when yet it doth act: only a gracious heart findeth, that if it be not strengthened by a Power beyond its own, it cannot act any grace, or perform any duty as acceptable to God; and hence the Apostle prays, That they might be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man.

4. It is an enabling of the soul to act in Gospel-duties for Gospel-ends; when the spirit leads, the soul never aims at a self-advancement; it never looks at its own name and glory, as they did, in Mat. 6. 1, 5. but it eyes in all its actions the mortification of corruption, and the attainment of communion with God and Christ, and the increase of all Grace, Faith, Love, Patience, Meekness, self-denial, &c. or if it seek for outward mercies, it seeks them in a subordination to these, and in a way of subserviency to the interest and designs of Christ: in all things, whether outward or inward, it seeks the glory of God, as the ultimate end. And in these particulars consists the leadings of the spirit of Christ.

7. The Spirit of Christ is a witnessing spirit. Rom. 8. 16. The spirit it self, beareth witness with our spirit that we are children of God: 1 John 5. 10. and every one that believeth hath the witness within himself. But of this, two questions.

1. What is this witnessing work of the spirit? 2. How doth the spirit thus witness? for the first, I answer—

1. In general; witnessing is a giving in some evidence upon our knowledge, how the matter in question standeth, that thereby others may be ascertained of the truth of the thing: Deut. 19. 15. At the mouth of two or three witnesses shall the matter be established; these words Christ cited, and said, John 8. 17. It is written in your Law, that the testimony of two men is true; not but that it was certain in it self before, but that now by the testimony of two it is rendred certain unto those that question the same; this is witnessing.

2. In special; The witnessing of the spirit is an Office of the spirit, whereby it works the soul into a knowledge, perswasion, or conclusion of its acceptation into favour with God in Christ. Now the spirit witnesseth either objectively, or efficiently.

1. Objectively; When it only affords such special operations as have an aptitude to ascertain the soul, but do not ascertain; thus many a time the Spirit comes and brings in such, and such ascertions or affirmations of our adoption, as if they were but duly observed, might manifest the same; but we over-look these evidences, we will not hear what the spirit speaks to us; John 3. 13. We speak that we know (saith Christ) and testify that we have seen; but ye receive not our witness: so may the spirit complain, I have testified to you that which I know, I have said that ye were children of God, but ye have not received my witness; doubtless it is a sinful neglect not to yield attention unto the voice of the spirit; and yet the spirit in this way may be resisted.

2. Efficiently; and if the spirit witness thus, it cannot be resisted; in this way the spirit causeth the soul to conclude of its adoption by its speakings to it: this is not only the as-
Rom. 8. 38. sertions or affirmations of our adoption, but the assurances of our souls that we are adopted. Job. 19. 25. I am perswaded, saith the Apostle, and I know that my Redeemer liveth, 1 John 3. 24. saith Job. And hereby we know that he abi-deth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us. But—

2. How doth the Spirit thus witness? I answer, 1. Immediately. 2. Mediate-ly.

1. Concerning the immediate testimony of the Spirit there is some controversie: Antinomians would have no other testimony but this; all other evidences (say they) are deceiving evidences; or if not deceiving, yet to make use of them it were but to light a candle to the Sun; for what are the graces of the Spirit in comparison of the Spirits own testimony; and it may be the running into this extream hath caused others absolutely to deny any such testimony; or at least to say for these enthusiasms or inspirations, let them boast of them that have them, we know no such thing. Methinks a middle betwixt both these (as it is proved by others) is most consonant to truth; for neither can I reject the graces of sanctification from being grounds of our assurance; neither dare I deny but there is something of the work of the Spirits testimony which is an immediate work. Let us hear what others say of it—

Certainly there is a work, wherein the spirit acts as in illumination; and infusion of good motions into us, wherein by a secret influence upon the heart, he quiets and calms the troubled soul concerning its condition by his own immediate power, without any grounds from Scripture without, or graces within.

There is a threefold work of the spirit; 1. To convey and plant grace in the Soul. 2. To act and help us to exercise the graces which are planted there. 3. To shine upon and enlighten those graces: this last work the spirit fulfils two wayes; 1. By arguments and inferences, which is a mediate work. 2. By presence and influence, which is an immediate work; this the Apostle calls, witness-bearing; There are three that bear witness in Earth, the Spirit, and Water, and Blood; the spirit brings in the witness of Water and Blood, which is his mediate work; but besides and above these he gives a distinct witness of his own, which is his immediate work, is in a way of peculiarity and transcendency called the witness of the Spirit.—As it is with the motions of the spirit, many a time the spirit excites a man to such or such duties, by laying his hand immediately upon the heart, and thereby inclining it to obey those motions; so in this case when a poor Soul sits in darkness, and sees no light, sometimes upon a sudden it is (as it were) taken up into the third Heaven; and this is in such a way, that though the spirit of a man really believe it, and is immediately calmed by it, yet it cannot tell how it came to pass.

There is a Testimony of the spirit, which sometimes the spirit may suggest and testify to the sanctified Conscience, with a secret, still, heart-ravishing voice, thus, or in the like manner, Thou art the child of God; thou art in the number of those that shall be saved,

Bolton's direct. for a comfortable walking with God.

ved, thou shalt inherit everlasting life: and that as certainly and comfortably, as if that Angel from Heaven should say to thee, as he did to Daniel, greatly beloved.—Mighty and remarkable was the work of the spirit this way upon the heart of that noble Martyr, Robert Glover, upon the first sight and representation of the stake, when he cried, he is come, he is come. Such an immediate springing of the spirit was in the heart of Master Pecocke, who after many days of extreamest horror, professed, The joy which he felt was incredible. Such an immediate work was upon the heart of Mistris Brettergh who after the return of her beloved, suddenly cried out, How wonderful! How wonderful! how wonderful are thy mercies O Lord! O the joys, the joys, the joys that now I feel in my soul! we feel and acknowledg by daily experience, that Satan doth immediately inject, and shall not the blessed spirit after his holy and heavenly manner immediately also suggest sometimes?

Joh. 12.

As there is in the eye, lumen inmatum, a certain in-bred light, to make the eye see lights and colours without; and as there is in the ear, aer internus, a certain in-bred sound and air, to make it discern the sounds that are without; so is there in a gracious heart, a new nature, an habitual instinct of Heaven to discern the consolations of God's Spirit, immediately testifying that we are the Sons of God; there are some secret and unexpressible lineaments of the Fathers countenance in this child, that the renewed soul at first blush knows and owns it. But for fear of mistakes, in this case observe we these Rules.

1. That although the spirit may immediately testify without any express or formal application of a word, yet he never testifies but according to the Word. If a man that never felt sin a burthen, that throws away all duties of Religion, that never Prays, Reads, Hears, or Meditates, shall say, that he is filled with joy, Peace, and the assurance of God's Word, it is certain the holy Spirit is not the Author of this, because the promise of peace belongs to none of this stamp; see Matth. 11. 28. Isa. 57. 15. Mal. 5. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8.

2. That ordinarily the spirit brings in his testimony either in duty, or after duty. I have seen his wayes, and I will heal him; I will lead him also, and restore comforts to him and to his mourners; I create the fruit of the lips, peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, saith the Lord, and I will heal him. I know there may be a case of grievous temptations, and at such a time the spirit of God may come in by a sudden irradiation, and cheer the soul wonderfully, though it knows not how; yet usually the spirit brings in his testimony either in duty, or not long after duty.

3. That such testimonies of the Spirit beget only an actual assurance during the present exigency, or in order to some present design that God is working thereby; these are extraordinary dainties, that God will not have us feed constantly upon; a gleam of light in a dark winters night, when a man cannot coast the Country, and discern his way by those marks which direct him at other times; or as a lightning from a thunder-cloud, that comes just in the moment when a man is stepping into a pit that would swallow him up; now a Traveller will not depend always upon such guides, but rather he will choose to travel by day, and learn out such way-marks as may be standing assurances to him, that he is in the way. And therefore—

2. The spirit witnesseth mediately; and that either without, or with argumentation: But both from the Word.

1. Without argumentation, and that is when the spirit applies some suitable word to the soul, and without more ado enables the soul to close with that suitable word.

As for instance, thou art burthened for sin, and thou hast prayed earnestly for pardon of sin, and even then a secret whisper of the Spirit casts that word into thy heart, I will heal thy back-slidings, and love thee freely, or such a voice as that, come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Now this is a direct testimony; only I dare not leave it without a caution.—Some can relate extraordinary passages of providence attending the coming in of such and such a word: as that they did not know there was any such Scripture, nor did they know where it was; and yet in opening the Book, it was the very first place their eye was cast upon; or they wanted a Book, and in the use of some other means unexpectedly a word was spoken, or remembered, so pat to the case, as if it had been a very message from Heaven, certainly the spirits hinting in of words thus, is very observable; yet a bare giving in of a word is no warrant that it comes from the spirit, unless the soul come up to some end which the word is self pointeth at; there must not only be a word, but a closing with the word, and improving of the word, for the ends it aimeth at, as quickning, comforting, supporting, acting of some graces, or such like; and by this we may know that the testimony is true, and proceeds from the Spirit of God.

Mat. 11: 28.

2. With argumentation, and that is when the Spirit brings in the testimony of blood and water, I may call it a testimony of Faith, and other graces of the Spirit written in our hearts, and brought out by the spirit in a way of argument; as thus—He that believeth, hath everlasting life; but I believe, Ergo. The first proposition is the Gospel, and in this way it is the first work of the spirit to open our eyes, for the understanding thereof. The second proposition, is thy case, or my case; and here the Spirit enlightens the soul to see it self under that condition, but I believe. Indeed many times this is not so easily done, and therefore the spirit doth elicit and draw forth the soul to an assent by a further evidence of argument, True (says the soul) he that be-

lives hath everlasting life, but I am none of those believers, and therefore what doth this promise concern such an unbelieving wretch as I am? In this case now the spirits work is longer, or shorter, even as he pleaseth; if it will be no better, the spirit is fain to produce some other proofs of Scripture, as evidence faith in the subject in whom it is; such as purifying the heart, love to God, his ways, his people, &c. and possibly it goes farther yet, and proves those graces to be in the soul by farther marks. — I know some object, if the spirit say, thou art a believer, because thou hast love; the soul may doubt still whether it have love or no; and if the spirit say, thou hast love because thou delightest in God's Commandments; the question may be still, whether that delight be sincere, or counterfeit; pure, or mixed; and therefore say they, There can be no judgment of a man's justification by his sanctification; or of his sanctification by the operation of particular graces.

I answer, it is true, that whiles I endeavour to discover these graces merely by reason, they may be still subject to question, and so they can make no firm assurance; but in the soul that is graciously assured this way, the Spirit of God rests the heart upon an ultimum quod sit; he convinceth the soul by that which is most visible in him, and so stops the mouth of cavilling reason from perplexing the question any more. Indeed it is a fine skill to know whether a true assurance be merely rational, or from the witness of the Spirit of God? whether it be wrought out of a man's own brain, or wrought into his heart by the Holy Ghost? now in some cases we may discern it, as thus; the assurance that the spirit gives, doth sometime surprise a man unexpectedly, at unawares, as it may be in a Sermon, that he came accidentally unto; or in a Scripture, that I cast a transient-glancing eye upon; but thus doth not reason. Again, The assurance that the spirit gives, maintains a soul in a way of reliance and dependance, when it sees no reason why he should do so; or it may be when he sees a reason why it should not be so; as it is said of Abraham in another case, that he believed in hope against hope; faith told him there was hope that he should be the Father of many Nations, when reason told him there was none. Again, The assurance that the spirit gives, is attended with an high esteem of Prayer, Duties, Ordinances, and in the issue (which is the most principal sure-mark) it purifies the soul that hath it. He that hath this hope purifies himself, even as he is pure; he is ever washing himself from sin, and watching against sin, and taking all possible care to keep himself pure and unspeckled in this present evil world, it keeps the soul humble, and lowly, it being impossible that such a testimony of the spirit, and so intimate a converse with God, and the light of his countenance should not reflect low thoughts upon a man's self concerning himself; such a man cannot but say, Lord, what art thou that thou hast brought me hither- to? what? for such a peevish, unbelieving, impatient soul as mine is, to be carried in thy arms, and cheered with thy smiles, and to enjoy the comforts of thy spirit? Oh what a wonderful, merciful, gracious God? have I?

Yet in all this I exclude not the Spirit in drawing a rational evidence from Scriptures; certainly the spirit helps in a general way, by making use of our reason, only it elevates and improves our reason to a further assurance by a supernatural assistance; as in Prayer, and in Preaching of the Word, there may be a common assistance of the Spirit of God; but there is another kind of praying and preaching by the Spirit, which the Scripture often speaks of, and calls the spirit of supplication, and the demonstration of the spirit; and that is not performed by a common or general, but by a special and particular assistance of the Spirit of God; so there is a two-fold influence of the Spirit in putting forth acts of assurance in the heart, even of a Godly and Sound Christian; the very same man may act assurance sometimes rationally, and sometimes spiritually; in the former the spirit acts too, but in a common way, only in the latter, is the supernatural, special assistance, which peculiarly is said to be the witness of the Spirit. I speak not against rational evidences, only it concerns us to apply our selves to the Spirit to superadd his testimony: O let us not so content our selves with rational evidences, but that we labour to elevate the evidence of reason into a testimony of the Holy Spirit of God. To wind up all I have said —

O my soul, try now the hope of the spirits in-dwelling by these several signs; art thou enlightened savingly in the knowledge of God, and of Christ? art thou a Child of God, one of his adopted sons for whom he hath reserved the inheritance? hast thou a spirit of Grace and Supplication? a spirit of Sanctification? a spirit of Love? art thou led by the spirit? dost thou feel the drawings of thy soul in every duty to Jesus Christ? dost thou feel a liberty, or a delight in thy soul to walk in the way of his Commandments? dost thou feel any strength to come in against thy corruptions; dost thou feel the spirits help to act in Gospel duties for Gospel ends? hast thou ever had the immediate testimony of the spirit? or if not so; hast thou ever had the immediate testimony of the spirit without any argumentation? hast thou unexpectedly dipt and lighted on some places of Scripture that hath satisfied thy soul as with marrow and fatness? or if not so neither, hast thou the immediate testimony of the Spirit with argumentation? canst thou argue thus. He that believeth shall be saved, but I believe, therefore I shall be saved. Or if any doubt be made of the assumption; canst thou prove it by such other graces as accompany faith, and are the fruits of faith? canst thou say by the help of the spirit, and shavings of the spirit, that these, and these these graces are in me, and have been acted by me; yea, I do love God and Christ, I do repent of my sins; &c. surely then thy hope is well grounded; thou hast the indwelling of the Spirit; it is thine, even thine.

Of believing in Jesus in this respect.

5. Let us believe on Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in these particulars, many scruples are in many hearts, What? is it possible that I should have any share in Christ's Ascension, Christ's Session, Christ's Mission of his Spirit? was it ever in God's heart that I should partake with Christ in all these glories? If it must be so that he will let out his love to so unworthy a wretch, was it not sufficient for him to have come down from Heaven, and to have acted my redemption here below? Is it not an high Favour that a King should leave his Court, to give a poor prisoner in the Jail a visit? but will he take him with him to his own home, and bring him into his own presence-chamber, and set him at his right hand in his throne? And so that Christ should not only leave his Father's throne, and give me a visit, lying in the dark dungeon of unbelief; but that he should take off the bolts, and set open the prison doors, and take me up with him into Heaven, and there set me down at his right hand, and in the meantime give me the earnest and pledge of my inheritance, by filling my soul with his own Spirit; O what an admirable incredible thing is this? it was the last vision of John which was so full of wonders. And I John saw the holy City, the new Jerusalem coming down from God out of Heaven.

Rev. 21. And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying; Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them. Surely it was a miraculous mercy that heaven should come down upon earth, and that God should come down to men: but Oh, what is this that Earth should go up to Heaven, that men should ascend up to God? yea, that my soul with Christ, and by Christ, should ascend to God, and sit down with God in heavenly places? yea, that my soul should have for its inmate the very same Spirit that Christ himself hath? Oh I cannot, I will not, I dare not believe.

Scrupulous souls, be not faithless but believing; there is none of these particulars for which we have not a warrant out of the Word of God; and therefore believe. But that I may persuade to purpose, I shall lay down, 1. Some directions, and 2. Some encouragements of faith.

1. For directions of Faith, observe these particulars. As—

1. Faith must directly go to Christ.
2. Faith must go to Christ as God in the Flesh.
3. Faith must go to Christ as God in the Flesh made under the Law.
4. Faith must go to Christ, not only as made under the directive part of the Law by his life, but under the penal part of the Law, by his death.

5. Faith must go to Christ not only as put to death in the Flesh, but as quickened by the Spirit; of all these before.

6. Faith must not only go to Christ as quickened by the Spirit; but as going up into glory as sitting down at God's right hand, and as sending the Holy Ghost; Faith should eye Christ as far as he goes; if he be ascended, so should Faith; if he go into glory; and sit down there, and act there for his people, so should Faith; and so should we in a way of believing follow after him, and take a view of all his transactions where he is; we have heard before how Faith should go to Christ as dying, and as rising again; but yet faith is low, while it doth not go within the vail, and see him in glory; it is not enough to have only a faith of Justification, but of Glorification. O come let us see Christ in Heaven, and we can have no less than a glorious faith! how many are there that never yet came to act faith in Christ as a glorified Christ? we are yet still in the lower form; many of us take in no more of Christ than what was done on the Cross, or what some natural, and common resemblances of him can hold forth; we seldom follow Christ into Heaven, to see what he is doing there for us. O my soul! and O my faith! mount up, and be on the wing: Christ is gone up to heaven, Christ is set down at God's right hand; Christ hath sent down his holy Spirit: to this purpose it was expedient that he should go away, and now he is gone away to do something that remains to be done for thee in his Kingdom; he had still some glorious piece to frame for thy salvation, and therefore he left this world and went to his Father; that he might act it in glory; and now he is invested with all the riches of Heaven, he hath all the keys of Heaven and Hell, he hath all power to command, he hath received all the promise to himself, and all that he hath to do, it is to let out of himself again unto his Saints; he hath not only got his Father's heart for them, but he hath got all his riches to bestow upon them; when he came to Heaven, the Father bid him sit down at his right hand, and take what he would, and bestow what he would upon his Saints; and thereupon he gave gifts unto men, yea, he gave the gift of gifts, even the Holy Ghost himself. What? art not thou a partaker of this gift? O then Look up unto Jesus in reference to all these actings, set him before thee: Christ in all these particulars is a right object for thy faith to act upon.

7. Faith in going to Christ, his Ascension, Session, and Mission of the holy Spirit, it is principally to look to the purpose, intent, and design of Christ in each of these particulars: Christ did nothing but he had an end, a meaning in it for our good; and here is the life of Faith, to eye the meaning of Christ in all his doings. Now the ends of Christ's Ascension, Session, and Mission of his Spirit were several; I shall instance onely in these few. As—

1. Christ

1. Christ ascended that we might ascend: look whatever God acted on Christ's person, that he did as in our behalf, and he means to act the same on us: was Christ crucified? so are we; is Christ risen again, so are we risen together with him: is Christ gone up into glory? so are we; Heaven is now opened and possessed by Jesus Christ for us, and at last we shall ascend even as he ascended; Christ cannot be content with that glory he hath himself, until we be with him; Father I will, that those also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold or enjoy my glory which thou hast given me. Christ as our head is in glory, and so we are there already with him; and Christ as our advocate is in glory, and there he is pleading and praying for us, that we may actually be received and brought up to him: Father I will that these whom thou hast given me may be with me. Christ's crown of glory is as it were a burthen on his own head, untill it be set on the heads of all his Saints; O the blessed end of Christ's Ascension! how should faith pry into this? Believers! you see your object, you know his person, never be quiet untill ye come into his condition: as we must go through all ordinances and creatures till we come to Christ, so through all conditions of Christ untill we come to glory.

2. Christ sat down that we might sit with him in heavenly places, what is the end of Christ's Session, but that we might invest all his Saints with the same priviledge? In this height of glory, Christ is the pattern, and plat-form, and Idea of what we shall be; surely this is the very top of Heaven; Christ is exalted above the Heavens, that we might in our measure and proportion be exalted with Christ, it was Christ's Prayer, that his Father, and he, and we, might all be one As thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us. Oh how should faith stand, and gaze on Jesus Christ in this respect? what? is he on God's right hand? and is he there preparing a room, a seat, a mansion for my soul? What, shall I sit at the right hand of Christ? shall I sit as an assessor on his Judgment-seat to Judge the world with Jesus Christ? when the Son of man shall sit on the Throne of his Glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve Tribes of Israel. O what is this? had not Christ said it, how could I have believed it? admire O my soul at this aim of Christ, the meaning of his exalting himself, it was to exalt thee; and the meaning of his exalting thee on this manner, it is to manifest to all the World, what the Son God is able to do, in raising so poor a creature, to so rich a glory. O the end of Christ's sitting at God's right hand! hereby the Saints are Christ's assessors; Lord's of the higher house, the Kings Peers to judge the World with him. Christ divides (as it were) the throne with them. I appoint unto you a Kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me, that you may eat and drink at my table in my Kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve Tribes of Israel.

3. Christ sent down the Holy Ghost, that he might dwell in our souls, endow us with gifts, and graces; that he might comfort us, seal us unto the day of redemption; sit us for glory; amongst the many ends for which Christ sent down his holy spirit, I shall insist only on these two.—

1. That he might help us to cry Abba Father: and make us to come boldly to the Throne of grace, as Children to a Father. It is the spirit that takes us by the hand and leads us to the Father, when others stand at a distance, and cannot come near: As a Princes Son is admitted at all times though others are kept out by Officers and Guards; so though there be never so much darkness, and fire, and terror about God, yet the adopted child, who hath received the spirit of adoption, can say; make way there, and let me come to my Father; guards are appointed to keep out strangers, but not Sons. And no wonder, for the spirit makes intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered; the spirit teacheth us what to pray, and how to pray as we ought; the spirit puts a courage and boldness into the hearts of his Saints, even to admiration; this appears in that sometimes they have beset God with his promises, that he could no way get off. Quicken me according to thy word.— And strengthen me according to thy word.— And be merciful unto me according to thy word.— And uphold me according to thy word.— And give me understanding according to thy word: And sometimes they have beset God with their challenges of his Justice, Faithfulness, and Righteousness: so David, Deliver me in thy righteousness.— And judge me according to thy righteousness.— And quicken me according to thy righteousness.— And in thy faithfulness answer me, and in thy righteousness. Why this is the spirits work, he helps our infirmities, he imboldens our spirits in their approaches to God: surely it is one end of the spirits mission; Because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, Abba Father. I will not deny but that bastards, strangers without the Covenant, having no right to God as their Father, may yet petition God, as a subdued people do their Conqueror, or as Ravens cry to God for food, or as some howl upon their beds for Corn and Wine; but they cannot pray, in right Prayer; there is not only required gracious ingredients in the action, but also a new state of adoption and filiation: many speak words to God, who do not pray; many tell over their sins, who confess not their sins to God; many speak good of God, who do not praise God; thousands claim Fathership in God, where there is no Sonship, nor ground in the thing it self. A new nature is only that best bottom of Prayer, that takes it off from being a taking of God's Name in vain. Now this is the fruit of the spirit, and one of those ends of the spirits mission.

2. That

2. That he might guide us into all Truth; I mean into all necessary, Fundamental saving Truths: in this respect we have need of the Spirit in these dayes. He it is that Dictates to us which is the true Religion; he it is that transcribes upon our hearts, that which was before only written in our books; he it is that not only reveals truth from without, but imprints it also on the soul, as a man doth a seal by impressing it on the wax; to this purpose saith the Apostle,

1 John 5. 10. He that believeth on the Son of God, hath the witness in himself; how in himself? I answer,

1. In that the Spirit gives him a habit of faith. 2. In that the Spirit causeth him to bring it forth into act. 3. In that the Spirit stamps on the soul all those other impressions of desire, hope, love, joy, or whatever else we call the new nature; so that now there is a new nature within him, he hath new thoughts, new designs, new desires, new hopes, new loves, new delights, he drives a new trade (as it were) in this world for another world: he is become in Christ a new Creature, Old things are passed away, and all things are become new. And from hence we may soundly argue the truth of our Religion. Mark this, as the Written word is the testimony without us, so are these impressions of the Spirit the testimony within us, by which we may know every necessary truth as it is in Jesus; this is the meaning of the Apostle, He that believeth hath the witness in himself: unbelievers have indeed a testimony without them, but believers have a double testimony, one without, and one within; and this witness within us will go with us which way soever we go: it will accompany us through all straits and difficulties. The external testimony may be taken from us; men may take from us our Bibles, our Teachers, our Friends; or they may imprison us where we cannot enjoy them; but they cannot take from us the Spirit of Christ: this witness within, is a permanent, settled, habituate, standing witness; O what an excellent help is here, that a poor Christian beyond all the furniture of the most Learned Men, that want this testimony of the Spirit of Christ! surely this advantage will exceedingly furnish us against all temptations to any error, that is plainly contrary to the essentials of Religion. One of our late Divines puts a case—

Mr. Baxter's Spirits witness to the truth of Christianity.

If the Devil or any seducer would draw us to doubt, whether there be indeed a Christ? or whether he did rise again, ascend, sit down at Gods right hand, and thence send down the Holy Ghost? what an excellent advantage is it against this temptation, when we can repair to our own hearts, and there find a Christ, or a Spirit of Christ within us? O (saith the sanctified soul) have I felt Christ relieving me in my lost condition, delivering me from my captivity, reconciling me to God, and bringing me with boldness into his glorious presence? and now after all this, I shall doubt whether there be a Christ in Heaven, or a Spirit of Christ in my heart on Earth? have I felt him new creating me, opening my dark eyes, and bringing me from darkness into his marvellous light, and from the Power of Satan unto God, binding the strong man, and casting him out, and yet shall I question whether there be a Christ, or a Spirit of Christ? hath he made me love the things which I hated, and hate that which I loved? hath he given me such a taste of the powers of the world to come, and possessed me with the hopes of glory with himself, and given me a measure, and portion in God, and set my heart where my treasure is, and caused me in some measure to have my conversation in Heaven above, and yet shall I doubt whether there be a Christ above, or a Spirit within? O what an impudent lying Spirit is this, that would tempt me against so much experience? And thus may a believer argue from the testimony that is within.

I know some seeming Saints have fallen off into as great blasphemies as these I have named; witness the Quakers, and Ranters, &c. but I may say of such, as John did, 1 John 2. 19. They went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us. It is no wonder if Satan prevail against those that gave Christ no deeper room but in their phantasies, and that did never heartily close with him in love. But for those that have the Spirit of Christ within them, it is not so with them; if they cannot answer the cavil of Satan, or of any of his instruments; yet they can hold fast the grounds of Faith; Christ hath a deep room and interest in their spirits; he is held faster by the hand, than by the head alone; Love will hold Christ, when Reason alone would let him go; his ear is nailed (as it were) unto his door; and because he loveth him, he will not leave him: Who shall separate him from the love of Christ, shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword, (as it is written, for thy sake are we killed all the day long) nay, in all these things we are more than Conquerors through Him that hath loved us.

Rom. 8: 35, 36, 37.

A modern Writer brings in a sincere heart, paraphrasing (as it were) on this Text, in this manner; Who shall separate us from the Love of Christ? O thou malicious Devil, that dost hunt me with thy fiery darts! O you dull hereticks, infidels, blasphemers, that fill up my ears with your foolish sophisms, and trouble me with your disputes against my Lord and Redeemer! go to him that knows him only by the hearing of the ear, if you mean to prevail; but I have known him by the sweet experiences of my soul; go to him that makes a Religion of his Opinions, and whose belief was never any deeper than his fancy, and whose piety never reached higher than to abstinacy, and tasks of formal duty; these you may possibly draw away from Christ. But do you think to do so by me? why, tell me how? with what weapons or arguments can you think to prevail? what, shall tribulation be the means? no, no; I have that promise in the hand of my Faith? and that glory in the eye of my hope, that will

will bring me through all tribulations under Heaven: or shall distress do it? why, I will rather stick so much closer to him that will relieve me in distress and bring me to his rest. Or will you affright me by persecution? I am assured that this is the nearest way to Heaven, and I am blessed of Christ, when I am persecuted for righteousness sake. Or shall nakedness be the weapon? I had rather pass naked out of this World to Heaven, than to be clothed in purple, and to be stript of it at death, and to be cast into hell; Adam's innocent nakedness, and Lazarus's rags were better than that Epicure's gay apparel.-- Or shall famine be the means? why, man liveth not by bread alone; I had rather my Body were famished than my Soul; I have meat to eat that ye know not of, even the bread of Life, which who so eats shall live for ever. Or will you affright me from Christ by the sword of violence? I know that the Lord whom I believe in, and serve, is able to deliver me out of your hands; but if he will not, be it known to you I will not forsake him; your sword will be only the key to open the prison doors, and let out my soul, that hath long desired to be with Jesus Christ. If you tell me of peril, I know no danger so great as of losing Christ, and salvation; and of bearing his wrath, that can kill both body and soul: do I not read in certain Histories of that noble Army of Martyrs, who loved the Lord Jesus to the death, and gloried in tribulation, and would not by the flames of fires, or jaws of Lyons, be separated from Jesus Christ? did not they pass through the red sea, as on dry ground, to the promised land? yea, though they were killed all the day long, and accounted as Sheep to the slaughter; did they not stick and cleave fast to the Lord, and to the Captain of their salvation? nay; were they not in all this conquerours, and more than conquerours, triumphing in flames, to the confusion of Satan, and all their enemies; as Christ triumphed on the Cross, destroying by death the Prince of death? Oh what a blessed advantage is it against all temptations, to have the impress of the Gospel of Christ on our heart, and the witness in our selves.

But I hear some object; If the witness in our selves be so full and convincing, then what need have we any more to make use of Scriptures, or Ministers? why should we leave an higher Teacher to go to a lower?

But I answer, 1. There is more than one thing wanting to enwise us to salvation; as first, an outward Word; and secondly, an outward Teacher; and thirdly, an inward Light: And accordingly God supplies this threefold want: the first, by giving us the Scripture; the second, by giving us a Ministry, and other occasional Teachers; the third, by giving us the illumination of the Spirit, to help us to see by the former means, and to make the Word and Ministry to us effectual. Now it were a mad thing for a man to say, I have eyes to read in a book, and therefore I have no need of the light of Candle, or of Sun; or I have eyes, and Sun, and therefore I have no need of the light in the Air, which cometh from the Sun; or I have the light both of the Eye, and Sun, and Air, and therefore I can read by it without a Book; or I have a Book, and therefore I can read it without a Teacher: certainly if a man would read, he must have all these, or more than one of these; so God hath appointed us three necessary means for our illumination and direction; the Word, the Ministry, & the Spirit; What God hath joyned, let no man separate; if any will foolishly go, and set one of these against another, when God hath set them all together, and made them all necessary, assigning to each a several part in the work of our illumination, they may abuse God and themselves, and go without the light, while they despise the necessary causes of it. God's evidences must not be separated, much less must one be pleaded to the neglect of all the rest; as the work within us is not the first testimony, but a secondary confirming testimony, so doth it not make the first unnecessary or void: besides that, by the external testimony we must convince other men, which by the witness within us we cannot do. But this only by the way.

2. For the encouragement of our Faith to believe in Christ as in reference to his Ascension, Session, and Mission of his Spirit.

1. Consider of the excellency of this Object; what is it but Christ? Christ in his Ascendant, Culminant, Regnant Power? Christ in his Marching, Conquering, Triumphant Postures? in his Free, and Large, and Magnificent Gifts? When he ascended on high, he led Captivity Captive, and gave Gifts unto Men. O the Glory, O the Excellency of Christ in these Respects! Verily they are enough to tire out Men and Angels with the only Act of wondering and surveying of their vastness. Here is Gospel-Work for all Eternity, to dig into this Gold-Mine, to rouse and turn this Soul-delighting precious Stone, to behold, enquire, and search into these depths and heights of Christ exalted: and I believe this is the satiety, the top, and prime of Heavens Glory, to see and wonder at the virtues of him that sits on the Throne, at the right hand of God; to be filled, but never Satiated with the Glory of Christ. What, Christ ascended! Christ set down in Glory! and Christ sending down his Holy Spirit! here's a Compendium of all Glories: here is one for an heart to be taken with, made up of nothing but of several Mysteries of Glory.

2. Consider the Power, Vertue, and Influence of this Object into our souls Salvation; Oh what a stately Tower have we here erected to see Heaven on? Faith may stand (as it were) on this Mount, and see it self in glory; Oh the flowings, the rich emanations of Grace and Glory that come from hence! come, let us draw, the Well is deep; all the drops and dewings that fall on Men or Angels are but as chips in comparison of that huge and boundless body of the fulness of Grace

Grace that is in Christ; one Lilly is nothing to a boundless and broad Field of Lillies; Christ is in these respects the Mountain of Roses; oh how high, how capacious, how full, how beautiful, how green? could we but smell him who feeds among the Lillies, till the day break, and the shadows fly away; could we but dive into the Golden Veins of these unsearchable riches of Jesus Christ, we should say, It is good to be here. Oh it's good to gather up the fragments that fall from Christ; his Crown shines with Diamonds and Pearls; Oh why do we toil our selves in gathering sticks, when to morrow we shall be out of this world, and go to Christ? come, where is our mouth of Faith? let us lay to it here, let us suck and be satisfied with these Breasts of Consolation; let us milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of his Glory.

3. Consider of the suitableness of these Objects to our several conditions; you may remember the first cry, Was it not love enough for Christ to come down, and to visit us here; but that he must go up and take us with him? no, no, his love was so great and vast, that for our sakes he moves up and down; this ravished the Spouse, Behold he comes leaping upon the Mountains, and skipping upon the

Cant. 2. Hills, Cant. 2. 8. Gregory that measured his leaps, thus gives them; he first leaps from his Fathers Mansion to his Mothers Womb; from her Womb to the Cratch; from his Cratch to his Cross; and from his Cross to his Grave; from his Grave up again to Heaven; great leaps indeed that shewed both his readiness to love, and willingness to save: infinite love can never be out-tired with greatest actions. But another cries, how should I believe that Christ is exalted, and that by vertue thereof I shall be exalted when I see my self in a forlorn condition, forsaken of Psal. 62. God, and abject amongst Men; Alas! Man at his best is altogether Vanity, yea, Men of low degree are Vanity, and Men of high degree are a Lye, to be laid in the Ballance I am altogether lighter than Vanity; how then should I believe any such condition; is a worm a fit or a capable Subject to wear a Crown? Yes, the Lord is great, and he can do great things; He raiseth up the poor out of the Dust, and lifteth

Sam. 2. up the Beggar from the Dunghil, to set them among Princes, and to make them inherit the Throne of Glory; for the Pillars of the Earth are the Lords, and he hath set the World upon them, he will keep the Feet of his Saints. Why there is my sadness cries another; He will keep the Feet of his Saints; if I were but a Saint, I could believe this power; but alas! I am unholy, an unsanctified piece of Clay; I am a sinner, a sinner of the Gentiles, chief of sinners, I deserve to be thrown down to Hell, rather than to be invested with Glory, and to sit in Heaven; True, but yet the Holy Ghost is given to make thee holy; of thy self thou art vile, and most vile; but hath not the Holy Ghost entred in, and took possession of thy Spirit? hath he not washed thee with water? yea, thoroughly washed away thy blood? hath he not anointed thee with oyl, and covered thee with silk, and decked thee with gold and silver, and made thee comely throu h his comeliness which he put upon thee? Why this is the office of the holy Ghost, and if thou hast but the in-dwelling of the Spirit, this is thy state: I know there is a part of thee unregenerate, and it will be so whiles thou art on earth, but withal there is in thee a new nature, another nature; there is something else within thee which makes thee wrestle against sin, and shall in time prevail over all sin, and this is the Spirit of Christ, sanctifying of thee; Being sanctified (saith the Apostle) by the holy Ghost. Rom. 15: 16.

Other complaints might be thus brought in, but if we understand the meaning, the design of Christ in his Ascension, Session, and Mission of his Spirit, how might a true faith answer all? oh believe! believe thy part in Christ's Ascension, Christ's Session, Christ's Mission of his holy spirit, and thou mayest go singing to thy grave! a lively faith in such particulars would set a soul in heaven, even whilest yet on earth.

SECT. VI.

Of loving Jesus in that respect.

6. Let us love Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in these particulars; much hath been said already of Christ's Conception, Birth, Life, Death, Resurrection; such Arguments of love as are enough to swallow up souls in love to Christ again: O the treasures of love and wisdom that have been opened in former passages! but as if all those were not enough for God, see here new Gold Mines, new-found out Jewels, never known to be in the world before, opened and unfolded in Jesus Christ. Here are the in-comes of the beams of light most inaccessible; here are the veins of the unsearchable Glories of Jesus Christ; as if we saw every moment a new heaven, a new treasure of love; the Bosom of Christ is yet more opened; the new breathings and spirations of love are yet more manifested. See! Christ for us, and for our salvation is gone up to Heaven, is set down at God's right hand, and hath sent down the holy Ghost into our hearts; in the pouring out, of these Springs of Heavens love, how should our souls but open the mouth wide, and take in the streams of Christ's Nectar, Honey, and Milk; I mean his sweet, and precious, and dear love-breathings? We have heard of Christ's invitations, Come to me Matt. 11: 28. all ye that are weary and heavy laden: but suppose Christ had never outed his love in such a love-expressing, Come to me; yet Christ himself in these glorious particulars is such a drawing object; (the very beauty of Christ, the very smell of the Garments of Christ, very capacious and wide Heaven of Christ's exaltation are intrinsically, and of themselves such drawing, ravishing, winning objects) that upon the apprehension of them we cannot chuse but love Christ; as Gold that is dumb and cannot speak, yet the beauty and gain of it cryeth aloud, Come

hither poor creature, and be thou made rich; so if Christ should never open his lips, if he should never gently move, Open to me my sister, my love, my dove, my undefiled, for my head is full of dew, and my locks with the drops of the night; yet the Glory, the Power, the Sovereignty of Christ; the exaltation of his Person, and the magnificence of his Gifts, should even change our souls into a Globe or Mass of Divine Love and Glory, As it were by the Spirit of the Lord.

Two things I shall instance in, which may be as the Load-stones of our love to Christ; the first is his glory, and the second his bounty.

1. For his Glory, no sooner was he ascended, and set down at God's right hand, but John the Divine had a sight of him, and Oh what a glorious sight! He was clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle; his head and his hairs were white like wooll, as white as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire, and his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace, and his voice as the sound of many waters; and he had in his right hand seven stars, and out of his mouth went a sharp two edged sword, and his countenance was as the Sun that shineth in his strength; when John saw him thus, he swoons at his feet, but Christ for all his Glory holds his head in his swoon, saying, fear not, I am the first, and the last; I am he that liveth, and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen, and hath the Keys of hell and of death.

A glorious Christ is good for swooning, dying sinners, would sinners but draw near and come and see this King in the chariot of love, and come and see his beauty, the uncreated white and red in his sweet countenance, he would certainly draw their souls unto him. Nay, say that all the damned in hell were brought up with their burning fiery chains to the utmost door of Heaven: could we strike up a window, and let them look in, and behold the Throne, and the Lamb, and the Troops of glorified spirits clothed in white, with Crowns of gold on their heads, and Palms in their hands, singing the eternal praises of their glorious King; Oh how would they be sweetened in their pain, and convinced of their foolish choice, and ravished with the fulness of those joyes and pleasures that are in Christ's face for evermore? surely much more may this glory of Christ warm thy heart, O my soul! what an happiness were it to see the King on his Throne; to see the Lamb, the fair Tree of Life, the branches which cannot for the narrowness of the place have room to grow in, For the Heaven of Heavens cannot contain him? What an happiness were it to see love it self, and to be warmed with the heat of immediate love that comes out of the precious heart and bowels of this Princely and Royal Standar-bearer? as yet thou canst not, must not see these sights, there's no seeing the King thus in his beauty till thou comest to glory; for then, and then only must thou see him face to face, and yet the Idea and Image of this glory is seen and may be seen of every true believing soul; enough may be seen by an eye of faith, to kindle in thine heart a flame of love to the Lord Jesus Christ: Oh who can think of the glory that is in this dainty delightful One, and not be swallowed up in love? Who can think of Christs sitting at God's right hand, and sparkling in this Glory round about, and casting out beams of glory through East, and West, and North, and South, through Heaven, and Earth, and Hell, and not love him with a whole heart, soul and might? I remember one dying, and hearing some discourse of Jesus Christ: Ob (said she) speak more of this, let me hear more of this; be not weary of telling his praise, I long to see him, how should I but long to hear of him? Surely I cannot say too much of Jesus Christ; in this blessed subject no man can possibly hyperbolize; had I the tongues of Men and Angels, I could never fully set forth Christ; it involves an eternal contradiction that the creature can see to the bottom of the Creator. Suppose all the sands on the Sea-shore, all the Flowers, Herbs, Leaves, twigs of Trees in Woods and Forrests, all the Stars of Heaven, were all rational creatures, and had they that wisdom, and tongues of Angels to speak of the loveliness, beauty, glory and excellency of Christ, as gone to Heaven, and sitting at the right hand of his Father, they would in all their expressions stay millions of miles on this side Jesus Christ. O the loveliness, beauty, and glory of his Countenance! can I speak, or you hear of such a Christ? and are we not all in a burning love, in a seraphical love, or at least in a conjugal love? O my heart! how is it thou art not love-sick? how is it thou dost not charge the daughters of Jerusalem as the spouse did, I charge ye O daughters of Jerusalem, if ye find my beloved, that ye tell him I am sick of love?

2. For his bounty, no sooner was he ascended, and set down at God's right hand, but he gives gifts unto men; and he sends down the holy Ghost. This was the Gift of Gifts; I shall only weigh two Circumstances in this Gift, either whereof both dignifies, and casts a sparkle of bounty from the Giver, into the heart of the Receiver to move him to love. As—

One Circumstance is the greatness of the Giver; certainly the preheminance or dignity of any principle ennobleth and enhanceth the effect; a gift coming from a great Person carries ever a scent with it of a certain greatness, and relisheth either of excellency, or superiority, or nobility, or all. It is storied of Charles the fifth, that in his wars being ever prest with want of money, and so unable to remunerate the services of divers Dutch Captains, and Nobles, whom he had entertained; he used after any great exploit performed by them, to call together his Nobles and Camp into such a field, and there in presence of them all to take a Gold chain from about his neck, and to put it about the neck of such a Captain or such a Colonel, and so to embrace him and

and to give him thanks for his gallant service: why, this they esteemed a greater Favour (being Circumstanced by such a Person, in such away) than if in every deed he had given them a sufficient pay, or remuneration. O they valued that Chain more than many bushels of the like Gold; the very Person of the Emperour hanged at the Chain such a precious Jewel, as in warlike conceits a million of Gold could not countervail. O my soul, if an Emperour thus gained the affections of men, how shouldst thou but love Christ the great Emperour of Heaven and Earth: it was he that gave thee his Spirit, it was he that took off the Spirit which is upon him, (so is the expression of God to Moses) and put it upon thee; and doth not the person of Christ, the Dignity of Christ, inhanse the value of the Gift? as all gifts are signs of love, so the love of a great Personage, and the gifts issuing from such a love, ought more to be accounted than any gifts of any meaner person whatsoever.

2. An other Circumstance is, the greatness of the Gift; this argueth greatness of good will; and consequently deserveth a correspondence of a semblable affection. Now what greater gift had Christ in store, than to give his own spirit? the spirit proceedeth from him, and is the same essence with himself; the spirit is the third Person of the true and only God-head, proceeding from the Father and the Son, and coeternal, coequal, and consubstantial with the Father and the Son; this appears by those divine Attributes and Properties which are attributed and communicated to the holy spirit: As, 1. Eternity. God never was without his spirit; In the beginning God created Heaven and earth, — and the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

2. Omnipotency, because he, together with the Father and the Son createth and preserveth all things, By his Spirit he hath garnished the Heavens; the Spirit of God hath made me; and all these things worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will. 3. Omniscieny, or the knowledge of all things, For the Spirit searcheth all things, yea the deep things of God.

4. Immutability, or unchangeableness, Men and Brethren, this Scripture must needs have been fulfilled which the holy Ghost spake. 5. Infinite mercy, or love; God is love, — and the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the holy Ghost, which is given unto us.

6. Holy indignation even against hidden sins, They rebelled and vexed his holy Spirit; why hath Satan filled thy heart to lye to the holy Ghost? — thou hast not lyed unto men but unto God; (a plain Text for the Divinity of the Holy Ghost) — How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? Grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption. I might add Miracles, and the institution of Sacraments, and Prophecies, and Gifts, and Graces as the effects of his Divinity; I cast out Devils (saith Christ) by the Spirit of God, and baptize in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghost. And the spirit spaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith. And we are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord. See now how the holy spirit is God, coeternal, coequal, and consubstantial with God the Father, and God the Son, is not this a great gift? yea as great a gift as possibly can be given, what can he more than to give himself, and to give his spirit? O the bonds of love that are upon man towards Christ in this respect.

Come my soul and take a view of the Glory and Bounty of Jesus Christ! if thy heart be not all brass and iron, and stone, if there be any fleshiness, softness, or pliability in it, why, then how shouldst thou chuse but love? if either beauty or bounty, if either Majesty or magnificence can draw thy affection, Christ will have it; for in him is all; O let him be thy all! surely if thou hast any thing besides himself, he is the Donor of all, he is the beauty of all, the sum of all, the perfection of all, yea, he is the Author, Preserver, and finisher of all.

SECT. VII.

Of Joying in Jesus in that respect.

Let us joy in Jesus as carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in these particulars; there is not a particular under consideration, but 'tis the object of a Christians joy. As, —

1. How should it heighten my joys, and enlarge my comforts, when I do but consider that Christ is ascended into glory? by this it is clear and evident, that Christ is accepted of the Father for me, or otherwise he should never have been received into Heaven; if any frown had been in the face of God, surely Christ coming so near God, he should have had it; if any exception had been against his satisfaction, any flaw in our pardons, surely Christ should have heard of it; yea, without question he must have been turned out of Heaven, until he had made a full payment of our debts. I need not doubt of my acceptance at the Throne of Grace, when Jesus Christ is accepted for me, and that I stand in such a relation to Jesus Christ. Oh what joy is in this!

2. How should it heighten my joyes, and enlarge my comforts, when I do but consider that Christ is set down at God's right hand. Why now he hath the keys of Heaven delivered into his hands; All power is given unto him in Heaven and in earth, Mat. 28. 18. and now he can do what he will; God the Father hath given away (as it were) all his Prerogative unto Jesus Christ; All judgment is committed to the Son, for the Father judgeth no man. John 5: 22. Now he is in a capacity of acting out all his love, and the Father's desire to me in the most glorious way; he is highly advanced, and thereby he hath the advantage to advance me, and to glorifie me; me; God hath given into his hands all the treasures and riches of Heaven; in bidding him, sit down at his right hand, he told him that he would have no more to do with the world; but that Christ should have all, and that Christ should bestow all he had amongst his Saints; and that this should be the reward of his death; and when once his Saints were come about him, and sate with him in his glory, why then Christ should resign up again his place, And deliver up the Kingdom to God, even the Father. Oh what joy may enter into this poor dark dungeon, disconsolate soul of mine, whiles I but think over these glorious passages of my Christ in glory?

3. How should it heighten my joyes, and fill me with joy unspeakable, and full of glory, when I do consider that Christ, hath sent down his holy Spirit into my heart? when sorrow had filled the Apostles hearts, because he had told them, I must go away; he comforts them with this, If I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart, I will send him unto you. The Spirit is the Comforter, and where he comes, he fills souls with comforts; O what comfort is this, to know that the spirit of Christ is my Inmate? that my soul is the Temple, the Receptacle, the House and dwelling of the spirit of God? that Christ is in me of a truth, and that not only by the infusion of his grace, but by the in-dwelling of his spirit? surely it is some comfort to a sickly man that he hath a Physitian alwayes in the house with him; and to a woman that is near her travail, that the Midwife is in the house with her; but what comfort is it to a poor soul that the spirit of Christ is alwayes in him? I will send you another Comforter (said Christ) that he may abide with you for ever. Christ in his bodily presence went away, but Christ in his spirit continues still; Lo I am with you alwayes, even unto the end of the world; he is with us, and which is more, he is in us for our comfort: Christ in you the hope of Glory. Not Christ in Sermons which we hear, nor Christ in Chapters which we read, nor Christ in Sacraments which we receive; nor Christ in our heads by high notions, nor Christ in our mouths by frequent glorious expressions; but Christ in our hearts by his spirit, is unto us the hope of Glory. The grounds of our comforts in this respect, is,

1. Christ's presence; it is said of Paul, that after a sad shipwrack, the sight of some Christian brethren so cheered him, that upon the sight of them he thanked God and took courage; it is said of Caesar, that he cheered the drooping Mariners in a storm, by minding them of his presence, You carry Caesar; how much more should the in-being of Christ solace Saints; Lo I am with you. O my soul, was it not a cordial to the Disciples in a storm, that Christ was with them, whom the winds and waves obeyed? cheer up now, for if the spirit be in thee, Christ is with thee.

2. Christ's Complacency; if his spirit dwell in us, how should he but be well pleased with us? a man cannot properly be said to dwell in a prison, in which he taketh no delight; the Spirits in-dwelling imports a delight of Christ in such a soul, Here will I dwell, for I have desired it, or delighted in it, Psal. 132. 14. faith God of Zion, though many times drooping Christians, viewing their own beggarliness and vileness, judge themselves worthy to be detested and deserted, and would relinquish themselves if they possibly could, yet Christ looketh to the poor and contrite soul as a meet habitation for himself to dwell in, I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble Spirit. Isa. 57. 15.

3. Christ's Communications; union is the ground of our communion with Christ; and the nearer our union, the greater is our communion; if Christ were only in a believer by the habit of grace, the union would not be so great, but if Christ be in us by his spirit, the union is nearer, and therefore the communion will be greater. O my soul remember this in all thy straits; there can be no creature want, or danger whatsoever wherein the improvement of this in-dwelling of the Spirit may not refresh thee: art thou sick? the Physitian both of soul and body is within thee; art thou sad? the Comforter himself that supplies the stead and room of Christ, inhabits in thee; art thou in exile, in banishment, imprisonment at greatest distance from thy dearest Friends? see Paul's refreshment when they were ready to pull him in pieces, and threw him into the Castle, even the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, be of good cheer Paul. Acts 23. 11. Christ will stand by thee, nay, Christ by his Spirit dwelleth in thee, and will speak to thee comfortable words in thy greatest pressures.

4. Christ's witnessings, if his spirit dwell in us, we may then be assured of future glory, Christ in you the hope of Glory. 'Tis a sweet note of a divine upon it, The excellency of Christ's Spirit in Believers, giveth existence to their hopes of Glory. The Spirit in us is God's earnest of Glory; the Spirit in us doth prepare us for participation in that Glory. I look upon this in-dwelling of the Spirit as that which no Hypocrite in the World can lay any claim unto; as for gifts, or graces an Hypocrite may attain them, or something like them; it is said of Simon Magus, that he believed; it is said of Judas, that he repented; and of Esau, that he sought his birth-right with tears; it is said of some that they partook of the Heavenly Gift, and of the Powers of the World to come, and yet fell away; and it is said of such others, that they trampled upon the Blood of Christ wherewith they were sanctified. Thus we find in Scripture-phrase, that in an Hypocrite or wicked Man, there may be a kind of Faith and Repentance; a taste of Heaven, and of Sanctification; but where do we find in all the Bible, that Christ, or the spirit of Christ, is said to dwell in an Hypocrite, or wicked Man? this only is the great privilege of a true believer Christ in him the hope of Glory. O the comfort fort of this in-dwelling of Christ! If Zacheus hearing that Christ would abide in his House, received him joyfully; how much greater cause of joy have they who have already lodged him in their hearts? These things have I spoken to you, said Christ, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

And now, O my soul, spread thy self on this great good, Christ's Ascension, Christ's Session, and Christ's Mission of his Holy Spirit. What is joy but an effusion of the appetite, whereby the Soul spreads it self on what is good, to possess it more perfectly? the object is sweet; and large, and therefore the soul had need to spread it self, that it may be more united to the Object, and touch the good in more of its parts, yea, if it were possible in every part. There is not any particular here before thee, but 'tis fewel for joy. O what joy was in Heaven, when Christ Ascended, and when Christ sat down at God's right hand, and when Christ sent down the Holy Spirit? how stood the Angels wondering and admiring at these several passages? how did they stoop, and look with the bowing of the Head, and bending of the Neck, as the Word implies? and is not thy interest in these transactions more than Angels? O rejoyce, and again rejoyce! suppose thy self in Heaven, and that thou hadst a vision of Christ ascended; say, is he not a pleasant Object? In his face there is fullness of joy. Suppose thy self to have been in Heaven when he first entred into it; and when he first sat down at God's right hand, and sent down the Comforter to his Saints, was not Heaven full of joy? methinks the very thought of Christ's bright Face, and Christ's white Throne, and Christ's Harpers, & Heavenly Troops surrounding the Throne, and Christ's welcome to his Father, both for himself and all his Saints; and Christ's carrying thy name upon his Breast before his Father, should fill thy soul as full of joy, as possibly it can hold. O the first fruits of Emanuel's land, that lyes beyond time and death! O the joys that were in Heaven at Christ's first entrance into Heaven! O my soul, why dost thou not check thy self, and lay aside thy sad complaints, and forget this Earth, and Earthly troubles? why dost thou not look up to Jesus Christ, and rejoyce in him who hath done all this for thy Salvation? either the Spirit of God is not thy Comforter, or thou canst not but receive comfort in these passages.

SECT. VIII.

Of calling on Jesus in that Respect.

8. Let us call on Jesus; I mean—
1. Let us pray that we may have our part in these transactions; or let us pray for more and more assurance thereof unto our souls; for though we do believe, yet we may not be without our doubts; and in case of doubts what better means than prayer? I believe, Lord help my unbelief; Lord strengthen my Faith till I come to that plerophory, or full assurance of Faith, that I may know my interest in the Ascension of Christ, and Session of Christ, and in the Mission of Christ's holy Spirit, and if once we are but assured, then—

2. Praise God for these great transactions of his Son: are they not mercies like mountains lying one upon another, and reaching up to the very Heavens? did not love break out at first in a direct line? and as it went along, hath it not wound up it self, in such a variety of unthought of discoveries, as that it amaseth Men and Angels? what? that Jesus Christ should not only act for us here on earth, but also ascend for us into Heaven, and sit down there at God's right hand above the Heavens? what? that all this should be for us and our salvation, and to that purpose that he should send down his spirit into our hearts, to fit us, and prepare us for his glory? Now bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me bless his holy Name, bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits.—I will extol thee my God, O King and I will bless thy Name for ever and ever, every day will I bless thee, and I will praise thy Name for ever and ever.—One generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts, I will speak of the glorious honour of thy Majesty, and of thy wonderful works.—I will utter the memory of thy great goodness, and will sing of thy righteousness.—Thy Saints shall bless thee; they shall speak of the glory of thy Kingdom, and talk of thy power, and make known unto the sons of men thy mighty acts, and the glorious Majesty of thy Kingdom.—Thy glory is above the earth and heaven, thou also exaltest the horn of thy people, the praise of all thy Saints, and people near unto thy self. O that my soul were but in David's temper, thus to breath out the praises of Jesus, and to bless his Name.

SECT. IX.

Of conforming unto Jesus in that respect.

9. Let us conform to Jesus in the aforesaid respects. A serious beholding of Jesus in his Ascension, Session, and Mission of his Spirit, is enough to change us into the same Image from glory to glory. It was the sweet saying of an experienced Saint, View a glorified Christ, see him as in that relation and condition, and you will soon have the sparkles of the same glory on your hearts. Christ is now exalted, he is now in glory at the right hand of God, O let all our actions be glorious, let all our walkings, joys, breathings be as in glory, If ye be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God; set your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth. I shall not in this transaction lay out many particular conformities to Christ's actions, but gather all into one, contained in this Text, which is heavenly conversation; seek things above, set your affections

fections above; Christ is gone up, and Christ is set down at God's right hand; and herein if you will conform, let your hearts be in Heaven, let your affections be in Heaven, let your conversations be in Heaven: it is the Apostles own practise wherein stood his conformity to Jesus Christ, for our conversation is in heaven. I do not know any one thing wherein we can be more like to Christ exalted, whilst we are upon earth, than to have our hearts, our affections, our conversations with Christ where he is: now then if we be virtually risen with Christ, and ascended with Christ, and set down with Christ in heavenly places, let us spiritually ascend, and sit down with him in these respects; certainly there is a proportion in our heavenly conversation; oh let our conversations be in Heaven?

In prosecution of this I shall examine these Queries.—

1. What do we mean by our conversation in heaven?

2. Why must our conversation be in heaven?

3. By what means must we come up to this conversation in heaven?

1. By our conversation in heaven I mean our aim at heaven; as heaven is our home, so our eye is there; whatever we do, our end, our scope is to fit us for heaven, and to lay in for heaven, We look not (saith the Apostles) at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal. We look not that is, we aim not at things which are seen; invisible things are the only scope and aim of a gracious soul.

2. By our conversation in heaven, I mean our communion with Christ in heaven.

1 John 1. Truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. As it is amongst friends that converse together, they act mutually for the comfort one of another, there is a mutual embracing and opening of their hearts to one another at every turn; so in our conversings with Christ there is a communion, or a mutual acting of the soul upon Christ, and of Christ upon the soul; we let out our hearts to Christ, and he lets out his heart to us; especially when we are with Christ in his Ordinances; it's not enough to call upon God, and to use some broken hearted expressions, but oh, what communion have I with Jesus Christ? I cannot be satisfied except I taste and see how good the Lord is; I cannot be quiet, except I hear something from Heaven this morning. Why, this is an heavenly conversation.

3. By our conversation in Heaven, I mean our living according to the Laws of Heaven; in all our ways we must still enquire, What rule is there from Heaven to guide me in these ways? such and such a thing I have a mind to, but will the Law of Heaven justify me in this? have I any word from Jesus Christ to guide me in this? sometimes indeed my lust, my own ends, and the common course of the world was my rule; but now I dare not act but according to the Will and Scepter of Jesus Christ, now I am guided by the laws of Heaven. Why, this is an heavenly conversation.

4. By our conversation in heaven, I mean our thoughts, and meditations of Heaven and Heavenly things; When I awake (saith David) I am alwayes with thee; the hearts of believers are frequently upon their heavenly treasures; as it is storied of Queen Mary, that a little before her death, she told them, if they ript her open they would find Callis in her heart; so it may be said of them whose conversation is in Heaven; if you rip them up, you shall find Heaven in their hearts; not a day passes over their heads without some converse with Heaven, without some thoughts or meditations of heaven, and heavenly things.

5. By our conversation in Heaven, I mean our affections on heaven, or on Christ in heaven; Set your affections on things above, (i. e.) set your desires, loves, hopes, joys, breathings on heavenly things; our effections are precious things, and are only to be set on precious objects; oh what a shame is it to set our affection on the things of this life! have we a Kingdom, a God, a Christ, a Crown in Heaven to set our affections upon? and shall we set them upon dross, and dung, and such base things? are not all our pleasures and vanities base in comparison of Christ? O be not we so base to set our affections on earthly things, but rather on God and Christ; and this is our heavenly conversation.

6. By our conversation in Heaven, I mean our tradings, our negotiations for Heaven, even whilst we are upon Earth: the word in the Original points at this, ἡμῶν γὰρ τοπολίτευμα ἐν οὐρανοῖς, our trading is in Heaven; though our bodies be not there, yet our tradings are there; we carry and behave our selves in this life as free Denizens of the City of Heaven; our City whereof we are Citizens, and whereunto we have right, is in Heaven above; in this respect we trade not for strifes, as other men do, but we trade for great things, for high things; we merchandize for goodly pearls, even for God, and for Christ, who sitteth at the right hand of God. We see now what is meant by our conversation in Heaven.

2. Why is the conversation of the Saints in Heaven?

1. Because they know full well, that the original of their souls, came from God and Heaven; the body indeed was of the dust of the ground, but the soul was the breath of God; so it is said of the first man, God breathed into his nostrils the breath of Life, and man became a living soul. The soul had a more heavenly and diving Original than any of the other creatures, that are here, in this neather World; and when God works grace in the soul, and so it begins to know it self, and to return to it self, it then looks on all things here below as vile, and as contemptible things; it then looks upward, and begins to converse with things futable to its Original.

Original. As it is with a child that hath a noble birth; if transported into another Country, and there used like a slave, there set to rake channels, or (as the Prodigal) to feed swine; while he is there, and knows not his Original, he minds nothing but to get victuals, and to do his work that he is set about; but if once he come to know from whence he was, that he is indeed born heir to such a Prince, in such a Country; O then his thoughts, and mind, and longings will be altered; O that I were in my own Country! O that I were with my Father in his Court! Even so it is with the souls of the Sons of Men, they are the birth (as I may so speak) of the great King of Heaven and Earth; and though by the fall of man they came to be as slaves to Satan, yet when God is pleased to convert the soul, then he discovers thus; Oh man, thou art born from on high, thy soul is (as it were) a sparkle of God himself, thou art come from God, and thou art capable of communion with God, even with God the Father, and God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost. O consider of thy Country whence thou comest at first, certainly thou never hadst such a divine and excellent being given thee to delight only in the flesh, to be serviceable only to thy body; O look up unto Jesus! why, this it is that turns the heart, and sets the conversation on heavenly things.

2. Because their best and choice things are already in Heaven. As their Father is in Heaven, and their Saviour is in Heaven, thither he ascended, and there now he sits at the right hand of God; their Husband is in Heaven, their Elder Brother is in Heaven, their King is in Heaven; their Treasure is in Heaven; their inheritance is in Heaven, their Hope is in Heaven, their Mansion is in Heaven, their chief Friends are in Heaven, their Substance is in Heaven, their reward is in Heaven, their Wages are in Heaven: and all these things being in Heaven, no marvel their conversations be in Heaven.

3. Because they are going towards Heaven even whiles yet they are on Earth. If the Nobleman (as we formerly supposed) do once know his condition, and begins his travel homeward towards his Father's Court, will he not every morning that he rises, converse with them that come from his Father to conduct him home? doth it not do him good to hear any man speak of his father's Country? is it not in his thoughts, in his talk, in his eye, in his aim, at every step? O my soul, if thou art indeed travelling towards Heaven, how shouldst thou but have it in thy motions, affections, conversations? how shouldst thou but daily commune with thy own heart? Heaven is the place that I

¹Thes. 4. 17. shall come to, ere long I shall be there; I know that in this world I am but for a while, but in Heaven I shall be for ever and ever; we shall be caught up into the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we be ever with the Lord.

Psal. 84. 7. Our very travel towards Heaven implies an heavenly conversation, They go from strength to strength, till every one of them in Zion appears before God.

4. Because much of Heaven is already in the Saints: The Kingdom of Heaven is within you, saith Christ; And knowing in your selves that ye have a better and an enduring substance. Surely if the Saints have much of Heaven within them, it must needs be that their conversation is in Heaven; but they know this in themselves; they know it by what God hath revealed in their own hearts; eternal life is already begun in the souls of God's people; Heaven is in them, and therefore no marvel if their conversation be in Heaven. My meaning is not as if the Saints had no other Heaven but that within them; I know there is an heaven above; but some pieces, or earnest, or seeds, or beginnings of that Heaven above is within them. Is there not a renewed nature, an Image of God, a spark of Life, a drop of Glory in God's People? Surely yes; And if so, all these will work heaven-ward; principles of grace will have some actings of grace till we come to glory.

3. By what means should we attain, or come up to have our conversation in Heaven?

1. Let us watch opportunities for heavenly exercises. GOD now by his ministers calls, Come ye to the waters, come ye, buy and eat; come, buy wine, and milk without money; come to me, and your souls shall live. Why now is the accepted time, behold now is the day of salvation: whilst Ministers call, and we live under the droppings of the Word; these are opportunities for Heaven; O then he that never pray'd, let him now pray; and he that never heard, let him now hear; the Lord is now come near to us; Christ Jesus is calling, and mercy is entreating, and love is beseeching, and wisdom is even hoarse with crying after us; O lay hold on these opportunities for heavenly exercises, and then we shall come up to heavenly conversations.

2. Take heed of resting in the formality of duties; many souls that have enlightnings of conscience, dare not but take opportunities for heavenly duties; but then comes in the temptations of the Devil, and corruptions of their own hearts, and they say, now duty is done, or our task is over, and what needs more? Alas, alas! It is not what have we done? but where have we been? what, have our souls been in Heaven, with God, and with Christ? have we had any communion with the Father, and with the Son in our duties? O take heed of formality! it will exceedingly hinder our conversation in Heaven; O keep our eye still upon our heart! ask in duty, what affections have been acted? how much are we got nearer Heaven thereby? and by this means we shall come to an heavenly conversation.

3. Let us look up unto Jesus as hanging on the Cross, and as sitting on the Throne: this is the Apostles rule, Looking unto Jesus the Author and Finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the Cross, despising

Ex
Ila. 55. 1. 3.
2 Cor. 6. 2.

Heb. 12. 2.

despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the Throne of GOD. These two are the objects of a Christians look, who studies an heavenly conversation, viz. Christ's Cross, and Christ's Session; by the Cross he is Author, and by the Throne he is the Finisher of our faith; in the first is set down his love to us, in the second is set down our hope of him; with high wisdom hath the Holy Ghost exhorted us with these two motives to run, and not to faint: first, here is love, love in the Cross, Who loved us, and gave himself for us, a sacrifice on the Cross: secondly, Here is hope, hope in the Throne, To him that evercometh, will I give to sit with me in my Throne. After Christ's death he rose again, ascended, and is now set down at the right hand of the Throne of God; and the same is our blessed hope, Christ's Throne is not only his place, but ours also; the love of his Cross is to us a pledge of the hope of his Throne, or of whatsoever else he is worth. Come then, and settle your thoughts and looks on this Blessed Object; a Sight of Christ's Cross, but especially of Christ's Throne, is a blessed means to wean us from the World, and to elevate and raise up our affections to things above, yea to form and frame our conversation towards Heaven.

4. Let us wait for the appearing of Jesus Christ, Our conversation is in Heaven (saith the Apostle) from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. Where a man's conversation is, there his expectations may be; and where his expectations are, there a man's conversation is, and will be; if we expect ere long, that the Lord Jesus will appear in glory, and that we shall see him not with other, but with these same eyes, the very waiting for these things will help our conversation to be heaven-ward. Certainly the day is a coming, when Jesus Christ shall come with his Angels in his glory, and then shall the bodies of the Saints shine gloriously before the Face of God, and Jesus Christ: O the wonder of this day! the glory of Christ shall then darken the glory of the Sun and Moon, and Stars; but my body shall not be darkened, but rather it shall shine like the glorious body of Christ Jesus; if a candle should be raised to have so much lustre and beauty, as if you should put it into the midst of the Sun, yet it would shine, you would think it a strange kind of light; surely it shall be so with the bodies of Saints, for tho they are put into the midst of the glory of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ, yet their bodies shall shine in beauty and lustre there; now did we believe this, and wait for it every day, How would it change us? how would it work us to an heavenly conversation? I have a diseased and lumpish body; and my body hinders me in every duty of God's worship, but within a while Christ will come in his glory, and then he will make my body like unto his glorious body, so that I shall be able to look up- on the face of God, and to be exercised in holy duties to all eternity without weariness, without intermission: I have many things here that trouble my mind and spirit, and that hinder me in my converse with Heaven, and heavenly things; but within a while, Christ will appear with his mighty Angels, to be admitted of his Saints, and then shall I sit as an assessor on the Throne, with Jesus Christ to judge the world, and then shall I live for ever with him, to be where he is, and enjoy all he has, yea all that he hath purchased for me by his blood; oh let me wait for this! let me look for it every day! God hath but a little work for me here on Earth, and when that is done, this shall be my condition. Christians! if but every day we would work these things on our souls, it would be a mighty help to make our conversations heavenly conversations. am

5. Let us observe the drawings, and movings, and mindings of the Spirit, and follow his dictates; to this purpose Christ ascended, and sat down at God's right hand, and sent down the holy Spirit, that the Holy Ghost being come down, he might do his office in bringing on our souls towards salvation; and if ever our souls get above this earth, and get acquaintance with this living in Heaven, it is the Spirit of God that must be at the chariot of Elijah, yea the very living principle, by which we must move and ascend; O then take heed of quenching its motions, or resisting its workings, take we heed of grieving our guide, or of knocking off the chariot-wheels of this holy Spirit. We little think how much the life of grace is, and the happiness of our souls doth depend upon our ready and cordial obedience to the Spirit of God; when he forbids us our own known transgressions, and we will go on, when he tells us which is the way, and which is not, and we will not regard; no wonder if we are strangers to an heavenly conversation; if we will not follow the Spirit, while it would draw us to Christ, how should it lead us to Heaven, or bring our hearts into the presence of God? O learn we this lesson, and let not only the motions of our bodies; but also the very thoughts of our hearts be at the Spirits beck! do we not sometimes feel a strong impulsion to retire from the world, and to draw near to God? O let us not despise, or disobey, but take we the offer, and hoise up our sail, while we may have this blessed gale; if we cherish these motions, and hearken to the Spirit, O what a supernatural help should we find to this heavenly mindedness, or heavenly conversation? am

Thus far we have looked on Jesus, as our Jesus in his Ascension, Session, and Mission of his holy Spirit; our next work is to look on Jesus carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in his Intercession, which he makes, and will make to his Father on our behalf, till his second coming to judgment.

LOOK-

LOOKING UNTO JESUS

In His Intercession.

Book IX. Part VI.

CHAP. I.

Heb. 3. 1. Rom. 8. 34.

Consider the Apostle, and High-Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus—who also maketh intercession for us.

SECT. I.

What the Intercession of Christ is.

WE have spoken of Christs entrance into Heaven, and of his immediate actings after his entrance there, that transaction which yet remains, and will remain untill his coming again, it is his intercession for the Saints. In these actings of Christ in Heaven (if we will follow him) we must go from glory to glory, no sooner come we out of one room of glory, but presently we step into another as glorious as that before: one would think enough had been said already of the glory of Christ, and of our glory in Christ; who would not willingly sit down under the shadow of this happiness, and go no further? but yet this is not all; so thick and fast doth the glory of Christ break in upon us, that no sooner out of one, but presently we are led into the bosom of another. Oh what a blessed thing is it to be viewing Christ, and to be looking up to Jesus Christ! Saints might do nothing else (if they pleased) but ravish their hearts with the diversity of heavenly light and comfort, which breaks forth from the bosom of Jesus Christ. Here is now another mystery as great and amazing, as the former, which springs out before our eyes in this transaction of Christ's Intercession.

And in prosecution of this, as in the former, I shall first lay down the object, and secondly direct you how to look upon it. The object is Jesus carrying on the great work of our salvation in his Intercession: in ordering of which, I shall examine these particulars: —

1. What is this intercession of Christ?
 2. According to what nature doth Christ intercede?
 3. To whom is Christ's intercession directed?
 4. For whom is the intercession made?
 5. What agreement betwixt Christ's intercessions, and the intercessions of the High-Priests of old?
 6. What is the difference betwixt Christ's intercession, and the intercessions of those High-Priests?
 7. What are the properties of this intercession of Jesus Christ?
 8. Wherein more especially doth the intercessions of Christ consist?
 9. How powerful and prevailing are Christ's intercessions with God his Father,
 10. What are the reasons of this great transaction of Christ's intercession for his People?
1. What is the intercession of Christ? some define it thus: Christ's intercession is that part of his Priestly office, whereby Christ is advocate, and intreater of God the Father for the faithful. I shall give it thus: Christ's intercession is his gracious will, fervently and immovably desiring, that for the perpetual vertue of his sacrifice, all his members might both for their persons and duties be accepted of the Father. 1. I call the intercession of Christ his own gracious will; for we must not imagine that Christ in his intercession, prostrates himself upon his knees before his Fathers Throne, uttering some submissive form of words or prayers; that is not be-seeming

seeming the Majesty of him that sits at God's right hand; when he was but yet on Earth, the substance of his requests for his Saints run thus, Father I will, that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am; and how much more now he is in Heaven, is this the form of his intercessions, Father I will this, and I will that. 2. The ground of foundation of Christ's intercession, is the sacrifice, or

John 17. 24. death of Christ; and hence we make two parts of Christ's Priest-hood, or oblation; the one expiatory, when Christ suffered upon the Cross; the other presentatory, when he doth appear in Heaven before God for us; the one was finished on earth, when Christ suffered without the gate; the other is performed in Heaven now Christ is within the City; the one was a sacrifice indeed, the other is not so much a sacrifice as the commemoration of a sacrifice; the first was an Act of humiliation, and this latter is an act of glory; the first was performed once for all, this latter is done continually; the first was for the obtaining of redemption, and this latter is for the application of redemption; so that the ground of this is, that Christ fervently and immoveably desires his Father for the sake and vertue of his sacrifice. 3. The Subject matter interceded for, is, that all the Saints and their service, might find acceptance with God; first Christ's intercession is for our persons, and then Christ's intercession is for our works; for as our persons are but in part regenerate, and in part unregenerate; or in part flesh, and in part spirit; so be our duties, part good, and part evil; in part spiritual, and in part sinful; now by Christ's intercession is Christ's satisfaction applied to our persons, and by consequence the defect of our duties is covered and removed; and both we and our works are approved and accepted of God the Father. And thus much for the nature of Christ's intercession, what it is.

SECT. II.

According to what nature Christ doth intercede.

2. According to what nature doth Christ intercede? I answer, according to both natures: 1. According to his humanity, partly by appearing before his Father in Heaven, and partly by desiring the salvation of the Elect: Christ is entered into Heaven, it self, now to appear in the presence of God for us. And I say not unto you, that I will pray, or desire the Father for you; Heb. 24. for the Father himself loveth you. 2. According to his Deity, partly by applying the merit of his death, and partly by willing the salvation of his Saints; and as the effect thereof, by making requests in the hearts of the Saints with sighs unspeakable. Elect, through sanctification of the Spirit, and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: this sprinkling is the applying of the blood of Jesus, and that is an act of intercession: Again, Father I will that they whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; he desires as man, but he wills as God; and as the effect of this he gives the Spirit, The Spirit it self makes intercession for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered. But what are the intercessions of the Spirit to the intercessions of Rom. 8. Christ? I answer, much every way; the Spirits intercessions are as the effect, and Christ's intercessions are as the cause; the Spirits intercessions are as the Eccho, and Christ's intercessions are as the first voice; the spirit intercedes for men in and by themselves, but Christ intercedes in his own person: there is a dependance of the Spirits intercessions in us upon Christ's intercessions in himself. First, Christ by his intercession applies his satisfaction made, and lays the salve to the very sore; and then he sends down his holy spirit into our hearts to help our infirmities; and to teach us what to pray, and how to pray as we ought. Now this he doth as God, for who shall give a commission to the spirit of God, but God himself? it is as if Christ should say, see holy Spirit, how I take upon me the cause of my Saints, I am perpetually representing my sacrifice to God my Father, I am ever pleading for them, and answering all the accusations that sin or Satan can lay against them, and now go thy way to such and such, and take up thy dwelling in their hearts, and assist them by thy energy, to plead their own case; I am their Advocate or Intercessor by office, and therefore be thou their Advocate or Intercessor by operation, instruction, inspiration, and assistance.

SECT. III.

To whom Christ's intercession is directed.

3. TO whom is Christ's intercession directed? I answer, immediately to God the Father; If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. In the work of intercession are three persons, a party offended, a party offending, and the Intercessor distinct from them both; the party offended is God the Father, the party offending is sinful man, and the Intercessor distinct from them both, is Jesus Christ, the middle person (as it were) betwixt God the Father, and us men; the Father is God, and not man; and we that believe in Christ are men, and not God; and Christ himself is both man and God, and therefore, he intercedes and mediates betwixt God and man: If any object, that not only the Father is offended, but also the Son, and the Holy Ghost, and therefore there must be a Mediator to them also; the solution is easie; Christ's intercession is immediately directed to the Father; but because the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, have all one indivisible essence, and by consequence one will; it therefore follows, that the Father being appeased by Christ's intercession, the Son, and the Holy Ghost are also appeased with him, and in him. I deny not but Christ's intercession is made to the whole Trinity, but yet immediately, and directly to the first person, and in him to the rest. — But if so, then in some sense (say our adversaries) Christ makes Appellati- ones officii ter- ces- sor, &c. agree unto him according to both competunt nature; and can the act of Christ's inter- cession be the act of Christ's manhood alone? what? to hear; and offer up prayers? to re- ceive and present the prayers and praises, and other spiritual sacrifices of all believers in the World? to negotiate for them all at one and the same time, according to the variety and multiplicity of their several occasions? surely this is and must be the work of an infinite, and not of a finite agent; this cannot be effec- ted without the concurrence of the divine nature with the humane; but what needs any further answer to this objection? suppose Christ intercede to himself as God; that is not immediately, and directly to the same person God the Son, though to the same God essen- tially; indeed Christ θεὸς ἄνθρωπος God-man, in respect of his natures agreeth with both; be- ing not only God, nor only man; but God- man man-God, blessed for ever; but in re- spect of his person, being the second person in the Trinity he is distinct from both.

1. From the personality of man, for he hath only the personality of God and not of man.

2. From the first person of the God-head, who is God the Father, for there are three that bear record in Heaven, the Father the Word, and the Holy Ghost; and these three are one; (1. e.) three persons; and but one God.

SECT. IV.

For whom this Intercession is made.

4. FOR whom is this intercession made? I answer, 1. Negatively, not for the World, I pray not for the World, saith Christ; whiles Christ was on Earth he would not so much as spend his breath, or open his lips for the World; he knew God would not hear him for them; in like manner Christ prays now in Heaven. Not for the World, he never had a thought to redeem them, or to save their souls, and therefore they have no share in his intercessions; I know the objection, that Christ upon the Cross prayed for the bloody Jews, Father forgive them, for they know not what they do; but that might be of private duty as man, who in that respect submitted himself to the Law of God, which requires that we forgive our enemies, and pray for them that persecute us, and not of his proper office as Mediator; or if it be referred to the proper mediatory intercession of Jesus Christ (which I rather think) it will not prove that he prayed for them all universally, but only indefinitely, (i. e.) only for them that were present at his crucifying, and that in simplicity of heart, and not of affected ignorance, crucified Christ; and accordingly this prayer was heard, which so many of the Jews were converted at Peter's Sermon, Act. 2. 41. what needs more? his own words are express, that Christ's intercessions are not for the World, or reprobates. So much negatively.

2. Positively. Christ's intercession is general, and particular; for all, and every faithful man; I pray for them, I pray not for the world; but for them which thou hast given me, 9. for they are thine. And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have pray- ed for thee, that thy faith fail not. As the High- Priest went into the Sanctuary with the names of the twelve tribes upon his Breast, so Christ entred into the holiest of all, with the names of all believers upon his heart, and still he carries them upon his breast, and presents his will and desire unto his Father for them; nor doth he only intercede in general, but Simon, Simon, mark that; what ever thy name is, John, Peter, Thomas, Mary, Martha, if thou art a believer; Christ prays for thee; it is our common practise to desire the prayers one of another, but O who would not have a share in the prayers of Jesus Christ? why, certainly if thou believest in Christ, Christ prays for thee; I have prayed, and I will pray for thee, saith Christ, that thy faith fail not.

SECT. V.

What agreement there is betwixt Christ's inter- cessions and the intercessions of the High- Priests of Old.

5. WHat agreement is there betwixt the intercessions of Christ, and the intercessions of the High Priests of Old? Among the Jews in the times of the old Testament, they had an high-Priest, who was in all things to stand betwixt God and them. Now as the Jews had their High-Priest to intercede for them, so the Lord Jesus was to be the High-Priest of our Christian profession, and to intercede for us; it will therefore give some light to this doctrine of intercession, if we will but compare these two; and first consider what agreement betwixt Christ and the High-Priests of Old; betwixt Christ's intercession, and the High-Priests intercessions?

1. Christ and the High-Priests of Old agreed in name; not only they, but Christ himself is called an High-Priest; We have such an High-Priest, who is set down at the right hand of the Majesty on high — Consider the Apostle and high Priest of our profession, Jesus Christ — Thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedech. The Old Priest-hood of Aaron was translated into the Priest-hood of Jesus Christ; so that he was a Priest as well as they.

2. They agreed in office; that consisted of two parts, oblation and presentation; First, They offered a sacrifice: And secondly, They presented it in the holy of holies, with prayer and intercession unto God; the one was done without, the other within the holy of holies; and in answer thereunto there are two distinct parts of Christ's Priesthood: 1. The offering of himself a sacrifice upon the Cross: 2. The carrying of himself and of his blood into the holy of holies, or in the heaven of heavens; where he appears and prays in the force of that blood; and this was so necessary a part of his Priesthood, that without this he had not been a compleat Priest, for if he were on earth, he should not be a Priest; that is, if he should have made his abode upon the earth, he should not have been a compleat or perfect Priest, seeing this part of it (which we call the presentation, or intercession) lay still upon him to be acted in heaven. And indeed this part of his Priesthood is of the two the more eminent; yea the top and height of his Priesthood; and therefore it is held forth to us in the Types of both those two orders of Priesthood that were before him, and Figures of him, both that of Aaron and Melchizedech. 1. This was Typified in that Levitical Priesthood of Aaron and his fellows; the highest service of that Office was the going into the holy of holies, and making an attonement there; yea, this was the height of the high Priest's honour, that he did this alone, and it constituted the difference betwixt him as he was high Priest, and other Priests; for they killed and offered the Sacrifices without as well as he, but only the high Priest was to approach the holy of holies with blood, and that but once a year. 2. This was Typified by Melchizedech's Priesthood, which the Apostle argues to have been much more excellent then that of Aaron's, in as much as Levi, Aarons Father, payed Tythes to this Melchizedech in Abrahams loyns; now Melchizedech was his Type, not so much in respect of his Oblation, or offering Sacrifice, as in respect of his continual presentation and intercession in heaven; and therefore the same clause, for ever, still comes in when Melchizedech is named, thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedech. Heb. 5. 6. Here then is the agreement betwixt Christ and the high-Priests of old; in respect of name, both were Priests; and in respect of Office, both had their oblations, and presentations, or intercessions with God in Glory.

3. In the point of Intercession they agreed in these particulars.——

1. The high-Priest of old, usually once a year, went into the most Holy place within the vail; and so is Christ our great high-Priest passed into the Heavens within the Vail, even into the holy of holies. Christ by his own blood entred in once into the holy place——Not into the holy places made with hands, which are the Figures of the true, but into Heaven it self, now to appear in the presence of God for us. Heb. 9. 12. 24.

2. The high-Priests of old had a plate of pure Gold upon their Fore-heads, which was to bear the iniquity of the holy things, that they might be accepted before the Lord; and so doth Christ bear the iniquity of our holy things. Spiritual Christians! here is your comfort, you are not able to perform any duty to God, but there is a great deal of sin in the same; you cannot hear, nor pray, nor confer, nor meditate without much sin; but Christ bears all these sins, even the iniquity of your holy things, and he presents your persons, and prayers without the least spot to his Father; he is the Angel of the Covenant that stands at the Altar, having a golden Censer with much incense; to offer it with the prayers of his Saints, and so they are acceptable before the Lord.

3. The Jewish high-Priests, bore the names of the Children of Israel on a breast-plate of judgment upon their hearts for a memorial before the Lord continually; and so doth Christ our great high-Priest bear the names of his people upon his heart before the Lord continually. But how is Christ said to bear then names of the Saints upon his heart? I answer——

1. Continually, in presenting of them to his Father as they are in him: how is that? why, he represents them without spot, as righteous in his own righteousness; Christ loved the Church, that he might present it to his Father, and in him to himself, a glorious Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy, and without blemish. Ephes. 5. 27.

2. In this continual remembring of them: the righteous shall be had in continual remembrance; this is the souls comfort in a time of desertion, or in an evil day; if any cry out as sometimes David did, how long wilt thou forget me Lord? for ever? how long wilt thou hide thy face from me? Let such a one remember that Christ's redeemed ones are upon his heart, and he cannot forget them: But Zion said, the Lord hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me; Oh no! can a woman forget her suckling Child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet I will not forget thee, behold I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands, thy walls are continually before me; the Sons of Zion are upon Christ's heart, and hands, and they are ever in his sight. Psal. 112. 6. Psal. 13. 1. Isa. 40. 14. 15. 16.

3. In his perpetual loving of them; they are near and dear unto him, he hath set them as a Seal upon his heart; so was the prayer of the Spouse, set me as a Seal upon thine heart, as a Seal upon thine arme; and then it follows, for love is as strong as death. Christ hath an entire love to his Saints; he dyed for them, and now he intercedes for them; he keeps them close to his heart, and there is none shall pluck them out of his hands, for whom he loves, he loves unto the end. Thus far of the agreement betwixt Christ's intercessions, and the intercessions of the high Priests of old. Cant. 8. 6. John 13. 1.

SECT. VI.

What the difference is betwixt Christ's intercessions, and the intercessions of the high Priests of old.

6. WHat is the difference betwixt Christ's Intercessions, and the intercessions of the high Priests of old? There is no question, but howsoever they might agree in some respects, yet Christ officiates in a more transcendent and eminent way then ever any high Priest did before him; now the difference betwixt Christ and them, and betwixt Christ's Intercessions and their Intercessions, may appear in these particulars.——

Heb. 4. 14. 1. They were called high Priests, but Christ is called the great high Priest; such a Title was never given to any but Christ; whence the Apostle argues for the steadfastness of our profession: Seeing then that we have a great high Priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession.

Heb. 4. 14. 2. The high-Priests then were Aaron and his Sons, but Christ our great high-Priest is the Son of God; for so he is styled in the same verse, the great high-Priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God.

Heb. 5. 6. Heb. 7. 3. 3. The high-Priests then were but for a time, but Christ is a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedech. Melchizedech (saith the Apostle) was without Father, without Mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life. That is, as far as it is known; and so is Christ without a Father on earth, and without a Mother in Heaven; without beginning, and without end; he abides a Priest perpetually, even to the end of the World; yea, and the vertue of his Priesthood, is infinitely beyond all time, even for ever and ever.

4. The high-Priests then entred only into that place that was Typically holy, but Christ is entred into that place that is properly holy; he is entred into the Heavens or (if you will) as into the holy of holies, so into the heaven of heavens.

5. The high Priests then did not always intercede for the people; only once a year the high Priest entred into the holy of holies; and after he had sprinkled the mercy-seat with blood, and caused a cloud to rise upon the mercy-seat with his Prayers and Incense, then he went out of the holy of holies, and laid aside his Garments again; but our great high Priest is ascended into the holy of holies, never to put off his princely-priestly garments: nor does he only once a year sprinkle the mercy-seat with his sacrifice, but every day, he lives for ever to intercede; Oh what comfort is this to a poor dejected Soul! if he once undertakes thy cause, and get thee into his prayers, he will never leave thee out night nor day; he intercedeth ever, till he shall accomplish and finish thy Salvation; the smoak of his incense ascends for ever without intermission.

6. The high-Priests then interceded not for sins of greater instances; if a man sinned ignorantly, there was indeed a Sacrifice, and Intercession for him; but if a man sinned presumptuously, he was to be cut off from among his people; no Sacrifice, no Intercession by the high-Priest then; but we have such an high-Priest as makes Intercession for all sins; every sin though it boyl up to blasphemy (so it be not against the holy Ghost) shall by the vertue of Christ's intercession be forgiven. In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David, and to the Inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness, (i. e.) for sins of all sorts. Verily I say unto you, all sins shall be forgiven unto the Sons of Men, (i. e.) Scarlet sins, or Crimson sins; sins of the deepest dye shall by Christs intercession be done away; the voice of his blood speaks better things than the Blood of Abel; it intercedes for the abolition of bloody sins.

7. The high Priests then interceded not without all these materials, viz. A Temple, an Altar, a Sacrifice of a young Bullock for a sin-offering, and a Ram for a burnt offering: a Censer full of burning coals of fire taken off the Altar, a putting the incense upon the fire, that the cloud of the incense might cover the mercy-seat, a sprinkling the mercy-seat with the blood of the Bullock and of the Goat with their finger, seven times; such materials they had, and such actions they did, which were all distinct as from themselves; but Jesus Christ in his intercessions now needs none of these materials; but rather he himself and his own merits are instead of all. As, 1. He is the Temple, either in regard of the Deity, the gold of the temple being sanctified by the Temple, or in regard of his humane body, destroy this Temple (saith Christ) and I will build it again in three dayes; it way destroyed, and God found it an acceptable Sacrifice, and smelt in it a sweet savor as in a Temple. 2. He is the Altar according to his Deity, for as the Altar sanctifies the gift, so doth the God-head sanctifie the man-hood; The Altar must needs be of a greater dignity than the oblation, and therefore this Altar betokens the Divinity of Jesus Christ. 3. He is the Sacrifice most properly according to the Manhood, for although by communication of properties the blood of the Sacrifice is called the blood of God, yet properly the human Soul and flesh of Christ was the Holocaust, or whole burnt-offering roasted in the fire of his Fathers wrath. 4. His merits are the cloud of incese, for so the Angel; Christ is said to have a golden Censer, and much Incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all Saints upon the golden Altar which was before the Throne; and the smoke of the Incense which came with the Prayers of the Saints ascended up before God out of the Angels hand: the merits of Christ are so mingled with the prayers of his Saints, that they perfume their Prayers, and so they find acceptance with God his Father. We see now the difference betwixt Christs intercessions, and the Intercessions of the high Priests of old.

SECT. VII.

What the Properties of this Intercession of Christ are.

7. WHAT are the properties of this Intercession of Jesus Christ? I answer. —

i. It is heavenly and glorious; and that appears in these particulars.

1. Christ doth not fall upon his knees before his Father as in the days of his humiliation; for that is not agreeable to that glory he hath received; he only presents his pleasure to his Father, that he may thereby put his Seal and Consent. 2. Christ doth not pray out of private charity as the Saints pray one for another in this life, but out of publick Office of mediation, there is one God, and one Mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus. 3. Christ prays not out of humility, which is the proposing of requests for things unmerited, but out of authority, which is the desiring of a thing, so as withall he hath a right of bestowing it, as well as desiring it. 4. Christ prays not merely as an advocate, but as a propitiation too; Christ's Spirit is an advocate, but only Christ is advocate and propitiation; Christ's Spirit is our advocate on earth, but only Christ in his Person applyeth his merits in Heaven, and furthers the cause of our salvation with his Father in Heaven. In every of these respects we may see Christ's intercessions is heavenly and glorious.

2. It is ever effectual and prevailing: as he hath a power to intercede for us, so he hath a power to confer that upon us for which he intercedes. I will pray the Father and he shall give you another Comforter. If I go not away the comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart I will send him unto you. If Christ prayed on earth he was ever heard, but if Christ prayed in heaven, we may be sure the Father ever heareth and answereth there; when Christ as man prayed for himself, he was heard in that which he feareth, but now Christ as Mediator praying for us, he is ever heard in the very particular which he desireth. We sinful men many a time ask and receive not, because we ask amiss, that we may consume it upon our Lusts; but Jesus Christ never asks amiss, nor to wrong ends, and therefore God the Father who called him to this Office of being (as it were) the great Master of Requests in behalf of his Church, he promiseth to hear him in all his requests. Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me, and I know thou hearest me alwayes, saith Christ.

3. It is of all other the transactions of Christ, till the very end of the World, the most perfective and consummate: indeed so perfective, that without it all the other parts of Christ's Mediatorship would have been to little purpose. As the Sacrifices under the Law had not been of such force and efficacy, had not the high Priest entered into the holy place to appear there, and to present the blood there unto the Lord; so all that ever Christ did or suffered upon earth, it had been ineffectual unto us, had he not entered into heaven, to appear there in the presence of God for us. Surely this Intercession is that, which puts life into the death of Christ; this intercession is that which strikes the last stroke during this World, in the carrying on of our souls Salvation, and makes all sure. It is a witty observation that one makes of these several steps of Christ's actings for us; as first, there was an all-sufficiency in his death, who shall condemn? it is Christ that dyed. 2. A rather in his Resurrection; yea rather, that is risen again. 3. A much rather in his life and session at God's right hand, for if when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of Christ, much rather being reconciled we shall be saved by his life. 4. The Apostle riseth yet higher to a saving to the utmost, and puts that upon his intercession; wherefore he is able to save us to the utmost, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for us. If in the former were any thing wanting, this intercession of Christ supplies all; it is the Coronis, which makes all effectual; it saves to the uttermost, for it self is the uttermost and highest step; on earth Christ begins the execution of his office, in Heaven he ends it; in his life and death Christ was the meritorious cause, but by his intercession Christ is the applying cause of our souls salvation. In this very intercession of Christ is the consummation and perfection of the Priest-hood of Christ. O then how requisite and necessary must this needs be?

4. It is gracious, and full of bowels; Christ his intercession, and indeed Christ's Priestly office is erected, and set up on purpose, for the relief of poor distressed sinners. There is no mixture of terror in this blessed office of Jesus Christ, and this doth distinguish it from his other offices. Christ by his Kingly office rules over the Churches, and over the World; but all obtain not mercy whom he thus rules over; Christ by his prophetic office comes to his own, but many of his own received him not; but now wherever the priestly office of Jesus Christ is let forth upon a Soul, that soul shall certainly be saved for ever. O this Priestly office of Christ is an office of meer love and tender compassion: Christ (saith the Apostle) is such an high-Priest as cannot be but touched with the feeling of our infirmities. Oh he is a merciful, and a faithful high-Priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the People. He is merciful and exceeding compassionate; in all our afflictions he is afflicted; — and in his love, and in his pity he Redeemed us; and in his love and pity he intercedes for us.

SECT. VIII.

Wherein the Intercession of Christ consists.

8. VHerein more especially doth the Intercessions of Jesus Christ consist? some suppose that Christs very being in heaven, and putting God in mind of his active and passive obedience by his very presence, is all that intercession that the Scripture speaks of. But I rather answer in these particulars. As—

1. Christs intercession consists in the presenting of his Person for us: he himself went up to heaven, and presented himself; the Apostle calls this, an appearing for us: Christ is not entered into the holy place made with hands, but into heaven, now to appear in the presence of GOD for us. I believe there is an Emphasis in the Word appearing for us. But how appears he for us? I answer. 1. In a publick manner; whatsoever he did in this kind, he did it openly and publickly; he appears for us in the presence of God the Father; he appears for us in the presence of his Saints and Angels; heavens eyes are all upon him in his appearing for us. 2. He appears for us as a Mediator, he stands in the middle betwixt God and us; hence it is, that he is God-man, that he might be a Mediator betwixt God and man. 3. He appears for us as a Sponsor, and a pledge; surely it is a comfort for a man to have a friend at Court, at the Prince's Elbow, that may own him, and appear for him; but if this friend be both a Mediator and Surety, a Mediator to request for him, and a Surety to engage for him, Oh what comfort is this! thus Christ appeared in every respect, he is a mediator to request for us; and he is a Surety to engage for us: as Paul, was for Onesimus a mediator, I beseech thee for my Son, Onesimus; and a Sponsor, if he hath wronged thee; or owe thee ought, put that on my account, I will repay it. So is Jesus Christ for his Saints he is the Mediator of a better Covenant, Heb. 8. 6. and he is a Surety of a better Testament, Heb. 7. 22. 4. He appears as a Solicitor, to present and promote the desires and requests of his Saints, in such a way as that they may find acceptance with his Father. He is not idle now he is in Heaven; but as on earth he ever went about doing good; so now in glory he is ever about his work of doing good; he spends all his time in Heaven in promoting the good of his people; as from the beginning it was his care, so to the Worlds end it will be his care to sollicite his Father in the behalf of his poor Saints; he tells God, thus and thus it is with his poor Members, they are in want, in trouble, in distress, in affliction, in reproach; and then he presents their sighs, sobs, prayers, tears, and groans; and that in such a way as that they may become acceptable to his Father.—5. He appears as an Advocate: if any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. An Advocate is more than a Solicitor; an Advocate is one that is of Counsel with an other, and that pleadeth his Case in open Court; and such an advocate is Jesus Christ unto his people:

1. He is of Counsel with them; that is one of the Titles given him by the Prophet Isaiah, Isa. 96. Wonderful Counsellour; He counsellors them by his Word and Spirit. 2. He pleads for them, and this he doth in the high Court of Heaven, at the Bar of God's own Justice; there he pleads their case, and answereth all the accusations that are brought in by Satan or their own Consciences: but of this anon.—6. He appears as a publick agent, or Ledger-Embassador; what that is, some tell us in these particulars; 1. His work is to continue peace; and surely this is Christs work, he is our peace Eph. 2. 14. (saith the Apostle); that is the author of our peace; he purchased our peace, and he maintains our peace with God; to this purpose he sits at God's right hand to intercede for us, and to maintain the peace and union betwixt God and us; therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Rom. 5. 1. 2. His work is to maintain intercourse and correspondency; and surely this is Christs work also; By him we have an access unto the Father. In him we have boldness & access with confidence, by the Faith of him; the word access doth not only signifie coming to God in prayer, but all that resort and communion which we have with God, as united by faith to Jesus Christ; according to that, Christ had once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God. This benefit have all believers in and by Christ; they come to God by him, they have free commerce and intercourse in heaven.—3. His work is to reconcile and take up emergent differences, and this is Christs work also; he maketh intercession for the Transgressors; he takes up the differences that our transgressions make betwixt God and us. 4. This work is to procure the welfare of the People or State where he negotiates; and this is no less Christs Work, for he seeks the welfare of his people, he sits at God's right hand to intercede for them, and commending their estate and condition to his Father, he makes it his request to his Father that his members may have a continual supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ; that they may be strengthened in temptations, confirmed in tribulations, delivered from every evil work, enabled to every good duty, and finally preserved unto his Heavenly Kingdom.

2. Christs Intercessions consists in the presenting of his Wounds, Death, and Blood, as a publick satisfaction for the debt of sin; and as a publick price for the purchase of our glory.

There is a question amongst the Schools, whether Christ hath not taken his wounds; or the signs, skars, and prints of his wounds into heaven with him? and whether Christ is representing those wounds, skars, and prints unto his Father, doth not hereby intercede for us? some I am sure are for the affirmative. Aquinas distinguisheth of Christs Intercession as being three-fold, the first before his passion by devout prayer, and the second at his Passion by effusion of his Blood, and the third after after his Ascension by the representation of his Wounds and Scars. Howsoever this hold, (for I dare not be too confident without Scripture-ground) yet this I dare say, that Christ doth not only present himself, but the Sacrifice of himself, and the infinite Merit of his Sacrifice. When he went to heaven, he carried with him absolutely the Power, Merit, the vertue of his Wounds, and Death, and Blood into the presence of God the Father for us; and with his blood he sprinkled the Mercy-seat (as it were) seven times. We read in the Law, that was the Priest to kill the Bullock without the holy of holies, but he was to enter with the blood into the holy of holies, and to sprinkle the mercy-seat therein with it; surely these were patterns of things to be done in the Heavens: Christ that was slain and Crucified without the gate, carried his own blood into the holy of holies, or into the heaven of heavens, for by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us; and thither come, he sprinkles it (as it were) upon the mercy-seat,

Levit. 16. 14. when the high Priest went within the vail; he took the Blood of the Bullock, and sprinkled it with his finger upon the Mercy-seat East-ward: and before the mercy-seat he sprinkled the blood with his finger seven times: not only

Heb. 9. 12.

(i.e.) he applies it, and obtains mercy by it; by the blood of Christ, God's mercy and justice are reconciled in themselves, & reconciled unto us; Christ sprinkles his blood on the mercy-seat seven times; seven is a note of perfection; where Christs blood is sprinkled on a soul, that soul is sure to be washed from all filth, and at last to be perfected and saved to the very utmost: Christ's blood was shed upon the earth, but Christ's blood is sprinkled now he is in heaven; what, is any soul sprinkled with the blood of Christ; surely this sprinkling comes from heaven, so the Apostle,

Heb. 12. 22, 24.

But ye are come to mount Zion, and unto the City of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, — and to Jesus the Mediator of the new Covenant: and then it follows, to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel. It is upon mount Zion where this sprinkling is: there is Jesus at God's right hand, there he stands (as it were) upon the mount, and there he sprinkles his blood round about him; heaven is all besprinkled, as the mercy-seat in the holy of holies was; the earth is all besprinkled, as the Altar out of the holy of holies was; heaven and earth are all besprinkled with the blood of Jesus, so that the Saints and people of God are no where, but their doors, and their posts, and houses (I mean their bodies and souls) are all besprinkled with the blood of the Lamb slain from the beginning of the World. Why, this is that blood of sprinkling that speaks better things than that of Abel. Mark, that Christ's blood hath a tongue; it speaks, it cries, it prays, it intercedes; there's some agreement, and some difference betwixt Christs blood and Abels blood.

Gen. 4. 10.

1. The agreement is in these things; Abels blood was abundantly shed, for so it is said, the voice of bloods; and Christ's blood was let out, with thornes and scourges, nails and spear, it was abundantly shed: Again, Abels blood cryed out, yea it made a loud cry, so that it was heard from earth to heaven, Gen. 4. the voice of thy Brothers blood cryeth unto me 10. from the ground; and Christs blood cryeth out, it makes a loud cry, it fills heaven and earth with the noise, ye the Lords ears are so filled with it, that it drowns all other souls, and rings continually in his ears.

2. The difference is in these things; Abels blood cryed for vengeance against Cain, but Christ's blood speaks for mercy on all believers; Abels blood was shed because he sacrificed, and he and his sacrifice accepted: but Christ's blood was shed that he might be sacrifice, and that we through his sacrifice might be accepted: Abels blood cryed thus, see Lord, and revenge; but Christs blood cryed thus, Father forgive them for they know not what they do; and at this very instant Christ's blood cries for remission; and here's our comfort; if God heard the servant, he will much rather hear the Son; if he heard the servant for spilling, he will much more hear the Son for saving; yet that I may speak properly, and not in figures, I will not say that the very blood which Christ shed on the Cross, is now in Heaven, nor that it speaks in Heaven; these Cryings are meerly Metaphorical; yet this I maintain as real and proper, that the power, merit, and vertue of Christ's blood is presented by our Saviour to his Father both as a publick satisfaction for our sin, and as a publick price for the purchase of our glory.

3. Christ's Intercession consists in the presenting of his will, his request, his interpellation for us; grounded upon the vigor and vertue of his glorious merits. Father I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory 24. which thou hast given me. This was a piece of Christ's prayer while yet he was on earth; and some say it is a summary of Christ's Intercession which now he makes for us in his glory; he prayed on earth as he meant to pray for us when he came to heaven; he hints at this in the beginning of his Prayer, for he speaks as if all his work had been done on earth, and as if then he were even beginning his work in heaven; I have glorified thee on earth, I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do; and now O Father glorify thou me with thy own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the World was. John 17. 4. 5.

I know it is a question, whether Christ now in heaven do indeed, and truth, and in right propriety of speech pray for us? Some able Divines are for the Negative, others for the Affirmative. For my part (leaving a liberty to those otherwise minded according to their light) I am of opinion, that Christ doth not only intercede by an Interpretative Prayer, as in the presenting of himself, and his merits to his Father; but also by

by an exprefs prayer, or by an exprefs and open representation of his will: and to this opinion methinks these Texts agree. I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, and at that day ye shall ask in my Name, and I say unto you, that I will pray the Father for you; when he saith I say not, that I will pray for you, it is the highest intimation that he would pray for them; as it is our phrase, I do not say that I will do this or that for you, no not I; when indeed we will most surely do it, and do it to purpose. Austin confirms this, orat pro nobis, orat in nobis, & oratur a nobis, &c. He prays for us, he prays in us, and he is prayed to by us: he prays for us as he is our Priest, and he prays in us, as he is our Head, and he is prayed to by us as he is our God. Ambrose tells us, That Christ so now prays for us as sometimes he prayed for Peter, that his faith should not fail. Methinks I imagine as if I heard Christ praying in Heaven in this language, O my Father, I pray not for the World, I will not open my lips for any one Son of perdition; but I imploy all my blood, and all my prayers, and all my interests with thee for my dear, beloved, precious Saints; it is true, thou hast given me a personal glory which I had with thee before the World was, and yet there is another glory I beg for, and that is the glory of my Saints: O that they may be saved! why I am glorified in them, they are my joy, and therefore I must have them with me where I am; thou hast set my heart upon them, and thou thyself has loved them as thou hast loved me; and thou hast ordained them to be one in us even as we are one, and therefore I cannot live long asunder from them; I have thy company, but I must have theirs too: I will that they be with me where I am; If I have any glory, they must have part of it; this is my prayer, that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me. Why, thus Christ prayed while he was on Earth, and if this same prayer be the summary of Christ's intercession or interpellation now he is in Heaven, we may imagine him praying thus; it were too nice to question, whether Christ's prayer in Heaven be vocal or mental? certainly Christ presents his gracious will to his Father in Heaven some way or other, and I make no question but he fervently and immoveably desires, that for the perpetual virtue of his sacrifice, all his members may be accepted of God, and crowned with glory; nor only is there a cry of his blood in Heaven, but Christ by his prayer seconds that cry of his blood; an argument is handed to us by Master Goodwin thus: As it was with Abel, so it is with Christ; Abels blood went up to heaven, and Abels soul went up to Heaven, and by this means the cry of Abels dead blood, was seconded by the cry of Abels living soul; his cause cryed and his soul cryed, as it is said of the Martyrs, that the souls of them that were slain for the Testimony which they held, cryed with a loud voice, saying, how long Lord, Holy and True, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood that dwell on the earth? even so it is with Christ, his blood went up to Heaven, and his soul went up to Heaven; yea his body, soul, and all his whole person went up to Heaven; and by this means his cause cryes, and he himself seconds the cry of his Cause: Jesus Christ in his own person ever liveth to make intercession for us; he ever liveth as the great Master of requests to present his desires that those for whom he dyed may be saved.

4. Christ's intercession consist in the presenting of our persons in his own person to his Father, so that now God cannot look upon the Son, but he must behold the Saints in his Son; are they not members of his body, in near relation to himself? and are not all his Intercessions in behalf of them, and only of them? But how are all the Elect carried up into Heaven with Jesus Christ, and there set down before his Father in Jesus Christ? I answer, not actually, but mystically; when Christ intercedes, he takes our persons, and carries them in unto God the Father in a most unperceivable way to us; for the way or manner I leave it to others, for my part, I dare not be too inquisitive in a secret not revealed by God; only this we say, that Christ presents our persons to his Father in his own person; and this was plainly shadowed out by that act or office of the high Priest, who went into the holy of holies, with the names of all the Tribes of Israel upon his shoulders, and upon his breast; and this the Apostle speaks out yet more plainly, by him we have an access unto the Father, and in him we have boldness and access with confidence: I shall a little enlarge on both these Texts, Recorded for our instruction in the Law, and Gospel, in the Old and in the New Testament. First, we find in the Law, that Aaron was to put two stones upon the shoulders of the Ephod, for stones of memorial unto the children of Israel, and so Aaron was to bear the names before the Lord upon his two shoulders for a memorial. And again; Aaron was to bear the names of the Children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon his heart; when he went into the holy place for a memorial before the Lord continually. Here we find the names of the twelve Tribes of Israel engraven in stones, which the high Priest usually took with him into the holy place, when he appeared before the Lord; first upon his humeral and then upon his pectoral; in both shewing that he entred into that place not only or principally in his own behalf, but in behalf of the Tribes whom he presented before the Lord, that they might be in continual remembrance with the Lord; a lively Type of Christ's Intercession, who being entred into the Heavens, he there appears in the behalf of his Elect, and he presents their persons to his Father, bearing them (as it were) upon his shoulders, and upon his heart; why thus Christ takes our persons into Heaven, and represents them in his own person to his Father. Secondly, we find in the Gospel a gracious promise, that by Christ we have access unto the Father, and in Christ we have access with confidence. Where the word access, προσβασις signifies properly a manuduction or leading by the hand to God; an introduction, or bringing into God; alluding to the custome in Princes Courts, where none may come into the presence-Chamber, unless they be led, or brought in by some Favourite or Courtier there; thus none may have access into the presence of God, unless they are brought in by this Favourite of heaven, the Lord Jesus Christ; whose very office it is to bring men unto God; he takes us by the hand, and leads us to the Father. q. d. Come Souls, come along with me, and I will carry you to the Father. Look how a child that hath run away from his Father, is taken by the hand of a friend, or of his elder brother, and so brought again into the presence of his Father; even so all we, having run away from God, are by the good hand of Christ taken up, and led again into the presence of the Father; he is that Ladder that Jacob saw, upon whom we ascend into the bosome of God, and into heaven; he is that High-Priest, that takes our persons, and bears them on his shoulders, and on his heart, sustaining our persons, and presenting our conditions unto his Father, and our Father, unto his God, and our God.

5. Christ's Intercession consists in the presenting of our duties unto God. Not only doth he take our persons and leads and carry them into the presence of God, but together with our persons he presents all our services in his own person. Now in this Act he doth these two things.

1. He observes what evil, or what failing is in our duties, and he draws that out, and takes it away, before he presents them unto God; or as a child that would present his Father with a posie, he goes into the garden, and gathers flowers and weeds together; but coming to his Mother, she picks out the weeds, and binds up the flowers by themselves, and so it is presented to the Father: thus we go to duty, and we gather weeds and flowers together, but Christ comes and picks out the weeds, and so presents nothing but flowers to God the Father; and this is plainly set forth by that ceremony, of the high-Priest, in taking away the iniquity of their holy things; And thou shalt make a plate of pure Gold, and grave upon it like the engravings of a Signet, holiness to the Lord; and thou shalt put it on a blew lace, that it may be upon the Mitre, upon the fore-front of the Mitre it shall be. And it shall be on Aarons fore-head, that Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things, which the Children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts, and it shall be always upon his fore-head, that they may be accepted before the Lord: This was the manner of the Ceremony, and this was the end of the Ceremony, that Aaron might bear, and take away the iniquity of their holy things: what was this but a Type of Jesus Christ? who with his most absolute righteousness covereth all the defects of our good works, which are still spotted with some defect? Alas! all our righteousness are as filthy rags, but Christ draws out the evil of duty, and failings in duty, before he will present them unto God.

2. He observes what good there is in any of our duties or performances, and with that he mingles his own prayers and intercessions, and presents all as one work interwoven or mingled together unto God the Father. And another Angel stood at the Altar, having a golden Censer, and there was given unto him much incense that he should offer it with the prayers of all Saints upon the golden Altar, which was before the Throne; and the smoke of the Incense which came with the prayers of the Saints ascended up before God out of the Angels hand. I know there is a controversie, who this Angel should be, that with the incense mingles the prayers of all Saints? some conjecture him to be a created Angel, in that the incense or odours are said to be given to him, and not to be his own, or to have them of himself: others say he could be no other but the Angel of the Covenant, for no Angel doth intercede or present our prayers but Jesus Christ; as for that which is spoken concerning the seven Angels presenting the Saints prayers, I am Raphael, one of the seven holy Angels, which presents the prayers of the Saints. We say it is no canonical Scripture, nor is it authorized by any canonical Scripture; besides, I cannot think that the Priests were Types of Angels, but only of Christ; Again, howsoever the Greek Copies so read that Text, yet the antient Hebrew Copy set forth by Paulus Fagius, and Jerome, who translated it out of the Caldee (as Master Mede on Zachar. 4. 10. avoucheth) reads it thus, I am Raphael, one of the seven Angels, which stand and minister before the glory of the holy One. And certainly in this Text of Revel. 8. 3, 4. There is a figurative description of an heavenly service, correspondent to that which was performed in the Temple; namely, that the people being without at prayer, the Priest offered incense within upon the Altar, Luke 1. 9, 10. To signifie that Believers prayers have always need to be helped, and sanctified by Christ's intercession; and what though the incense was given him? we know that Christ himself was given of God; God so loved John 3. the world, that he gave his only begotten Son; 16, and yet this hinders not, but that Jesus Christ gave himself, and that he gave himself for an incense too; for so the Apostle, He hath given Ephes. 4. himself for us an offering, and a sacrifice unto 2. God; for an incense, or for a sweet smelling savour; in this respect the incense might be given him, and yet the incense was his own; they were only Christ's merits, righteousness, satisfaction; they are the sweet odour, by vertue whereof, God accepts of his Saints persons and prayers; and it is only Christ that presents before God that which he is and hath, he alone being both offering and Priest; we can think of no other Priest in Gospel-times, but only Jesus, The fore-runner, even Jesus Christ made an high-priest for ever Heb. 6. after the order of Melchizedech. It is Jesus, 20. and only Jesus that presents our prayers, and sanctifies our prayers, and mingles our prayers with his merits, and so makes them penetrate sweetly before his God.

6. Christs intercession consists in the presenting of our plea, or answer in Heaven to all those accusations that are brought in against our selves. And this I take to be the meaning of the challenge, Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? it is God that justifies, Who is he that condemneth it? it is Christ that dyed, yea, rather that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. Christ intercedes, and who shall condemn? Christ takes off all accusations; and who shall charge? if the Law, or Sin, or Satan, shall dare to accuse, our Jesus is ready at God's right hand to answer all. There is a vision in Zachariah representing this, And the Angel shewed me Joshua the High-priest, standing before the Angel of the Lord, and Satan standing at his right hand to resist him. It was the custom of the accuser to stand at the right hand of the accused; Set thou a wicked man over him, and let Satan stand at his right hand; now here's Satan standing at Joshuah's right hand to accuse him; but whereof doth he accuse him? that appears in the words following, Joshua was clothed with filthy garments, an ordinary sign of sin; as a white garment is a sign of Christ's righteousness, so is a filthy garment in Scripture, a sign of vileness; alas! Joshua was defiled with the pollution which he had gotten by the contagion of Babylon, and now at his return, Satan lays it to his charge; but Jesus Christ, our great High-Priest, steps in, and takes off the accusation; And the Lord said unto Satan, the Lord rebuke thee O Satan, even the Lord that hath chosen Jerusalem rebuke thee; twice he repeats it, to shew the falness of Christ's intercession, q. d. the Lord my God, my everlasting Father, rebuke, and confound thee Satan, in this thy malicious opposition against my Joshua; and then he goes on in his apology for Joshua; Is not this a brand pluckt out of the fire? q. d. is not this one, whom of my grace I have reserved amongst my people, whom I caused to pass through the fire of mine indignation? and shall not my decree of grace stand firm and inviolable towards such? or thus, Is not this a brand pluckt newly out of the fire of affliction? was he not in the captivity of Babylon? and is it likely he should be there, but he would be defiled with the touch of pitch? take a brand, and pull it out of the fire, and there will be some dust, and ashes, and filth about it; Why Lord (says Christ) this Joshua is but newly pull'd out of the burning; and therefore he must needs have ashes, and dust, and filth about him: But come (saith Christ to his holy Angels) take away the filthy garment from him; and come (says Christ to his servant Joshua) Behold I have caused thine iniquity to pass from thee, and I will cloath thee with change of rayment. And thus Christ took off the accusation that was brought against Joshua, by Satan, for his filthy garments. In like manner doth our blessed Intercessor at this instant, if a poor Saint falls into any sin, and defiles his garments, Satan comes in, and takes the right hand of him, and accuses, him before the Lord; but Christ our great High-Priest being at the right hand of his Father, he takes up the cause, puts in a plea, and answers all the accusations of the enemy; True Lord, this poor soul hath filthy garments, but is he not a fire-brand newly pluckt out of the fire? Was he not in his natural and sinful condition the other day? is he not yet partly regenerate, and partly unregenerate? Needs therefore must there be some ashes, and dust, and filth upon him, O my Father, my will is, That thou consider him in that respect, thou knowest his frame, and thou rememberest that he is but dust, though he have filthy garments now upon him, yet I will give him change of rayment; I will cloath him with the robe of my righteousness, and then thou shalt see no iniquity in Jacob, no transgression in Israel. Why? thus the Lord Christ steps in and answers to all the accusations that are brought in against us by the Law, or Sin, or Satan, to God his Father; and in this respect he is truly called our advocate, If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. We have an Advocate that pleads for us, that answers for us; that in away of equity (grounding all upon his own merits) calls for the pardon of our sins, and for the salvation of our souls.

SECT. IX.

How powerful and prevailing Christ's Intercessions are with God his Father.

9. HOW powerful and prevailing are Christs Intercessions with God his Father? I answer, very much, and this will appear if we consider,——

1. That Christ is our great High-Priest to God; We have such an high-Priest, who is set down on the right hand of the Majesty on high. Now 'twas the way of God to lend his ear in special manner to the High-Priests; and therefore the people usually run to them, when they would enquire of God; Before time in Israel, when a man went to enquire of God, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the Seer, for he that is now called a Prophet, (or High-Priest) was before time called a Seer.——People were wont to repair to the Priests, and the priests were wont to go to God; and good reason, for the Priests were to mediate for the people, and the people had experience that God would hearken to the cry of their Priest; Samuel called unto the Lord, and the Lord sent thunder, and rain that day. And all the people said to Samuel, Pray for thy servants unto the Lord thy God.——And Samuel said unto the people,——God forbid that I shou'd sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you. Now such an High-Priest as this (though with far more eminency) is Christ to God; he intercedes for his people, (God forbid that he should ever cease to pray for his people:) and he hath God's ear in especial manner; if ever God lend his ear to any one, it must needs be to this High-Priest, because of his office to intercede betwixt God and his people. Christ stands in the middle, or indeed next to God, as he is in these Gospel-times our great High-Priest; and therefore he must needs prevail with God in every petition he puts up for us.

2. That Christ was called to this office by God. Christ glorified not himself to be made an High Priest; no, no; but he was called of God as Aaron was; it was God the Father that designed him to it, and that furnished him for it, and that invested him in it; The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedech. Now to what purpose should God call him to this office, but especially to intercede for them, to whom God was willing to communicate salvation? it was God's mind as well as Christ's mind to save his Elect; and this was the way whereon they agreed; that an High-Priest should be appointed, and an office of intercession should be erected, and by that means the salvation purchased should be applied; many times we are apt to conceive legal or law-thoughts of God the Father, as that he is just and severe; and that Christ his Son is more meek and merciful: but this cannot be, for there are not two infinite wills, not two infinite mercies, one in the Father, another in the Son, but one will, and one mercy in both. And to that purpose observe but the readiness of God the Father to receive Christ honourably into Heaven, that he might do the work of the High-Priest there; no sooner had Christ entered through the gates into the City, but presently, sit thou down (saith God) at my right hand; but to what end? surely not only to rule as King (of which we have spoken before), but also to intercede as our great High-Priest; hence we find in Scripture, that Christ's session and intercession; his Kingly and Priestly office are joyned together; He is set on the right hand of the Throne of the Majesty in the Heavens: he! who? why; Christ our High priest; we have such an high Priest who is set down. It is as if Christ at his entrance into heaven had said, My Father, I am come hither as the great High Priest; having on his breast-plate the names of all the Elect, and I come to intercede for poor sinners; what, shall I have welcome on these same terms? to whom the Father replied, Welcome my Son, my only Son on these very terms; come, sit thee down, and intercede for whom thou pleasest; I have called thee on purpose to this very office, and thou shalt prevail. Surely the Father is engaged to purpose to hear the Son, in that he is an High Priest to God, and called to his office by God.

3. That Christ is God's Son; and that is more than God's High Priest; he is his natural Son, his beloved Son, his Son that never gave him the least offence; sure then when he comes and intercedes for a man, he is most like to speed; if a gracious child do but cry, my Father, my Father, he may prevail very much, especially with a Father who is tender-hearted; Jesus Christ is the gracious, precious Son of God the Father; and God the Father is a dear and kind-hearted Father, how then should the intercessions of Christ but be most powerful with God? hence some gather the prevalency of Christ's intercession, because in many places of Scripture where this part of Christ's Priest-hood or intercession is laid down, this Sonship is also expressed or set forth; as we have a great High Priest entered into the Heavens, Jesus the Son of God.—And thou art an High Priest for ever after the order of Melchizedech. But immediately before, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. O needs must the intercession of such a Son be very prevalent: I say of such a Son, for was ever any Son like this Son of God? was ever any Son so like his Father, or so equal with his Father? we know he is a begotten Son, and yet never begun to be a Son; he is the Son of the Father, and yet never begun to have a Father: he is a branch of the King of ages, and yet in all the ages past was never younger; surely all the relations of Son and Father in the World, are but a shadow of this relation betwixt God and Christ; it is so near, that though they are two (as in all relations there must needs be relatum and correlatum) yet Christ speaks of them, as if they were but one; I and my Father are one; if then the Father should deny him any thing, he should deny himself; or cease to be one with his Son which can never be. Christ is God's Son, his natural Son, his beloved Son, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, saith God? O then how prevalent must Christ's intercession be with God?

4. That Christ is God himself, not only God's Son, but God himself? how powerful in this respect must his intercessions be unto the Father? it is true, that Christ is another subsistence and Person from the Father, but Christ is one and the same God with the Father; Christ is the very essential, substantial, and noble representation of God himself; Christ is the very self of God, both God sending, and God sent; Christ is the fellow of God, Awake O sword against my shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow; nay, Christ is God, and not another God; but one God; God of God, light of light, very God of very God; begotten, not made, being of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made. Can we imagine now that God himself should be denied any boon of God himself? if God sometimes spoke to his servants, Ask of me, command ye me concerning all the work of mine hands: will not God much more say to God, Ask of me, and I shall give thee the Heavens for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession? we have brought it now so near, that if God be God, and God be omnipotent, that he can do, and can have whatsoever he pleases: then Christ being one God with his Father, he he must needs prevail; it is but ask and have, let him ask what he will.

5. That Christ is God's darling upon this very account, because he intercedes for his People. Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. I lay it down by suffering, and I take it again by rising, ascending up into heaven, and interceding there; and therefore doth my Father love me. O the love of God to Christ, and of God in Christ to all his Saints! God so loved the world, that he gave his Son; and Christ so loved the world, that he gave himself, and his gift is as a sweet smelling savour unto God, therefore God loves Christ; O what a round of love is here! God loves Christ, and Christ loves us, and the Father loves Christ again for loving of us: there is not an act of Christ in his work of our redemption, but the Father looks on it with love and liking: at his baptism, lo a voice came from Heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; at his death, He seeth of the travail of his Soul, and he is satisfied; at his ascension he hearth of the intercessions of his soul, and he is delighted; Christ's intercessions are God's musick: and therefore as sometimes Christ spoke to his Spouse, so God speaks to Christ, Let me see thy countenance, let me hear thy voice, for sweet is thy voice, and thy countenance is comely. Now Christ's intercessions must needs prevail, when God loves Christ for his intercessions sake: if before the world was made, the Son was his Fathers darling, (for it is said) When he appointed the foundations of the earth, then I was by him, and as one brought up with him, and I was daily his delight. In the Original [delights], intimating that the eternal Son was variety of delights to his Father. O then what delights, what variety, what infinite of delights hath God in Christ now interceding for us? what a dear darling is Christ to God, when not only he stands by him, but he represents to him all the Elect from the beginning to the end of the World; q. d. See Father, look on my breast, read hear all the names of those thou hast given me, as Adam, and Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob; of the Twelve Tribes, and of the Twelve Apostles, of all the Martyrs, Professors, and Confessors of the Law and Gospel; I pray for them, I Pray not for the World, but only for them, for they are mine; methinks I hear God answer, What my Son! and what the Son of my womb! and what the Son of my vows! hast thou begotten me thus many Sons? and are all these mine? why then ask what thou wilt, and have what thou pleasest; I am as strongly inclined and disposed to give thee grant, as thou wouldst have it; it is my joy, my delight, my pleasure to save these souls; and surely the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in thy hands.

6. That Christ is God's Commander (I speak it with reverence) as well as petitioner; it is a phrase given to the servants of God, command ye me; and may we not give it to the Son of God? Christians! God is as ready to do us service, as if we had him at command; This is the confidence that we *have in him, that if we ask any thing according to his will he heareth us; and in this sense we may boldly say, that God the Father is as ready to hear Jesus Christ, as if he had him at command; not that in deed and reality he commands God, but that indeed and truth he commands all below God, and he commands all in the stead of God. And to this purpose is that voice of God, I have set my King upon my holy hill of Zion; and why my King? I dare not say he is God's King, as if God were Christs inferior, or Christs subject: God forbid! why then my King? I answer, he is God's King, because appointed by God; or he is God's King, because he rules in the stead of God; The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son. God hath given away all his prerogatives unto Jesus Christ, so that now the King of Saints can do what he will with God, and with all the World; only it follows, Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance: as if the Father should have said, I cannot deny thee, and yet O my Son, I would have thee ask; do what thou wilt in Heaven, Earth, and Hell; I have not the heart, indeed I have not the power to deny thee any thing, only acknowledg this power to be originally in myself, that all that honour the Son, may honour the Father; and all that honour the Father, may honour the Son. These are the terms betwixt God the Father, & God the Son; Oh then how powerful and prevailing are Christs intercessions with his Father? if he ask who hath power to command, there is little question of prevailing in his suit. We have heard in our days of a suit managed with a petition in one hand, and a sword in the other; and what the effect is, all now can tell. As a King who sues for peace, backt with a potent Army, able to win what he intreats for, must needs treat more effectually; so Christ suing to his Father for his Saints, with a power sufficient to obtain what he sues for, he must needs effect what his desires may be; it is well observed, that Christ is first said to sit at God's right hand, and then to intercede; he treats the salvation of sinners as a mighty Prince treats the giving up of some Town, which lyes seated under a Castle of his that commands the Town; or he treats the salvation of sinners, as a Commander treats the surrendering of a person already in his hands: it is beyond God's power (I speak it with submission) to deny his Son in any thing he asks: if the Lord sometimes cryed out to Moses like a man whose hands are held, Let me alone; how much more doth Christ's intercession bind God's hands, and command all in Heaven, Earth, and Hell? hence we say, that God the Father hath divested himself of all his power, and given the keys into Christs own hands; I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and death; there is no man goes to Hell, but he is lockt in by Jesus Christ; and there is no man goes to Heaven, but he is lockt in there by Jesus Christ; he hath the keys of all mens eternities hanging at his own girdle; if he but say, Father*

I will that this man, and that woman, shall inherit Heaven; the Father cannot but reply, my Son I have no power to deny thy suit; Thou hast the Keys of Heaven in thine own hands, be it as thou wilt.

7. I shall only add this on the Father's part, that God is Christ's Commander to this office, as well as Christ is God's Commander in this office. O why should we have hard thoughts of God the Father, more than of God the Son? Is he not as willing of our Salvation as Jesus Christ? Surely 'twas the Oath of God, I mean of God the Father: As I live saith the Lord, I would not have the death of a sinner, but that the wicked turn from his sin and live. Was not this the first salute of God to Christ when he first entered into Heaven; Sit thou here on this Throne, and ask what thou wilt of thy Father? Nay, did not the Father prevent the Son in laying his commands upon him to ask, before the Son opened his Mouth to speak a word, by way of any requests to God, his Father? Thou art my Son, this day (even this day of thy Resurrection, Ascension, Session) have I begotten thee; ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. q. d. Come Son, thou art my Son, this day I have begotten thee, and though I have begotten thee from all eternity, yet this day, and every day I am begetting thee still: I said to thee at thy resurrection, this day have I begotten thee, and I said to thee at thy ascension, this day have I begotten thee; and now ask, and be not shy, or modestly backward in petitioning; I command thee to this Office, I make thee here the great Master of Requests in Heaven; others may pray out of charity, but none but thy self in a way of Justice, Authority, and Office; and therefore ask boldly and largely, open thy mouth wide and I will fill it. O what a Demonstration of love is this, not only to Christ, but to us in Christ, that when Man had offended his God, broke Covenant with God, and turned Enemy to God, that then God the Father should seek peace with Man, offer conditions of peace to Man, and for that purpose should appoint a Mediator, an Intercessor, and call his Son to that office: And now he is in Heaven, that he should bid him do his office, and ask freely; so that if the Elect be not saved, it should be laid on the score of Christ, for the Father is most willing: Surely here's more than intimation of the Father's inclination to accept of Christ's intercessions on our behalf: We may read here, that the Father's Heart is as much towards us, as Christ's own Heart; Oh he is full of Bowels, he is gentle, and easie to be intreated; Christ needs not much ado to get his grant; Christ adds not by his intercession one drop of love to the Heart of God; only he draws it out, which otherwise would have been stop; nor doth he broach it before his Father commands him to it. Oh then how powerful and prevailing must Christ's Intercessions be?

SECT. X.

Of the reasons of Christ's intercession.

10. WHat are the reasons of this great transaction of Christ's Intercession for his people? I answer—

1. It is the Father's Will that it should be so; he called Jesus Christ, to his office, the command of God is upon Jesus Christ; Ask what thou wilt for thy redeemed ones, I willingly engage my self to grant, only it is my pleasure thou shouldst ask: As sometimes he said to the house of Israel, I the Lord have spoken, and I will do it; notwithstanding I will yet for this be enquired of, by the house of Israel, to do it for them: so saith God to Christ, I the Lord have spoken, and I will do it, only my Son, I will be enquired of by thee. I look upon this as the main reason of Christ's intercession, Even so Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight; it's God's Will that Christ should intercede.

2. It is the Father's love to engage his Son for his own people. O the comfort of a sound Christian in this respect! What, art thou in temptation, or desertion? Surely Christ is engaged by God to petition for thee; thou hast put up many Petitions to Christ, and he hath put them all up unto God; he could do no otherwise, for he is in place an Advocate, to mention and plead such cases as are moved to him. Methinks I imagine God thus bespeaking his Son; See thou do this poor soul good my Son; here is for him according to all his needs, only ask according to what thou knowest will make him happy; Must he have my Spirit? My comforting Spirit? Will no less, no cheaper thing serve his turn? Then here it is. Oh how is Christ engaged now to petition for them, whom God loves, and for whom he gave himself? Surely if Christ should leave to intercede for such, he would displease his Father, which we know he would not do, he would undergo Hell first.

3. It is Christ's own inclination to do his Office: The power that Christ hath for the good of Sinners is necessarily acted: As the Sun shines upon all the World, and it cannot do otherwise; so Christ the Son of righteousness, shines, or intercedes for all his Saints, and he can do no less: What is the Will of the Father, is the Will of Christ, (I mean the Will of Christ naturally, not artificially in a way of self-denial, as God's Will it is said to be our will) so that what the Father would have Christ own, he cannot but own; for the same Spirit is in Christ which is in the Father, and in the self-same measure: As God is captivated with love towards all Captives, so am I, saith Christ; as God would have all be saved, and to come to the knowledge of the truth, so would I too, saith Christ. The very same bottomless sea of love, that fluctuates in my Father's Breast, it is in my Breast, For I and the Father are one.

John 10.

4. It is Christ's Honour to intercede: here by is the Crown set on Christ's Head, much Honour

Honour and Glory redowns to Jesus in this very respect. I believe all the work that's done in Heaven, it is Christ interceding, and the Saints and Angels praising; Christ intercedes for ever, and the four Beasts, and four and twenty Elders sing for ever, Rev. 4. 8, 9, 10, 11. an argument of Christ's Honour, by Christ's Intercession, is given in thus by Master Goodwin; if it were not for Christ's intercession, how would the Office of Christ's Priesthood be out of work? And this reason is more than intimated, Heb. 7. 24, 25. This man, because he continueth ever, hath an unchangeable Priesthood; and the work of his Priesthood is interpreted, ver. 25. To make intercession for ever. The meaning of this is, that God would not have him continue to be a Priest in title only, or in respect only of a service past, and so to have only the honour of Priesthood perpetuated to him, out of the remembrance of what he once had done: But God would have him to enjoy, as the renown of the old, to a perpetual spring of honour by this new work of intercession, and so to preserve the verdure of his glory ever fresh and green; and the sum of the Apostles reasoning is this, that seeing himself was to be for ever, so his work of Priesthood should be for ever, that so his Honour might be preserved and continued for ever also.

5. It is Christ's love to his Saints; his heart is so enamoured with his Saints, that therefore he intercedes for them for ever; Love is as strong as death; it is never weary of doing good for the party beloved; now Christ's Saints are Christ's love; My sister, my love, my dove; the Saints in Christ's Books are so many Jewels, And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; the Saints are Christ's only choice, the very flower of the Earth; You have I chosen out of the world; and ye are my people, my chosen; all the World is Christ's refuge, and Kings are but Morter to him, only the Saints are Christ's chosen, they are they whom the Lord in his eternal Councils hath set apart for himself; But know (saith the Psalmist) that the Lord hath set apart him that is Godly. The Saints are Christ's image (i. e.) the resemblance of Christ in all that which is his chief excellency, I mean in his righteousness and holiness; as if I would take the picture of a Man, I would not draw it to resemble his back-parts, but as near as I could, I would draw it to life, the very Face and Countenance; so are the Saints the very picture, the image, the draught of God in his top excellency. The Saints are in covenant with Jesus Christ, and therefore in nearer relation than any others; hence it is, that they are called the portion of God, the treasure of God, the peculiar people of God; those that God and Christ satisfy themselves in, those that God and Christ have set their hearts on; the Children of God the Father, the very Spouse and Bride of God the Son; in some respect nearer than the Angels themselves, for the Angels are not so married to Christ in a mystical union, as God's People are; now is it any wonder, that those who are so very dear to Christ, should be in the Prayers of Christ?

If they were so much in his heart, that sometimes he shed his Blood for them, will he not now intercede for? O yes! To this end he carries them on his Breast or Heart, as near as near may be, that they may be in a continual remembrance before the Lord for ever; his very love compels him to this office, to intercede for them.

6. It is Christ's delight to intercede for his Saints? Before the World was, His delights were with the sons of men; and when the fullness of time came, then said he, Lo I come, in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy Will, O my God; and what was that, but to be with the sons of men? He knew that was his Father's pleasure, and in respect of himself, he had a delight to live with them, and to die for them: And no sooner he entered into Heaven, but there he delights to officiate still in behalf of the sons of men; he carries their names on his heart there, and though some of their persons be on earth, and he in his bodily presence is in Heaven, yet distance of place cannot deaden his delights in the remembrance of them; he is ever minding his Father of his people in the neather world; he tells him that they are his, all in all, upon the earth, all his joy, and all his delight, and all his portion; as men use to give portions to their children, so God having but one Son by eternal generation, he hath given the Elect unto him as his portion; and hence he makes it his great business in Heaven, to provide mansions for his portion, to take up God's heart for his portion, to beg favour and love for his portion. Here 'tis the joy of Christ in Heaven, in going to his Father, and telling him, Why Father? I have a small portion yet on earth, and because they are on earth, they are still sinning against thy Majesty, but I have suffered and satisfied for their sins, and hither am I come, to mind thee of it, and continually to get out fresh pardons for new sins; come, look on my old satisfaction; didst Thou not promise? is it not in the Articles of agreement betwixt Thee and me, that I should see of the travel of my soul, and should be satisfied? Didst Thou not say, that because I poured out my soul, therefore Thou wouldst divide me a portion with the great, and the spoil with the strong? O my Father, now I make intercession for the transgressors; give me out pardons for an hundred thousand millions of sins; Thou hast said and sworn, that Thou hast no pleasure in the death of sinners; and it is my pleasure, my joy, my infinite delight, to save sinners; these are my seed, my portion, my redeemed ones, and therefore let them be saved. Thus Christ intercedes, and his delight in his Saints, as knowing it to be his Father's mind, draws him on to this intercession; indeed this reason hangs upon that primary, and first reason; it is God's will that Christ should intercede; as it is Christ's delight to do the will of his Father in Heaven, I delight to do thy Will, O my God.

7. It is Christ's compassion that causeth intercession: Christ is such an High-priest, (saith the Apostle) as cannot but be touched with the feeling of our infirmities. He was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. When

When he was on earth, he felt our infirmities, frailties, miseries, and as a man that hath felt the Stone, or Gout, or Fever; or especially that hath felt soul-troubles, cannot but compassionate those that are in the like condition; so Christ having had the experience of our outward, and inward sufferings, he cannot but compassionate us; and hence it is (his very compassion's moving) that he intercedes to his Father in our behalf. It is observed, that the very office or work of the High-priest, was to sympathize with the people of God; only in the case of the death of his kindred; he was not as others, to sympathize or mourn; but Jesus Christ goes beyond all the High-Priests that ever were before him; he doth fully sympathize with us, not in some, but in all conditions; In all our afflictions he is afflicted. I believe Christ hath carried a Man's heart up with him to Heaven; and though there be no passions in him as he is God; yet the flower, the blossom, the excellency of all these passions, (which we call compassions) are infinitely in him as he is God; he striketh, and trieth, and yet he pitieth; when Ephraim bemoaneth himself, God replies, Is Ephraim my dear son? Is he a pleasant Child? For since I spake against him, I do earnestly remember him still, therefore my Bowels are troubled for him. Surely there's a violence of heavenly passion in Christ's heart as God-man, which makes him to break out into prayer to God, and into compassions towards Men: O that tempted souls would consider this! It may be Christ is giving you a cup of tears and blood to drink, but who knows what bowels, what turnings of heart, what motions of compassion are in Jesus Christ all the while? Those who feel the fruit of Christ's intercession know this, and cannot but subscribe to this truth. O ye of little faith, why do ye doubt of Christ's Bowels? Is he not our compassionate High-Priest? Hath not the tenderest, meekest, mildest heart of a man that God possibly can form, met with the eternal and infinite mercy of God himself in Jesus Christ? You have heard that Christ in both natures is our High-Priest, Mediator, Intercessor, and if either God or Man know how to compassionate, Christ must do it. O the Bowels of Christ! He is touched (saith the Apostle) with the feeling of our infirmities; it is an allusion to the rolled and moved bowels of God, in Jeremiah 31. 20. Christ in Heaven is burning and flaming in a passion of compassion towards his weak ones; and therefore he pleads, intercedes, and prays to God for them.

Thus far we have propounded the object, which is Christ's intercession; our next work is to direct you how to look upon Jesus in this respect.

CHAP. II.

SECT. I.

Of knowing Jesus as carrying on the great work of our Salvation in his Intercession.

LET us know Jesus carrying on this great work of our salvation in his Intercession. Is it not a rare piece of knowledge to know what Christ is now doing in Heaven for us on Earth; If I had a weighty suit at Court, on which lay my estate and life, if I knew that I had a friend there that could prevail, and that he were just now moving in my behalf, were not this worth the knowledge? I dare say in the behalf of all believers in the World, Christ is now interceding for us at the right hand of God; ever since his ascension into Heaven he hath been doing this work; it is a work already of above sixteen hundred years; and Summer and Winter, Night, and Day, without any tiredness of Spirit; Christ hath been still praying, still interceding; Christ's love hath no vacation, no cessation at all: yea, even now whiles you read this, Christ is acting as an Advocate for you, Christ hath your names engraven, as a seal on his heart; and standing right opposite to the eye of his Father, the first opening of the eye-lids of God is terminated upon the breast of Jesus Christ; Is not this worth the knowledge? O my soul, leave off thy vain studies of natural things! If they do not conduce some way or other to the right understanding of this, they are not worth the while; What is it for an Aristotle to be praised where he is not, and to be damned where he is? O the excellency of the knowledge of Jesus Christ! Such a knowledge (if true) is no less than saving. Come, study his intercession in all the former particulars; I have run them over, for the work is swoln under my hands, and I would now abbreviate; only remember this, that in Christ's intercession are many secrets which we must never know on this side Heaven; Oh take heed of entering into this Labarinth without the clew of the Word; above all, desire the guidance of the Spirit to enlighten thy darkness, and whatever thou knowest, know it still for thy self.

SECT. II.

Of considering Jesus in that respect.

2. LET us consider Jesus carrying on this work of our salvation in his intercession, many of God's people have found the benefit, and for my part I cannot but approve of it as an excellent, quickning, and enlivening duty to be much in a way of meditation, or con-consideration; especially when we meet with such a blessed subject as this is; My Meditation of him shall be sweet (saith David) I will be glad in the Lord; it is enough to make a meditation sweet and refreshing, when it is conversant about such a subject as Christ's intercession; Is it not as incense, a sweet odour, and perfume with God himself? and shall not each thought of it be sweet to us? come, let us be serious in this duty; and that we may do it thoroughly, let us consider it in these several particulars. As—

1. Consider of the nature of Christ's intercession: what is it but the gracious Will of Christ fervently desiring that for the virtue of his death and sacrifice, thy person and performances might be accepted of God? As Christ on earth gave himself to the death, even to the death of the Cross for the abolition of sin, so now in Heaven he prays the Father, by his Agony and Bloody Sweat, by his Cross and Passion, by his Death and Sacrifice, that thy sins may be pardoned, thy service accepted, and thy soul saved. This is the Will of Christ, even thy justification, sanctification, and salvation; accordingly he presents his Will, Father I will that all those privileges flowing from my Death, may be conferred on such a person by Name; such a Soul is now meditating and considering of My Intercession, and my Will is, that his very Meditation may find Acceptance with GOD. O what workings would be in thy heart and spirit, if thou didst but consider that Christ even now were speaking his Will, that thy person and duty might both find acceptance, and be well-pleasing with God.

2. Consider of the person that intercedes for thee; it is Christ in both Natures; it is thy Mediator; the middle one betwixt God and Man; in this respect thou mayst consider Him as one indifferent, and equally inclining to either party, like a pair of scales that hang even, neither side lift up, or depressed more than the other; A Mediator is not of one, saith the Apostle, Christ indifferently partook of both Natures, God-head, and Manhood, that so he might be fit to stand in the gap between his Father and us; he is a Priest according to both Natures; he is a Dayes man wholly for God, and a Dayes-man wholly for us, and on our side.

3. Consider of the person to whom Christ intercedes; is it not to his Father? Thou art sure to speed well, O my Soul, for God is the Father of thy Intercessor. If I had a suit to some Majesty, and the Prince would but mediate, I might hope to speed; Christ is God's Prince (as I may call him) and in respect of us, The first begotten of many Brethren; and herein is thy rejoicing, that the party offended is Christ's own Father, and, in Christ, thy Father, fathers cannot be cruel to their own dear children; What man amongst you, whom Mat. 7.9. if his son ask bread, he will give him a stone; or 10. 11. if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent? If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him? and especially if Christ himself ask?

4. Consider of the persons for whom Christ intercedes, it is for all the Elect, and in particular for thee. O the sweet of this one meditation! if I knew that my name were written in Heaven, should I not (as Christ bids me) rejoyce in this? oh but what is it to have my name written in the chief part of Heaven? what is it to have my name written in the breast plate of Jesus Christ? come, read O my soul, is it not thus written, Isaac, or Jacob, I have prayed, and I am praying for thee, that thy Faith fail not? Sure I am, that I would not part with my hope in the privilege for all the wide world; the very consideration of this makes me to esteem of all the world as dross, and dogs-meat. And oh that ever the world, or flesh, or devil, should steal this meditation out of my heart! Oh that ever I should forget that Christ is gone to Heaven, that he is entred into the Holy of Holies, and that he carries my name into the presence of God the Father! I speak the same to thee that readest, if thou art a Believer, there is no doubt of it, but Christ is speaking a good word to his Father in thy behalf; he can no more forget thee in his intercessions, than a Mother with full breasts can forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the Son of her womb: Now if ever, Look up to Jesus, yea look, & never leave looking, till thou spiest thy own name writ on his heart; it is enough to fix thy soul, and to make it dwell on Jesus Christ thus carrying thee on his shoulders, and bearing thee on his breast-plate, for a memorial unto his Father in Heaven.

5. Consider of the agreement and difference betwixt Christs intercessions, and the intercessions of the High-priests of old; they did both intercede, but Christs intercessions are ever in a meer transcendent, eminent way: Christ is more faithful in his office and place than ever High-Priest was; Christ is more compassionate and pittiful than ever High-Priest was; and hence it is that he hath the Title of πολυπαλλων, one of many commiserations; all is mercy, and love, and sweetness, and more than motherly affection that comes from Christ. O my soul, why shouldst thou say with Israel, My way is hidden from the Lord, and my judgment is passed over by my God? as if Jesus Christ had left thee out of the count of his people, and out of the roll of those whom he is to look after. No, no; he is a faithful and merciful High-Priest; far above all the High-Priests of the Old Testament; and if they were so careful not to leave out of their Breast-plate one Name of all the Twelve Tribes; how much more careful is CHRIST not to leave out thy Name in his Intercession? From this Argument of Christ's compassion, and Christ's faithfulness, the Apostle calls on us to consider the Apostle and High-Priest of our profession CHRIST JESUS, who was faithful to him that appointed him, above Aaron, Moses, or any of the High-Priests; why, consider Him O my soul; this Gospel-high-Priest is well worthy indeed of thy consideration.

6. Consider of the properties of Christ's intercession; is it not heavenly and glorious, effectual and prevailing, and of all other the transactions of our salvation, whilst this world lasts, the most perfective and consummate? O give me the intercessions of Christ above all the intercessions of Men or Angels. I know the Saints on earth pray mutually one for another, but they pray not in their own names, or for their own merits, but in the Name and for the merits of Jesus Christ; and as for the Saints and Angels in Heaven, Cyprian and Jerome seem to grant, that they pray for the state of the Church Militant; but if so, they do it only of charity, as Brethren, not of office as Mediators; they do it only for the Church in general, and not for any particular man or member of the Militant Church; such an intercession as this, so heavenly, so effectual, so perfective of our salvation, so authoritative and publick, found upon the satisfactory merits of the person interceding, is proper only to Christ. I would be glad of the prayers of all the Churches of Christ; O that there were not a Saint on the earth, but that I were by name in his morning, and evening prayer (whosoever thou art that readest, I beseech thee Pray for me); but above all let me have a property in those prayers and intercessions that are proper only to Christ; I am sure then I should never miscarry; Christ's prayers are heavenly, glorious, and very effectual.

7. Consider of the particulars wherein more especially Christ's intercession consists: Is it not in the presenting of his person, blood, prayers, interpellations? is it not in the presenting of our persons, performances, pleas or answers to the accusations of Satan? men little think how busie our Mediator, Sponsor, Solicitor, Advocate is now in Heaven for us; men little think that Christ is appearing, and his blood is crying, and his prayers are ascending, and his robe of righteousness is covering us, and the iniquity of our holy things: O my soul look up, consider Jesus thy Saviour in these respects! I am perswaded, if thou didst but know, if thou couldst but see, what a deal of work Christ hath in hand; and how he carries it on for thy salvation, it would melt thy heart into very tears of joy. Whilst Christ was on earth, and his Mother had lost him, he could then say, Wist ye not that I must go about my Fathers business? now Christ is in Heaven, he is about the same business still; all his employment in Heaven is to intercede for us, that we may be saved: very true, there is much in this intercession of Jesus Christ; it is a Tree of many branches, and every branch fruitful; so that if thou wouldst enlarge thy Meditation in this wide Ocean of delights, there is room enough; but herein I must leave thee in the duty, for I can but point at the several particulars whereon thou mayst enlarge: O think on it, that Christ, and Christ's blood, and Christ's prayers should be all at work! that Christ should play the Advocate, and plead thy cause, and perfume thy duties in this incense; and take thy person in an unperceivable way to God his Father, and cry there, O my Father be merciful to this sinner, pardon his sins, and save his soul for the sake of Jesus: O blessed mediation! O blessed is the man, that on this blessed object knows how to meditate both day and night.

8. Consider of the power and prevalency of Christ's intercessions with his Father. Is he not to this purpose a Priest to God, and called thereto by God? is he not the Son of God, yea, God himself? is he not God's Darling? God's Commander, as well as Petitioner? nay, is not the hand of God himself in this design? is not the Father's heart as much towards us and our salvation, as Christ's own heart? as sure then as Christ is gone into Heaven with thy name engraven on his heart, so sure shalt thou follow him, and be with him where he is. Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's Elect? who is he that condemneth? where Christ becomes Patron to defend against the sentence of damnation, it is in vain for Sin, or Law, or Satan, to attempt any thing: for as an innocent person is safe so long as he hath his learned Advocate to answer all Objections; so it is with Believers, who have Christ himself both Judge and Advocate; a sure Advocate; he ever prevails in whatsoever he undertakes; he was never yet cast in any suit; he hath for these Sixteen Hundred years carryed away all the causes of hundreds, thousands, and millions of souls; why, he is so dear and near to his Father, that he can work him to any thing he will: And O my soul, if thou hast any relation to Jesus Christ, is not here comfort? I dare in the Name of Christ be thy warrant, and give it under my hand, that if Christ pray for thee, Christ will be sure to save thee; he never yet failed, he never will fail in any of his suits to God: Oh! consider of this!

9. Consider of the reasons of Christ's intercession; many are given, but this may be sufficient, It is God's own Ordinance; the very wisdom of God found out this way to save our souls, viz. that an High-Priest should be appointed, who should die for sinners, and afterward present his death to his Father by way of intercession in their behalf. Some may look upon this as needless, what! could not God have pardoned our sins, and saved our souls without a Priest? I shall not dispute God's power, but if any will, let such a one tell me what way could his own wisdom have found out to heaven, between the wrath of God, and the sin of man? I believe it would have posed all the wisdom of the world (of Men and Angels) to have reconciled God's mercy in the salvation of man, and his justice in the condemnation of sin; to have poured out hell upon the sinner; and yet to have bestowed heaven upon the sinner; now then, if God himself did study to find out this way, & that he hath said, This is my pleasure, that Christ

Christ my Son shall be a Priest, and that he shall offer himself, and present himself, and his offering, and his prayer to me for his People: O my soul rest on this as the very ordination of God; admire at the contrivance of God; say, O the depth! question no further, only meditate, and ponder, and consider of it till thou feelest Christs intercession darting its influence and efficacy on thy sin-sick soul.

SECT. III.

Of desiring after Jesus in that respect.

Let us desire after Jesus carrying on this work of our Salvation in his Intercession. I cannot but wonder what a dulness seizeth on my heart, and on all the hearts of the Sons of men, that we have no more longings after Christ, whose heart is ever panting and longing after us: Surely we do not set our selves to find out experimentally the sweetness that is in Christ, if there were not another Object to think upon, but only this one of CHRIST's Intercession, is not here enough to put us all into a teeming longing Frame? O my Soul, rouse up, and set this blessed Object before thy face? take a full View of it, until thy affections begin to warm, and thou beginst to cry, Oh for my part in Christ's Intercession! Oh I would not be left out of Christ's heavenly prayers, for ten thousand Worlds! come and be serious! the Object is admirably sweet and precious; long for it, pant after it! God understands the Rhetorick of thy breathing, as well as of thy cry. But what is there in Christ's Intercession that is so desirable? I answer—

1. In Christ's intercession lies the present Transaction of our souls salvation. Such passages as hitherto we have spoken of, are done and past; the transactions of eternity, were at an end when time began; the transactions of Christ promised, had their period when Christ was incarnate; the transactions of Christ's birth, and life, and death, and resurrection, and ascension, are now above a thousand and six hundred years old: I know the vertue and influence of all these transactions continue, and will continue for ever and ever, but the several actings had their periods; and only Christ's session, and mission of his spirit, and his blessed intercession both were, and now are the very present employment of Jesus Christ. If it were possible, that we could see into Heaven, if with Stephen we could look up stedfastly, and see the Heavens opened; if our eyes by an extraordinary power were carried through that azure sky, and through all, till we come to the Holy of Holies, and to Jesus Christ in his glory, what should we see but Christ interceding, Christ busy with his Father in his poor Saints behalf? now he prays, now he presents his person, merits, intercession, interpellation, q. d. Father, here are a company of Rebels justly fallen under thy displeasure, they deserve to be set at an eternal distance from thee, but I must needs have them pardoned, and received into thy bosom; come, make thine own terms, let justice require never so great satisfaction, I have paid a price sufficient for all, and effectual for them; give them what Laws thou pleasest, I will undertake they shall observe them; and to this purpose away, away holy spirit, go to such and such souls; enable them to their duties, yea, enable them in duty, and sanctify them throughout in souls, bodies and spirits. Why, this is the present transaction of Jesus Christ, and therefore most desirable; methinks I long to know what Christ is now a doing in Heaven for my soul; and is it not thus, is not all his time spent either in reading pardons for his redeemed ones, or in presenting petitions from them, and pleading for them. Surely he is still interceding every day, it is his present work for our souls, O desirable work!

2. In this present transaction lies the application of all Christ's former actings, whether of his habitual righteousness, or of his active and passive obedience. All those passages of Christ's Incarnation, Conception, Circumcision, Birth, Life, and Death, which more especially we look upon, as the meritorious causes of our salvation, had been nothing to us, if they had not been applied by Christ: they were the means of impetration, but Christ's intercession is the means of application: Christ purchased salvation by those precedaneous acts, but he possesseth us of our salvation by this perfective, and consummate Act of his intercession. The Order of this is laid down by the Apostle, in that first, He learned obedience Heb. 5.8, by the things which he suffered, and then being 9, 10. made perfect, he became the Author (or applying Cause) of Eternal Salvation to all them that obey him; being to this purpose, Called of God an High-priest, after the order of Melchizedeck. Now is not this the desirable act above all other acts? Alas! what am I better for a Mine of Gold in such, or such, or such a field, in which I have no propriety at all? I am thoroughly convinc'd that Christ's merits are most precious merits, but oh that they were mine! Oh that Christ's intercessions would bring the salve, and lay it to my sore! Oh that I could hear that voice from Heaven, My son, I was incarnate for thee, and conceived for thee, and born for thee, and circumcised for thee, and I did the Law, and suffered the penalty for thee; and now I am interceding that thy very soul may have the benefit of all my doings, and of all my sufferings. Why, if Christ's intercessions be the applying cause, if it bring home to my soul all the former transactions of Christ, saying, All these are thine, even thine, oh how desirable must this intercession be?

3. In this application lies that communion and fellowship which we have with the Father and the Son: I pray for these, that as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they Joh. 17. also may be one in us. Understand this soberly, we cannot think that there should be that oneness in equality betwixt God and us, as betwixt God and Christ; no, no, but there

there is oneness in similitude and reality, even in this life; by virtue of Christ's intercession we have oneness with God and Christ, not only in Comforts, but also in Graces; I pray you mark this: When I speak of Communion with God in this life, I mean especially the Communication of Grace between God and the Soul; on God's part there's a special influence of Grace and favour to Man; and on Man's part, there is a special return of Grace and Honour to God. Some trembling Souls are apt to think, that all Communion with God and Christ consists only in the Comforts of the Holy Spirit, whereas Christians may, as really and advantageously have Communion with God in secret conveyances of Grace, inward supports, in a concealed acceptation of service, in the hidden drawings of the soul God-ward, as in the more open, and comfortable manifestations of God unto the soul; Communion with God is a familiar friendship (I speak it in an holy humble sense) now do we not as usually go to a friend for counsel and advice, as for comfort and cheering? In a Friends Bosom we intrust our sorrows as well as our joys. Suppose a Soul even spiritually overwhelmed, and ready to break, betaking it self unto God, and venting it self before the Lord; now if afterwards the soul hath no more ease, than by the bare lanching of the sore, if God pours in no Balm at all, but only gives support; shall we say that this soul in this case hath no Communion with God? O yes! In God's secret Visits of the soul, and in the souls restless groping after God, tho' nothing but darkness be apprehended, yet that Soul lives in the light of God's Countenance; the Sun shines, though a Cloud interposeth; God smiles, though the soul doth not perceive it; or certainly thou hast his strengthening-supporting presence, if not his shining; now this is the fruit of Christ's blessed intercession; and this is the subject-matter of Christ's intercessions, O my Father, that these may be one in us; I in them, and thou in me; I in them by the influence and power of my Spirit, and thou in me by the fullness and power of the God-head. And is not this a most desirable thing.

John 17.

4. In this Communion lies the Vision and fruition of Jesus Christ in Glory, Grace brings to Glory; If Communion here, we shall have Communion hereafter; and this also is a part of Christ's prayer and intercession, Father I will that they also whom thou hast given me may be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me. Jesus cannot be in Heaven long without his Saints; indeed it is impossible that Christ should be in Heaven, and that pieces and bits of Christ-mystical should be in Hell, or yet long on Earth. Christ will draw in his Legs and Members on earth up nearer to the Head; certainly Christ and you that are Believers, must be under one roof ere long. Is not he gone before to prepare a place, yea, many mansions for you; we think them happy on earth that have their many stately Halls and Palaces; their Summer, and their Winter-Houses. O Christians! How happy will you be when you come to be Lords and Heirs of many stately Mansions in the Streets of Heaven? But what speak I of Mansions now I am naming Christ? Mansions are nothing, many Mansions are but little, yea, many Mansions in Christ's Fathers house, are but created Chips of happiness, in comparison of that Communion which by virtue of Christ's intercession we shall have with Christ. It is the saying of an eminently learned holy Divine, I should refuse Heaven (saith he) if Christ were not there; take Christ away from Heaven, and it's but a poor, dark, heartless dwelling; Heaven without Christ would look as the direful Land of Death. And therefore, after Christ had spoke of many Mansions, and of a place that he would prepare for his Saints; he adds further to increase their joy, I will come again (saith he) and receive you unto my self, that where I am, there ye may be also. Mansions are but as places of Bryars and Thorns without Jesus Christ, and therefore I would have Heaven for Christ, and not have Christ for Heaven; O this Communion with Christ, is above all desirable, and this is the subject-matter of Christ's Prayer; Father, I would have the Saints to be with me where I am, that they may behold my Glory. Why, this is the Communion which the Saints shall have with Christ, never will their Eyes be off him, never will their Thoughts wander after any other Objects; O the intimacy that will be then betwixt Christ and Christians! O what Communication of Glory will there be to each other! These shall walk with me (saith Christ) for they are worthy.

Rev. 3.4.

O my soul, if this be the business of Christ's intercession, if all these particulars are contained in the bowels of this one transaction, how is it that thou art not in a fainting Swoon? How is it that thou art not gasping, groaning, sick unto Death with the vehement thirst after thy part and portion in Christ's intercession? If there be such a thing as the passion of desire in this heart of mine, O that now it would break out! Oh that it would vent it self with mighty Longings, and infinite Aspirings after this blessed Object! Why Lord, I desire, but help thou my faint desires; blow on my dying spark, it is but little; and if I know any thing of my heart, I would have it more; Oh that my spark would flame! Why Lord, I desire that I might desire; Oh breath it into me, and I will desire after thee.

SECT.

SECT. IV.

Of hoping in Jesus in this respect.

Lam. 3. 26. L Et us hope in Jesus, carrying on this work of our salvation in his intercession. It is good that a man should hope. Indeed if it were not for hope, the heart would not hold; only, look that our hope be true hope: very hypocrites have a kind of hope, but if God's Word be true, The hope of unjust men shall perish. — What is the hope of the hypocrite? — Will God hear his cry when trouble cometh upon him? No, no, The hypocrites hope shall perish, his hope shall be cut off, and his trust shall be as a Spiders web. O my soul, hope in Jesus, but rest not till thou canst give a reason of thy hope, till thou canst prove that they are the hopes which Grace, and not only Nature hath wrought; that they are grounded upon Scripture-promises, and sound evidences; that they purifie the heart; that the more thou hopest, the less thou sinnest; that they depend on sure and infallible causes, as on the truth, power, and mercy of God; on the merits, mediation, and intercession of Jesus Christ; what? is this last amongst the rest (I mean the intercession of Christ) the spring of thy hope? canst thou follow the stream, till it brings thee to this Fountain, or Well-head of hope, that now thou canst say; O this intercession is mine? come, search, and try, it is worth the pains; and to put thee out of question, and in a more facile way of discerning, I shall lay down these signs. As —

1. If Christ's intercession be mine, then is the Spirits intercession mine; or if thou wouldst rather argue from the effect to the cause, then thus; if the Spirit's intercession be mine, then is Christs intercession mine. In this case we need not to ascend up into Heaven to learn the truth, rather let us descend into our own hearts, and look whether Christ have given us of his spirit, which makes us cry unto God with sighs and groans which cannot be expressed; he that will know whether the Sun shine in the Firmament, he must not climb into the clouds to look, rather he must search for the beams thereof upon the earth; which when he sees, he may conclude, that the Sun shines in the Firmament: O come and let us ransack our own consciences; let us search whether we feel the Spirit of Christ crying in us, Abba Father: certainly these two are as the cause and the effect; Christ's intercession in Heaven, and his Spirits intercession on earth are as twins of a birth; or rather such is the concatenation of these two, that Christ's intercession in Heaven breeds another intercession in the hearts of his Saints. It is the same Spirit dwelling in Christ, and in all his Members, that moves and stirs them up to cry, Abba Father. Here then is my Argument, if Christ hath put his spirit into thy heart, and if the Spirit hath set thine heart on work to make incessant intercessions for thy self, then is Christ's Intercession thine. There is a kind of a round in the carrying on of this great work of Intercession; as, 1. Christ intercedes for his people, O that my Spirit might go down! 2. God harkens to the intercession of Christ, Away holy spirit, get thee down into the hearts of such and such. 3. The spirit waits on the pleasure of them both, and no sooner down, but he sends up his intercession back again: Christ cries to God, and God sends the spirit, and the spirit goes and echoes in the hearts of Saints to the cries of Christ. Much of this is contained in that one Text, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our heart, and for crying, (as if he meely acted our tongues) Abba Father, here is God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost, and all are acting their parts on the elect people of God: the Son intercedes, O that my spirit may be given to these; the Father willingly grants, Away holy spirit, and as my Son asketh, enter, and take possession of those sinful hearts; the holy spirit obeys, and no sooner in the hearts of his Saints, but he cries in them Abba Father; God hears Christ, and the spirit hears God, and the elect hear the spirit; and now because the Spirit speaks in the Elect, God hears the Elect; much like unto this is that of the prophet, And it shall come to pass in that day, I will hear saith the Lord, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth, and the earth shall hear the corn, and wine, and oyl, and they shall hear Jezreel. O my soul, to the test! hath God sent forth the spirit of his Son into thy heart? hast thou the in-dwelling of the Spirit; and now by the help of the spirit canst thou pray with earnestness, confidence, and an holy importunity? canst thou cry Abba Father? Canst thou cry] with earnestness? Father] with confidence? and Abba Father] or Father, Father] with an holy importunity? why, these are the very signs of the spirits intercession. O my soul that thou wouldst deal faithfully with thy own self; canst thou by the help of the spirit go to the Father in the name of Christ? as Christ is gone before into the holy of holies to intercede; so canst thou with boldness follow after, and enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus? Canst thou say God hath given me his spirit, and his spirit hath shewed me Christ as my mediator at the right hand of God; and now under the wing of such a Mediator, I can by the Spirits assistance go with boldness (quæra tropicis; with assuming a liberty) to speak any thing I will in the ears of God? Surely this is the fruit, the effect of Christ's intercession, and therefore thou mayest comfortably conclude, Christ's intercession is mine.

2. If at any time in the midst of duties I am savingly affected, then is Christ's intercession mine. Sometimes it pleaseth God to appear in ordinances, and the soul is comforted, quickened, enlarged, affected; why, now I look on this as the efficacy of Christ's Blood, and as the power of Christs intercession; at that very instant that I feel any good in in any Ordinance of Christ, why, then, even then is Christ prevailing with God his Father for what I feel; then, even then may I boldly say, Now is the Lord Jesus, who is at God's right hand in Heaven, remembering me a poor worm on earth: Oh now I feel the fruit of his intercession; Oh what is this spirit, power, grace, comfort, sweetness I drink of, but a taste of the honeycomb with the end of my rod, dropping from the intercessions of Jesus Christ? And if this presence of Christ's Spirit be so sweet, what is himself, then? I know we had need to be wary in laying down this sign, it is clearly proved by an eminent Divine, that sweet motions of heart in holy things are not infallible Evidences of grace:

Mr. Burges of Assurance.
Mat. 13. 20.
Mark 16. 20.
John 5. 35.

The third kind of hearers are said to receive the Word with joy; they found some sweet and power in the Ordinances of Christ; and Herod heard John gladly; and many for a season rejoiced in John's light and Ministry: Certainly affections in holy administrations with delight and joy, may be in those, who yet have no true grace; so it may be, that the novelty, and strangeness of a Doctrine may much affect and delight; or the nature of the Doctrine as it is comfortable, without any respect to spiritual operation, may exceedingly affect; or the Ministers Abilities, because of his parts, Eloquence, Elocution, Affectionate Utterance may much delight, and stir up the Hearers affections; fine head-notions may produce some affectionate heart-motions; but what symptom of Grace in all this? The sign therefore I lay down of my propriety in Christ's intercessions is not every sweet motion, or every excited affection, but that which is holy, spiritual, heavenly, saving; I may discern much of this, if I will but look into the grounds and effects of my excited, or stirred up affections; if the ground thereof be fetched from Heaven, and in their effect they tend towards Heaven; if they wean my heart from the World; if they elevate and raise up my affections to things above; if they form, and frame my Conversation Heaven-wards, then may I be assured these motions and affections are of the right stamp; for all such motions are but sparks of that heavenly fire, the flame whereof is mindful of its own original; they are the fruits of Christ, and they go back to Christ; they work towards their Center, they tend towards the place from whence they came; and in this respect O that I could never hear a Sermon, without a savory affection of what I hear! O that I could never go to prayer without some warmth, and heat, and life, and fervency! Oh that in every duty I were savingly affected, that I felt the savour of Christ's Ointments, whose Name, and whose intercession is as an Ointment poured forth! In times of the Old Testament, if they offered up a Sacrifice, and a material fire came down from Heaven, and burnt up the Sacrifice to ashes, it was a certain Testimony that the Sacrifice was accepted: Now in the time of the Gospel we must not expect material fire to come down upon our duties, but hath the Lord at any time caused an inward and spiritual fire to fall down upon thy heart warming thy spirit in duty? And carrying it up Heaven-ward? Surely if so, thou mayest safely conclude, these are the very effects of Christ's intercession; his intercession is mine.

3. If in my heart I feel a holy frame, disposition, inclination; to pray, and cry and intercede for others, especially for the miseries and distresses of the Church of God, then is Christ's intercession mine. We should (as near as we may) in every thing conform to Christ; and this Conformity is an evidence or sign to us of our interest in Christ: O my soul go down into the inmost Closet of the Heart, look what disposition there is in it towards the Members of Christ; and thou mayest conclude, there is in Christ's heart the very same disposition towards thee. Ah! Do I think there is love in my bosom towards the Saints, and that there is no love in Christ's bosome towards me? What? Can I think that my narrow, straitned, sinful bowels are larger than those wide, compassionate, tender bowels of Jesus Christ? As a drop of water is in comparison of the Ocean, and as a gravel-stone is in comparison of the sand, so is my heart to Christ's, and my love to Christ's, and my bowels to Christ's. Come then, and try by this ^{1 John 3.} sign; Hereby we know that we are translated from death to life if we love the brethren; he that loveth not his brother, abideth in death.-- Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren; is not this plain, if I love the brethren, Christ loveth me; if I feel in my heart an holy disposition to go to God, and to pray, and cry, and intercede for a Saint in misery, surely the Lord Jesus hath as much bowels towards me, to go and intercede for me, and to present my prayers unto God the Father; his intercession is mine.

4. If I am called, justified, sanctified, then is Christ's intercession mine: Are not these the subject-matter of Christ's intercession? I pray (saith Christ) that thou shouldst keep them from the evil.----- I pray that thou wouldst sanctify them through the truth! Neither pray I for these ^{John 17,} alone, but for them also which shall believe on me ^{15, 17,} through their word or preaching; Father I will ^{20, 24.} that those whom thou hast given me, be with me in glory. He first prays that we may be called and justified, and then he prays that we may be sanctified and saved: He holds at both ends of this Golden Chain of our salvation; the one end is hanged at his breast; where the names of all his Saints are written; and the other end is at his heart, that he may be the Author and finisher, the first and last, the beginning and ending of our souls salvation: Alas! There is nothing in us, in our reach here below; the first stirrings of grace is up in Heaven at the right hand of the Father; and the far end of any gracious thought is as far above us, as the heart of Christ is above the earth: Come then, sith all hangs on this great pin of Christ's intercession; let us search and try, are we called? Do we believe on the Son? Are we sanctified in some measure? Are we kept from the evil, that sin may not have dominion over us? Hath Christ put up these Prayers in our behalf, behalf, that now we feel (as it were) and experience the truth of Christ's prevailings with his Father in our Hearts and Lives? O sure signs that Christ's intercession is ours; away, away, all diffidence, doubting, wavering, fluctuating hopes; a soul thus grounded may with Paul cast the Gavel, and bid defiance to all the World, Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's Elect, who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea, rather that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, and who also maketh intercession for us.

SECT. V.

Of believing in Jesus in that respect.

5. Let us believe in Jesus, as carrying on this great work of our salvation in his intercession; wounded spirits are full of scruples, and thus they cry, My sins will never be forgiven; have not I sinned against God, and Christ, and the Spirit of Christ? Had I not my hands imbrued in the blood of his Son? And have not I trodden under foot the blood of God? And will that blood that I have shed, and trod on, intercede for my pardon? Had I but gone so far as the Jews did, who indeed killed and crucified Christ, I might have had some hopes, because they knew not what they did, and therefore Christ prayed, Father forgive them, for they know not what they do. But alas! I sinned, and I knew well enough what, and wherein I have sinned: Had they known (saith the Apostle) they would not have crucified the Lord of Glory; but alas I knew it, and I was fully convinced, that the commission of every sin is a crucifying of Christ, and yet against knowledge, and judgment, and light, and checks of my own conscience, I have crucified the Lord of glory, and is not the Apostle express? it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, if they fall away, to renew them again unto repentance, seeing they crucify to themselves, the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame, Oh I fear my name is not in the roll of those for whom Christ intercedes, I have crucified him afresh, and will be intercede for such a dead dog as I am? I cannot believe. Silence, unbelief! Be not tyrannical to thy self, for Christ will not, sin shall do thee no hurt, nor Satan, no nor God himself, for Jesus Christ can work him to any thing; if he but open his wounds in heaven, he will so work his Father, that thy wounds on earth shall close up presently. O but I have sinned against light; and what then? I hope thou hast not sinned wilfully, maliciously, despihtfully against the light: the Apostle tells us, that if we sin wilfully, after we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain looking for of judgment, and fiery indignation. These two Texts in Heb. 6. 4. and 10. 26. are parallel, and give light to each other; and therefore, unless thy sin be the unpardonable sin, unless wilfully, maliciously, and despihtfully, thou hast crucified Christ, as some of the Jews did, never pass a doom of final condemnation on thy soul: What is there no difference betwixt a sin done wilfully, or purposely, of malice with delight; and against the feeling of thy own conscience; and a sin done of meer ignorance, in confideracy, infirmity, or through a strong temptation, though against light itself? I know there is a light given in by God's Word, and some beam of the Holy Ghost, which yet never penetrated so far as to transform and regenerate the soul wholly to God's Image; and in such a case a man may fall away even into an universal fall, a general Apostasy; but dost thou not hope better things of thy self than so? I suppose thou dost; O then believe! O believe thy part in Christ's intercession! and for the directions of thy Faith, that thou mayest know how, or in what manner to believe, observe these particulars in their order: As—

1. Faith must directly go to Christ.
2. Faith must go to Christ as God in the flesh.
3. Faith must go to Christ as God in the flesh made under the Law.
4. Faith must go to Christ made under the directive part of the Law by his life, and under the Penal part of the Law by his Death.
5. Faith must go to Christ as put to death in the Flesh, and as quickened by the Spirit.
6. Faith must go to Christ as quickened by the Spirit, and as going up into Glory, as sitting down at God's right hand, and as sending the Holy Ghost; of all these before.
7. Faith must go to Christ as interceding for his Saints; this act of Christ is for the application of all the former acts on Christ's part; and our Faith closing with it, is for the application of this, and all other the actings of Christ on our part. Now is our Faith led up very high; if we can but reach this, we may say, our Faith stands very lofty, when it may at once see Earth and Heaven; when it may see all that Christ hath acted for it here, and all that Christ doth act, and will act in Heaven for it hereafter. It is not an ordinary, single, particular act of Faith that will come up to this glorious mystery; no, no; it is a comprehensive, perfective act; it is such an act as puts the soul into a condition of glorious triumph, Who shall condemn? it is Christ that will save me to the uttermost, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for me. That same word [to the uttermost] is a good word, and well put in; it is a reaching word, and extends it self so far, that thou canst not look beyond it: let thy soul be set on the highest mountain that ever any creature was yet set on, and there let thy soul take in, and view the most spacious prospect both of sin, and misery, and difficulties of being saved, that ever yet any poor humbled soul did cast within it self, yea, joyn to these all the objections, and hinderances of thy salvation, that the heart of man can suppose or invent against it self; lift up thy eyes, and look to the utmost thou canst see, and Christ by his intercession is able to save thee beyond the Horizon, and farthest compass of thy thoughts, even to the utmost, and worst case the heart of man can possibly

set forth

sibly suppose; it is not thy having lain long in sin, or long under terrors and despairs; it is not thy having sinned often under many enlightnings, that can hinder thee from being saved by Christ; do but remember this same word [to the uttermost] and then put in what exception thou wilt, or canst. O the holy triumphs of that soul that can but act its faith on Christ's intercession! why, this is the most perfect and consummate act of Christ's Priestly office; this argues thy Christ to be a perfect Mediator, and being a perfect Mediator, no condition can be desperate; And being made perfect, (saith the Apostle) he became the Author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him; now therefore lead up thy faith to this blessed object, and thou hast under consideration the whole of Christ, and the total of Christ's actings in this world from first to last; in respect of mediation this is the Coronis, the up-shot, the period, the consummation, the perfection of all.

Heb. 9.5.

8. Faith in going to Christ as interceding for us, it is principally and mainly to look to the purpose, end, intent, and design of Christ's intercession: now the ends of Christ as in the reference unto us, are these.—

John 17. 21.

1. That we might have communion and fellowship with the Father, and the Son. I pray for these, that as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, they also may be one in us.

John 14. 16, 17.

2. That we might have the gift of the Holy Ghost; I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever, even the Spirit of Truth.

John 17. 15.

3. That we might have protection against all evil, I pray (saith Christ) that thou wouldst keep them from the evil. Some may object, are not the Faithful subject to evils, corruptions, and temptations still? how then is that part of the intercession of Christ made good unto us? I answer, the intercession of Christ is presently available, only it is conveyed in a manner suitable and convenient to our present condition, so as there may be left room for another life; and therefore we must not conceive all presently done; it is with us as with Malefactors doomed to death, suppose the supreme power should grant a pardon to be drawn; though the grant be of the whole thing at once, yet it cannot be written but word after word, and line after line; so the grant of our protection against all evil is made unto Christ at first, but in the execution thereof, there is line upon line, and precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little; we know Christ prayed for Peter, I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not; yet Peter's faith did shake and totter; the prayer was not, that there might be no failing at all, but that it might not utterly and totally fail; and in that respect Peter was protected.

Heb. 4. 14, 16.

4. That we might have free access to the Throne of Grace; So the Apostle, Seeing then we have a great High Priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession, and come boldly to the Throne of grace. And again, Having therefore boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, and having an high Priest over the House of God, let us draw near with a true heart in a full assurance of faith.

Heb. 10. 23.

5. That we might have the inward interpellation of the Spirit, which is, as it were, the Eccho of Christ's intercession in our heart: The Spirit maketh intercession for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered. It is the same Spirit groans in us, which more distinctly and fully in Christ, prayeth for us. These things I speak in the world (saith our Saviour) that they might have my joy filled in themselves. q. d. I have made this prayer in the world, and left a record and pattern of it in the Church, that they feeling the same heavenly desires kindled in their own hearts, may be comforted in the workings of that Spirit of prayer in them, which testifieth to their souls the quality of that intercession which I make for them in the Heaven of Heavens; certainly there is a dependence of our prayer on Christ's prayer: as it is with the Sun, though the body of it abide in the Heavens, yet the beams of it descend to us here on earth; so the intercession of Christ, though as tyed to his person, it is made in Heaven; yet the groans, and desires of the touched heart, as the beams thereof, are here on earth.

Rom. 8. 26.

John 17. 13.

6. That we might have the sanctification of our services; of this the Levitical Priests were a type, For they bear the iniquity of the holy things of the children of Israel, that they might be accepted; and he is the Angel of the Covenant, who hath a golden Censer to offer up the prayers of the Saints. Some observe a three-fold evil in man, of every of which we are delivered by Christ: First, an evil of state or condition under the guilt of sin: Secondly, an evil of nature under the corruption of sin: Thirdly, an evil in all our services by the adherency of sin; for that which toucheth an unclean thing, is made unclean thereby. Now Christ by his righteousness and merits justifieth our persons from the guilt of sin; and Christ by his Grace and Spirit doth in measure purifie our faculties from the corruption of sin; and Christ by his incense and intercession doth cleanse our services from the adherency of sin; so that in them the Lord smells a sweet savour; and both we and our services find acceptance with God.

Exod. 28. 38.

Rev. 8.3.

7. That we might have the pardon of all sin. It is by virtue of Christ's intercession that a Believer sinning of infirmity, hath a pardon of course, for Christ is his Advocate to plead his case; or if he sin of presumption, and the Lord give repentance, he hath a pardon at the hands of God the Father by virtue of this intercession in a way of justice. And to this end rather is Christ called an Advocate than a Petitioner; If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father. The work of an Advocate differs from the work of a Petitioner; an Advocate doth not merely petition, but he tells the Judge what is Law, and what ought to be done, and so doth Christ. O my Father (saith Christ) this soul hath indeed sinned, but I have satisfi- ed for his sins, I have payed for them to the full; now therefore in a way of equity, and justice, I do here call for this mans pardon. If this were not so, our estate would be most miserable, considering that for every sin committed by us after repentance, we deserve to be cast out of the love and favour of God our Father for ever and ever.

8. That we might have continuance in the state of grace, I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not. Some that dissent from us in the point of perseverance, object, that in our Saviour's Prayer for Peter there was somewhat singular? but we say, that in this Prayer there is nothing singular, which is not common to all the faithful, and unto such as are given unto Christ of the Father; they alledge that this priviledge was granted to Peter as an Apostle; but we say, that if it was granted to Peter, as an Apostle, then it was common to Peter and Judas, in that both were Apostles. They alledge further, that Christ prays not for the absolute perseverance of Believers, but after a sort, and upon condition. But we say the Prayer of Christ is certain, and not suspended: in this Prayer, his desire is not for Peter that would persevere, but his desire is for Peter that he should persevere; the object of the thing for which Christ prays, is distinct from the thing it self prayed for.

9. That we might have the salvation of our souls in the day of Jesus; Father I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they might behold my glory. Why, this is the main end in respect of us, our glory; and indeed herein is the main piece of our glory, to behold this glory! Oh to see the Lord Jesus Christ glorified, as he shall be glorified, must be a glorious thing; What is 't to see his glory, but to behold the lustre of his Divinity thro' his humanity? In this respect our very eyes shall come to see God, as much as is possible for any creature to see him: we may be sure God shall appear through the humanity of Christ, as much as is possible for the Divinity to appear in a creature; and therefore Men and Angels will be continually viewing of Christ. I know there is another glory of Christ which the Father will put upon him; Because he humbled himself, therefore God will exalt him, and give him a name above every name; and we shall see him in this glory. O the ravishing sight of Saints! Christ is so lovely, that the Saints cannot leave, but they must, and will follow the Lamb where-soever he goes: there shall be no moment to all eternity, wherein Christ shall be out of sight to so many thousand thousands of Saints; now this is the glory of the Saints above; as a Queen that sees the Prince in his glory, she delights in it, because it is her glory; so the Church, when she shall see Christ her Her Husband in his glory, she shall rejoyce in it, because she looks upon it as her own. Is not this a blessed end of Christ's intercession? why, hither tend all the rest; all the other ends end in this; and for this a bove all Christ intercedes to his Father, Father, I would have my Saints with me, O that Cant. 3. All the daughters of Zion may behold King Solomon with the Crown wherewith thou hast crowned him in the day of his Espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart.

Only one Question, and I have done; how should I set my faith on work to act on Christ's intercession for these ends? I answer,—

1. Faith must perswade it self that here is a vertue in Christ's intercession. Certainly every passage, and acting of Christ hath its efficacy, and therefore there is vertue in this; it is full of juyce, it hath a strong influence in it.

2. Faith must consider that it is the design of God, and the intentment of Christ, that this intercession should be for the good of those that are given to Christ. O there's enough in Christ, enough in Christ's intercession to convey communion, the Spirit, protection, free access to the Throne of Grace, a Spirit of prayer, pardon of sins, continuance in grace, salvation of souls to the Saints, and people of God, through all the world; and this is the design of God, that Christ's intercession should be as the fountain whence all these streams must run, and be conveyed unto us.

3. Faith must act dependantly upon the intercession of Christ, for in these very ends; this is the very nature of Faith, it relies upon God in Christ, and upon all the actings of Christ, and upon all the promises of Christ: so then, Is there a desirable end in Christ's intercession which we aim at? O let us act our faith dependantly; let us rely, stay, or lean upon Christ to that same end; let us roul our selves, or cast our selves upon the very intercession of Jesus Christ: Saying, O my Christ, there is enough in thee, and in this glorious intercession of thine, and therefore there will I stick, and abide for ever.

4. Faith must ever and anon be trying, improving, wrestling with God, that vertue may go out of Christ's intercession into our hearts. I have heard Lord, that there is an Office erected in heaven, that Christ, as Priest, should be ever praying, and interceding for his people: O that I may feel the efficacy of Christ's intercession! Am I now in prayer? O that I could feel in this prayer, the warmth, and heat, and spiritual fire, which usually falls down from Christ's intercession into the hearts of his! Lord warm my spirit in this duty; give me the kisses of thy mouth; O that I may now have communion with thee, thy Spirit upon me, thy protection over me! O that my pardon may be sealed, my grace confirmed, my soul saved in the day of Jesus! In this method, O my soul, follow on; and who knows but God may appear ere thou art aware? howsoever, be thou in the use of the means, and leave the issue with God.

SECT. VI.

Of loving Jesus in that Respect.

6. LET us love Jesus, as carrying on this great work of our salvation in his intercession. Now two things more especially will excite our love. 1. Christ's love to us. 2. Our propriety in Christ. For the first, many acts of Christ's love have appeared before, and every one is sufficient to draw our loves to him again. As—

1. He had an eternal love to man; he feasted himself on the thoughts of love, delight, and free-grace to man from all eternity; since God was God (O boundless duration) the Lord Jesus in a manner was loving and longing for the dawning of the day of the Creation; he was (as it were) with-child of infinite love to man before he made the world. Some observe, that the first words which ever Christ wrote, were, Love to Believers: and these were written with glory, for it was before gold was, and they were written upon his bosom, for then other Books were not.

2. In the beginning of time he loved man above all creatures, for after he had made them all, he then spake as he never did before, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness, and let him have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth; and though man at that very instant unmade himself by sins, Christ's love yet was not broken off, but held forth in a promise till the day of performance, The seed of the woman shall bruise the Serpents head, and in thy seed shall all the Nations of the earth be blessed.

3. In the fulness of time his love was manifested; the seed then blossomed, and the birth came out in an high expression of love; the man-child, the love of Christ was born, & saw the light. After that (saith the Apostle) the kindness and love of God our Saviour towards man appeared. I shall not need sure to instance in succeeding passages; so far as we have gone, we have clearly seen Christ's life was a perfect mirror of his love, as there is no beam in the Sun, in which there is no light, so there was no act in the life of Christ, but to a spiritual eye it shines with the light of love. But above all, O the love of Christ in his death! ask a Malefactor, if the Princes Son should go to his Father, and say, Father I confess this wretch hath deserved to dye, but I see a willingness in thee that he should live; only I perceive it sticks with thy justice; why, for that, Father, here I am; and to satisfy thy justice I will die my self, only let this poor wretch live to the glory of thine, and my free grace. Ask (I say) the Malefactor what kind of love were this? Surely Christ dyed for our sins, and Christ rose again for our justification, and he ascended, and sat down at God's right hand, and sent down his holy Spirit, and all for us; there was not one passage in all these transactions, but held forth the breakings and breathings out of a strong fire of love.

4. At this time there is a coal of burning love in the breast of Christ: this fire was indeed from everlasting, but the flames are as hot this day as ever; now it is that Christ loves, and lives; And wherefore lives? but only to love us, and to intercede for us. Christ makes our salvation his constant calling; he is ever at his work, Yesterday, and to day, and for ever: there is not one hour in the day, nor one day in a year, nor one year in an age, wherein Christ is not busied with his Father in this Heavenly employment of interceding for us. He loved us before he died for us, his love being the cause why he died for us; and he loves us still, in that now he intercedes for us: it is as much as to say, Christ hath loved us, and he repents not of his love: love made him dye for us, and if it were to do again, he would dye over again; yea, if our sins had so required, that for every elect person Christ must have dyed a several death, Love, love would have put him willingly upon all these deaths; O the loves of Christ towards our poor souls! If I might but stay, and take some turns in this large Field of love: How many thousands of particulars might I draw out of Scripture, expressing Christs love to us in this respect? though he be in Heaven; yet by virtue of his intercession, he bears us in his hands: yea, he leads us by the hand, and arms too, I taught Ephraim to go, taking them by their arms, but they knew not that I healed them; he dandles us on his knees, he bears us on his wings; As an Eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, and beareth them on her wings, so the Lord alone doth lead us; he carries us on his shoulders, as the man found his sheep, and laid it on his shoulders rejoicing. Nay, I must yet come nearer, for Christ by his intercession sets us nearer yet; His left hand is under us, and his right hand doth embrace us; he wears us in Heaven, as a bracelet about his arms, which made the Spouse cry out, O set me as a seal upon thine arm; he stamps and prints us on the palms of his hands, Behold I have graven thee on the palms of my hands; as if our names were written in letters of blood upon Christ's flesh; he sets us as a seal upon his heart, that is the expression of the Spouse too, O set me as a seal upon thine heart; Nay, so precious are the Saints to Jesus Christ, that they lodge in Heaven in his bowels, and in his heart; for they dwell in Christ. Hereby we know that we dwell in him; and they dwell in God, and dwell in love, For God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God. I know not what more to say; you know the manner of the high Priests, was to carry the names of the children of Israel into the Holy of Holies on their shoulders, and on their breasts: but was it ever heard, that any high Priest, besides the great high Priest of our profession, should carry the names of thousands, and millions on his shoulders, and on

on his arms, and on his hands, and on his wings, and on his bosom, and on his heart, nay in his heart, and in his bowels, as a memorial before the Lord? O unmatched love!

Cant. 2.5 Methinks this love of Christ should now change my soul into a Globe or Mass of Divine love towards Christ, as it were by the Spirit of the Lord. Methinks a sight of Christ in his presenting himself, and his sacrifice to his Father for me, should so enamour my soul as that I should delight in no other sight but this; then is a Christian sweetly exercised, when as the Golden Ball of Divine Love is tossed to and again betwixt Christ's bosom and his; and in this respect it is a wonder that before this I am not sickned, and overcome with love, and ready to cry out with the Spouse, O stay me with flag-gons, and comfort me with apples, for I am sick of love. O I am wounded with the arrows of love, so as neither grave, nor death, nor hell, neither Angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, can ever lick these wounds, or enbalm, or bind them up. O my Christ, my Lord, my Jesus, What should I do but yield over my self as a Spouse under the power of her husband? what should I do but lose my self in such a deep Ocean of loves, stronger than Wine, hotter than Coals of Juniper, which hath a most vehement flame?

1 Cor. 6. 19. 2. Another motive of our love to Christ, it is our propriety in Christ, Te are not your own, said the Apostle of us; and he is not his own, may we say of Christ: If any ask how may this be? I answer, That the soul in loving Christ is not her own, and in regard of loving, Christ is not his own; every one makes over it self to another; and propriety or interest to it self on both sides ceaseth: My Beloved is mine, and I am his, saith the Spouse; not as if Christ should leave off to be his own, or to be a free God, when he becometh ours; no, no; but he so demeaneth himself in respect of his loves, as if he were not his own; he putteth on such relations, and assumes such offices of engagement, as if he were all for us, and nothing for himself; thus he is called a Saviour, a Redeemer, a King, a Priest, a Prophet, a Friend, a Guide, an Head, an Husband, a Leader, Ransomer, Intercessor; and what not of this nature?

O my soul come hither, and put thy little candle to this mighty flame; if thou hadst ten hearts, or as many hearts in one, as there are elected Men and Angels in Heaven and Earth, all these would be too little for Jesus Christ: only go as far as thou canst, and love him with that heart thou hast, yea love him with all thy heart, and all thy soul, and all thy might; and as Christ in loving thee, is not his own, so let thy soul in loving Christ be not her own; Come, love thy Christ, and not thy self; possess thy Christ, and not thy self; enjoy thy Christ, and not thy self; live in thy Christ, not in thy self; solace thy self in Jesus Christ, not in thy self; say with the Apostle, I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. Certainly, if ever thou comest to love Christ truly, thou canst not but deny thy self, and all created lovers. This love will scruce up thy soul, so high above the world, and above thy flesh, and above thy life, and above all other lovers, that nothing on this side Christ, whether in heaven or on earth, will come in competition with him. Suppose a man in the top of a Castle higher than the third region of the Air, or near the Sphere of the Moon, should look down to the fairest and sweetest Meadows, or to a Garden rich with Roses and Flowers, of all sweet colours and delicious smells; certainly he should not see or feel any sweetness, pleasantness, colour, smell, because he is so far above them; so the soul filled with the love of Christ is so high above all created lovers, that their loveliness cannot reach or ascend to the high and large capacity of a spiritual soul. O for a soul filled up with all the fulness of God! O for a soul stretched out to its widest capacity and circumference, for the entertainment of God! O my soul, that thou wert but able to comprehend with all the Saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height, and to know the love of Christ that passeth knowledge! Surely if Christ be mine, if his death be mine, his resurrection mine, his ascension mine, his session mine, his intercession mine, How should I but love him with a singular love? farewell world, and worldly glory; if Christ come in room, it is time for you to vanish; I shall little care for a Candle when the Sun shines fair and bright upon my head: What? is my name written on the heart of Christ? doth he wear me as a Favour and Love-token about his arms and neck? is he at every turn presenting me and my duties to his heavenly Father? O thou hast ravished my heart, my King, my Jesus, thou hast ravished my heart with one of thine eyes, and with one chain of thy neck.

Suppose O my soul, thou hadst been with Christ when he washed his Disciples feet, and that he should have come, and have washed thy feet; Would not thy heart have glowed with love to Jesus Christ? why Christ is now in glory, and now he takes thy filthy soul, and dirty duties, and washes (as it were) the feet of all, that he may present them to his Father; thou canst not shed a tear, but he washes it over again in his precious blood, and perfumes it with his glorious intercessions. O what cause hast thou to love Jesus Christ? Oh you that never loved Christ, come, love him now; and you that have loved Christ a little, O love him more: Above all, let me, O my soul charge upon thee this duty of love; O go away warmed with the love of Christ, and with a love to Christ.

SECT. VII.

Of joying in Jesus in that respect.

7. LET us joy in Jesus, as carrying on this work of our salvation in his intercession. Surely this is glad tidings of great joy: when wicked Haman procured letters from King Ahasuerus for the destruction of all Jews, then Esther, the Queen, makes request to the King, that her people might be saved, and Haman's letters revoked; And Esther 5. the King said to her, What wilt thou Queen
3. Esther? and what is thy request, and it shall
—8. 15, be given thee? O the joy of Jews at this hap-16, 17. py tidings! Then the City of Shushan rejoiced, and was glad; then the Jews had light, and gladness, and joy, and honour; in every province, and in every City, whithersoever the Kings Commandment, and his Decree came, the Jews had joy, and gladness, a feast, and a good day. Is not this our very case? was there not a Law against us, an hand-writing of Ordinances, a sentence of a double death, of body and soul? had not Satan, as wicked Haman, accused us, and sought by all means our condemnation? but yet behold, not only an earthly Esther, but Jesus the Son of God was willing for our sakes to come down from Heaven; and he it was that took away the hand-writing of Ordinances, and cancelled it upon the Cross, that ascended into Heaven, and there makes requests for us, and he it is in whom his Father is well pleased; never comes he to his Father, but he obtains the grace of the golden Scepter; no sooner he cries, I will that these poor souls may be eternally saved; but his Father answers, Amen; Be it so: be it, O my Son, even as thou pleasest. O that we could joy at this! O that we could imitate the Jews! O that light, and gladness, and joy, and honour, would possess our souls! If at Christ's birth was such, and so much joy, because a Saviour was proclaimed: Is not our joy to be heightened, when salvation is effected? if the first act of Christ's mediation was so joyous, shall not the last act of his mediation be much more joyous?—But I hear many objections, which keep back joy, they are as bars and hindrances at the doors of many heavy hearts, that joy cannot enter in; I shall instance in some.

—O I am much opposed here in this world (says one) men are as wolves, and devils; Psal. 22. Dogs have compassed me, the assembly of the 16. wicked have enclosed me; they have no bowels; they persecute, reproach, revile, so that I am killed all the day long—And what then? what matters oppositions of men, so long as Christ doth intercede for thee in Heaven? O remember Christ's bowels; it may be he suffers men to be merciless on earth, that thou mayst look up, and behold how merciful he is who sits above; and tell me, hast thou no experience of this truth? ~~And~~ relief strangely come in now and then? why, write upon the forehead of such favours, I have a merciful, and compassionate Mediator in Heaven.

O I am much tempted (says another) that I cannot pray; had I now the key of prayer, I could then unlock the cabinet where all God's treasures lye, and take out what I pleased; but alas, my prayers are dull, and weak, and dry, and without spirit and life, I cannot pray.—If so, be humbled for it; and yet know this, that when thou canst not pray, Christ then prays for thee, and he prays that thou mayst pray: And tell me, hast thou no experience of this truth? hath not sometimes thy spirit been enlarged in prayer? hast thou not sometimes felt thy heart warmed, or savingly affected? hast thou not sometimes in prayer been lifted up above thy self, and above the world? conclude then, My Intercessor above hath sent me this gift and spirit; it is not I, but Christ's intercession, that by an admirable and secret operation hath given me the Spirit to help mine infirmity; these are the intercessions of the Spirit of Christ, and they are the very Echo of the intercessions of Christ in his own person.

O but I labour under such, and such corruptions (says another) and the Devil is busie, exceeding busie, and he exceedingly prevails; how am I overcome with these corruptions, and with these and these sins? It may be so, and yet do not altogether despond; for Jesus Christ is at God's right hand, and there he sits till all his enemies be made his foot-stool; and what? are not thy sins his enemies? O be of good comfort, for Christ will prevail; it is one piece of his prayer that he puts up for thee, To keep thee from evil; and surely he will either keep thee from it, or keep thee in it, that in the issue thou shalt have the victory. Those that thou gavest me I have kept (saith Christ) and none of them is lost; if he undertake for thee, thou art safe and sure; His Covenant is everlasting, even the sure mercies of David: and therefore if yet thou dost not, certainly thou shalt feel the vertue of Christ's intercession; sin must be subdued, hell-gates shall not prevail against thee, he will not quench thy sparks until he bring forth judgment unto victory.

Oh but I am in a suffering condition (says another) and there is none that regards, or takes pity on me; all my friends have dealt treacherously with me, among all my Lovers there is none to comfort me: they have heard, that I sigh, and there is none to refresh me; I stand for Christ, but there is none stands by me; I own him, but there is none owns me. Bleeding Christian, bear up! is not Christ's intercession a sufficient answer to this case? alas, thou wouldest be pitied for all thy weaknesses; why, know that compassion is natural to Jesus Christ; he is a merciful High-Priest, and can be no other to thee; God ordained him to officiate in such a Tabernacle as wherein thou dwellest, he was in all things like unto thee, sin only excepted; it may be thou art in want, and so was Christ, he had no house; thou art persecuted, and so was was Christ; sin loads thee, and so it did Christ. A Christians condition needs compassion, and Christ knows how much, and it is his work continually to lay it open above; O my Father, thus, and thus it is with the Militant Church, not a Member in it, but he is under sin, and affliction; see here the tears, harken to the sighs, and groans, and chatterings, and mournings of my doves below; I present here their persons and performances; and Oh that they may find acceptance through my merit! Some speak of Heavens Musick, some tell us of Saints and Angels, singing and warbling, in lively notes, the praises of Christ in Heaven; and if any such thing be, certainly, it is ear-tickling, heart-ravishing musick; O the melody, O the joy of Saints to hear such heavenly ayres with heavenly ears! but be it as it will be, of this I am confident, that Heaven it self yields no such musick as is the intercession of Jesus Christ; this (if any thing in Heaven do it) makes melody in the ears of God, and of all celestial Spirits, Saints or Angels: And (O my soul) suppose thy self within the compass, if now thou couldst but hear what thy Jesus is saying in thy behalf: Is not this a brand newly pluck'd out of the fire? was not this poor soul but the other day in a state of nature, defiled with sin, within a step of hell? and did not I send my Spirit to recall him? was not this precious blood shed for the redemption of him? and what though sin stick and cleave to him to this day, yet have I not given thee charge to take away his filthy garments from him, and to cloath him with changes of rayment, even with the shining robes of mine own righteousness? O my father, let this soul live in thy sight! O cast him not away for whom I have suffered, and done all this, I cannot rest satisfied without his society, I am not right till he is with me in glory; he is my darling, my purchase, my portion, my delight, and therefore let him be saved. Is not this enough to cause thy very heart to leap in thy bosom? Bonaventure fondly reports, That Francis hearing an Angel a little while playing on an Harp, he was so moved with extraordinary delight, that he thought himself in another World. O but suppose thou shouldst hear the voice of Jesus thy Intercessor thus pleading for thee, wouldst thou not be cast into an extasie? would not this fill thee with joys unspeakable, and full of glory? — Come, realize this meditation? certainly if thou art Christ's, he is thus, or in some other manner interceding for thee? as sure as Christ is Heaven, he is pleading with his Father in Heaven on thy behalf: O the joyes, the joyes, the joyes that I should now feel! — Tell me, is it not a comfort, for a poor beggar to be relieved at a rich mans door? we are all beggars in regard of Heaven, and Jesus Christ doth not only come forth and serve us; but he takes us poor beggars by the hand, and leads us in to his heavenly Father: O what comfort is here!

SECT. VIII.

Of praying to, and praising of Jesus in that respect.

8. LET us pray, and praise our Jesus in this respect.

1. Let us pray or sue our interest in this intercession: it is a question amongst the Schools, whether we may conveniently pray to Jesus, to pray to his Father in our behalf? And thus far is granted, that we may pray to Christ to make us partakers of his intercessions, and to mingle our prayers with his prayers, that they may find acceptance with God his Father. But that we may use such a form, as ora pro nobis, O Christ pray for us, ^{1 Cor. 12. 6.} it is looked upon as inconvenient in this respect. 1. Because we have no such custom, neither the Churches of God. 2. Because it favours too much of the error of Arrius Nestorius, and indeed of the Romanists themselves. 3. Because our prayers are most what directed to Christ in his person or divine subsistence, whose part is rather to give, than to ask; or if they are directed to Christ as Mediator, and not simply as the only begotten Son of God, then I see no incongruity (though in the former respect some inconvenience) but that we may pray to Christ to intercede for us; for so he is God and man; and he is considered according to both Natures; only the difference of both Natures is still to be kept and maintained; intercession is the office of the whole person of Christ, and of the two Natures of Christ. But he performs this office one way according to his Divine nature, and another way according to his Humane nature. I list not to quarrel about niceties; it is thus agreed on all hands, and that is enough to our purpose, that we may call on Jesus, or on God the Father in and through Jesus, that Christs intercessions may be ours, and that he would make it out to us in a way of assurance every day more and more.

2. Let us praise, let us bless God, and bless Christ for every transaction in Heaven for us. It is a wonder to observe what songs of praise were chanted to Christ in Heaven for that one transaction of opening the Book, and loosing the seven Seals thereof: first, The four Beasts, ^{Rev. 4.} and then the four and twenty Elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and ^{8, 9, 11.} golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of ^{12, 13.} Saints, and they sung a new song; saying, thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof, for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood. — And then the Angels round about the Throne, whose number was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands, came on, saying, worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing. — And then every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, came on, saying, blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever; and the four beasts, and four and twenty Elders fell down ^{14.} and and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever. I cannot tell what other transactions may be in Heaven, we have but hints of them here, nor shall we fully or particularly know them till we come to Heaven; but for this one transaction of Christ's intercession, we cannot imagine less praise to be given to Christ than for any other; O then let us do this duty on earth, as it is done in Heaven! what, is Christ praying for us? O let us be on the exercise of praising him; is Christ interceding for us? let us give him the glory of his intercession; Heaven is full of his praises, O why should not earth ring with the sound thereof? Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, praise his holy Name.

SECT. IX.

Of conforming to Jesus in that respect.

9. Let us conform to Jesus in respect of his intercession. I cannot think but in every action of Christ there is something imitable of us. And as to the present work, I shall instance only in these few particulars. As —

1. Christ appears in Heaven for us; let us appear on earth for him. Is there not equity, as well as conformity in this duty? O my soul, consider what thy Christ is doing, consider wherein the intercession of Jesus Christ consists! is not this the first part of it? why, he appears in Heaven before Saints and Angels, and before God his Father in thy behalf; and art thou afraid to appear before worms, mortals, dust and ashes in his cause, or for his truth? shall Jesus Christ own thee in Heaven? and wilt thou not own Jesus Christ here in this world? shall Jesus Christ, as thy great High-Priest, take thy very name, carry it upon his breast into the presence of God? and wilt not thou take the Name of Christ, and hold it forth in profession and practise to all men? Oh what a mighty engagement is here to stand to Christ, and to appear for Christ, and to own his cause in these backsliding times; in that Christ, who sits at the right hand of God, is willing and ready to appear in person for us, both as a Mediator, and Sponsor, and Solicitor, and Advocate, and Leiger Ambassador?

2. Christ spends all his time for us, and our salvation, let us spend all our time for him, and in his service; the Apostle tells us, He ever lives to make intercession for us; it is not for a day, or a month, or a year, but he lives for ever upon this account; for ever (i. e.) during all the time from his Ascension until the end of the world; he is still interceding; he spends all that time for us, and shall we think it too much time to spend a few dayes that we have here to live upon the earth for him? one thinks this the greatest Argument in the world to make us to walk closely with God in Christ; He spends of his eternity for us, and shall not we spend of our whole time for him? Surely people do not think what Christ is doing in Heaven for them; if you who are Saints would but seriously consider, that Christ this Sabbath, this day of Rest, is at his work, that without any weariness or intermission from morning till evening, and from evening till morning he is ever, ever interceding; how would this engage you in this service? Ah Christians! if you should continue praying, praising, reading, hearing all this day without any intermission or breaking off. Oh what weariness! O how would you say, When will the day be done, when will the Sabbath be at an end? Well, but Christ is not weary of serving you; this Sabbath, and the last Sabbath, and the other Sabbath, and every Sabbath: when you had done your duties, he took your persons, and duties, and presented all unto his Father; he prayed over your prayers, and continued praying, and saying, Lord accept of a short, poor, lean, imperfect service done on earth for my sake, and for those merits sake, which I am continually presenting to thee here in Heaven. Oh why do we not come up to this conformity? Oh why are we so unconformable to the actings of Christ? he is preparing Mansions for us in Heaven, and are we digging in this world? he is making mention of our names to God, and are we sinning against him and God? his blood cries, O that these souls may be saved; and shall our sins cry, It is just that these souls should be damned? O mind the exemplar! Christ spends all his time for you, do you spend all your time for him: we cannot but judge this to be most equal, that they who live, should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him who ever lives to make intercession for them.

3. He prays for us, and for all believers, to his Father; let us pray for our selves, and for all our brethren, and for all sorts of men, though they be our enemies, for we were no better to Jesus Christ: Learn of me (saith Christ) and so far as he is imitable let us follow him; doth Christ pray? let us pray; doth he pray for us and others? let us pray for our selves, and then let us pray one for another: I exhort therefore (saith the Apostle) that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men. And come, lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left, said the King to Isaiah; and Wrestle together in prayer for me, said Paul; and Give the Lord no rest till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth, said the Prophet: Christ intercedes, and there is no question but we should intercede for the living Saints. Brethren, pray for us, said the Apostle; who-soever thou art that readest, I beseech thee remember me in thy prayers, it may be thou art nearer God, and more in favour with God than such a poor sinner as I am; as Mordecai set Esther on work to intercede for him with the King, and for his people; so 'tis our duty to crave the prayers of such who are upon better terms (possibly) with the Lord, than we our selves are at the present; Only I could wish thy prayers at such a time, when thy heart is got nearest to God, by special stirrings of faith and love: I suppose thou canst not have a spirit, and power of prayer, but sometimes or other thou art (as it were) in the lap of Christ, upon the Spouses knee, in the Beloveds

Beloveds bosom; O then make a request for an unworthy one; O then, if ever, intercede for me, because then I read Christ's own intercession in thy intercession; what is thy prayer then, but as the echo of Christ's prayer, the Amen to Christ's intercessions; which he makes in Heaven? Christians! 'tis our duty to put one another upon praying one for another; Christ intercedes for us, and so should we intercede for his, called, or uncalled, if so they belong to the election of Grace.

4. Christ takes our prayers, and mingles them with his own prayers, intercessions, Incense, and so presents all as own work mingled together unto God the Father; O let this be our care to put up all our prayers to God in the Name of Christ, and to stay our selves upon the intercessions of Christ; when all is done, let us beg the acceptance of our prayers, not for our sakes, nor for our prayers sake; but for his sake, who perfumes our prayers, by interweaving them with his prayers. Many a poor soul is many times afraid to pray to God for want of the due consideration of this conformity; such a one goes to prayer, and he looks upon it as it lies upon his own heart, or as it comes from himself, and then he cries, Oh what a poor, weak, sinful, imperfect, impenitent prayer is this? well, but if this weak prayer of thine be once mingled with the glorious and heavenly prayer of Jesus Christ, the weakness will soon vanish, and thy prayer will find acceptance with God the Father; it is with your prayers and duties as it is with your fire; your kitchen-fire is troubled with abundance of smoak, but if ever it could ascend into the element of fire above, it would smoak no more; so your prayer, while it lies upon your own hearth, there's a great deal of smoak in it, but if ever it get up into the hands of Jesus Christ, there it is in its own element, and so it is freed from all its smoak, and so the weakness of it is done away. O conform to Christ in this point; he will not present thy prayers to God, but he will first mingle it with his own prayers; no more shouldst thou present a prayer to God, but in Christ's Name, considering that all thy prayers find acceptance in, for, and through the intercession of Jesus Christ. If it were not for this, I profess I knew not how to answer the cavils of our dissolute adversaries, who throw down prayers, as of no use at all; for us they object—

Object. Thou canst not pray (say they) by thy own confession, without some defect, imperfection, sin: and if so, there is need of a new prayer, to beg pardon for the defects of that prayer; and then another prayer to heal the flaws of that prayer; and then another to do as much for that; and so in infinitum; by this means there would be an infinite progression without any stop at any prayer to all.

Answ. I answer, This Objection were valid if there were no intercession of Christ to stay our selves, and our prayers on: but as we grant requests many times for some friends sake, rather than for the parties sake: so God doth alway grant requests for Christ's sake, never for our own sakes: Thou objectest there many are defects in our prayers as made by us: But I Answer, there is no defects in the Merits and Intercessions of Jesus Christ, for whose sake alone they are granted of God; and therefore our prayers being made in Christ's Name, they may stay their heads in Christ's bosom; in this respect we need not still to run our selves in a Circle, this being the last resolution, Christ's merits, and Christ's intercession. Christ offers up our persons and wooden prayers in his golden Censer to his Father; Christ's intercession therefore is that which doth the deed. Now, to say our prayers are of no use, it is all one as to say his Intercession is of no use; not that we are so good, that he cannot take exception against us, and our prayers; but because Christ is so good, and his Intercession for us is so good, that he neither can, nor will take exception against him, or his Intercession for us; and in this case Christ and Christians make one person (as it were) in Law; his Intercession for us; and our intercessions for our selves, are but one intercession: and indeed he so mingles them, that they seem but one, for the smoak of the Incense, and the prayers of the Saints ascend up together before God out of the Angels hand, Rev. 8. 4.

5. Christ pleads the cause of his people, and answers all the accusations of Satan against them; Oh let us plead for them for whom Christ pleads, and answer the accusations of Satans, or his instruments against their persons, or their wayes. We have a strange generation of men abroad, whose very Religion consists in rayling, reviling, reproaching the servants of the living God; not the best men, nor the best Ministers under Heaven escape them; Are they not *all, say they, * Wolves, Dogs, Hirelings, Priests of Baal, Covetous, Carnal, Damned; and what not? Are they not all, say they (as the Devil said of Joshua) cloathed with filthy garments? defiled totally, utterly defiled with the pollutions of Babylon? Christian! when you hear this language, learn you to conform to Christ; go you first to*

* I lately received a Paper, wherein the Quakers gave the Ministers of CHRIST these following Names, viz. Conjurers, Thieves, Robbers, Antichrists, Witches, Blind Guides, Devils, Lyars, Baal's Priests, Sir-Simonds, Dissemblers, Upholders of the Seven-Headed, and Ten-Horned Beasts, a Viperous, and Serpentine Generation, Bloody Herodians, Blasphemers, Scarlet-coloured Beasts, Babels Merchants, Busbodies, Whited Walls, Painted Sepulchres, Raving Wolves, Persecutors, Tyrants, Greedy Dogs, Pharisees.

GOD with the Lords own plea, Now the Lord rebuke thee O Satan, even the Lord that hath chosen Jerusalem, rebuke thee, Zach. 3. 2. And then go on in vindication of their persons and their cause; are they not precious, gracious, holy, able, shining and burning Lights? it may be some of their persons have been Faulty; but say of such? Is not this a brand newly pluck'd out of the fire? Failings, and humane frailties have been in the best, yea, in most of the Prophets and Apostles; but shall we therefore condemn to hell the generation of Gods dear Children; or howsoever it may be with their persons, yet is not their cause and office of Christ's own Institution? in this respect, he that despiseth you, despiseth me, me, saith Christ, and he that despiseth me, despiseth him that sent me, Luke 10. 16. Are not the Ministers of Christ as Stars in the right hand of Christ? they that would do them any deadly harm, must pluck them thence. Christians! conform you to Christ in this point; you see how Satan stands at the right hand of our Joshua's to resist them, now then plead your cause, and answer the Adversaries Accusations.

6. Christ by his Intercession saves us to the uttermost, Heb. 7. 25. O let us serve him to the uttermost; surely all we can do is too little to answer so great a love as this. Oh Christians! why should it be esteemed a needless thing to be most rigorously conscionable, and exactly circumspect? Christ payed our debt to the uttermost farthing, drunk every drop of our bitter cup, and now presents all unto his Father, by way of intercession, and saves us, εις παντελες thoroughly to the uttermost; why should not we labour to perform his service, and to fulfil every one of his commandments, thoroughly and to the uttermost also? certainly there is a duty which concerns us Christians, as to be hot in Religion, Rev. 3. 16. to be zealous of good works, Tit. 2. 14. to walk circumspectly, or precisely, as the word carries it, Ephes. 5. 15. to be fervent in spirit, Rom. 12. 11. to strive to enter in at the strait gate, Luke 13. 24. to contend for the faith, Jude 3. with an holy kind of violence to lay hold upon the Kingdom of Heaven, Mat. 11. 12. Oh what ever men should be afraid of taking God's part too much, or fighting too valiantly under the colours of Christ, of being too busie about the salvation of their own souls, of being singular (as they call it) in the duties of Religion; I observe, men are content to be singular in any thing, save in the service of God; you desire and labour to be singularly rich, and singularly wise, and singularly valorous, and singularly proud; but you can by no means endure singularity or eminency in zeal, and the Lord's service; in matters of Religion you are resolved to do as the most do, though in so doing you damn your own souls, Mat. 7. 13. O come and learn this Lesson of Christ, he saves us to the uttermost, and let us serve him to the uttermost; with all our hearts, and with all our souls, and with all our might.

Thus far we have Looked on Jesus in his Intercession, our next work is our last work, which is, to Look on Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our Salvation for us in His coming again, the very end of time to all Eternity; he hath no more now to do, but to Judge the Saints, and to lead them into Glory, and to deliver up his Kingdom to his Father, and so to live with His Redeemed ones for ever, and ever, and ever.

SECT. I.

Of Christ's preparing for Judgment.

AND is not yet all done? O the unwearied patience, love, mercy, free grace of Christ in carrying on this mighty work! he begun it before the beginning of the world; since then he hath been labouring in it about six thousand years; and now the time of restoring being come, he will perfect what he hath begun, and bring on the other end of the Golden chain; Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified. In this piece also as in the former we shall first lay down the object, and then give directions how to look upon it.

The Object is Jesus, carrying on that great work of our salvation in his coming again to earth, and taking up with him all his Saints into Heaven. In this work I shall set before you these particulars:

1. Christ's preparing for judgment.
2. Christ's coming to judgment.
3. Christ's summons of the Elect to come under judgment.

4. Christ and the Saints meeting at the judgment day.

5. Christ's sentencing or judging the Saints for eternal glory.

6. Christ and his Saints judging the rest of the world.

7. Christ and his Saints going up into Heaven; when shall be the end of this world.

8. Christ surrendering up the Kingdom to God even the Father.

9. Christ's subjection to the Father, that God may be all in all.

10. Christ (notwithstanding this) being all in all to his blessed, saved, redeemed Saints to all eternity.

1. For his preparing for judgment. When once the number of all his Elect shall be compleated, and the work of his intercession shall be at an end, then immediately will follow these particulars. As—

1. A great voice comes out of the Temple Rev. 16. of Heaven, saying, it is done. It comes out 17. of the Temple of Heaven, that we may understand it to be the voice of Christ. And if this speech be directed unto God, it is as if Christ

D d d d d had

John 17. had bespoke his Father thus. And now O
 12. my Father, I have done; that office of the Priest-hood which by agreement we erected, is now at an end: here I have sat at thy right hand interceding for my Saints ever since my ascension; and of all that thou hast given me by thine eternal election, I have not lost a Saint; in their several ages I produced them and gave them a Being;
 and in their times I remembered them, and presented their conditions and necessities before thee; and now I have not a Saint more; in the Book of life there is not another Name written to be born on earth; and to what purpose should I now continue the world? the Saints are they for whom I made the world, the Saints are they that hold forth the light of my glory in the world, the Saints are they for whom my eternal counsels before the world did work, the Saints are they for whom I was content to shed my precious blood when I was in that world below; and now their number is compleated, I am resolved to uppin the fabrick of the world, and take it down; it stands but for their sakes, and therefore now let the seventh Angel blow his trumpet, that the mystery of God may be finished. I swear by him that
 7. ver. 6. lives for ever, that time shall be no longer.

2. No sooner this said, but the seventh An-
 Rev. 11. gel sounds. This seventh Angel (saith Pare-15. us) is the Arch-angel that proclaims Christ's coming, with a great and mighty shout; For 1 Thef. 4. the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with 16. a shout, with the Voice of the Arch-angel, and with the trump of God. The Lord shall descend with a shout; but before he descend, and I believe upon the very discovery of his coming down, there will be a shout in Heaven; for so it follows, And the seventh Angel sounded, and there were great voices in Heaven; if we may believe Commentaries, these are the voices of blessed souls, and blessed souls, and blessed Angels in heaven; no sooner Christ bids the Angel sound] q. d. summon those blessed souls that were slain for the Word of God, and therefore cryed, How long Lord, holy and true? summon those blessed
 Rev. 6. souls that have cryed so long, Come Lord Je-
 10. sus, come quickly; summon all souls, and sum-
 Rev. 22. mon all Angels, and bid them wait on me, 20. now I resolve to go down, and to judge the world: no sooner I say, Christ bids the Angels sound, but presently at the joy of this command, all the voices in Heaven give up a shout;
 why, this is the long-look'd for day, the day of perfecting the number of Saints; the day of joyning the souls and bodies of the Saints together; the day of convening all the families both of Saints and Angels under one roof; the day of bringing up the Bride unto the Lamb, and of compleating the Marriage in its highest solemnity: and therefore no wonder if at this news great voices and cries (such as are used by Mariners, or gatherers of the vintage) were made in Heaven.
 O what an addition of joy is this to Heavens joy it self! the spirits of the just, and the blessed Angels that have lived together in heavens bliss, had never such an advan-titious joy as this before; now they shout and sing a new and blessed Song, The kingdoms of Rev. 11. this world, are become the kingdoms of our Lord, 15.

and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever. We may call this Heavens triumph for the finishing of God's mystery. Now is it that Christ will vindicate his Kingdom, and overthrow the power of his enemies; they had long set themselves against the Lord, and against his appointed; the Kings of the earth, and the Rulers confederated; they ruled all,
 and as much as in them lay, excluded Christ;
 but now the Kingdoms of the world will return to Christ, and he alone shall rule; and thence the winged Choristers of Heaven chant forth this Anthem, The Kingdoms of the world are become the Kingdoms of Christ.

3. After this shout, The four and twenty Elders which sit before God on their seats, fall upon their faces, and worshiped God, saying, we give thee thanks O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come, because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned; and the nations were angry, &c. By these four and twenty Elders we understand all Gods Saints of the Old and New Testament, comprehended under the twelve Patriarchs, and twelve Apostles; others would have them to be only those Saints of the Old Testament, and therefore called Elders; whosoever they are, we find they are so glad at this news, that Christ will now judge the world, that presently they rise off their seats, and fall on their faces; and first they praise, and then they pray: 1. They praise God for taking to himself his own power; Christ connived (as it were) till now at the power of his enemies; Antichrist, and not Christ seemed to rule, and to sit in the Temple of God; but now Christ is resolved to rule himself, and to make all his enemies his footstool: and therefore now we give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty. 2. They pray Christ to go on to judgment. 1. Because the nations were angry, q. d. they have been angry long enough, they have set themselves against Christ and against his Church, and therefore now it is time to bridle their wrath, and to break them with a rod of Iron, O let thy wrath come. 2. Because the time of judgment is now accomplished which God had decreed in his eternal counsel, and which the Father had put in his own power; This time was not for mortals to know, but now 'twas revealed to these celestial spirits by Christ, and therefore they beg, Go on Lord Jesus; reward now thy Servants, Prophets, Saints; and destroy them which destroyed the earth.

4. God the Father is well pleased with Christ's purpose of judging the world. The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool.
 I know these words were spoke to Christ at his ascension into Heaven, yet that hinders not but that now God speaks them again to Christ; for as yet (saith the Apostle) Heb. 2.8.
 we see not all things put under him; and God's purpose was that Christ should rule, until he had put all things in subjection under his feet. Nay, why not these words spoken now rather than before? Christ indeed reigned as King ever since his Ascension, but now more especially he is to manifest his Kingdom, for

for now is he to judg among the heathen, now is he to wound the heads of many countries, now is he to overthrow Pope, Turk, and all his enemies, and he alone with the Father and the Spirit is to reign in his Elect Saints and Angels. Thus all agree, that Christ in the latter dayes shall be fully honoured in his Kingly power; hitherto Christ hath been much honoured in his Prophetical and Priestly office, but not so much in his Kingly; but now he must be fully honoured in his Kingly office; now especially The Kingdoms of this world must become the Kingdoms of the Lord, and of his Christ; and so he shall reign for ever and ever. Certainly there is a difference betwixt Christ's reign before, and his present reign at the day of judgment, Christ hath a double Throne wherein he sits and reigns; To him that overcomes will I give to sit with me in my throne, as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. That Kingly rule that Christ hath from his ascension is upon his Fathers Throne, but the Kingdom that Christ shall have at the day of judgment and ever after, it is the joynt reign of him with the Father, he shall have a Throne himself, and the Saints shall sit with him in his own Throne: and now saith the Father, Sit thou at my right hand, q. d. sit on thy own Throne by me; go on to judge the Nations; I will not judg them, but only in thee, and by thee; Lo I have committed all judgment unto the Son, and do thou judg them, untill thou hast rewarded thy friends, and made thine enemies thy footstool. Mark, He hath committed all judgment unto the Son; the Father gives the Son a Commission; wherein is written (as it were) these words, My Son, now is the time or season which I had put in my own power; and my pleasure is, that all the world shall be set on fire: these heavens under thee shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also, and the workes that are therein shall be burnt up; and I will have new heavens, and a new earth, wherein shall dwell righteousness; go thou then, put on thy Robes, appear in thy glory; empty this heaven of all those glorious spirits that are therein, and let them wait on thee to thy judgment seat; go, pass thy doom upon all flesh, and send reprobates to bell, and bring up hither all thy Saints, that they may live with thee, and here behold thy glory for ever and ever. Lo here is thy commission; be gone, and return no more hither until it be accomplished.

Use. Christians, I cannot but wonder at this joy and exultation in Heaven, and that we have so little or none of this on earth; we say with cold lips, and frozen hearts Thy Kingdom come, thy Will be done in earth as it is in heaven; but if our prayers were real and fervent, if we could but imitate those heavenly Citizens, what longings would be in our hearts after Christ's coming? how should we rejoyce at the very thoughts hereof? Christ comforting his disciples in respect hereof, he speaks these words, When these things begin to come to pass, then look up (said he) and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh. The fulness of our redemption is a ground of consolation; all the spirits above are sensible of this; God, and Christ, and the Angels, and Saints rejoyce, and again rejoyce. The Spirit and the Bride say, come; and Christ himself saith, Surely I come quickly; O let us say Amen to it; Even so come ver. 20. Lord Jesus.

SECT. II.

Of Christ coming to judgment.

2. FOR Christ's coming to judgment; no sooner CHRIST prepared, and all in readiness, but down he descends from his Imperial Throne to the Judgment-seat. In this passage I shall observe these particulars.

1. He descends with his Train: He comes with his Royal Attendants out of Heaven. This is the glory of a Prince, that hath so many Nobles waiting on him; and this is the glory of Jesus Christ, that when he comes to judg the world, he shall have his Saints and Angels (the glory of the Creation) to be his Attendants in that work. Behold the Lord comes with mighty Angels. Behold the Lord comes with ten thousands of his Saints, to execute judgment upon all. Certainly a numberless number shall wait upon him: Daniel tells us of a thousand thousand that this day Minister unto Christ: A thousand thousands ministered unto him, & ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: or if Heaven have more, I believe Heaven will empty it self of all the Saints, and all the Angels; not one Spirit, whether Saint or Angel shall stay behind when Christ descends: The Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy Angels with him. Oh what a glorious day will this be! if one Sun make the morning Sky so glorious, what a bright, shining, and glorious morning will that be, when so many thousands of Suns shall shine over all our heads, the glorious Body of our Christ surpassing them all in splendor and glory? here's a new Heaven of Sun and Stars, such as this nether world never saw, Lo yond the Sun of righteousness with all his Morning stars, singing and shouting for joy. Heaven now empties its self of all its created Citizens, and cleaves asunder to make way for Christ, and all his Train.

2. In his descent through the Heavens, he shakes the Heavens. And the powers of the heaven shall be shaken. The whole frame of Heaven, most strong and immutable in its being and motion; or the mighty bodies thereof, most mighty in their substance, lastingness, motion and operation shall be shaken. I know by the powers of heaven some mean the Angels, who at this wonderful descent of Christ shall admire and move; but I rather think the Heavens themselves are meant hereby, whose very nature shall be moved, and shaken at that day: At his nod the pillars of heaven tremble and are astonished. As yet they are Subject to vanity, and therefore tis no wonder if at the coming of Christ they tremble and are moved. In this moving or shaking the Evangelists adds, that the glorious lights of Heaven shall be altered, Matth. 24. 29. The Sun shall be darkened, and the Moon shall not give her light, and the Stars shall fall: Many Interpretations are given of this: I am not for Allegories, but rather conceive these things are real; the very coming of Christ shall bring with him such a light, that the splendor of the Sun and Moon shall be obscured: This is most certain, saith Aretius, that both Sun and Moon shall really be darkened at that day; it is the glory of his Majesty that will dazzle those Candles.

3. As he passes through the Elementary World, a fire doth usher him. Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him. Whence this fire should come, I shall not dispute, only one tells us with some confidence, † that 'tis begotten in the middle Region of the Air by Divine command; and that first it goes before him, ushering the Judge to the Judgment-seat, and that there it stays during the judgment; and that ended, and the doom passed on all flesh, then it sets on fire all the world. Let this pass as it may, Scripture goes thus far, that a fire goeth before him.— Behold the Lord will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind.— And the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven, with his mighty Angels in flaming fire. In which respect Daniel saw his throne like the fiery flame, and his wheels as burning fire; a fiery stream issued, and came forth from before him: and at last this fire shall have that effect, that the very Elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also, and the works that are therein shall be burnt up. O Christians! What cause have we to make the Apostles use on this point, Seeing all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness? Looking for, and hastening unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the Elements shall melt with fervent heat.

4. He descends lower and lower till he is inwrought with Clouds. Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of Heaven. When he went up into Heaven it is said, that a cloud received him out of their sight; and the Angels then said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into Heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into Heaven, shall so come, in like manner, as ye have seen him go into Heaven. He went up in Clouds, and he shall come down in Clouds. I saw in the night visions, and behold one like the Son of man came with the clouds of Heaven. Here is the first sight of Christ to men on the earth, when once he is come down into the Clouds, then shall they lift up their eyes, and have a full view of Jesus Christ; a Cloud first received him out of their sight; and a Cloud now discovers him to their sight; Then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in Heaven, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of Heaven with power and great glory: Is it not plain, that the first appearings, and sight of Christ at his second coming from Heaven, is in the midst of Clouds? Behold he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him. Some Controversie there is about these Clouds, as whether they be Angels? When the Psalmist speaks of all sorts of Meteors, as of Waters, Clouds, Winds, Flames, some say, all these are Angels; and of the Angels he saith, who maketh his Angels Spirits, and his Ministers a flame of fire. For my part I take it in the literal sense, that upon the very backs of Clouds, Christ shall come riding along at the general day; and howsoever, this may seem a small matter unto us, yet I cannot look on any Circumstance of this Transaction as small and trifling! The very Clouds on which Christ rides, speaks terror, and comfort.

1. Oh what a terror is this to the wicked? They shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds, and then shall all the Tribes of the earth mourn. These Tribes of the Earth, are the Tribes of the wicked; no sooner shall they look up, and see Christ in his Clouds, but with unconceivable horror will they cry it out, O yonder is he, whose Blood we neglected, whose Grace we resisted, whose Counsels we refused, whose Government we cast off. Oh yonder is he that comes now in Clouds, in Tempestuous Clouds; O see how he storms! Do not those very Clouds, in which he rides, speak, or threaten a Storm? In the eighteenth Psalm is a description of Christ's coming to Judgment. But O how terrible! In the seventh verse, we find the earth trembling; in the eighth verse, a fire devouring; in the ninth verse, the Heavens bowing downwards: in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth verses, are thick Clouds darkening the Skie, Thunders, Lightnings, Hail-stones flying through the air, the foundations of the world discovered; thus the Mighty God, our Jesus descends. Oh how should the wicked but tremble at this, when but a Consideration of this, hath sometimes startled God's own People? Behold Habakkuk with quivering Lips, trembling Joints, Bones mouldering into dust, when he had only a Prophetick representation of Christ's second appearance! All the dreadful things that attended the presence of God in Egypt, at the Red Sea, on Mount Sinai, through the Wilderness, are made but Types, but Shadows of the terrible march of the Captain of the Lord of Hosts; and therefore shall the wicked mourn.

2. Here is the Patience, and Faith, and Joy of Saints. And all the Kindreds of the earth, shall mourn over him; even so, Amen. This I cannot but understand of the wicked; onely some tell us of a double mourning on that Day; the one of Joy and Love, and the other of Sorrow and Despair; I shall not deny, but there may be some sweet Tears upon this sweet Subject, Christ's,

Christ's apparition in the clouds: Such a shine will be from Christ in the cloud, that the very shine will pierce the hearts of men with the golden-headed arrow of love, and how may this work tears? from this Text of John, Behold he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him, and all the kindreds of the earth shall wail, &c. Some Divines gather, that Christ at that day, will shew in his glorified body the wounds of his crucifying, as an infallible trophy of his victory over all his enemies; and hence the wicked who pierced, or crucified the Lord of glory, by their sins, will weep and wail. I can think no less, but that Christ at that day will open his bosom, and shew those wounds, of love, which he had in his heart from all eternity, together with those wounds which he received on the Cross, as they are glorified in his eternal love: and then as at the discovery of Joseph, he and his brethren fell upon the necks of each other and wept; so will this discovery in the appearances of Christ bring a sweet confusion upon the Spirits of Saints; then shall a Saint fall at the feet of his Saviour, and weeping say, O my Jesus! thou art my Father, Brother, Husband, Self; while there were other things, I loved other things besides thy self, but alas! they are everlastingly gone, and have left me alone, yet now thou ownest me; O my Jesus thou breakest my heart: oh I cannot but weep out tears of love, and tears of joy at this appearing; O welcome, welcome, sweet Jesus into these clouds! oh welcome, welcome, sweet Jesus into this neather world.

In these Clouds I must leave our Saviour for a while, and the rather, because I believe he will descend no lower: only before I pass, one word of Use to all his Saints.

Use You see him still upon his old design; though the world now ends, yet hitherto there is no end of his great transaction; his first coming, and his second coming, is to save your souls; his first coming was to purchase, his second to give you the possession of Salvation. What? are you not glad of this Gospel-news, that Christ will come at last from this Empyrean Throne to his judgment-seat, to give you the possession of salvation? is not the promise of his coming comfortable? is it not comfortable to believe in him, and to hope for him? why, muse then, what comfort will it be to see his person with all his glorious train coming for you? The Mighty God, the Lord hath spoken, and called the Earth, from the rising of the Sun, to the going down thereof; out of Zion the perfection of beauty hath God shined; our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about him; he shall call to the heavens from above, and to the earth that he might judge his people. It is indeed a most terrible day unto the wicked, but oh how sweet, and pleasant, and comfortable to his Saints, Christians! do we not long to have Christ's Spirit come into our souls with life? do we not drop while Christ is absent from our souls? are not the feet of them beautiful that bring glad tidings of peace, & of salvation by Jesus Christ? Oh then! what will it be to see the King, not in his Embassadors, but in his own person coming for us to fetch us into Heaven? if we have but a dear friend returned from some far Country, how do all run out to meet him with joy? Oh saith the child, my father is come; saith the wife, my husband is come; and shall not we, when we see our Father, our Husband, our Head, our Saviour returning with great glory, and glorious Majesty, cry out, he is come, he is come? shall not we at the first view of him in his Clouds, cry out, O yonder is he whose blood redeemed us, whose Spirit cleansed us, whose Prayers prevail for us, whose Law did govern us? yonder comes he in whom we trusted, and now we see he hath not deceived our trust; yonder is he for whom we waited long, and now we see we have not waited in vain.

I verily believe thus it will be with us one day; we shall have comfort then, oh let us comfort our selves with these words; and ever and anon cry, Come Lord Jesus, come quickly! make hast my beloved, and be thou like to a Roe, or to a young Heart upon the Mountain of spices.

SECT. III.

Of Christ's summoning of the Elect to come under Judgment.

3. FOR Christ's summons of the Elect to come under judgment: no sooner is he in the clouds, his Throne of judicature, but there he stands, and thence he sends his holy Angels with a great sound of a Trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of the heaven to another. Christ's summons are effectual, if he will have the elect to meet him, they must come; to this purpose he sends his Angels, and they return with his Saints back again to the judgment-seat. In the carrying on of this affair, we shall discuss these particulars. 1. His mission of the Angels. 2. The manner of the mission. 3. The resurrection of the world. 4. The collection of the Saints; wherein, 1. whence, 2. whether they are gathered.

1. For Christ's mission of his Angels; he shall send his Angels. This was their office from their first creation; they were still sent of God this way, and that way; and indeed herein is one difference betwixt Christ and the Angels, he was to sit on God's right hand, but they were sent abroad to Minister to the Saints and people of God, To which of the Angels said he at any time, sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool? are they not all Ministering Spirits, sent forth to Minister for them, who shall be heirs of salvation? Now according to their office, Christ

Christ puts them upon imployment at this day, Psal. 103. 9. d. O my Angels! you that wait upon me, that
 20. excel in strength, that do my commandments, Psal. 50. and hearken to the voice of my word: go your
 5. wayes now into all the four windes of the World, gather all my Saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice; search into all the dusts of the earth, and leave not behind one dust that belongs unto any Saint; search into the bottom of the Sea; see what becomes of those drowned bodies of my dear ones; if either worms have eaten those in graves, or fishes have devoured them in the deep, why now restore them; am not I as able to recover them, as I was to create them? is it not as easie for me to raise the dead, as to make Heaven and Earth; and all of nothing? go then and gather together all those dusts, and let every dust be brought home to its own proper body, and compact those dusts, as soft as they are, into solid bones; and prophesie upon those bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord; thus saith the Lord, Ezek. 37. behold I will cause breath to enter into you, and 4, 5, 6. ye shall live, and I will lay sinews upon you and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live, and ye shall know that I am the Lord;
 why this is my will and pleasure, and therefore be gon, O my Angels, do your office; what?
 have not I command you?

2. The Mission, or Commission, or Dismiss-ion given, the Angels, swift messengers of his will fall on the execution, and to that purpose immediately they sound the Trumpet; so it follows, And he shall send his Angels with a great sound of a Trumpet. Here is the manner of their mission; they go, and as they go, they give a shout; what this shout is, or how it is made, is a curious question, and sets many wits on work: in this Scripture it is set out by the sound of a Trumpet. * Now some would have it to be a material Trumpet, because the Scriptures frequently call it so, a Trumpet; He shall send his Angels with the sound of a Trumpet, saith Christ; and in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last Mat. 24. trump we shall be changed (saith Paul) for the
 31. Trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised.
 1 Cor. 15. And the Lord himself shall descend from 52. Heaven with a shout, and with the voice of the 1 Thes. 4. Archangel, and with the Trumpet of God: But
 16. whether this Trumpet shall be of Silver or of Brass, or of the Air, or of the Cloud and Meteors whereon Christ rides, they cannot agree: † others more probably look upon this Trumpet as nothing else but a metaphor; or a sound formed in the Air, like the sound of a Trumpet. A voice it is without all controversie; and metaphorically it may be called a Trumpet, both from the clearness and greatness of the sound; so loud shall it be, that 'twill pierce into the ears of the dead in their graves; It will shake the world, rend the rocks, break the mountains; dissolve the bonds of Death, burst down the gates of Hell, and unite all spirits to their own Bodies. An horrible, terrible voice shall it be: But how should Angels who are spirits make a voice? by a collision of the Air which the Angels can move at their pleasure; and who can tell, say some, but there may be some new created instrument Trumpet-like, adapted for the Angels; at the sides of which, by a force, and collision of the air, this great shout may be, to convene all the World? or who knows (say others) but that the Lord Jesus may fill the Angels, even as trumpets are filled with a loud blast, and that through them this loud blast shall come rushing like a mighty wind upon the dead Saints, and so awaken their bodies out of the dust? we all know this was usual in all the Jews solemnnities to convene the people by the sound of a trumpet. And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Make thee two trumpets of silver,—That Numb.

 thou mayest use them for the calling of the Assem- 10. 1, 2, bly; — And when thou shalt blow them, all the As- 3. 9. sembly shall Assemble themselves; and if ye go to war, then ye shall blow an alarme with the Trumpets; and in the same way (say they) Christ now will convene all the World with the sound of a trumpet, or with the sound of some such instrument of divine power and vertue, whereby the dead shall be raised, and their bodies and souls re-united. Amidst all those Authors, if I may deliver my opinion; I suppose the Text that will clear all to us, above all that is written, is that of 1 Thessalonians 4. 16. 1 Thes.
 For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven 4. 16.
 with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trumpet of God. Give me leave to insist on it, that we may come up yet to a more full and perfect knowledg of this passage. In these words is shewed, or held forth the coming of Christ in three particulars: with a shout, with a voice, and with a trumpet; some think this to be one & the same set out in variety of expressions; but I am of another mind. It is agreed by most, that the transactions at the giving of the Law on Mount Sinai, were a representation of the proceedings which shall be at the great day of Judgment; now in that transaction we read of a three-fold voice,
 The voice of God, the voice of Thunder, and the voice of a Trumpet, (Exod. 19. 16. compared with Exod. 20. 1.) and accordingly we find the Apostle speaking of a three-fold voice,
 Of the voice of Christ, of the voice of Thunder, and of the voice of a Trumpet.

1. The Lord himself shall descend with a shout: Arius Montanus, and the vulgar, translate it with a command; Lyra and others think this to be the voice of Christ himself, saying, with a loud voice, Arise ye dead, and come to Judgment. Thus Jesus cryed with a loud voice, Lazarus come forth, and with such a voice will he call on the dead at the last day. So much Christ himself hath taught us;
 The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live. The hour is, because by his voice he raised some at his first coming:
 and the hour is coming, because in the like manner he will raise up all men at the last day; Marvel not at this (saith Christ) for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, & they shall come forth.
 As at the creation of the World, he said, Let there be light, and there was light; so at the dissolution of the World, he will say, Let the dead rise, let the Sea give up the dead that are in it, and Death and Hell deliver up

the dead which are in them; and it will be so.

2. The Lord shall descend with the voice of the Archangel. Two questions here; 1. Who is this Archangel? 2. What is this Voice?

For the first, some argue this Archangel to be Gabriel, others Raphael, others Michael. The Jews have an antient tradition, that there are seven principal Angels that minister before the throne of God, and therefore called Archangels. The Scriptures seem to speak much that way, calling them, seven Lamps of fire burning before the throne: and seven horns, and seven eyes of the Lamb; and the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth; and seven eyes of the Lord, which run to and fro through the whole earth; and yet more plainly, seven Angels that stand before God. Now which of these Seven is the Archangel, here spoken of, is hard to determine; only probable it is, that all the Archangels, and all the Angels are hereby understood, as comprehended under that one; to which agrees, Matth. 24. 31. Mr. Aynsworth observes, that when things are done by a multitude; where one is chief, that the action is frequently ascribed either to the multitude, or to him that is chief indifferently; as Jehoiadah brought forth the Kings Son, and he put the Crown upon him, 2 Kings 11. 12. or they brought forth the Kings son, and they put upon him the Crown, 2 Chron. 23. 11. so David offered burnt-offerings, 2 Sam. 6. 17. or they offered burnt-offerings, 1 Chron. 16. 1. and so he shall descend with the voice of the Archangel; or he shall send his Angels with a great sound, Matth. 24. 3.

That there are seven principal Angels, Mr. Mede affirms; and that there is one which yet eminently, is called the Archangel; some others affirm, as among Devils, there is one chief Devil, called the Prince of Devils; and therefore the fire is said to be prepared for the Devil and his Angels; so from this Text of 1 Thess. 4. 16. and of Dan. 10. 13. and of Jude v. 9. Some probably conclude, that the good Angels have a Prince, even Michael, whom Jude calls the Archangel. But of this no more; the Lord keep me from intruding into those things which I have not seen. The day it self will discover it, and so I leave it, as having said enough to satisfy the sober minded.

For the second, what is this voice of the Archangel? I conceive that thereby we are to understand thunder: here is (as we have said) a manifest allusion to the proceedings at the giving of the Law; now the voice there mentioned, besides the Voice of God, and the voice of a Trumpet, is the voice of Thunder; And it came to pass on the third day in the Morning, there were Thunders.

In this sense some expound these words of the Apostle, where the Law is said to be spoken by Angels, because the Angels did raise up those extraordinary Thunders which happily were the matters of the articulate voice, in which the Lord spake to Israel: or if the Law was spoken by Christ, (as I have delivered my opinion elsewhere) he being the Angel of the Covenant; Mal. 3. 1.

And the Angel of his presence, Isa. 63. 9. Yet this hinders not, but that created Angels might speak the Law too, if not in respect of the articulate voice, yet in respect of the voice of Thunders which attended on it; thus Thunders are often called the Voice of God, and the voice of his Excellency, Job 37. 4, 5. Psal. 29. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9.

3. The Lord shall descend with the Trumpet of God. Such a Voice was used also at the giving of the Law, Exod. 19. 16. and Exod. 20. 18. and so it will be now when men are called to account for the keeping or breaking of it. For the understanding of this, our last Translation tells us, that Christ shall send his Angels with the great sound of a Trumpet; but in four Greek copies, as Beza confesseth, as also in the Hebrew Gospel of Matthew, and in the Vulgar, and in the Margent of our last Translation, it is read, that Christ shall send his Angels with a Trumpet, and a great Voice. And so the latter words are exegetical, q. d. with a Trumpet, that is, with a great Voice, like the voice of a Trumpet; so that this reading very probably proves, that the last Trumpet is to be taken Metaphorically. For the more full confirmation whereof, I argue thus: When any thing is ascribed to the Angels, which is not suitable to their spiritual nature, and which they have no need of for the work they are about, it is to be taken Metaphorically; unless the context, or some other Scripture force us to a proper acceptation; but a material Trumpet of Silver, Brass, or the like Metal, is not suitable to the spiritual nature of the Angels; neither have they need of such a Trumpet for producing a great Sound in the Air; it is evident, that without a Trumpet they can make a great sound like the noise of a Trumpet; and there is nothing at all in the Scriptures that will force us, or probably lead us to a proper acceptation of the word; add yet to what hath been said, that sometimes a great Voice is set out by the similitude of a Trumpet; I heard behind me a great Voice, as of a Trumpet, Rev. 1. 10. and the first Voice which I heard, was as it were of a Trumpet, Rev. 4. 1.

But why is this sound as of a Trumpet, called The Trumpet of God? I answer, for the greatness of it; for its usual in the Hebrew Language for the setting forth of greatness, excellency, or superlativeness of a thing, to add the Name of God to the word, whereby the thing is signified; as Gen. 23. 6. A Prince of God, (i. e.) a Mighty Prince, Gen. 30. 8. With the wrestlings of God, (i. e.) with great wrestlings, Psal. 36. 6. Mountains of God, (i. e.) great mountains, Psal. 80. 10. Cedars of God, (i. e.) very high Cedars. So here, The Trump of God, (i. e.) A very great Sound, like the sound of a Trumpet. It is said in the Law, there were Thunders, and Lightnings, and a thick Cloud upon the Mount, and the Voice of the Trumpet exceeding Loud, so that all the People that was in the Camp Trembled; and if there was Trembling at the giving of the the Law, Oh what Trembling will be at the General Assize, when Sinners shall be condemned for breaking of it?

3. No sooner the shout made, but the Saints arise; it is true, the Saints that are alive need no Resurrection, but upon them will this Trumpet have its effect. Something like death shall cease upon them, and they shall be changed. The order of this is given in by the Apostle from the Lord;

^{1Thes. 4. 15, 16, 17} This we say unto you by the word of our Lord, that we which are alive, and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which are asleep, for the Lord himself shall descend from Heaven in a shout, with the Voice of the Archangel, and with the Trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive, and remain, shall be caught up together with them into the Clouds. The first that shall be called, are the Saints that sleep, and then the Saints that are alive shall be immediately changed. Oh what a day will this be? what a strange sight to see all the dead ever since the beginning of the World, rise out of their graves? for the Wicked, I believe, they shall rise like Toads from their holes, in a black, swarthy, ugly colour: A Question is amongst the Schools, whether Reprobates shall rise again with all their deformities which they had in this life? as some of them being blind, halt, lame, maimed, deaf, dumb, &c. Whether now they shall rise in the self-same condition? for my part, I conceive, that whereas God, the Author of Nature, will at that day restore humane nature, that therefore there shall be no defects of natural parts; certainly nothing shall be wanting in the Damned, which may impede the sense of torment in any part; now a defect of any member would hinder these universal torments that must cease on every part of the Bodies of the Damned in Hell; their Bodies therefore shall be whole, only the Bodies of such shall be foul, ugly, heavy, lumpish bodies, as opposed to the glorious qualities of the bodies of Saints; why, what bodies (you will say) have they? I Answer, glorious bodies: no sooner shall the bodies of the Saints arise, but they shall exceed

^{1Cor. 15 42, 43, 44} with singular qualities; They were sown in corruption; but they were raised in incorruption; they were sown in dishonour, but raised in glory; they were sown in weakness, but raised in power; they were sown natural bodies, but raised spiritual bodies. The Sun in its shinings, doth but shadow forth the glory of their bodies; and this will in some measure torment the Reprobates, to see the difference of their bodies, and the bodies of the Saints. O (will they say) yonder are they, whom we despised, and now are they honoured. See a world of Suns rising at once out of all parts of the Earth; sometimes we lived on Earth, and we never saw but one Sun rising in the East; but lo, millions of Suns on East, and West, and North, and South; O those are the glorious Saints of Heaven: see with what swift and agile bodies they are preparing to fly into the Air, to meet their

Lord and Saviour there; whilst in the mean time we rise with such heavy, dull, and deformed bodies, that we cannot mount. O what will become of us? why, this is the day of Resurrection. The Angels have been here to unseal our Graves, to roll away the stones, and at their shout, and sound of the Trumpet, our scattered dusts have met together: and lo, now we stand upon the Earth.

4. No sooner the Saints raised, and their souls and bodies re-united with excellent Majesty, but then shall all the Elect of God, from first to last, be gathered together: if you ask whence? and whither? I answer—

1. To the question, Whence? from the four Winds, from one end of Heaven to another. (i.e.) From all parts of the World, from East, and West, and North, and South, from one end of the Heaven to another; a Vulgar term, in regard of our sight; for in it self Heaven is round, and hath no end: the meaning is, that not one Saint in all the world, from Adam, to the last man shall be concealed, or lye hid; from the most hidden, inward, secret bosom of the earth all shall be gathered; howsoever their dusts may be scattered into a thousand thousand parts, yet the power of Christ shall restore all those dusts, and bring them together into their several compacted bodies.

2. To the question, Whither they shall be gathered? some say, to the Valley of Jehoshaphat, from that Text, Let the Heathen be weakened, and come up to the Valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge the Heathen round about; but I believe this Text hath reference to a particular Judgment of God upon Israels enemies which dwell round about Jerusalem, and not to the general day of Judgment. Others say, to Mount-Olivet from that Text, This same Jesus which is taken up from you into Heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into Heaven; then returned they unto Jerusalem from the Mount called Olivet. But I believe this Text speaks only of the manner how Christ shall come, and not of the place to which he shall come. Indeed 'tis not probable, that either the Valley of Jehoshaphat, or the Mount of Olivet, can be sufficient places to contain all the men that ever were, are, and shall be; and therefore, if such a thing can be determined, I should rather appeal to that Text, Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them (that are raised) in the Clouds to meet the Lord in the Air. When Christ was askt this very Question, Where Lord? whither shall the Saints be gathered? where shall the general Judgment be? He Answers, Where-soever the body is, thither will the Eagles be gathered together. By the body, Christ meant himself, and by the Eagles, Christ meant his Elect, because their youth is renewed as the Eagles; now the Elect must resort to Christ wheresoever He is; and the Apostle is express, that Christ is in the Air, and in the Clouds: and therefore thither must the Elect be gathered; they shall be caught up by the holy

Use. O my brethren, what sights are these! what changes, wonders, strange face of things will be this day? how is it that we are not as frequent in the meditation of this Summons as Jerom was, who as he thought, heard daily that sound, Arise ye dead and come to Judgment? methinks a sad and serious consideration of these passages might keep us close to Christ; come try a little, if in the hurrys of the day we are so distracted, that we cannot reach the spiritual part of a meditation, yet in the evening or morning when all is still, or in the night-season when all is quiet, then labour to prevent the day of doom; so realize it, as if then we saw Christ in the clouds, sending his Angels on this errand, Away, and bring hither all the men, and women in the world; and in the first place, gather my Saints together unto me, Adam and Abraham those Fathers of the world and of the faithful, let them see all their children, and let all their children see them, and bring them all to my Throne? awaken the world, let them, who have slept in their graves some thousand of years, be now roused, and raised. Imagine then, as if we heard the Trumpet of God sounded by the Angels of God, and as the sound of it waxed louder and louder, that we saw the Mountains skip like Rams, and the little Hills like young Sheep. That we saw all the graves in Churches, or Church-yards, in Fields, or Plains, or Seas fly open, that we saw all the bodies of the dead beginning to stir, and to stand upon their feet, and presently the Angels coming, and taking all the Saints upon their wings, and so flying with them through the air till they came to the Throne, and judgment-seat of Christ: is it possible that such a meditation should pass without some tincture of it on our spirits? if my ears shall hear that sound, and if my eyes shall see these sights, is it not time for me to lay these things to heart, that I may be found faithful and well-doing? as sure as I have this Book in my hand I must be one of those that shall hear the sound of the Trumpet, and away I must from the mouth of my grave, where ever I shall be buried, to the cloud where Christ doth sit; come then, how would I rise? as foul as a toad? or as an Angel of God? O my God! set this home on my soul! O where's my Lamp? and where's my Oyl? are all ready; and am I ready, furnished, and prepared to meet the Lord in the Air? Christians! if we have any life in us, let us act and realize this to the life; O this would keep us close to Christ, and to the Banner of Christ; who would not march under this Banner, and adhere to him, that but reads over these summons of souls at the last dreadful day.

SECT. IV.

Of Christ and the Saints meeting at the Judgment day.

4. FOR Christ and the Saints meeting at the judgment day; no sooner are the Saints lifted up, and set before the Judge, but these things follow. —

1. They look, and gaze, and dart their beams, and reflect their glories on each other. Oh the communications! Oh the darting of beams betwixt Christ and his Saints! look as when two admirable persons, two lovers meet together, their eyes sparkle, they look on, as if they would look through one another. So Christ and his Saints at first meeting, they look on, as if they would look through one another. And such is the effect of these looks, that they give a lustre to each other by their Looks. Did not Moses face shine when he had been with God? and shall not the faces of the elect glitter and shine when Christ also looks on them? nor stays it there; but as they shine by Christ, so shall their shine reflect on Christ, and give a glory to Christ, and this I take to be the meaning of the Apostle, That when Christ shall come, he shall be glorified in his Saints; not only in himself, but in his Saints also; whose glory as it comes from him, so it redounds also to him, For of him, and through him, and to him are all things. 2Thes. 1. 10.
Rom. 11. 36.

2. They admire at the infinite glory, and beauty, and dignity, and excellency that is in Christ. The glory they reflect on him is nothing to the glory that is in him. Oh when these stars, the Saints, shall but look upon Christ the Son of righteousness, they exceedingly admire. So the Apostle, When he shall come, he shall be glorified in his Saints, and he shall be admired in all them that believe. 2Thes. 1. 10. All that believe shall break out into admiration of Jesus Christ: they shall at the first sight observe such an excellency in Jesus Christ, as that they shall be infinitely taken with it: here we speak of Christ, and in speaking we admire; but how will they admire, when they shall not only speak or hear, but see and behold him who is the Express image of God, and the brightness of his Father's glory? Heb. 1. 3. O the lustres that he casts forth each way! is not his very body more sparkling than the Diamond before the Sun? yea, more than the Sun it self now shining at noon-day? how should the Saints but wonder at this sight? O there is more beauty, and glory in Jesus Christ than ever their thoughts or imaginations could possibly reach; there is more weight of sweetness, joy, and delight in Jesus Christ, than either the seeing Eye, or hearing Ear, or the vast understanding Heart (which can multiply and add still to any former thoughts) can possibly conceive: every soul will cry out then, I believed to see much glory in Jesus Christ, when ever I saw him; I had some twilight, or Moon-light glances of 1 Cor. 2. 9.

Christ

Christ on Earth; but O blind I! O narrow I! that could never have Faith, Opinion, Thought, or Imagination to Fathom the thousand-thousand part of the worth, and incomparable excellency that I now see in him. Why, this causeth admiration, when we see more, than ever we could expect; the Saints shall then cry out, and say, I see more ten Thousand times more than ever I expected; I see all the Beauty of God put forth in Christ, I see the substantial reflection of the Fathers Light and Glory in Jesus Christ, I see Thousands of Excellencies in Jesus Christ that never were revealed to me before. This is the very Nature of admiration; it is ever wondering or admiring at some new and strange thing: the Glory of Christ will then exceed all former apprehension. O they admire to see the King in such a Beauty, they admire to see the Judge in such a Glittering and Glorious Robe of Majesty, they admire, and they cannot but admire.

3. They Adore, and Magnifie the Grace and Glory of Jesus Christ; as it is said of the twenty four Elders, that they fell down before him that sate on the Throne, and worshipped him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their Crowns before the Throne, saying, Thou art worthy O Lord to receive Glory, and Honor and Power, for thou hast Created all things, and for thy Pleasure they are and were Created. So all the Saints, now advanced to come up to Christ, and to stand before the Throne, they fall down before Christ, and they Worship him that lives for ever, shouting and singing about Jesus Christ, and setting out his Glory, Grace, and Goodness.

Rev. 5. 10. After this I beheld (saith John) and lo a great multitude, which no Man could number, of all Nations, and Kindred, and People, and Tongues stood before the Throne, and before the Lamb—and and Cried with a loud Voice, saying, Salvation to our God, which sitteth upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb; and all the Angels stood round about the Throne, and about the Elders, and the four Beasts, and fell before the Throne on their Faces, and worshipped God, saying, Amen; Blessing and Glory, and Wisdom, and Thanksgiving, and Honour, and Power, and Might be unto our God for ever and ever Amen.

Rev. 7. 9. 10. 11. 12. Saints and Angels will both give Glory to Jesus Christ that day; every elect Man will then acknowledge, here is Christ that shed his Blood for me, here is the Saviour that laid down his Life for me, here is the Sacrifice that gave himself a Propitiation for me, here is the Person that Mediated, and Interceded, and made Peace for me, here is the Redeemer that Delivered, and Redeemed me from the Wrath to come; and then they begin those Hallelujahs, that never shall have end: Hallelujah, and again Hallelujah; and Amen Hallelujah; for the Marriage of the Lamb is come, and his Wife hath made her self ready.

Rev. 19. 7. 4. Christ welcomes them into his Glorious presence; if the Father could receive his Prodigal but Repenting with Huggs and Kisses, how will Christ now receive his Saints, when they come as a Bride to the Solemnization of the Marriage; his very Heart springs (as I may say) at the sight of his Bride; no sooner he sees her, and Salutes her, but he welcomes her with such Words as these: O my Love, my Dove, my Fair one, come now and enjoy thy Husband, many a thought I have had of thee, before I made the World, I spent my infinite Eternal thoughts on thy Salvation, when the World began I gave thee a promise, that I would betroth thee unto me in Righteousness, and in Judgment; in Loving-kindness, in Mercy, and in Faithfulness; It was I that for thy sake was Incarnate, and Lived, and Died, and Rose again, and Ascended, and since my ascension that have been Interceding for thee, and making ready the Bride-chamber where thou and I must Live, for ever and ever: and now I come hither into the Clouds, to meet thee more than half the way; and my meaning is to take thee by the Hand, and to bring thee to my Father; now do I take thee for my own; O my Sister, my Spouse, thou art as dear to me as my own dear Heart; come, see into my Bosom, see here Love written in the Golden Letters of free-grace; come near, for I must have thee with me; and I will never more be so strange to thee as to this Day; sometimes thy sins have made a wall of Partition between me and thee; sometimes I withdrew and was gone, and I hid my self beyond the Curtains; and for a time thou hast layen hid in the Closet of the Grave; but now wee'l never part more; anon I will bring thee to my Father, and I will say to him, Father, behold here my Spouse that I have Married unto my self; in the mean time welcome to thy Jesus, I have purchased thee with my Blood, I have paid dear for thee: and now I'll wear thee as a Crown and Ornament for ever.

5. Christ sets them on his right Hand; Upon thy right Hand doth stand the Queen in Gold of Ophir. This is the sign of Christ's Love, and respect to his Saints; when he himself Ascended up into Heaven, then said the Father to him; Son, sit thou down at my right Hand; and no sooner the Saints are ascended up to Christ, but he speaks the same to them, Sit thou down at my right Hand; Christs Entertains them, as God the Father Entertained him, he at the right Hand of God, and they at the right Hand of Christ. And herein is set forth the great Exaltation of the Saints; as Christ being set at God's right Hand, God highly Exalted him, and gave him a Name above every Name, so now are the Saints Highly Exalted by Jesus Christ, now are they filled with unmatchable perfections, now is the πληρωμα, the fulness of perfection, and fulness of Honour and Glory conferred upon them; Upon his right Hand is set the Queen in Gold of Ophir, (i. e.) in the Best, Richest, Finest Gold; the Lord now puts upon his Saints Heavens Glory; he adorns them with all his Ornaments fit for the Marriage day: and indeed indeed here is the beginning of the solemnity of the marriage of the Lamb; not but that the contract was before, but the solemnity was reserved for this day, and all the glory of this day is for nothing else but to set out the solemnity of the marriage. As the Bridegroom on the day of nuptials comes forth in his glory, and as the Bride on the marriage-day comes forth in her best array; and as the parents, friends, and servants, and all appear on the marriage-day in as much glory as they can; so Christ on this day comes forth in his glory, with all his Angels in their glory; and the Saints, the Lambs wife, The Kings Daughter is all glorious without and within. Though Stars may lose their shining when the Sun ariseth, yet the glory of the Saints shall be no less, because of the Sun of righteousness, but rather more. This is the day that Christ shall honour his Saints before all the world; (come will he say) and sit you down at my right hand; as a Shepherd divideth his Sheep from the Goats, so will I separate you from wicked reprobates; why you are they for whom the eternal counsels of my Father did work, you are they in whom I am now to be glorified for ever; and therefore now will I exalt, and advance, and honour you; sit here, or stand here on my right hand: O come, come hither to the right hand of your Saviour.

6. Hereupon Christ fully, and actually joys in them; and they in him; he joys in them, because now he sees of the travail of his soul; he sees the issue of all his doings and sufferings here on earth, he sees now the great work he hath brought about, to wit, the glory of his Saints; and he cannot but rejoyce therein. As a man that makes a work that is very curious, and glorious, he takes abundance of delight to look upon it; when God made the world, he look't upon what he made, and he saw it was good, and he delighted in it: so Christ looks on his Saints, and when he sees what he hath done, in raising so poor a worm to so high an excellency, he takes infinite delight therein; now he sees that he hath attained his end in that great design, and deepest counsels that he had before the world: he was then resolved to save a number of sinners, and to bring them at last to himself that they might behold him in his glory, and manifest the riches of his grace; and to that purpose hath he still been carrying on the great work of souls salvation as we have heard; and now that he sees it accomplished, and fulfilled in them, he must needs delight: In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, fear thou not, and to Zion, let not thy hands be faint; for the Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty, he will save thee, he will rejoyce over thee with joy, he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing.

And as he joys in them, so they cannot but rejoyce in him; as he delights in their glory, so they cannot but delight in his glory: are they not at Christ's right hand? and is not that the place of pleasure, the Paradise of God? In thy presence is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand are pleasures for ever- more: The very setting them on Christ's right hand, is the beginning of Heavens joy. The presence of Christ makes joy, exceeding joy, Jude 24. faith Jude; oh but what joy? what fulness of joy, what exceeding joy will it be to be set at Christ's right hand? now begins that joy, that never, never shall have end. O the complacency which the blessed feel in their seeing, knowing, loving, and being beloved of Jesus Christ. O my Christ let me have tribulation here, let me here spend my days in sorrow, and my breath in sighings; punish me here, cut me in pieces here, burn me here, so that I may there be placed at thy right hand; for then joy will come, and sorrow will vanish; sorrow is but for a night, this night of life; but joy will come in the morning of the resurrection, and it never shall be night again.

SECT. V.

Of Christ's sentencing his Saints.

5. FOR Christ sentencing of his Saints; no sooner are they set on his right hand, but he prepares for sentence; in the opening of which we must consider, 1. The preparative. 2. The sentence it self,

1. The preparative before sentence will be some exploration or trial of the parties to be sentenced, as—

1. The Book must be opened. And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God, and the Books were opened, and another Book was opened which is the Book of life. It is spoken after the manner of men, in whose publick Judgments are produced all the writings of the process, informations, depositions of witnesses, to shew that all actions, even the most secret ones shall then be rehearsed and made manifest: Augustine thinks these Books to be the Books of the Old and New Testament, wherein all things either to be done, or omitted, are prescribed by God: and then shall these Books be opened, because according to them shall sentence be given; In that day God shall Judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my Gospel. Origen, and all most all with him, think these Books to be the Books of our consciences, which now are shut up, and concealed from men; but then shall be made manifest to all the world: whatever these Books are, we find here one Book opened which is proper to the Saints, called the Book of Life; This Book contains in it the names of all that are elected from first to last; Thou John, and thou Joseph, and thou Jude, and thou Mary, and thou Elizabeth, &c. you are all Book'd down, there is the particularity, and there is the certainty; Your names are written in Heaven, rejoyce in it; Oh what is the joy of Saints when once they see this Book opened, and their names inrolled, engravened there in letters of glory. This very Book clears it to me, that God from

Rev. 13. 8. — 17. 8. are not written in the Book of Life of the Lamb, from the foundation of the World. On

Rev. 3. 5. the other side, He that overcometh, the same shall be written in the Book of Life, and I will not blot out his Name, but I will confess his Name before my Father, and his Angels. This is the day when that Book of Life shall be opened, and Christ shall read the Names of every Elect person before God and Angels; not that Christ needs a Book, or indeed reads a Name, but that his Election stands so firm, that he knows every predestinated Saint as well, as we know their names, whom for our memories we commit unto our books: and then he will so honour his Saints, that he will publish their names to all the world.

2. All the actions, demeanours, graces, duties, and (it may be) sins of Saints shall be produced and laid open: the holy Ghost tells us, that the Dead were judged out of those things which were written in the Books. It appears hence, that not only names, but things were written, and these things were produced, and accordingly they were Judged.

1. As to evil things, unfruitful works of darkness. It is a Question, and I dare not be too positive in it, viz. Whether the Sins of Gods People shall be manifest at the day of Judgment? Some are for the Negative, because God in his Promises speaks so expressly, Of forgiving Iniquities, of Remembering them no more, of Blotting them out, of throwing them into the bottom of the Sea, of casting them behind his Back: In which respect, say they, the Godly are said Not to come into Judgment. I suppose this last Text is ill urged; for by Judgment, is not meant discussion, but condemnation; and in our best Translations so it is rendred: others are for the Affirmative, upon these grounds; 1. Because many of the Godly and Wicked mens Sins are mingled together, and there cannot be a Judgment of discussion, preceding that of Condemnation, unless Godly mens Sins are also produced.

2. Because it is spoken generally in respect of all sorts, that the Books were opened. By which Books most understand the Consciences of men; and by the Opening of those Books, they understand the manifesting, clearing, and discovering of Consciences at that General Day. 3. Because the Scriptures are expressly for the Affirmative; not but that those Texts are Truths, that Sins are Forgiven, Blotted Out, Thrown away, to be Remembered no More, (i. e.) as to Condemnation; but as for exploration or discussion, the Lord

Mat. 12. 36. speaks universally, that of every Idle Word that men Speak, they shall give an Account thereof at the day of Judgment. If the ballance weigh down on this side (for my part I am not peremptory, but shall easily submit to the spirits of the Prophets) yet this manifestation shall not be for the shame, grief, trouble, ignominy, or confusion of the godly; but only for the setting up of God's Justice, and that the goodness and free grace of God in Christ may be made more illustrious: how will Christ then be exalted, when all the world shall see his righteousness and goodness, his truth and mercy, now again meeting together, and kissing each other? it was so at his first coming, and it will be so at his second coming; then shall his justice and mercy, his righteousness and goodness be manifested to all; in that by his own Merits, notwithstanding their Sins, he will bring all his Saints to his Heavenly glory.

2. As for good things, whether good works, duties or graces, there is no question, but all these will be that day produced, and laid open.

1. We see Christ enumerating the good Works of them on his right hand; for I was an hungry, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; sick, and ye visited me; in prison, and ye came unto me. It is true, in this Catalogue we find

Mat. 25. 35, 36.

nothing of Faith, but all of Works; but certainly Faith is included, as the life of the Tree is included in the Fruit; not only, nor principally are Works here mentioned for the goodness of the Work considered in it self; but as these Works did express our faith and love to Jesus Christ, in that by Faith we could see Christ in a poor beggar or prisoner, and could love Jesus Christ in these poor, better than all our worldly goods, or liberties. I do not wonder that Paul adviseth his Corinthians, See that ye abound in this you brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all towards each other aboundeth. Christians! if we did but consider, that every duty done to God or Man, that every penny given to a poor naked Saint, that every cup of cold water given to a Prophet in the name of a Prophet, should not lose his reward, but this day should be reckoned up, or drawn (as it were) into a full Inventory;

that are Rich in this World——that they do good, that they be rich in good Works, ready to Distribute, willing to Communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good Foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on Eternal Life. You to whom God hath given the

the riches of this World, as you would meet Christ with comfort, learn this Lesson; consider whether of these two reckonings will be more comfortable at that day; Item, So much given to such and such a religious use? or so much given towards such a Feast, and for the entertainment of such brave gallants? so much to promote the Gospel? or so much at Dice, Cards, Horse-races? if one should tell you, that either you must feed Christ in the poor, or you must starve in Hell; you must either cloath naked Christ in the poor, or you must be laid naked to the fiery indignation of the Lord for ever, oh what strictness would you call this? but I recollect my self; if Christ set you at his right hand, he will then recount all your charities, and all your labours of love to the Saints: you that are poor, and had nothing to give, he will tell you of your good works, if it was no more, but at such a time, you cast a mite into his Treasury, and at such a time you carryed a Letter for the Lord Jesus; he will produce and commend these pittances of your poor charities to all the world.

2. Nor only good works to man; but all the Saints duties to God shall come in remembrance. Oh then it will be known who served the Lord in spirit and truth, and who did not; then Men and Angels shall know, such a day this poor Saint performed such a spiritual service; every prayer in publick or private, every tear shed for sin, every sob, or sigh, every spiritual Meditation, or self-examination, every glance, ejaculation, or looking unto Jesus, shall be recounted by Jesus: It was said of Cornelius, that as well his prayers to God, as his alms to men came up for a memorial before God; certainly every duty in reference to the first table is booked in Heaven, and at this day the book being opened, it will appear, that such a Prayer thou madest such a morning and such an evening in thy closet; and now will Christ say, Did not I tell thee, that if thou wouldst pray to thy Father in secret, then he that saw thee in secret, should reward thee openly? why now shalt thou have thy reward in a full view, I will divulge here all thy secret duties to Men and Angels; all the world shall know it, thy wandrings I told them, and thy tears I bottled them; lo here, are they not all written in my Book?

Nor only duties, but graces shall now be rehearsed; thy Knowledge, Faith, Hope, Love, spiritual Joy; thy Fear, obedience, Repentance, Humility, Meekness, Patience, Zeal, Perseverance shall be fully discovered; time was that in the incense of such a Prayer many sweet spices were burnt together; therein was Faith working by Love; therein was Humility, therein was Patience in submitting to God's will and pleasure, therein was Hope of a gracious answer in Gods due time, therein was Holiness, brokenness of Heart, and love to others, &c. Time was (saith Christ)

Cant. 5.1 that I gathered my myrr with my spices, that I eat my honey-comb with my honey, that I both accepted and delighted my self in thy heavenly graces; I shall never forget how thou didst ravish my heart, my sister, my spouse; how thou dost ravish my heart with one of thine eyes, and with one chain of thy neck. Why, thus shall the Lord set forth, and tell all the world what gracious children he had; then will appear indeed the Meekness of Moses, the Faith of Abraham, the Patience of Job, the Zeal of Phineas, the Love of Magdalen; and according to the measure of grace conferred upon thee, Christ will set thee out; We commend the graces of such and such Saints at their death, but oh let Christ blazon me, and his graces in me at the resurrection-day.

Thus far for the Exploration or tryal before sentence.

2. For the sentence it self, then shall the King say to them on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom Mat. 25. 24. prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

Every word here is full of life and joy; 1. Come] this is the Kings invitation of his Saints to his Court; he had summoned them before to his presence, and now they are about him, he will not part with them, they must come a little nearer yet, they must go with him into his presence chamber; the mansions are ready, the Supper of the Lamb is ready, and now he begins the solemn invitation to his bride, Come. 2. Come ye blessed of my Father] Christ blessed them when he went up to Heaven, and whiles yet on earth he pronounced them blessed many a time; Blessed be ye poor; Blessed are ye that hunger; Blessed are ye that weep; but now he calls them the blessed of his Father; not only Christ, but God the Father hath ever looked upon them as his Children; it is the Father's will as well as Christ's, that they should be blessed, Ye blessed of my Father. 3. Inherit the Kingdom] Christ had told them before, It is your Father's pleasure to give you the Kingdom; but then they were only as servants, or as children under age, but now they are heirs, Heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; and now they are come to full age, To the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ; and therefore they must have the inheritance in possession, they must all be Kings; this very word speaks them Kings, and makes them Kings; it is the solemn coronation of the Saints. It is the anointing, the setting of the Crown upon the heads of the Saints; Henceforth there is laid up for me a Crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not for me only, but unto them also that love his appearing. 4. Inherit the Kingdom, prepared for you] as Tophet was prepared of old, so was this Kingdom prepared of old; it was the first creature that ever God made, In the beginning God created heaven; Gen. 1. 1. his first work was to make Heaven for himself and his Saints to dwell in; he prepared it for them, and then he prepared them for it: but why for them? were not the Angels the first creatures that possessed it? nay, were they not created in it, or together with it? yes, but yet the Angels are not properly the heirs, sons, members, spouse of God and Christ, as the Saints are; the Angels are but ministring spirits, and the servants of the Bride-groom; but the Saints are the Bride her self, heirs, and co-heirs with Christ. 5. Prepared for you from the foundation of the world.] This was the great design of God and and Christ from all Eternity; before the Foundations of the World, and at the first stone laid, and ever since, they have been carrying on this mighty Work: it is not a business of Yesterday only; No, no; the Eternal thoughts of God have been upon it,

He hath chosen us in him before the Foundation of the World.

Oh what thoughts are in Saints, when this sentence is propounded! Oh what joy enters into them now they are to enter into their Masters joy? methinks if it were possible that tears could be in a Glorified Estate, the Saints should not see Christ reach out a Crown to set it on their Heads, but they should weep, and hold away their Heads, but Christ will have it so; This honour have all the Saints; Praise ye the Lord.

SECT. VI.

Of Christ and the Saints judging the rest of the World.

6. FOR Christ and his Saints judging the world: no sooner shall the Saints be Sentenced, Justified, Acquitted, Anointed, Crowned; but presently they must be Enthronized, and sit with Jesus Christ to judge the World. In the unfolding of this we may observe these Particulars.

1. As Christ is on a Throne, so now must the Elect be set on Thrones; To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my Throne. Thrones are for Kings and Judges; and in that Christ hath now lifted up his Saints to this Condition, he will have them sit with him as so many Judges, and as so many Kings; or if it be more honour to have Thrones by themselves, than to sit with Christ in his Throne; John in his vision saw many Thrones; And I saw Thrones, and they sat upon them, and Judgment was given unto them. And Christ himself told his Apostles, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me in the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit in the Throne of his Glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve

Thrones, Judging the twelve Tribes of Israel. Hence some Argue that amongst all the Saints, the Apostles shall have their Thrones seated next to Christ; howsoever the rest shall not be deprived of their Thrones; for not only twelve Thrones, but twelve and twelve are set about the Throne of Christ; And round about the Throne were four and twenty Thrones (or Seats) and upon the Throne I saw four and twenty Elders sitting cloathed with white Raiment, and they had on their Heads Crowns of Gold. Only four and twenty Thrones, and four and twenty Elders are numbred, but thereby is represented the whole Church of Christ; It is plain enough, that all the Saints shall appear plainly in the Glory of Christ's Kingdom, having Thrones with him in the Air, during the time of his Judgment.

2. The Goats on the left Hand shall then be called to receive their Doom. No sooner the Saints Enthronized, but then shall Christ say, Ye Blessed Angels bring hither all those mine Enemies, who have said I shall not rule over them, that I may bruise them with my Iron Mace, and break them in pieces like a Potters Vessel. O the fear and trembling that will now seize on reprobates! do but see the case of Prisoners, when the Judge speaks that Word, Come Jailors, bring hither those Prisoners to the Bar. But alas! what comparison can we make to suite with the condition of these Reprobates? now shall their Hearts fail them for fear; now shall they seek Death (oh how gladly would they Die again!) but shall not find it; now shall they cry to Rocks and Mountains, Fall on us, and hide us from the Face of Him that sitteth on the Throne, and from the Wrath of the Lamb. As a Prisoner in a desperate Case had rather remain in his sordid stinking Dungeon, than coming into the open Air for execution; so the Reprobates newly raised from the Earth, would fain return again into the Earth, glad to remain, though not on the face of it with Pleasure, yet in the Bowels of it with rottenness and solitude; like Malefactors pressing to Death, they cry out for more weight, Hills cover us, Mountains fall upon us, yet more weight, more Rocks, more Mountains; hide us, press us, cover us, dispatch us. But all in vain; the command is out, Angels and Devils will force them to the Bar, for the Lord hath spoken it; Those mine Enemies which would not that I should Reign over them, bring them hither.

3. They shall look on Christ, and his Saints, now sitting on their Thrones. As Prisoners that stand at the Bar in the Face of the Judge, so must these Reprobates look the Judge and all his Assessors in the very Face.

1. For the Judge, they shall look on him; Behold he cometh with Clouds, and every Eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him. We heard before, that no sooner Christ in the Clouds but they saw him then; as the Prisoners that see the Judge riding to his Judgment-seat; Oh but now they shall see him in the Judgment-seat ready with sparkling Eyes, and thundring Voice to speak their Sentence. Prisoners at the Bar must not turn their backs on the Judge, when he begins their Sentence; no more must reprobates; They must see him in Majesty whom they would not deign to look upon in humility; that by so much more they may feel his Power, by how much more they derided his weakness. Oh the difference betwixt Christ's first coming in the Flesh, and in his second coming in the Clouds; then he came in Poverty, now in Majesty; then in Humility, now in Glory; then with Poor Shepherds, now with Mighty Angels; then the contempt of Nations, now the Terror of the World; then Crowned with Thorns, now with Majesty; then Judged by one Man, now Judging all Men; then as a Lamb, now as a Lion; Oh

horror to conceive! how will the sight of this Judge amaze the wicked? and the rather because they shall see him whom they have pierced. Is not this the Aggravation of their terror? conceive the guilty man-slayer coming to his tryal, will not the red Robes of his Judge make his Heart bleed for his blood-shed? doth not that Crimson Cloath present a monstrous hew before his Eyes? O then what sight is this, when the Man slain sits in the Judgment-seat? the rosy Wounds of our Saviour still bleeding (as it were) in the Prisoners presence? well may they hang their Heads, but they shall not shut their Eyes; They shall see him, faith the Text; yea, they also which pierced him shall see him. This very sight will be as convincing, as if they heard Christ say, Thou art the Man that didst murder me, thou art the Man hast pierced me, this Wound, this Skar, and this Print of the Nails in my Hands and Feet were thy very doings in thy Sinning against me. And who can tell but Christ may speak in some such manner as this! Come all you on the left Hand, prepare you for the Sentence; I am them and whom you did Crucifie afresh; I am he whose Person you despised, whose Commands you disobeyed, whose Ministers you abused; whose Servants you hated, whose Offers you rejected; and of whom you said, There is no Beauty in him that we should desire him. Whatsoever he shall say, this I believe, that Christ's sweet Face will be most terrible to the wicked at that day. Oh it will cut them to see him in the Judgment-seat whom they basely shut out of Doors, preferring a lust before his presence; then will they begin with extreamest Grief and bitterness of spirit to sigh and say, Oh, he that I look upon, and must look upon, and cannot choose but look upon: he whom I now see sitting on yonder flaming, white, and Glorious Throne, is Jesus Christ, the Mighty God, the Prince of Peace, that true Messiah, whose precious Blood was poured out as Water upon the Earth, to save his People from their sins: it is he, yea, the self same he that many a time while I lived on Earth, invited and wooed me by his faithful Ministers, that besought and entreated me with tears of dearest Love, to leave my Lusts, and to bid the Devil adieu; that knocked again and again at the Door of my Heart for entrance, offering himself to be my al-sufficient, and everlasting Husband, telling me that if I would but have embraced him, at this time should have been the solemnity of the Marriage, and now he would have set an Immortal Crown of bliss and Glory upon my Head with his own Almighty Hand; but I alas! like a wilful desperate wretch forsooke my own Mercy, Judged my self unworthy of everlasting Life, and wretchedly and cruelly against my own Soul, persecuted all the means which should have sanctified me, and all the Ministers which should have saved me, as Instruments in the Hands of Christ; and now happy I, if I were an hundred thousand Millions of Miles distant from this sight of Jesus Christ: oh that those Eyes in my Head were holes again, as they were but even now when I was rotting, or rotten in the Grave! Oh that I could turn any way aside from this Glorious sight! Oh that I were a Stone, or Tree, or Air, or any other thing that wanted Eyes! Oh that I had no Eye within, nor understanding faculty to conceive of Christ, or to know Christ Jesus as my Judge, now ready to bid me go to Hell! certainly these will be the woful wishes of the wicked, when they shall look on Christ as sitting on his Throne of Judgment.

2. For the Saints, they shall look on them. Indeed, they sit so near their Saviour, that they cannot look on him, but they must look on them; the Saints are on their Thrones, either in the Throne or about the Throne of Jesus Christ, and the Reprobates stand in a direct opposite line to the Saints, so that their eyes cannot be off them; It is said in the parable, that the rich man being in Hell, He lift up his eyes, and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom; but the distance being so great as Heaven and Hell, that cannot be literally understood, but only parabolically; it is otherwise here, for howsoever the separation be already made, yet neither is the sentence, nor execution past upon the Reprobates; and indeed as yet, both the Saints and Reprobates are in the Air; the one on the right hand, and the other on the left hand of Jesus Christ, and therefore they cannot but have a full view of each other. In the Apocriphal Book there is a plain description of this view, *Then shall the righteous man stand in great boldness before the face of such as have afflicted him, and made no account of his Labours; and when they see it they shall be troubled with terrible fear, and shall be amazed at the strangeness of his salvation, so far beyond all that they looked for; and they repenting and groaning for anguish of Spirit, shall say within themselves, this is he whom we had sometimes in a derision, and a proverb of reproach; we fools accounted his life madness, and his end to be without honour; how is he numbred among the children of God, and his lot is amongst the Saints? Here is a sight that will trouble and amaze the wicked, that those who sometimes were their footstools should now be on Thrones; that poor Lazarus who lay at the gates of that certain rich man, should now shine like a Star near the Sun of Righteousness; that they who were reproached, reviled, massacred, murdered by them, should now be their Judges, joyning with Jesus Christ to sentence them to Hell. Oh who can conceive the terrible thoughts of these men's hearts! Now the World cannot help them, their old Companions cannot help them, the Saints neither can, nor will; only the Lord Jesus can; but Oh! There is the soul-killing misery, he will not; *Ye Men, and Devils (faith Christ) joint-heirs of Hell, fit fuel for eternal fire, look on us in our Thrones, time was we could not have a look from you; Christ and Christians were an abhorrency of spirit unto you, you trod us under foot, but now we are got above you; oh see the vast difference betwixt us and you; look on us, look on me and my Saints! See us on our Thrones, see us glittering in glory; and be confounded and amazed for ever.

4. A particular strict account shall be then required, and given. Of what you will say?
I Answer—

1. Of sins: Come, (will Christ say) Now confess all your sins before all the world; time was that you concealed your sins, but now every sin shall be laid open before God, Angels, and Men; and now is the black Book of their Consciences opened, wherein appears all their sins original and actual; of Omission and Commission. For omissions of duties all those shall be discovered. Christ hungry, and I gave him no meat; Christ thirsty, and I gave him no drink; Christ a stranger, and I lodged him not; Christ naked, and I clothed him not; Christ sick, and in prison, and I visited him not. And for commissions of evils, all those shall be discovered. These and these sins I committed in my childhood, youth, ripe age, old age: These were my gross sins, Blasphemy, Perjury, Idolatry, Robbery, Drunkenness, Uncleaness, Prophaneness, &c. and these were my less sins, anger, hatred, envy, distrust, impatience, pride, presumption, contention, derision, inconstancy, hypocrisie, &c. Oh the numberless number of evil thoughts, words, and deeds that now are laid open. In the black Book is not only written all sins done, but all such sins as were intended and purposed to be done; all the projects of the heart, though never acted, must now be discovered. Men little think of this; if I should tell you of such designs that died in your hearts, and never came out to light; you would be now ready to say, Tush, I never did such a thing, I only intended it, or had some thoughts about it, and what then? Why then those very thoughts, secrets, purposes, projects shall come to light; or if there be any thing more hidden or secret, as the very bent, and frame of your hearts, the very inclinations of your souls to this or that evil, shall then be manifest to all the World. Nay, yet more, such sins, as by the finners themselves were never took notice of, either before, or at, or after the commission of them, shall this day come out. Conscience is such a kind of private Notary or Secretary, that it keeps Notes, or Records of all Acts and Deeds, whether you observe them or no; Conscience hath the Pen of a ready Writer, and takes in short-hand, and in an illegible Character, from your mouths as fast as you speak, and from your hearts as fast as you contrive. Consciences writing (saith one) is not now legible; as that which is written with the juice of a Lemmon is not to be read by day-light, but against the fire by night you may read it; so consciences writing cannot now be read, but in that day when Heaven and Earth are set on fire, this book shall be opened, and the cypher be discovered. Oh what a day will this be, when not a sin committed by any Reprobate from the beginning of the World, but now it shall be rehearsed.

2. As an account of all sins, so an account of all temporal gifts which God hath imparted to Reprobates, must now be given. Some have the gifts of the World; as Riches, Honours, Places of Authority; others have the gifts of the body, as health, strength, beauty, life; others have the gifts of the mind, as understanding, wisdom, policy, learning; now of all these gifts they must give an account. Come you that are rich (saith Christ) render you an account of your Stewardship; how have you spent your riches? The like will he say to the honourable, and to those in places of authority; Oh remember you were in authority, and office, and place, but what service did you to me, or my members? You had wisdom, and learning, and knowledge, and understanding conferred upon you, but what good had the Church or Common-Wealth by it? The like will he say to others according to the Talents bestowed on them, You excelled in strength, beauty, health of body, length of days; and now tell me, and publish it to all the world, how were these improved? I believe many a sad answer will be given to Christ of these things, riches mis-spent, and health mis-spent, and wisdom, policy, learning, gifts, and parts mis-spent; O consider it! If the Factor after many years spent in foreign Countries, at last returns home without his reckonings, who will not blame him for his negligence? But when his Master calls him to account, and he finds nothing but a Bill of Expences, this in Courting, that in Feasting: Who laughs not at so fond a reckoning? Thus many pass the time of their life as a time of mirth, then when they return to their Lord again, behold all their accounts are sins, their profits vanities.

3. I shall add one thing more; not only of Gifts Temporal, but of all Blessings Spiritual, though but tendred, and offered, must all give an account. Oh the sad accounts that many a soul will make of these things! Methinks I hear some wicked wretch confessing thus to Christ; True Lord, I lived at such a time when the Sun of the Gospel shone bright in my face; and in such a place where all was Goshen; I lived under such a ministry, who set before me, life and death; many and many a powerful, and searching Sermon have I heard; any one passage whereof (if I had not wickedly and wilfully forsaken my own mercy) might have been unto me the beginning of the new Birth, and everlasting bliss. Sometimes in the use of the means I felt stirrings or strong workings in my heart, and then I was fully purposed to have been another man, to have cleaved to Christ, and to have forsook the World; I was almost resolved to have been wholly for God, I was almost persuaded to be a real Christian; Oh what thoughts were in my heart when such a faithful Minister pressed the truth home? Methinks every Sermon I heard then, is now a preaching again; methinks I hear still the voice of the Minister, methinks I see still his tears dropping down his cheeks; Oh how fresh is the reproof, admonition, exhortation of such, and such a Preacher now in my mind? Oh how earnestly did he intreat me! With what love and tender compassion did he beseech me: How did his Bowels yearn over me! How strongly did he convince me, that all was not well with my sin-sick soul! How plainly did he rip up all my sores! And open to me all my secrets, and my whole heart! But alas, within a while I made a jest of all, I hardened my heart against all, I stifled all his Convictions, I shut my eyes against his discoveries; I cared neither for the Minister, nor any thing he said, or did. And yet

yet here is not all, not only the Ministers of Christ, but the Spirit of Christ sometimes speaks to my heart; I remember at such a time Christ himself (as it were) condescended, and bowed the Heavens, and came down to intreat me for my souls health; oh the strivings of the Spirit of Christ, as if he had been loath to have took a denial! O Christ, I remember thy words, when thou cryedst to me, open sinner, open thy heart to thy Saviour, and I will come in, and sup with thee, and thou with me. Why sinner, are thy Lusts better than I? Thy Carnal Pleasures better than I? Thy worldly Commodities better than I? Why sinner, what dost thou mean? How long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee? O take pity on thy Jesus! For here I stand, and wait at the door of thy heart, and my head is filled with the dew, and my locks with the drops of the night. But alas! I resisted Christ and his Spirit; O thou Judge and Saviour of all thine Elect, I dealt churlishly with thee, I tired out thy patience, I gave thee a repulse, I told thee I had entertained other lovers, and I would have none of thee; I trod on counsel, I trampled thy precious blood under my feet; and now I am expecting no other but to eat the fruit of my own way. Now mayest thou accomplish thy Word, because I set at naught all thy counsels, and would none of thy reproof, therefore thou mayest laugh at my calamity, and mock now my fear cometh. Lo, here the confessions of sins. Every thing now comes out, for Christ will have it so, as a preparative to his doom upon them.

5. Christ and his Saints proceed to sentence. First, Christ the chief Judge shall pronounce it, depart from me ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels, every word breaths out nothing but fire and brimstone, vengeance and woe; to depart from that glorious presence of Christ were Hell enough, but they must go with a curse; nor only so, but into fire; and that must be everlasting; and therein they shall have no other Company, or Comforters, but wicked Devils, and they insulting over them with hellish spight, and stinging Exprobations.

Give me leave a little to enlarge upon these words. No sooner Christ begins the sentence, Depart from me; but methinks I imagine the Reprobates to reply; How? Depart from thee? Why, O Christ, thou art all things, and therefore the loss of thee is the loss of all things; thou art the greatest good; and therefore to be deprived of thee is the greatest evil; thou art the very Centre, and perfect Rest of the Soul; and therefore to be pulled from thee is the most cruel separation. We were made by thee, and for thee; O let us never be divided from thee; we were made according to thy Image, O never drive us from our glorious pattern. Away, away, (saith Christ) ye have no part in me, or in my merits; never speak, or intreat me any more, but depart from me. But secondly, they may reply again, if we must depart, and depart from thee, at least give us thy Blessing before we go, thou hast great store of Blessings to give, and we hope thou hast one yet in store for us. we crave but a small thing, but a blessing. O it is a little one; thou art our Father (witness our Creation) and it is a chief property of a Father to bless his Children. No, Depart from me ye Cursed, in place of a Blessing, take the full Curse of your Father, you have been most prodigal and disobedient children: you have followed him who had my first curse; and now share ye curses with him, cursed be you in your souls, and in your bodies; and in your thoughts, and in your words, and in the hainousness of your sins, and in the grievousness of your punishment. But thirdly, if we must depart from thee, and depart accursed, yet appoint us some meet and convenient place to go into; create a fruitful piece of ground, and let a goodly Sun daily shine upon it; let it have sweet and wholesome air, and be stored with Fruits, and Flowers, of all forms and colours; give us the variety of Creatures for our uses; O if we go must from thee, the source and fountain of heavenly sweetness, and afford us some plenty of earthly pleasures, which may in some sort recompence our pain of loss, speak but the word, and such a place will presently start up, and shew it self. No, depart from me ye cursed into fire; though fire naturally burns not Spirits, yet I will lift and elevate this fire above its nature; you have sinned against nature, and I will punish you above nature; Fire? Alas that ever we were born! Who is able to rest in fire? The very thought of it already burns us. Of all the Creatures appointed by God to be the Instruments of revenge, fire and water have the least mercy. But Fourthly, if we must into fire, let the sentence stand but for a very short time; quench the fire quickly, half an hour will seem a great while there; No, depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire; it was kindled by my breath, and it hath this property among other strange qualities, that it is an unquenchable Fire; as long as I am God it shall endure, and ye broil in it; and when I cease to be happy, then shall ye cease to be miserable. O woe is us! What? To live in a fire perpetually without all end, or hope of end? Yea Fifthly, allot us then some Comforters, whose smooth and gentle words may sweeten our Torments, or somewhat dull the most keen edge of our extremity: O let the Angels recreate us with songs and hymns of thee, and of thy blessedness, that we may hear that sweetly delivered which others fully enjoy: No, no; depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels: they shall be your comforters, they that will triumph in your miseries, they that are your deadly, desperate enemies; they that will tell you by what degrees, and by ways they led you from me, and that will give you every hour new names of scorn and horrible reproach. O sentence not to be endured, and yet never, never must it be reversed. O my Brethren, I tremble at the very mentioning of this sentence, and O what will they do on whom it must pass? I beseech you before we pass from it, will you ask but your souls

this one question! What, can you dwell with everlasting fire? If you can, you may go on in sin; but if you cannot, why then stop here, and repent of sin: O now say, if this be the effect of sin, Lord pardon what is past, and O give me grace that I may sin no more, as sometimes I have done. Methinks if a temptation should come again for ordinary entertainment, you should fright it away with the remembrance of these powerful words; depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels.

2. The Saints shall judge the very self same judgment; do ye not know that the Saints shall judge the World? That they as well as Christ shall judge the World, is without controversy; And judgment was given to the Saints of the most high. Ye also shall sit upon twelve Thrones judging the twelve Tribes of Israel. Behold, the Lord cometh with twelve thousand of his Saints, to execute judgment upon all. Know ye not that we shall judge the Angels? Not only shall we judge the World, but the God of the World; the Principalities and Powers that captive wicked men at their pleasure; even they must be judged by those whom they formerly soyled; so then there is no question but they shall judge.

Only how the Saints shall judge together with Christ, is a very deep question. For my part I am apt to think, that it shall not be directly known, ere it be seen or done. I shall only relate what others say to this point, and so leave you to your liberty of judging what is right.

1. Some say that the Saints shall judge the World by presenting their persons and actions, by comparing their good examples with the evil examples of all the Reprobates; and so, they shall convince and condemn the World. Behold the Lord cometh with Ten thousand of his Saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them; this I conceive to be a truth, yet surely this is not all truth.

Others say, that the Saints shall judge the World by way of indicting, impleading, accusing, witnessing, &c. And I conceive it may be thus too; the Saints of the Law more especially accusing the breakers of the Law, by the Law. Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father, there is one that accuseth you to the Father, there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. And the Saints of the Gospel more especially judging the profaners of the Gospel, by the Gospel: in that day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my Gospel. This likewise is truth, but I believe as yet we have not the whole truth.

3. Others say, that the Saints shall judge the World after the manner of exaltation, glorying, and rejoycing to see the vengeance. The Righteous shall rejoyce when he seeth the vengeance, he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked. But this their exulting being a constant and perpetual act, not for a time, but for eternity, methinks this present act should be yet somewhat more.

4. Others say, that the Saints shall judge the World by way of assension, assent, vote, suffrage, comprobaton, and the like subordinate, and conformable acts. And I heard another out of the Altar say, even so Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy Judgments. And after these things, I heard a great voice of much People in Heaven, saying, Allelujah, Salvation and Glory, and Honour, and Power unto the Lord our God, for true and righteous are his Judgments; this certainly is truth, and commonly so received, yet neither is this all truth.

5. Others say, that the Saints shall judge the World (i. e.) Christ in the Saints, and the Saints in Christ. He in them by those Infalible principles of Divine Justice which are imprest in them; and they in him, by those inseparable bounds of Union, whereby they wholly relate to him: or he and they together as Head and Members, the act of the Head imputed to the members, and the act of the members acknowledged by the head; his Judiciary Act (especially as from his Mediatorship and Manhood) having a peculiar influence upon them; and their Judiciary act (in a perfect conformity, though not any absolute proportion) having a peculiar reference to him. And methinks those Texts of Mat. 19. 28. Jude 14. 15. speak there of Christs, and of the Saints judgment, as of one joynt act.

Oh what Terror it will be to all wicked men? when not only Christ, but all the Saints shall say of them, away with them, away with them, let them be Damned. You that are Fathers, it may be that your Children will thus sentence you, I remember when the Jews told Christ, that he cast out Devils through Belzebub the Prince of Devils, he answered, if I through Belzebub cast out Devils, by whom do your Children cast them out? therefore they shall be your Judges. They liked well enough of the Miracles of their Children who were the Disciples of Christ, but they could not endure them in Christ; and therefore he tells them, that their Children, whom God hath converted, and to whom he had given Power to do the same works as he did, even they should be their judges to Condemn them. And so it may be with you, if any of your Children be converted to the Lord, and you remain still in a natural Estate, your very Children shall be your judges, and condemn you to Hell. But of that anon.

6. In this doom which Christ and his Saints shall pass on Reprobates, our Saviour tells us of some reasonings betwixt him and them; I was an hungred (saith Christ) and ye gave me no meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink, &c. Then shall they answer, Lord, when saw we thee hungry, or a thirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee? and then shall he answer them, verily, I say unto you, inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. As if Christ should have said, time was that I was under reproach, misery, calamity, necessity;

I lay at your doors like Lazarus full of sores, and as I thought nothing too much for you; so I expected also something from you; but oh cruelty to see thy Christ an hungred and not to feed him? to see thy Christ a thirst, and not to cool, or quench his thirst? to see thy Christ a stranger, and not to give him a nights lodging? to see thy Christ naked, and not to cover him with a garment, who would gladly have covered thee with a robe of Righteousness, the garment of Salvation? O monstrous inhumane heart! O prodigious wretch! who among the Heathens ever dealt thus with their Idols? have any of the Nations starved their Gods, turned them out of doors? and must I only be slighted? away Reprobates! you had no mercy on me, and now I laugh at your calamity: surely he shall have judgment without mercy, that hath shewed no mercy; They stand wondering at this, and cannot remember that ever they saw Christ in such a condition; Why Lord (say they) when saw we thee an hungred, or thirsty, or naked? art thou not he that rose again from the dead, and ascended on high, and ever since hast been exalted above the highest Cherubims, a name being given thee above every name, at which name to this day, but especially now on this day, every knee doth bow of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; how then could we see thee in such a condition? is not this thy second coming in glory? and were we alive at thy first coming in humility? how can this be? oh how shouldst thou charge us with unkindness to thy self? surely if we had known thee in need, we would have given thee of thy own, thou shouldst never have wanted what things we enjoyed, but thou shouldst have commanded both us and them. To which our Saviour replies, O deceitfull, ignorant, and stupid souls! have you no better learned Christ than so? am not I Head of the Church, and can the Head be without Members? Verily, if you had loved, relieved, or done good to them, you had done so to me; but in being uncharitable to them, you were no less unto me. Never say you would have been thus, and thus kind to Christ, whiles you were unkind to Christians: herein lies the deceitfulness of your hearts; O they are deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked, who can know them? but I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give to every man according to his wayes and according to the fruit of his doings; In as much as ye did it not to one of the least of my members, ye did it not to me, and therefore get you down into Hell, and get you out of my presence; take them Devils, away with them Angels to the Devil and his Angels for ever.

These are the reasonings betwixt Christ and Reprobates; and if so, may we not imagine the like between Saints and Reprobates? is there not the same reason of reasoning betwixt them and the inferior Judges, as betwixt them and the supreme Judg? for my part I cannot conceive, but if we admit of such disputes betwixt Christ and them, well may there be the like disputes, arguings, and reasonings betwixt Saints and them; for they had on earth more familiarity, converse, and communion together; some of them, it may be, were in near and dear relations to each other, and now that one shall judge the other to eternal flames; oh what passages will be betwixt them! I shall instance in our nearest relations upon earth, as of Masters and Servants; Parents and Children, Husbands and Wives, Ministers and People, no question but in these very relations some shall judge, and others be judged; our Saviour tells us, There shall be two men in one bed, the one shall be taken, the other shall be left; two women shall be grinding at one Mill, the one shall be taken, and the other left; two men shall be together in the Field, the one shall be taken, and the other left; wherein the Lord seems to shew that God's Election doth extend it self to all sorts of persons, and separates the most. They shall not be saved by Families, as in Noahs time, but one friend shall be taken by Christ into Heaven, and another left for the Devils to carry into Hell. Give me leave but to enlarge on those reasonings, or discourses that we may imagine will be now betwixt these several relations. As—

1. Betwixt Master and Servant; if the Master be the Saint; and his Servant the Reprobrate, then shall the Master say, O thou wicked Servant, how many a time did I call on thee to duty? how often have I told thee that I would have thee to be God's Servant as well as mine? how often came that word to thy ears; Servants obey your masters in all things according to the flesh, not with eye-service, as men pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God; how often was that precious Word laid close to thy conscience, He that doth wrong, shall receive for the wrong which he doth; but in doing service to me as to the Lord, thou shouldst of the Lord receive the reward of the Inheritance, for in such service thou didst serve the Lord Christ? but thou wouldst not be warned, and now thou art justly condemned; I say Amen to Christ's Sentence; get thee down to Hell, and there serve Satan, and receive his wages in Fire and Brimstone for ever.— Or if the Servant be the Saint, and his Master the Reprobrate, then shall the Servant say, O my quondam Master, how many a time hast thou tyrannized it over me? how didst thou use me, or abuse me to serve thy own lusts and corruptions? many a time I had strong desires to wait upon God in the use of publick and private Ordinances; this morning, and that evening, I would have served my Master the Lord Jesus Christ, but thou wouldst not spare me one hours time for prayer, reading, meditation, &c. I was ever faithful in thy service, going to bed late and rising early; The drought consumed me by day, and the frost by night, and my sleep many a time departed from mine eyes; surely God hath seen my affliction, and the labour of my hands, and now he hath rebuked thee: dost thou not observe the admirable justice and righteousness of Christ in the sentences past on us both? remember that thou in thy life-time received thy good things, and I received e- vil things; but now I am comforted, and thou must be tormented. I now serve a better Master; after my weeks work with thee, I shall keep a perpetual Sabbath with God; but go thou with thy old companions from thy glorious Mansion to a loathsome dungeon; from thy table of furfit, to a table of vengeance; from thy faithful Servants, to afflicting Spirits; from thy bed of down, to a bed of fire; from soft linnen and silken coverings, to with a rock for thy pillow, and a mountain for thy coverlet.

2. Betwixt Parent and Child; if the Parent be the Saint, and the Child the Reprobate; then shall the Parent say, O thou wicked, rebellious Son! or O thou wicked, rebellious, and disobedient daughter! it is I that begot thee, or that brought thee forth; that during thy Infancy, laid thee in my bosom, and dandled thee on my knee, and carried thee in my arms, and set thee as a seal upon my heart; that during thy minority fed thee, and apparelled thee, and trained thee up in manners, learning a particular calling, and especially in the nurture and admonition of the Lord; and then when I saw thy untowardness of spirit, and thy breakings out into things forbidden by God and man, O the admonitions, reprehensions, corrections! O the many thousands of warnings that I gave thee of this day, and of the wrath to come! and yet thou wentest on in thy stubbornness, till thou becamest many and many a time a grief of mind, a bitterness of spirit unto me: and then how often did I mind thee of thy duty. Children obey your no saving impression on thy hardened heart, thy brow was Brass, and thy sinew of Iron, thou wast ever stiff-necked, and now thou art justly damned; I cannot but approve of Christ's judgment upon thee; though thou comest out of my bowels, yet now I have no pity, no bowels of compassion towards thee; the glory of God hath so swallowed up all my natural affections, that I cannot but laugh at thy calamity, and joy in thy damnation; I gave thee a body, and God himself gave thee a soul; but now let the Devils have both, and torment them in Hell; be gon! I shall never see thee again—Or if the Child be the Saint, and the Parent the Reprobate, then shall the Child say, O unworthy Parent; unworthy of everlasting life! I had my natural being from thee, but my Spiritual being was from the Lord; if I had followed thy steps, I had been everlastingly damned; did I not know thy ignorance, thy unbelief, thy worldliness, thy covetousness, thy pride, thy malice, thy lust, thy lukewarmness, thy impatience, thy discontentment, thy vain-glory, thy self-love; didst not thou often check me for my forwardness, and zeal, and holiness in Religion? didst not thou ask me, what art thou wiser than the rest of the neighbour-hood? are their not many gray hairs among us, whose wisdom and experience thou hast not yet attained? and canst not thou walk on soberly towards heaven, and either do as the most, or keep pace with the wisest? what, have any of the Rulers, or of the Pharisees believed on Christ? oh I shall ever remember to the praise and glory of Christ, what discouragements I had, and yet how the Lord pluckt me as a fire-brand out of the fire; and now hath the Lord set me on the Throne to judge thee according to thy demerits; and therefore I joyn with him, who is the Father of Spirits, against the Father of my flesh; depart, go to the Gods whom thou hast served, and see if they will help thee in the day of thy calamity.

3. Betwixt Husband and Wife; now if the Husband be the Saint, and the Wife the Reprobate, then shall the Husband say; Thou art she whom I knew in the flesh, whom I dearly affected with my heart and soul; whom I nourished and cherished as my own body; thou art she that was the Wife of my bosom, as near and dear to me as my heart in my bosom; thou wast my companion, my yoke-fellow, and my very delight: but oh! I could never rule thee, lead thee, guid thee in the way of life, in the path that is called holy: many a time have I wooed, sued, and sought to gain thy soul to that blessed Bridegroom, the Lord Jesus Christ, many a time have I prayed with thee, and for thee; many a time have I stirred thee up to hear the Word, to wait upon God in the use of all means publick and private; and instead of imbraces, or yieldings to these blessed motions, I have met with contentions and jars as a continual dropping in a very rainy day: but death hath dissolved that knot, so that now I am no more thy Husband; this is the day of separation, and I shall no more consort with thee; at the Resurrection there is no use of Marriage, but now I am to live as an Angel in Heaven; and because thou wouldst not draw with me in Christ's yoke, now therefore adue for ever and ever; we shall never mote lye in one bed, or sit at one board, or walk in one Field, or grind at one Mill; thou hast lost me, and thou hast lost Jesus Christ, two husbands in one day; go now and take thy choice in Hell! thou art free from us, but thou shalt be bound there with indissoluble bonds to the Devil and his Angels—Or if the Wife be the Saint, and the Husband the Reprobate, then shall the Wife say; Thou art he who I looked upon as my second-self, my head, my governour, my helper, my husband; for whom I was willing to forsake my native home, Fathers house, dear Relations, of Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, and many comforts in that kind; and I expected to have found new matter, and a continued influence of comfort, and delight in a marriage-state; but oh the vexations of Spirit! hadst thou not almost drawn me away from Jesus Christ? was I not forced through many provocations sometimes to break out and say, Surely a bloody Husband art thou to me? many a time I caryed out, O my Husband Husband when wilt thou set up the rich and royal trade of grace in thy Family? when wilt thou exercise prayer, reading, catechizing, conference, days of humiliation, and other household holy duties? oh for doing something to assure our souls of meeting together hereafter in heaven! But alas! it would not be; and now see the effect: here I stand like a Queen, deck't and adorn'd with cloth of Gold, with rayment of needle-work, with the white robe of Christs righteousness; so that the King of Heaven greatly desires my beauty, and my soul is this day married to Christ; I acknowledge him, and no other Husband in the world; and for thee who refused to joyn with me in the worship of God, now God hath refused thee: fare well, or fare ill for ever.

4. Betwixt Minister and some of his People at least: if the People be as so many Saints, and the Minister the Reprobate, then shall the People say: O thou art the Man that undertookst that High and Mighty calling of feeding Souls with the Word of Life; but now are thy Sins Written in thy Fore-Head, for either thou run'st before thou wast sent, or being sent, thou hast been Exceeding Negligent in the gift that was in thee: Didst not thou Prophesie in Baal, and cause Gods People to Erre? Didst thou not studiously and mainly seek for the Fleece, not regarding respectively the Flock? didst not thou strengthen the Hands of Evil-doers in Preaching Peace, Peace to the wicked Men? wast thou not Prophane, and Wicked, and loose in thy Life, and by that means ledst many Thousands to Hell! O thou bloody Butcher of Souls; hadst thou been Faithful in thy Ministry, well might those damned Companions about thee have escaped the Flames! but they are Doomed to Death, and now thou mayest hear their Cries, and Grivous groans, and complaints against thee, this was the Man set over us to give us the Bread of Life, but oh Christ, did he not fail us? did he not feed us with unprofitable Matter, Fables, Conceits, Airy Sentences, rather than any thing tending to Godly Edifying, which is in Faith? did not our Tongues, and the Tongues of our Children stick to the roof of our Mouths in calling and crying for Bread, for the Bread of Life, and he would not Pity us? we gave him the tenths which thou appointed, but he gave not us thy Truth, which thou didst Command him; why Lord Christ, thou Judge of all the World, didst not thou bid him feed, feed, feed? didst thou not bid him feed the Flock committed to his charge? didst not thou bid him Preach the Word, be instant in Season, and out of Season, reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering? and notwithstanding all thy commands, did he not miserably starve us? instead of feeding us unto Salvation, hath he not starved many thousands of us to our destruction. O Christ, thou that art the Judge of Nations, and the Revenger of blood! reward thou this Man, as he hath rewarded us; he led us in the ways of wickedness, and (if it must be so) let him be our ring-leader to Hell; and upon his Soul once buried in Hell, let this be the Epitaph, the Price of blood, the Price of blood; if thou didst hear the blood of Abel, being but one Man, forget not the blood of many, now thou art Judging the Earth. Why thus do the damned cry about thine Ears; and as for us, (say the Saints) who were once thy People, but now thy Judges, we consent to their cry, and to our Saviours Doom, go ye cursed into everlasting Fire.

Men, Brethren, and Fathers, I begin thus with the Ministers Doom, that you may see I would deal impartially; and verily I believe it, if our case come to this, we of the Ministry shall be in a thousand times worse condition then any of you; for besides the horror due to the guilt of our own Souls, all the Blood of those Souls who have perished under our Ministry, through our default, will be laid to our charge; little do you know, or consider the burthen that lies upon us, a burthen able to make the shoulders of the most Mighty Angel in Heaven to shrink under it. Chrysostom was a Glorious Saint, yet casting his Eye upon one only Text in the Bible, Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit your selves, for they watch for your Souls, as they that must give account. He professeth that the terror of this Text made his Heart tremble. Surely it is enough to make our Hearts tremble, if we seriously weigh our terrible Doom, in case that we should miscarry.

But now on the other side, if the Minister be the Elect, and sentenc'd to Salvation; and many of his People prove no better than Reprobates, then shall the Minister say, O miserable Souls, now you feel the truth of those comminations, and curses which we opened and unfolded, and discovered to you out of Gods Word! We dealt plainly with you, that the unrighteous should not inherit the Kingdom of God: we advised you again and again, be not deceived, neither Fornicators, nor Idolators, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abusers of themselves with Mankind, nor Thieves, nor Covetous, nor Drunkards, nor Revilers, nor Extortioners, shall inherit the Kingdom of God: And such were you, and notwithstanding all our threats, warnings, intreatings, beseechings, thus ye Lived, and thus ye Died; and there is the issue, Christ now hath Doomed you to Hell, and here am I set on a Throne to judge your Souls; for the Saints shall judge the World as well as Christ himself; Oh what shall I do? Oh my Bowels, my Bowels! here's a case beyond all the former, each of them according to their relations judge another; but here's a multitude, not one, or two, or ten, or an hundred, but many hundreds, or thousands, according to the number of such and such Congregations, where I have Preached.

In Christs reasonings with the wicked we have heard of his sayings, and their answers, and of his replications to their an-

fwers, much said on both sides to and again; I may suppose the like here. O what shall I do (says the Minister) what Doom shall I pass on this Assembly of Reprobates? can I absolve them whom the righteous God hath condemned? can I say, come along with me to Heaven, now Christ hath said, go ye cursed into Hell? and oh now shall I turn my speech from my wonted wooing, beseeching, intreating, exhorting, to a direct Dooming, Damning, Condemning these Souls to the pit of Hell? sometimes indeed I opened to these Souls the Armoury of God's wrath. I thundred and lightened in their Congregations; but my design was to fright them out of Hell-fire, and knowing the terrors of the Lord to have perswaded them towards Heaven, and Heavenly things; but now if I speak condemnation, no sooner shall I speak, but their Souls will sink down to Hell; O miserable Souls, what shall I say? or what can you say for your selves? Then shall they answer; Oh Sir, do not you aggravate the Torment by your condemnation; the weight of Christ's doom is already unsupportable, but will you add more weight? why remember, we are some of us (it may be) of your Flesh and Blood; many a time you told us that you unfeignedly loved us; and that we were dearer to you than all Worldly enjoyments; many a time you told us that you were willing to spend your self for us, as the candle that burns it self to give others light; you were pleased to bestow your Prayers, Tears, Sighs, Groans for our Souls; your very Books and Writings were high expressions, and abiding Monuments of your dear love to us; you weighed not your strength and spirits in comparison of our Souls; and shall this fair comical scene end in a Dismal, Doleful, Bloody Tragedy? would you do or suffer any thing to save us, and will you now condemn us? Oh forbear!

Ah no, (saith the Minister) I cannot forbear; all is true that you say, I loved you dearly, and I was willing to spend, or to be spent for you; but this aggravates the more; ah my Travail, Pains, Books, Writings, Words, Fears, Sighs, Groans, are in one volume together, and this volume has been opened this day, and now is the question put; what have you profited by all my Words, Prayers, Tears, Sighs, and Groans? is not all lost? and are not your Souls lost? and now do you tell me of love? what, did I ever love you more then Christ loved you? were the drops of my tears to be compared with the showers of his Blood? were my pains for you equal with the pains of his Cross? and hath he not condemned you to Hell? and shall not I be like-minded to Jesus Christ; Surely the Lord's will must be my will; he hath already judged you, and he will make me to judge you; so far am I from pitying you, that if he that formed you will shew you no Mercy, if he that saves me, and all the Elect People of God, will not save you, can I pity you, or save you, or descent from Jesus in his Sentence upon you? speak no more of Flesh, and Blood, of Labours of Love; Christ's sentence must stand, and as I am a member of Christ, and a Minister of Christ, I cannot but approve of it, and so judge you to Hell.

Why then (say Reprobates) we will curse thee, and Blaspheme Jesus Christ in Hell for ever; Cursed be the time that ever we heard of Jesus Christ, or that ever we knew thee, or thy Ministry; do not thy Sermons send us deeper into Hell? had it not been easier for us at this day of Judgment if we had Lived in Tyre and Sydon, where the Gospel never was Preached? didst not thou harden our Hearts in such and such Sermons, when the Word came home? didst not thou deny us the Seals which might have been for Confirmation of our Souls Salvation? didst thou not estrange thy self from us in respect of any inward, intimate, and familiar society, which thou affordedst to others? doth not the event plainly shew, that all thy Tears, Prayers, Words, and Works, as in reference to us, were Hypocrisie, Flattery, Deceit, Dissimulation? Oh Cursed be the day that ever we lived under such a Ministry, or that ever we heard of Jesus Christ.

Nay then (saith the Minister) it is time for us to part; such were your invectives on Earth, and now they are, and will be your Language in Hell; but have I not answer'd these Cavils many a time? have I not told you that the Word would harden some, and soften others, the fault being in your selves? have I not cleared it that the Seals are not to be set upon blanks, and that confirmation could not be without a Work of Conversion to lead it? and were we not commanded in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ to withdraw our selves from every brother that walketh disorderly? did not the Wise man tell us? he that toucheth pitch shall be defiled therewith, and he that hath fellowship with a proud Man shall be like unto him? can a Man take Fire in his Bosome, and his Cloaths not be burnt? can a Man go upon hot Coals, and his Feet be not Burnt? as for other Cavils, the Lord be Judge betwixt you and us; nay the Lord hath been Judge betwixt you and us; lo here we stand on the right Hand of Christ, so, here we sit on our Throne to judge you, and that World of wicked Men and Angels; let Christ be glorious, and let his sentence stand, and let that Word of Judgment never be reversed; be that loveth cursing, let it come upon him; and he that cloatheth himself with cursing as with a Garment, let it come into his Bowels like Water, and like Oyl into his Bones? no more, but adieu Souls, adieu Reprobates, adieu for ever; you must descend, but we must ascend. Go you to Hell, whiles we mount upwards to Heaven and Glory.

At this last Word, down they go, the evil Angels falling like lightning, and evil-men haled, and pulled down with them from the presence of God, and Christ, and Angels, and all the Blessed ones; even from their Fathers, Mothers, Wives, Husbands, Children, Ministers, Servants, Lovers, Friends, Acquaintance; who shall then justly and deservedly abandon abandon them with all detestation and derision; and forgetting all nearness, and dearest Obligations of Nature, Neighbourhood, Alliance, any thing, will rejoice in the Execution of Divine Justice. Oh the shrieks, and horrid crys that now they make, filling the Air as they go! Oh the wailings and wringing of Hands! Oh the desperate roarings! Oh the hideous yellings, filling Heaven and Earth, and Hell! But I shall follow them no further, no sooner do they fall into the bottomless Pit, but presently it shuts her mouth upon them, and there I must leave them.

SECT. VII

Of Christ and his Saints going up into Heaven, and of the end of this World.

7. FOR Christ and his Saints going up into Heaven, and so for the end of this World: no sooner are the Reprobates gone to their place, but the Saints ascend; now Christ ariseth from his Judgment-seat, and with all the Glorious company of Heaven, he marches towards the Heaven of Heavens. Oh what a comely march is this? what Songs of triumph are here sung and warbled? Christ leads the way, the Cherubims attend, the Seraphims wait on, Angels, Arch-angels, Principalities, Powers, Patriarches, Prophets, Priests, Evangelists, Martyrs, Professors, and Confessors of God's Law and Gospel following, attend the Judge, and King of Glory; singing with melody, as never Ear hath heard, shining with Majesty as never Eye hath seen, rejoicing without measure as never Heart conceived. O Blessed train of Souldiers! O goodly troop of Captains! each one doth bear a Palm of Victory in his Hand, each one doth wear a Crown of Glory upon his Head; the Church Militant is now Triumphant; with a final overthrow have they conquered Devils, Death, and Hell; and now must they enjoy God, Life, and Heaven; sometimes I have with much wonder and admiration beheld some Regiments passing our streets; but had I seen those Roman Armies when they returned Victors, and made their solemn Triumphs in the streets of Rome, oh then how should I have then admired? never was the like sight to this of Christ and his Army in this World. O the comely march they make, through the sky, and through the Orbs, and through all the Heavens; till they come to the Heaven of Heavens! were ever so many glistering Suns together in one day? was ever so many Glories together on this side the Kingdom of Glory? not to speak of Christ, or his Angels, O who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the Moon, clear as the Sun, and terrible as an Army with Banners? are not in the head of these Regiments Adam and Abel, and Noah, and Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob; and all the Patriarchs and all the Prophets, and all the Apostles? And if thou art a Saint that readest this (art not thou one Son appointed by God amongst the rest to follow Christ? here's enough to fill thy Heart with joy before-hand; as sure as yond Sun now shines in the Firmament shalt thou that believest pass by that Sun in its very Orbe, and by reason of thy Glory it shall lose it shine? oh then what spreading of beauty and brightness will be in the Heavens as all the Saints go along! what lumps of darkness shall those glittering Stars appear to be, when all the Saints of God shall enter into their several Orbs and Spheres? and thus as they march along higher, and higher, till they come to the highest, at last Heaven opens unto them, and the Saints enter their Masters joy; what is there done at their first entrance, I shall discover another time; onely for a while let us look behind us, and see what becomes of this neather World.

No sooner Christ and his company in the Empireal Heaven, but presently this whole World is set on Fire; To this prophane Authors seem to assent, as,

1. Philosophers, especially the Stoicks were of this mind. Humor primordium; exitus Ignis, said Seneca: Moisture was the beginning, and Fire shall be the end of this World. And speaking of the Sun, Moon, and Stars; mark (says he) whatsoever now shines in comely and decent order, shall at last burn together in one Fire.

2. The Poets grant this; Lucan speaking of those whom Cesar left unburned at the Battle of Pharsalia; Hos Cesar Populos si nunc non urserit Ignis, uret cum Terris. If Fire shall not now burn these, when Heaven and Earth, and all shall burn, then must they burn. Ovid in like manner, Esse quoque in fatis—quo Mare, quo Tellus ardeat. A time shall come, when Sea, and Earth, and all the Frame of this great World shall be consumed in Flame.

3. The Sybills grant this, to which the Roman misal seems to alude, joyning them with the Prophet David, though I know not by what Warrant. Dies Ira, Dies illa, solvet seculum in favilla, teste David cum Sybilla.

A Day of Wrath, a Day of Fire.
So David with the Sybills doth conspire.

But to wave all these, one Text of Scripture is to me more than all these. 2 Pet. 3. 10. The Heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the Elements shall melt with fervent heat, the Earth also and the works that are therein shall be burnt up. Hence all our Divines agree that a Fire shall cease on the Universe; only some difference is amongst Divines, whether the World shall be wholly annihilated, or renewed by Fire? Jerome and Augustin, and many after them say, the end of this Fire is for Purifying and Refining of the Heaven, and Earth; for all corruptible qualities shall be burnt out of them, but they in their substance shall remain still; if we ask them to what end shall this neather World be renewed? some say for an habitacle of the restored Beasts; others for a fitter accomodation of Men,

 Men, † and the Glorified Saints; others for a perpetual Monument of God's Power and Glory. Polanus and some of our Moderns are of Opinion, that * These Heavens and this Earth when Purified with those Fires, and super-invested with new Endowments, they shall be the everlasting habitations of the Blessed Saints. But on the contrary, others are of the other opinion, that all the World with all the parts and works (except Men, Angels and Devils, Heaven, and Hell, the two mansions for the saved and damned) shall be totally and finally dissolved and annihilated. And of this opinion were Hilary, Clement, and all the ancients before Jerome; and of our moderns not a few. For my part I rather incline this way, because of the many Scriptures that are so exprefs, I shall only mention these. — Man lyeth down, and riseth not till the heavens be no more. — Of old thou hast laid the foundations of the Earth, and the Heavens are the works of thy hands, they shall perish but thou shalt endure. All the hosts of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heaven shall be rolled together as a scroll, and all the host shall fall down as the leaf falleth from the Vine, and as a falling fig from the fig-tree. To which prophesie John seems to allude, And the heavens departed as a scroll when it is rolled together, and every Mountain and Island were moved out of their places. Again, heaven and earth shall pass away (saith Christ) but my Word shall not pass away — The day of the Lord will come as a Thief in the night, in the which the Heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the Elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also, and the works that are therein, shall be burnt up. — And the world passeth away, and the lusts thereof; but he that doth the will of God abideth for ever. — and I saw a great white Throne, and him that sat on it from whose face the earth and heaven fled away, and there was found no place for them. Now I would demand, whether being no more, as Job; and perishing, as David; and rolling together, and falling down like a withered leaf, as I say; and passing away, as our Saviour, and Peter; and flying away, as John; do not include to utter abolition? If to these Scriptures I should add one reason, I would argue from the end of the Worlds Creation; was it not partly for the glory of God? and partly for the use of man? Now for the glory of God, the manifestation of it is occasioned by the manifestation of the world unto man; if man therefore should be removed out of the world, and no creature in it be capable of such a manifestation, what would become of his glory? And for the use of man, that is either to supply his necessity in matter of dyet, physick, building, apparel; or for his instruction, direction, recreation, comfort, delight; now when he shall attain that blessed estate of enjoying God, and seeing God face to face, these ends or the like must needs be frustrate. This argument is weighty, and we need no more. Only we shall hear an Antagonist's objections, and give them their answers, and so conclude.

The Texts more especially objected against this opinion, are two; the first is that in Rom. 8. 21. The creature it self shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the Sons of God: here (say they) is an earnest expectation, attributed to brute Creatures, that they shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the Children of God. But I answer, that no immortal being of the brute creatures is here promised, but only a simple deliverance and dismissal from the servitude they were in, to ungrateful men. The Birds, Beasts, and Fishes, do now suffer for our dyet; Horses, Mules, and Beasts of that nature do now groan under the burthens of our pleasures, or necessities; their annihilation therefore to them must needs be a kind of deliverance; and at last they shall be delivered at the time of the glorious liberty of the Sons of God; the Text will bear it thus, † eis pro dia, The Creature shall be delivered by the glorious liberty of the Sons of God. (i. e.) When such a deliverance comes to men, these shall be freed from their servitude by being not at all, having done all the business for which they were ordained, or created.

The second Text is that in 2 Pet. 3. 13. We look for new heavens, and a new earth, wherein dwelleth Righteousness. These words (say some) imply a purging, rather than abolishing; a taking off the corrupt qualities only, not the substance. But I am of another mind, and if I must give my sense of the place, I say —

1. Negatively that by new heavens and new earth, is not meant renewed heavens & earth; is it not punctually in the seventh verse, that the heavens and the earth which are now, are reserved unto fire against the day of judgment? & doth not he descend unto particulars in the tenth verse, that the heavens which are now shall pass away with a great noise: that the Elements shall melt with fervent heat: and that the earth also, and the works therein shall be burnt up? and doth he not infer thereupon in the eleventh and twelfth verses, that all these things shall be dissolved? and in the thirteenth verse, that we are therefore to look for new heavens, and a new earth? dissolution mends not a fabrick, but destroys it; how then should that which is dissolved be said to be reserved, and stand? surely if Peter had thought of this refining only, some words of his would have intimated so much. The end of these creatures was for man's use, and man using them no more, to what end should they be reserved? to say for a monument of what hath been; or for the habitation of the Saints; or for an outlet for the Saints, descending sometimes from the highest heavens to solace themselves here below; are but groundless fumes, and deserve no answer at all.

2. Positively, by new heavens, and a new earth, is meant the heaven of heavens, and place of glory. Now these heavens are termed new, not in regard of their new making, but of our new taking possession of them for our new habitation; and they are called called heavens and earth, because they come in stead of that heavenly covering, and that earthly habitation which we now enjoy; so that the Text may well bear this paraphrase, we look for new heavens (i. e.) the supreme court of God's presence, and a new earth, (i. e.) a new habitation for us; which shall infinitely exceed the commodities and happiness of these heavens and earth which we now enjoy, thus John in his Revelations. And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven, and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more Sea.

This new heaven, and new earth is the place or habitation prepared for the blessed Saints and people of God. A new heaven, where the Moon is more glorious than our Sun, and the Sun as glorious as he that made it, for it is he himself, the Son of God, the Son of righteousness, the Son of Glory; a new earth, where all their waters are milk, and all their Milk Honey; where all their Grass is Corn, and all their Corn is Manna; where all their Glebe and clods of earth are Gold, and all their Gold of innumerable Carats; where all their Minutes are Ages, and all their ages Eternity; where every thing is every minute in the highest exaltation as good as can be. Of these new heavens, and this new earth, I can never say enough, nor know enough till I come there to inhabit it. Something only we shall discover of it in our next Sections; for now are the saints entered in with Jesus Christ.

Use. Only one word of Use; Christians! what's the matter that we are so busy about this world? why look about you, not one of these visible objects shall that day remain or have a being; those houses wherein we dwell, these Temples wherein we meet, this Town, this Country, this Isle, and the Seas and waters that surround it, shall be all on fire, and consume to nothing; the Sea shall be no more, and time shall be no more, or if we look higher, yond Sun, and Moon, and Star, shall be no more; that glorious Heaven which rolls over our heads, shall be rolled together as a scroll, and all the host shall fall down as a leaf falleth from the Vine, and as a falling Fig from the Fig-Tree. — the heaven shall vanish away like smok (saith Isaiah) comminuentur in nihilum (as Hierome reads it) they shall be battered into nothing. Alas! alas! what do we toying all the day (it may be all our life) for a little of this little, almost nothing — earth? you that have an hundred, or two hundred, or a thousand Acres, if every acre were a Kingdom, all will be at last burnt up; so that none shall say that here was Preston, or here was London, or here was England, or here was Europe, or here was the Globe of Earth on which men trod; let others boast as they will of their inheritances, but Lord give me an inheritance above all these visibles; heaven shall remain, when earth shall vanish: that Empyrean Heaven, those seats of Saints, those mansions above, prepared by Jesus Christ shall never end, but for my riches, lands, possessions, movables, goods, real or personal, they will end in smok, in nothing; what? wilt thou set thine eyes upon a thing that is not? upon this the primitive Christians took joyfully the spoiling of their goods; it was but a loss a little before the time, and they know in themselves that they had in heaven a better, and an enduring substance. O let this be our care! here we have no abiding City, but O let's seek one to come, even that one that will abide for ever and ever, Amen.

SECT. VIII.

Of Christ's surrendring and delivering up the Kingdom to God, even the Father.

8. FOR Christ's surrendring and delivering up the Kingdom to God, even the Father, no sooner is he in heaven but these things follow. —

He presents the Elect unto his Father, of this the Apostle speaks, you hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblameable, and unproveable in his sight; to this end Christ dyed that he might wash us and cleanse us by his blood, and then that he might present us without spot unto his Father. We may imagine Christ as going to his Father with his bride in his hand, and saying thus, O my Father, here is my Church, my Spouse, my Queen; here are the Saints concerning whom I covenanted with thee from Eternity, concerning whom I went down from heaven, and dyed on earth, and ascending up I having interceded these many hundred years; concerning whom I went down to Judge the World, and having sentenced them to life eternal, I now bring them in my hand to give them the possession of thy self. These are they whom thou gavest me in the beginning of the World, and now I restore them to thy self at the end of the World, for they are thine. Thus he presents them to his Father. Indeed we read that Christ presents his saints to himself, as well as to his Father, Christ loved the Church and gave himself for it, — that he might present it to himself; a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle; but this I take it was done before; when first the Soul believes, it is contracted to Christ, when the soul is sentenced to glory, then is the solemnity, and consummation of the Marriage, then doth Christ present the Soul to himself; and I know not but that the Ministers of Christ may have a part in this matter, for I have espoused you to one husband (saith Paul to his Corinthians) that I may present you as a chaste Virgin to Christ.

And after this, when Christ takes the bride home, brings her into Heaven, and leads her by the hand into his Father's presence; then is his last presentation, then he presents her faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy. The word signifies leaping, springing, exalting joy. Oh what springing, leaping, axalting is in heaven, when Christ takes the hand of his Bride and gives her into the hand of his Father; q. d. O my Father, see what a number I have brought home to thee; thou knowest what I have done, and what I have suffered, and what offices I have gone through, to bring these hither; and now my Mediatourship is done, I resign all my charge to thee again; see what a goodly Troop, what a noble Army I have brought thee home, why all these are mine, and all mine are thine, and all thine are mine, and I am glorified in them; all those that thou gavest me, I have kept, and none of them is lost; see here is Adam, and Abel, and Noah, and Sem, and every Saint from the beginning to the end of the World, the Nuptial between them and me is solemnized? and whither should I lead them but to my Father's house, and into my Father's presence? I have already pronounced them blessed, and the glory which thou gavest me, I have given them, that they may be one, even as we are one, I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one. Here take them from mine hands; now give them a welcome into glory, and let them know that thou hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

2. He presents all his Commissions to his Father, as he is a Mediatour (at least by Destination) from all Eternity; were not the Saints chosen in Christ before the foundation of the World? when was he a Mediatour in the business of Election, and then was he Predestinated to be a Mediatour of Reconciliation. I was set up from Everlasting, (i. e.) I was appointed and designed to be a Mediatour from all Eternity. Howsoever he was a Mediatour virtually and inchoatively from the Fall of Adam, then did he undertake that great Negotiation of reconciling God to man, and man to God; and actually he was a Mediatour after his Incarnation; for then was he manifested in the flesh, then was he manifested to be what before he was, then did he act that part visibly upon earth, which before he had acted secretly and invisibly in heaven; then he entered upon the work of his active and passive obedience; then he discharged his Prophetical and Priestly office here on Earth, which having done, then he entered upon his Kingly Administration in Heaven. Now as to this work he was called by God (him hath God the Father Sealed; it pleased the Father by him to reconcile all things to himself. And as to these offices severally he had commission from God, (the Lord hath anointed me to Preach good tidings unto the meek; and the Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, thou art a Priest for ever; and the Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou at my right hand until I make thine enemies thy foot-stool.) So now he comes with all his Commissions in his hand, and he delivers them all up unto his Father again. In this case it is with Christ as with some General, whom the King sends forth with Regal Authority to the War, who having subdued the Enemy, he returns in Triumph, and all being finished, he makes a surrender of his Place; thus Christ having discharged all his offices imposed on him, now the work is finished, he leaves his function by delivering up his Commissions to his Father. In Heaven there is no need of Sun or Moon, that is, as some interpret, there is no need of Preaching, or Prophesying of the Word or Sacraments, for the Lamb is the light thereof, Christ is the only means of all the communication that the Elect there shall have; and as for his Regal Office, the Apostle is express; then shall he deliver up the Kingdom to God, even the Father. Only here is the question, how is Christ said to resign his Kingdom to God the Father? for saith not the Scripture, that Christ's Kingdom shall have no end; and that Christ's Throne is for ever and ever? for answer, I see no contradiction but that Christ may both resign his Kingdom, and yet reserve it. See a like case, All Power, saith Christ, in heaven and earth is given to me of my Father: shall we say now that the Father himself was quite stript of it? no; but as the Kingdom which the Father gave the Son is nevertheless called the Father's Kingdom, or the Kingdom of God; so Christ shall return it, yet retain it also. Two things (we say) are contained in the Term of Reign, sci. Dominion, and Execution; to wear the Crown, and to bear the Scepter: now Christ in the former sense shall reign for ever, the honour of dominion and of wearing the Crown he shall never resign up to his Father, for his Father's Throne disturbs not his, there are both their Thrones at once, Rev. 7. 11. but the functions of a King, to sit in Judgment, to reward deservers, to punish evil-doers, to rescue the oppressed, to fight with the enemy, Christ in this sense shall cease to reign, and shall deliver up the Kingdom to his Father. More particularly, Christ is said to deliver up the Kingdom in three respects.

1. Because he ceaseth to execute that Authority, which nevertheless he hath; as a Judge that goeth from the Bench is a Judge still, although he giveth no judgment, but employeth his time about other occasions; so Christ is said to resign his place, not that his Authority is subject to Diminution, but in that he makes no shew; for when his enemies are all put under, there is no need that any more blows should proceed from his Kingly power.

2. Because the manner of his Kingdom after the judgment day shall be wholly changed; he shall not Reign in the same fashion that he did before; there's no need in heaven of good Laws to keep men from starting into wickedness; the orders of this life are changed into a new kind of Government, and in that respect he is said to give over the Kingdom.

3. Because he ceaseth to increase his dominion. In this World Christ was still gaining more souls to his Kingdom by the Preaching of his Word, and so he spread his dominion further, and farther; but when the Lord shall have made up the number of his Servants to his mind, then he will end the World, and give up the Kingdom, (i. e.) he will cease to enlarge his confines any more, he will be content with the number of his Subjects that he hath already. Here is the Second

Second thing, Christ presents all his Commissions to his Father, he gives up his Priestly, Prophetical, and regal office at his first entrance into heaven.

4. He presents himself unto his Father; not only his offices, but Christ himself is presented, and subjected unto God. This I take it, is the meaning of the Apostle, when he saith, then shall the Son also be Subject unto him, that put all things under him. The words are mystical, and therefore we had need to understand them soberly, and according to the Analogy of Faith. The Arrians hence infer'd, that the Son was not equal with the Father, because he that is subject must needs be inferiour to him whose Subject he is. But the Answer is easie, Christ is considered either as God, or as man, and Mediatour betwixt God and Man; Christ as God hath us Subject to him, and is Subject to none; but Christ as man and Mediatour is Subject to his Father together with us. Some would have it, that Christ is Subject to his Father in respect of his mystical body, the Church; and that this only should be the meaning of the Apostle, then shall the Church be subject to the Father; but I cannot assent to this Exposition. 1. Because the Apostle speaks expressly of Christ and of his Kingdom. 2. Because though Christ be sometimes in Scripture read for the Church, or for the body of Christ, yet the Son as opposed to the Father, is never so read or understood. 3. Because we read, that he that is to be Subject, must first, have all things Subject to himself. Now the Father doth not properly Subject or suddue all things to the Church of Christ, but only unto Christ, and therefore the Apostle speaks of Christ's subjection to the Father; In the same way as Christ delivers up the Kingdom to the Father, is Christ also to be subject to his Father; but Christ delivers up his Kingdom as man, and as mediatour betwixt God and man; in these respects Christ (as we have heard) must Reign no more, at that day his Mediatourship shall cease, and by consequence in respect of his Mediatourship, or in respect of his Humanity, he shall that day be subject to his Father.

You will say, is not, and was not Christ always subject to his Father as man, or as mediator betwixt God and man? how then do we limit this subjection to that day? then (saith the Apostle) shall the Son be subject.

I answer, this subjection will be then, or at that day more clearly manifested than ever it was before; then he must surrender his Kingdom to his Father in the sight of men and Angels; then he shall lay aside all his Offices in the view of all; so that henceforth God shall not Reign by the humanity of Christ, but by himself; nor shall we henceforth be subject to God through a mediatour Christ, but immediately to God himself; nor shall Christ himself reign over us as mediatour any more, for the very glory of his Majesty shall become so illustrious, that all eyes shall see how transcendently eminent the Deity of Christ is above all creatures, even above the humanity of Christ himself. That a fuller view of Christ's subjection shall be at that day than ever before, we may Illustrate thus; by night the Sun Reigns or rules over us, but by the Moon; for the light of the Moon is borrowed from the Sun, though in the night we see not any subjection of the Moon to the Sun at all; but so soon as the Sun riseth, presently the Moon surceaseth its office of lightning others, and becomes subject to the Sun it self; not by a new subjection, but by a declaration of its former subjection, so that now all may see what eminency of glory and light the Sun hath both above the stars, & above the Moon; thus it is with God and Christ, now it is God, reigns over us, but only by Christ as Mediatour; God's immediate Reign we discern not so clearly for the present; but when the end shall come, and Christ shall surcease his Office of Mediatorship, then shall the glory of Christ's Divinity appear more eminently, not only above all creatures, but above the brightness of Christ's humanity it self; and in this respect Christ then shall be subject, if not by a new subjection, yet certainly by a new declaration and manifestation of his subjection, so as never was before.

O the wonders of this day! O the admirable shews in heaven, at Christ and his Saints first entrance into Heaven! O my soul, where wilt thou stand? or what wilt thou say, when Christ shall take thee by the hand, and bring thee into the presence of his glorious Father? when he shall present thee, and present all his Commission which he received for thee, and present himself unto his Father with thee, saying, O my Father, here we are all before thy glorious God-head; thus far I have carryed on the great work of man's Salvation, and now all's done according to the Covenant betwixt thee and me; lo here all the saints which by decree thou gavest me before the world was made; lo here all the Commissions which I received from thee in order to their salvation; lo here the humanity which thou gavest me when I came into the World; such were the sins of my redeemed ones, and grown to such an height, that Sacrifice and offering thou wouldst not have, but a body thou preparedst for me, and lo here I present all these before thee; come, take thy Commissions, and be thou all in all; we praise thee O God; we acknowledge thee to be the Lord. Come, welcome me, and welcome mine, we all stand here before thy glorious Throne, and expect every way as high an entertainment as Heaven, or the God of heaven can afford us. O my Soul, what joy will possess thee at this passage? be sure now thy danger is over, and thy arrival is safe, neither shall it ever be heard, friend, how comest thou hither? for the Lord himself will run unto thee, he will hug thee and embrace thee, mouth on thy mouth, eyes on thy eyes, and hands on thy hands; and each hand shall clap for joy, each harp shall warble, each each knee shall bend and bow, and each heart be merry and glad. O for the day! Oh when will the day come on, when Christ shall deliver up the Kingdom to the Father.

SECT. IX.

Of Christ's Subjection to the Father, that God may be all in all.

1 Cor. 15. 28. 9. FOR the end of Christ's subjection to his Father that God may be all in all. Surely this is the meaning: Christ therefore subjects himself unto his Father, that God himself might be all in all; that God may no more Reign by a Deputy, or by a Christ, but that immediately and perfectly he may reign by himself, so that every one may see him face to face. Here we enjoy God (as it were) by means as in the use of the Word, and Sacraments, and the like, but when that Kingdom (where these Administrations are made use of) shall be delivered up, then shall God himself be all in all, without means, without defect, without end.

It is observable that Christ in his mediatory Kingdom hath some such things as bear an Analogy to the means and instruments of governing in the Kingdoms of men; As, 1. He hath his Militia and his Laws, with threatnings and promises, in the ordinances of his Word. 2. He hath his grants, and seals, with many privileges to confirm his people in the Ordinances of his Sacraments. 3. He hath his Officers and Embassadors for the management of spiritual affairs in the Ordinances of his Ministry; but the ceasing of Christ's Kingdom is the ceasing of all these; and he therefore ceaseth his Kingdom that God may immediately succeed all these; without any means, or without any Mediatour at all, he himself may be instead of all; or all in all.

In prosecution of this, I shall discuss. 1. The meaning, what it is for God to be all in all. 2. The particulars, wherein more especially is God all in all.

1. For the meaning; it is a periphrasis of our compleat enjoyment of God: that God may be all in all, is as much as to say, that we may enjoy God alone to all purposes, neither wanting nor willing any thing besides himself; for a person to be all in all to me, it is to have an enjoyment of that person to all purposes, so that I neither do; nor need I to enjoy any thing besides himself; thus God is to the Saints in glory, he is their exceeding great reward; they need nothing else besides himself, their very drougths of happiness is taken in immediately from the fountain, and they have as much of the fountain as their souls in their widest capacity can possibly hold.

2. For the particulars, wherein more especially is God our all in all? I answer,

1. In our enjoying God immediately; here we enjoy God by means; either he communi-cates himself unto us through his Creatures, or through his Ordinance, and hence it is, that we know him but in part, we see him but in a glass darkly; but when he shall be our all in all, we shall see him face to face; we shall then see God as he is clearly and immediately. Oh how excellent is this enjoyment above all present enjoyments here below? as the enjoyment of a Friend in his picture, letters, tokens, is short of what we enjoy when we have his personal presence; or as the heat and light of the Sun through a cloud is beneath that heat and light when the glorious body of it is open to us without any interposition; even so all the enjoyments of God in the use of means, graces, blessings, ordinances are infinitely inferior to that enjoyment of God, which shall be without all means; all the ravishments of our spirit in prayer, hearing, reading, meditating, is but a sip of those Rivers which we shall have in heaven. I know the remembrance of God in a private meditation is sweet, Psal. 104. 34. and communion with God in any Ordinance is a feast of sweetness, and marrow, and fatness. Psal. 63. 5, 6. But when the soul shall immediately possess God, when this Kingdom of grace shall expire, and all the Administrations of it shall vanish away, will not the fountain be much more sweet than all the streams? surely feast, and sweetness, and marrow, and fatness, are terms exceedingly too diminutive to give us any more than a small hint of that incomprehensible satisfaction by immediate communion. O the wonders of Heaven! there shall be Light without a candle, and a perpetual day without a Sun, there shall be Health without physick, and strength of Body without use of food; there shall be knowledg without Scriptures, and settled government without a written Law; there shall be Communion without Sacraments, and Joy without promises to be its fewel; the soul in glory shall go streight unto God, and immediately participate his glory and happiness. 'Tis the comparison of a Learned Divine, suppose you saw a company of Christal Globes placed in a parallel line, because their posture will not admit the Suns immediate beams; we'll suppose another single Globe set by the middle of them, to transmit the Sun-beams unto all those Globes, by this means they all shine, though it be only by reflection; but when the Sun shall so come about, as that they may immediately receive its beams, there's no further use of the single Globe then; so here, while we through our distance from God are incapable of immediate enjoyment, there's a necessity of Christ's Mediation, but when all things that cause the distance are removed, and we brought into the presence-chamber of God himself, there's no such need of a Mediator then. Now here is one thing, wherein he is our all in all, shall enjoy him immediately.

2. It consists in our enjoying of God fully. Now I know in part (saith the Apostle) but then I shall know, even as I am known; our enjoyment of God is but here in its infancy, there it will be in its full age; age; here it is in drops, there it will be in the Ocean; here we see God's back parts, and we can see no more, but there we shall see his Face, not his second Face (as some distinguish) which is his Grace and Favour enjoyed by Faith; but his first Face, which is his Divine Essence enjoyed by sight. Yet I mean not so, as if the Soul which is a Creature could take in the whole Essence of God which is incomprehensible; but the Soul shall, and must be so full of God, as that it shall not be able to receive, or desire one jot more. And oh how excellent is this enjoyment above all present enjoyments? is it now our highest happiness to have some Glimpses of his Glory shining on us, and some drops of his favour distilled into us: oh but when God shall be our all in all, we shall have as much of God as our Souls can hold, we shall have the Glory of God so poured in, till we shall be able to receive no more. And here is that which gives the Soul a full satisfaction; never would it be satisfied till it came to this; suppose that God would draw out all the Beauty, Sweetness, Goodness that he hath communicated to all Creatures in the world, and bring the quintessence of all, and communicate that unto the Soul of one poor Saint, certainly it would not serve the turn, there must be a greater Communication before the Soul be fully satisfied and rest content; only once admit it into the Glorious presence of him who is all in all, and presently expires its infinite desire into the bosom of that God; for there's enough to fill his Spirit, he cannot desire so much, but there is more and yet infinitely more; if there be enough in God for the Spirits of all just Men made perfect with God, if there be enough in God for Angels whose Capacities are greater than the Saints, if there be enough in God for Jesus Christ, whose Capacity is yet far wider than the Angels, if there be enough in God for God himself, whose Capacity is infinitely greater than them all; then there must needs be satisfaction enough in God to any one poor Soul. Here is another thing wherein God is our all in all, we shall enjoy him fully.

1 Cor. 13. 12.

1 Cor. 12. 12.

3. It consists in our enjoying God solely. Not as if there were nothing else in Heaven but only God; but that God in Heaven shall be all in all, and instead of all; it is God in Heaven that makes Heaven to be Heaven; the Saints Blessedness, and Gods own Blessedness doth consist in the enjoyment of God himself; the School-men tells us, that we shall not properly enjoy any thing else but only God; we may have some use of the Creatures, but no fruition; and therefore is God said to be all, or as good as all. And indeed what can we imagine to be in Heaven, which is not eminently in God himself: if it be Greatness, Power, and Glory, and Victory, and Majesty, all these are his; if it be Joy, or Love, or Peace, or Beauty, or any thing amiable or desirable, all these are in him. Hence some take it to be David's meaning, when he said, he had none in Heaven but God; that the sole enjoyment of God, (of God, and of nothing else but God) is the Souls true Happiness, when it is at highest; whom have I in Heaven but thee? whom? why there are Angels, there are Saints, there are the spirits of just and perfect Men; are these nothing with David? O yes! all these are good, but they are not able to satisfy a Soul without God himself. Whether God will make use of any Creatures for our service then? or if any, of what Creatures? and what use? is more than I yet know; but to make up a full enjoyment there is required a Gracious-glorious presence, a sweet effusion or communication of that presence, a just comprehension of the excellency of that communication, a perfect Love, and a perfect Rest in the love of whatsoever it is we comprehend; now this is proper only to God; it is he only that fills the whole capacity of the Soul, it is he that so fills it that it can hold no more, it is he only that is the object of Love intended to the utmost, and therefore he only is properly enjoyed, he only is possessed with a full contentment as portion enough, and as reward enough for the soul for ever.

But shall not the Saints have to do with something else in Heaven, but only with God? O yes! I believe there shall be in Heaven a Communion of the Blessed Spirits in God, an association of the Saints and Angels of God: yet this shall not take away the sole enjoyment of God, that he should not be their all in all. For they shall not minde themselves or their own good as Created things, but altogether God; they shall not love them or one another as for themselves, but only for God; here we love God for himself, and it is gracious love; but there we shall love our selves for God, and 'tis a Glorious love; why this is to enjoy God solely, in this respect he is all, and in all; whom have I in Heaven but thee?

Here's a point enough to wean us to the World. Alas! the time is coming on apace, that all this World shall be dissolved, and then God shall be all in all; here lies the Saints happiness to have God immediately, God fully, and God solely; and will not Saints prepare themselves for such a condition as this? you that have the world, use it as if not, for the fashion of this World passeth away; and you that have but a little to do with the World, improve that condition; surely 'tis your own fault if you have not more to do with God, for you have little else to take up your hearts; God may dwell and walk in your hearts without disturbance, give me neither Poverty nor Riches (saith the Wise Man upon that account) a mean condition is more capable of happiness than that which over-loads us with outward things; whilst others are casting up their accounts, you may say with David, how precious are thy thoughts unto me O God? how great is the sum of them? whilst others are following their suits at Courts

Courts of Justice, you may follow all you have at a Throne of Grace; whilst others are numbring their Flocks and Herds, all your Arithmetick may be employed to number your Days; whilst others cannot get out of the Clutches of the World, you may get into the embraces of your God; why, this is to prepare your selves for fuller and fuller enjoyments of God; it is God will be all in all, and this is the very top of Heavens happiness; surely the less you have of the World now; if you can but improve it, the more you may have of Heavens happiness even upon Earth: for what is the happiness of Heaven, but the sole enjoyment of God? Christians! if you feel any inclinations, pantings, breathings, after this World, give me leave to tell you, that you will never be happy till you have lost all, till you have no Friends, nor Estates, no enjoyment but God alone; when all is done, when this World is nothing, when means shall cease, both for Bodies and Souls, and when Christ shall cease his Mediators office, and the Son of Man be Subject to his Father, then God shall be all in all.

SECT. X.

Of Christs (notwithstanding this) being all in all to his Blessed, Saved, Redeemed Saints, to all Eternity.

10. FOR Christs being all in all to his Blessed, Saved, Redeemed Saints to all Eternity; we shall dilate in this Section. Some may object, if God be all in all, what then becomes of Christ? is not this derogatory to Jesus Christ? I answer no, in no wise; for—

1. It is not the Father personally and only, but the Deity Essentially and wholly that is our all in all; when we say God is all in all, we do not exclude the Son, and Holy Ghost, for the whole God-head is all in all to all the Saints, as well as the first Person in the Trinity; the Father is all, and the Son is all, and the Holy Ghost is all; and in that Christ is God, and the Son of God, we may say of Christ, that he is all in all: only the Truth of this position is not from the Humane Nature, but from the Divine Nature of Jesus Christ.

2. It is not derogatory to Christ, but rather it doth exceedingly advance Christ in the thoughts of all his Saints; while it was necessary Christ veiled his Deity, and when his Work of Mediation is fully finished, Christ then shall reveal his Deity to his Saints more than ever before. In this respect might I say, if any person in the Trinity receives more Honour than other, Christ should have most; every Creature which is in heaven beard, I say, Blessing, Honour, Glory, and Power be unto him that sitteth on the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever; not only unto God, but particularly to the Lamb for ever and ever. It is true, that God only, and God fully, and God immediately is all in all, but doth that hinder that Jesus Christ is not also only, fully, and immediately all in all? see how the Scripture joyns them together, which plainly argues that they may consist, I saw no Temple in the City, for the Lord God Almighty, and the Lamb are the Temple of it, and the City had no need of the Sun, neither of the Moon to shine in it, for the Glory of God does lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. Rev. 21. 22, 23.

Now then, as I have spoken of God, so that I may speak of Christ, and conclude all with Christ, I assert this Doctrine, that the Glory of Christ which the Saints shall behold in Christ to all eternity, is their all in all. In the discussion of which I shall open these particulars. 1. What is the Glory of Christ? 2. How the Saints shall behold his Glory. 3. Wherein is the comprehensiveness of this expression, that the beholding of Christ is our all in all.

1. What is the Glory of Christ? I answer, that the Glory of Christ is either Humane, or Divine.

1. There is an Humane Glory, which in time was more especially conferred upon his Manhood.

2. There is an Essential or Divine Glory, which before time and after time, even from everlasting to everlasting issueth from the God-head; I shall speak to both these, that we may rather take a view of Christ in those Glories (as we are able) wherein he will appear to his Saints as their all in all to all Eternity.

1. For his Humane Glory, that is either in regard of his Soul, or Body; for his Soul, Christ was from the first instant of his conception full of Glory, because even then he received Grace, not by measure, as we do, but as comprehension, he had the clear vision of God, even as the Angels of Heaven, which arose from that Hypostatical Union of two Natures at his first Conception. It is true, that by the special dispensation of God, the fullness of thy accompanying that Glory was withheld from Christ in the time of his Passion, and the redundancy of glory from his soul unto his body was totally deferred until the exaltation of Christ; but Christ no sooner exalted, and set on the right Hand of God, but immediately the interruption of joy in his soul, and the interception of glory from his soul to his body, was altogether removed. Then it was that his soul was filled with all joy, solace, pleasure, which could possibly flow from the sight of an object so infinitely pleasing, as is the Essence, Majesty, and glory of God. And then it was that his body was replenished with as much glory as was proportionable unto the most vast capacity of any Creature; not only his soul, but his body is a glorious Creature; it is σῶμα τῆς δόξης, a body of glory, that is a most glorious body in it self. And the spring of glory unto others, ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and so to enter into his glory? Luk. 24. 26.

glory? it is called his glory, as if it were appropriated unto him as the most eminent subject, and principal efficient of glory; as if he had the monopoly of glory: all the glory in Heaven is in some sort his glory. Surely Christ's Manhood is exalted unto an higher degree of glory than the most glorious Saint or Angel ever was, or shall be; Principalities, Powers, Might, and Dominions fall short of his glory.

But some object, that the mediatory office of Christ shall wholly cease, and that the body and soul of Christ shall then be annihilated.

Indeed this was the opinion of Euriches, that the humane Nature of Christ should be changed or converted into the divine; and thus he interprets that Scripture, then shall the Son also himself be subject; that God may be all in all, what is this subjection, (saith he) but a conversion of the Creature into the very substance, or essence of the Creator himself? But we deny the interpretation; the Son as Man shall be subject, and yet the manhood of Christ shall still remain: it is true that his Mediatorial office shall wholly cease, but it follows not that therefore the manhood of Christ shall be converted or changed into the Deity; there may be other reasons for the continuation of his human nature besides the execution of his Mediatorial office; As, 1. That the lustre of his Deity might shine through his humanity, and that thereby our very bodily eyes may come to see God, as much as is possible for any creature to see him, I shall see him (saith Job) not with other, but with these same Eyes; 2. That the Saints may see how the power of an infinite God can convey the lustre of his Deity into a Creature; upon this account I verily believe, that Angels and Men will be continually viewing of Jesus Christ, he shall come to be admired of the Saints; he shall be admired (as we have heard) at the Judgment-day; nor is that all, but the Saints in Heaven shall see with their eyes such excellencies in Christ, as that they shall admire for ever; I say for ever, as much as they did at the first moment when they saw him; here if we see any thing excellent, we admire at first, but after a while we do not so, but in heaven there will be so much excellency in Christ, that we shall admire as much to all Eternity, as we did at the very first moment; there will be no abatement in glory of our being taken with the sight of the glory in Jesus Christ. 3. That Christ by his humanity may converse more freely, and familiarly with his brethren in his Father's house; oh the intimacy that will be there betwixt Jesus Christ and his Christian Saints! oh the mutual rejoicing and delight that will be there betwixt Jesus Christ and his dearest darlings! as Christ from Eternity rejoiced in the habitable part of his Earth, so will the Saints (his habitable Earth) to all eternity rejoice in Christ; the eye of the Saints in glory can never be off Christ as Mediator and God; now the eye of the Saints in glory shall never be off Christ as God and Mediator then. Thus far of his human glory.

2. For his Essential divine glory, it is that glory which Christ hath as God: this he never laid aside, but as the Sun in a dark gloomy day may not send forth its beams, so Christ the Son of righteousness in the time of his abode upon earth (except a little glimpse only in his transfiguration) did not send forth his glorious beams; but hereafter the body or humanity of Christ shall not hinder the breaking forth of all his divine glory. No sooner the Son subject, and his Mediatorial office discharged, but Christ, as God will manifestly put forth his more immediate glory to all his Saints. Behold, now we are the Sons of God, and it doth not yet appear, what we shall be, but we know when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. Mark it, when he shall appear, at, and after the Resurrection day, we shall see him as he is, (i. e.) we shall see the very essential glory of Jesus Christ. But what is the essential glory of Christ? I cannot answer, it is a question not to be resolved by all the men in the World; we know little of the glory of Saints, how should we know any thing of the essential glory of Christ as God? The Scriptures say, that God spake to Moses face to face, yet God tells him thou canst not see my face, and he favours him so far as to tell him the reason, for there shall no Man see my face and live, q. d. No man in this life, he must first dye, and be changed; and then he shall have a peculiar revelation of the divine Majesty; then he shall see him as he is; but how that is, I cannot tell; come, let us question this no further; surely it is a mercy that this infinite glory is not discovered to us; for as a weak eye is not able to behold the Sun, or to see it in rota, (as the School-men speak) in that wheel or circle wherein the Sun doth run, but only in the beams of it; no more can we see Christ as God in his glorious essence, or in his essential glory, but only in the beams thereof in his Word and Effects; if now we know so little of spirits and spirituals, oh then how little do we know of him who is the Father of spirits? I shall say no more, therefore let us be content to be ignorant of these things, till we enter into the confines of Eternity.

But whether shall this glorious essence, or essential glory of Christ be more seen, or manifested, at, or after the day of Judgment, then ever it was before? I answer.

Quest.

I believe it will. Some tell us of several periods wherein the glory of Christ is still more and more seen; as, 1. In this Life we may see it in part, thus David speaks of himself, my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee, to see thy power, and thy glory, as I have seen thee in the Sanctuary; but this sight is very dim, we see onely now as through a glass darkly. The second period is betwixt our dissolution and resurrection; and then shall we see the essential glory of Christ more immediately and fully, our creeping apprehension of God shall then be elevated, and our distance from God shall then be shortened, and all the riddles of grace and of Jesus Christ shall then be opened. This sight is so great, that if a soul should come from heaven to declare it, neither could that soul express it, nor we understand it; we read of Lazarus, whose soul Christ returned into his body, whom much People of the Jews came purposely to see, that they might hear stories of the other World, but not a word from him of any such matter; Paul's rapture may satisfy with the reason of it, he heard there ἀόριστα ῥήματα, wordless Words, such words as could not possibly be repeated on earth, and yet all this is but a second step to the full vision of Christ's essential glory. The third period is at the Resurrection, and during the time of the last Judgment, and then we shall see more of his glory; Camerus affirms, that 'tis no curiosity to say, that the Saints and Angels in heaven had a new glory by the exhibition of Christ, the great mystery of the Incarnation being thereby better known; and we may as safely affirm, that the Saints shall have a new glory, by new visions of the glory of Christ at the day of Resurrection; they shall then see the solemnity of heavens glory carried on by Christ in his glorious actings; and all that ever the soul saw before in being with Christ in heaven till the Resurrection, shall be swallowed up with the sight of this glory of Christ at the Resurrection-day. The last period is after the Resurrection, and that shall continue even to all Eternity; now all the manifestations of Christ's glory before this, are but as a few green ears rubb'd in our hands, so that the full crop or the full harvest is yet behind. But this is that (which as we told you before) we cannot tell though we had the tongues of Men and Angels. Thus far of the first point, what is the glory of Christ.

2. How shall the Saints behold this glory? I answer, As Christ hath a twofold glory, so there is a twofold manner of beholding it, (i.e.) ocular and mental.

1. There is an ocular vision, a sight of Christ with our very eyes, whom I shall see for my self, and mine eyes shall behold him; with these eyes in our heads we shall one day behold the human glory of Christ; I doubt not we shall behold the beauty of Heaven, the shining bodies of the Saints, but above all, our very eyes shall delightfully contemplate Christ's glorious body; and indeed this shall drown all the other sights, if any think that Christ's glorious body shall be too intensive, and too extraordinary a brightness for our weak eyes; let such consider that —

2. The eyes in Heaven shall be glorified; now glorification adds a singular excellency to the faculties, it advanceth the faculties, and raiseth them to an higher pitch of excellency; glorification adds a greater capacity to the eye then ever it had before. In this world there is a difference in our eyes and sight; a man of a clear sight sees more things, and more of every thing then a dark sight doth; so a glorified eye sees more of things then our eyes now can see; it shall be enlarged exceedingly, to take in objects which now it cannot receive; glorification adds strength to the faculties both internal, and external, so that the eye shall be able to look on the glory of Christ, not with difficulty, but with contentment; in this World every sense we have is apt to be destroyed by excellent Objects, and the more excellent, and transcendent the object is, the more it hurts and destroys the sense; as the Sun by its brightness darkens the eye, and other things by mighty sounds bring deafness to the ear; Paul indeed had a vision of glory, but because his faculties were not glorified, he was he knew not how, whether in the body or out of the body, whether alive or dead, he did not know; certainly the sight of the glory of the other World would amaze, distract, and destroy us, if we had a sight of it as now we are; but in heaven the eye shall have great pleasure in beholding the brightest light, because it shall be advanced to the highest pitch of strength that may be.

2. As the eye shall be glorified, so it shall act in a glorified body, and this will make the sight of the glory of Christ in stead of hurting us, to leave upon us, a more sweet, enlivening, and powerful impression. By this means all the impediments that hinder the conveyance of divine influences from that Heavenly object will be removed. To illustrate this, let the most excellent sight be set before a man that is defective in his bodily state, and it doth not take him; what should a sick man do with such things? he makes nothing of the most pleasant gardens, orchards, buildings, nor of the most glorious sights that are; when he is sick, they are but sick things to him, and of none effect; but in heaven the body shall be glorified, and stript of all corruptions and imperfections, so that there shall be no bar unto the influences of the glory of Christ which shall there be seen.

3. As there shall be a glorified eye acting in a glorified body, so it shall be acted by a glorified spirit; the eye is but the organ or instrument of sight, and without the spirit would convey no more then a glass doth; it is the spirit of a man that gives life to vision, it is the spirit of a man that discovers things, and sets them forth in their worth, virtues, ends; now in Heaven the spirit of Men shall be glorified, and enabled to perform all those offices in perfection; so that when a man shall look on the man Christ Jesus by virtue of a glorified spirit, he shall see more, know more, taste more than any other can; As a man of understanding when he looks on a diamond, or a wedge of gold, he hath other apprehensions of it, and a further touch upon his spirit, than a beast or a child in a cradle hath; so where the sight of the eye is acted by a glorified mind, it takes in more from the sight of every thing which is to be seen (unexpressibly more) more than what can be done here by the most sanctified Spirit in the World. Now in these respects Christ's glorified body (thouh it be the brightest visible thing in the Heaven of Heavens) yet it may be the object of the eye of Saints, for they shall have glorified eyes, in glorified bodies, and acted by their glorified spirits.

2. There is a mental vision, a sight of Christ by the eyes of our understandings; and surely this exceeds the former, the eye of the Body is only on the Body of Christ, but the eye of the soul is on the body and soul, on the Humanity and Deity of Jesus Christ. This is the very top of Heaven, when Saints shall be illightned with a clear and glorious sight of Christ as God; Divines usually call it Beatifical vision.

Quest. But how shall Saints behold the glorious Essence, or God-head of Christ?

Answ.

1. Some say, Christ as God, or the God-head of Christ shall be known by the Humanity of Christ; such a lustre of his Deity shall shine through his humanity, as that thereby, and by no other means shall the Essential glory of Christ appear.

2. Others say, That besides the Humanity of Christ there shall be a species representing the Divine Essence of Christ, and a light of glory elevating the understanding by a supernatural strength; and that thereby the glorious Essence of Christ shall be discovered.

3. Others say, That the Divine Essence shall be represented to the glorified understanding, not by Christ's humanity, nor by any species, but immediately by it self, yet they also require a light of glory to elevate and fortifie the understanding by reason of its weakness, and infinite disproportion and distance from the incomprehensible Deity.

4. Others hold, that to the clear vision of Christ as God, there is not required a sight of Christ's humanity as the first suppose; nor a species representing the Divine Essence, as the second suppose; nor any created light elevating the understanding, as the third suppose; but only a change of the natural order of knowing: It is sufficient (say they) that the Divine Essence be immediately represented to a created understanding; which though it cannot be done according to the order of nature, as experience tells us, (for so we conceive things as first having passed the sense and imagination) yet it may be done according to the order of Divine grace. I shall not enter into these Scholastical disputes, it is enough for a sober

1 Cor. 13. 12. face to face, his servants shall serve him, and they shall see his face.
Rev. 22.

Quest. His face, what's that? I answer——

Answ. 1. They shall see Christ as God, of the same Essence with the Father, and the holy Ghost, and yet a distinct Person from them both; they shall see the Unity in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity; they shall see how the Son is begotten of the Father, and how the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father, and the Son; they shall see the difference between the generation of the Son, and procession of the Spirit. These are mysteries in which we are blind and know very little or nothing, but in seeing his face we shall see all these.

2. They shall see Christ at their first being, or principle of all the good that is in the World; they shall see how all things were made by him, and without him was not any thing made that was made; they shall see all the good in the creature as flowing from Christ, and as contained in the absolute perfection of Christ's Divine Nature; they shall see in one Christ all the excellencies of all the creatures united, which is indeed to see him in his eminency if there be any beauty, riches, honour, goodness in any creature, that is eminently, transcendently, and originally in Christ, and that shall be seen.

3. They shall see Christ in all his ways, counsels, decrees, executions, transactions, from everlasting to everlasting; that great business of Election and Reprobation will then be discovered; it is an expression of Augustine, They shall then see the reason why one is Elected, and another Reprobated; why one is rich, and another poor; they shall then see all the works that God ever did, or that ever God will do; it is not yet six thousand years since the creation of the World, and what is six thousand years to Eternity? certainly the truth of Origen's opinion touching the existency of other Worlds before this, and the future succession of other Worlds, after this, will then be known. If no worlds, before this, yet if God in Christ hath done such great things in only six thousands years what he may do in the next six thousand years, and so in the next six thousand years, who now can tell? we see not these things, but the Saints in seeing the face of Christ shall see all things.

4. They shall see Christ in all his glory, ways, counsels, decrees, executions, transactions, as working for their happiness. Now this is more than the former; there's a great deal of difference in seeing an object as excellent in it self, and in seeing an object as conducing to my happiness; As one that is a stranger, and another is an heir rides over such a demesgne! the stranger rides over it, and takes delight to see the situation, rivers, trees, and fruits, but the heir looks upon it after another manner, this (saith he) is the Land for which my Father laid out so much, and all to enrich me, and all to bestow it on me, as my Inheritance. So the Saints admitted into the glorious sight of Christ, they take not only a view of Christ, of the Essential glory of Christ, of the transactions of Christ, things excellent in themselves, but they see all these as to make them happy; they say of Christ, and all his actings, these are mine, and for my happiness; A stranger may look upon a King, and see beauty and Majesty, and glory, and honour in him, but the Queen looks upon the King and his beauty as her own; so the Saints look upon the King of Heaven, they see Christ, and all in Christ as their own, to make them happy for ever and ever.

5. They

5. They shall see Christ as he is; but what? do we not see him now as he is? oh no; we now see him not as he is indeed and truth, but only as he is in hear-say, and report; we now see him only as he is shadowed out to us in the Gospel of peace; and what is the Gospel, but the pourtraiture of the King, which he sent to another Land to be seen by his Bride? so Kings and Queens on earth wooe one another; whilst the Bride is on earth, she never seeth him as he is in his best Sabbath-Royal Robe of immediate glory, she seeth him rather by the second hand, (i. e.) by messengers, words, mediation; he rather sends his pourtraiture, then comes himself; but in heaven the Saints see him as he is, they see Christ himself in his own very person; they see the red and white in his own face; they see all the inside of Christ; and thousands of excellencies shall then be revealed, that we see not now; the mysteries of that glorious Ark shall then be opened; his Incarnation, his two Natures in one person, his Suffering as Man, and his sitting in the seat of God as God, all these shall be seen.

6. They shall see Christ without interruption, and without intermission to all Eternity. If once the eye be set on the face of Jesus Christ, it will never be taken off again. Some conceive this to be the reason why the Saints in heaven can never fall away, because they shall have a continual view of Christ as God; Surely to have but one glimpse of Christ in this respect, though it were gone presently, it were a great happiness beyond all that the World affords; it was sometimes the desire of a Philosopher to see the nature of the Sun, though he were to be burnt by it; so if Christ should but grant us this happiness, you shall come to see me, but the sight of me will destroy you; this were a desirable thing; but to have such an excellent glorious sight as shall never end; that Christ should not only pass by, but stand still, so as the soul shall never lose his sight; O how glorious is this? if a man do but look upon a delightful Object, he is loath to have his eye drawn from it; surely the eye of Saints shall be eternally opened to see the divine nature of Christ; turn them which way they will, they shall never turn aside the busied eyes of their understanding from off the Deity of Christ; he fills heaven; he is that fair Tree of life, the branches whereof in all that huge and capacious borders of heaven have not room to grow in; for the heaven of heavens cannot contain him. O the wonders of heaven. There is Abraham, Moses, Elias, the Prophets, the Apostles, and the glorified Martyrs, but the Saints have neither leisure, nor hearts to feed themselves with beholding of creatures; no, no; all the eyes of heaven (which are a fair and numerous company) are upon (only, only upon) the Lord Jesus Christ; the Father hath no leisure to look over his shoulder to his Son; the Husband hath no leisure to look over his shoulder to his Wife; Christ takes all eyes off from such created things; surely 'tis enough for the Saints and Angels in heaven to study Christ for all eternity; it shall be their only labour to read Christ, to smell Christ, to hear, see, and taste Christ; to love, joy, and enjoy Jesus Christ for ever and ever. Thus far of the second point, how the Saints shall behold the glory of Christ.

3. Wherein is the comprehensiveness of this expression, that the beholding of Christ is our all in all? I answer, —

1. It comprehends the immediate seeing and looking upon all, that Majesty and Glory which Jesus Christ hath. In this sense Paul took it when he complained, we walk by faith, not by sight. q. d. on earth we have faith, and in heaven we have sight; it is some comfort that now I see Jesus Christ by faith, but comparatively to that sight which the Saints have in heaven it is as no comfort at all; alas! I am not, I cannot be satisfied so long as I am absent from the Lord, I look upon my self as one from home; and as a Prince in a strange Land sits down sadly, because he hath not the sight of his Father, so I am forced to complain; O I cannot see my Lord, I would fain behold him, I am a stranger on earth, a Pilgrim in this World, I am not where I would be, I am absent from him whom I most desire; O I desire to be dissolved, and to be with Christ; I walk with him here on earth by faith, but to walk with him in the streets of heaven by sight is far better; O I long, I pant, I breath, I desire, I think every day a year, and every year an age till I be in heaven, at home, in my Father's arms, that I may behold and see him, and that immediately, I say immediately in his glory. This is one way of beholding Christ, it is an immediate sight.

2. It comprehends the fruition and enjoyment of Christ in his glory. Surely the Saints shall not be meer idle spectators of the glory of Christ, but they shall enjoy him, and be taken into fellowship with him: It was said of Moses, that he did see the Land of Canaan; but he was not admitted into it; it is otherwise with the Saints, they shall see heaven, and they shall enter into heaven, come thou faithful servant, and enter into thy Master's joy; not only behold it, but enter into it; they must behold Christ, and take possession of Christ, and enjoy them as their own. And thus the word to see, or behold, is often used in Scripture; except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God, (i. e.) he cannot enjoy it: and Father I will that those whom thou hast given me be with me where I am that they may behold my glory, (i. e.) that they may enjoy my glory; for Christ is not only glorious in himself, but he is the spring of glory unto others: now in this respect more especiall is Christ our all in all; he is all in himself, and if we enjoy him, he is all in all unto us: To see a little into the state and condition of the Saints in glory in this enjoyment of Christ.

1. They possess Christ as their own; they go to Christ, and they lay hold on him, saying, thou art mine. It was indeed the language of the spouse whilst yet on earth, I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine; there's a right, and a propriety made over, to

to her in her betrothing unto Christ, but after the solemnity of the marriage is over, the possession is then more full; when once the spouse comes to behold Christ in his Kingdom, she may then go boldly to her beloved, and say, all I see is my own; I had thee in hope, but now hope is vanished, and actual enjoyment comes in place: lo, now I have thee in my eye, and in my heart, and in my hands, and in my arms; and as nothing shall separate us now, for all our enemies are trod underfoot, so never will I part with thee, so far as to be out of my eye, I will still behold thee, and in beholding, I will still possess thee, for thou art mine own.

2. They have the use of what they possess; and this is an infinite good to the Saints; they shall not only possess Christ, but they shall have what use they will of Christ, and of all in Christ; they shall as they please make use of his humanity, and of his Deity, of of his glorious essence, and of his glorious attributes; O wonder! that a Saint should come to Christ and say, O my Lord, thou art mine, and my pleasure is to make use of thy wisdom, power, and mercy; and that Christ should reply and say, welcome sweet soul, use me and all my glory as thou pleasest, why thus it is; even as a friend will say to his friend, make use of all I have as your own; so will Christ come to his Saints, and bid them make use of all his riches, glory, excellency, even as they will, even to the utmost that they are capable of.

3. They have the sweet and comfort of all they use; and this makes up a compleat enjoyment. In things below we may have the possession of them, and the use thereof, but if we have not the sweet and comfort of that we use, we cannot be said truly or fully to enjoy those things; what is the possession and use of meat and drink, if we tast not the sweet of them? Hence God is said to give us all things richly to enjoy; no creature can give us richly to enjoy another, one may give us such and such things wherein there may be comfort, but he cannot give us comfort in such things, it is only God that can give us that; it is so with the Saints in glory, God gives them all things; yea, Christ gives himself to them as all in all, to enjoy him richly, fully, sweetly, to the very uttermost. This another way of beholding Christ, it is a fruition or enjoyment of Christ, wherein and whereby he is our all in all.

4. It comprehends all the effects and consequences of such a beholding of his glory, which are infinite delight and complacency in the will, and all praise and thanksgiving in the mouths of his Saints. For the first, It is disputed whether Eternal happiness be more in the acts of the understanding, or of the Will? and some conclude that it is principally in the will, because that is an active appetite, and predominant in a man, indeed the whole of a man, oh the joy, delight, and complacency that will arise in the will upon the seeing and beholding of Jesus Christ!

they shall delight infinitely in the Essential glory of Christ, and in the declared glory of Christ; they shall delight in all that glory that is reflected upon Christ by all his creatures in heaven; they shall delight in his presence, and in his love, Christ is all delights, and how then should they but delight in Christ? for the second, as they delight in their wills, so will their mouths be filled with praises; we read of Saints and Angels continually praising God in Heaven; there shall be none of our duties of mourning, fasting, praising, humbling; the acts of patience and justifying faith shall cease in heaven; but the duty of praising, and glorifying God will continue to all Eternity. Methinks I see the Saints following the Lamb; methinks I hear the familiar converses betwixt Christ and them; as Christ opens himself to them, so they to him; first, he begins; Oh my dearest Saints, you are they, for whom before all time I decreed this heaven, and now you see the execution of my decrees; whiles the World stood, I was still carrying on the work of your salvation, either in doing or suffering, or in successive works, applying my doings and sufferings, my active and passive obedience to your persons, and now the World is at an end, you see the end of my work, and the end of your Faith, which is the Eternal Salvation of your souls; Oh how I have my wish, and you have your happiness; here you and I will live together, that I may for ever behold you, and that you may for ever behold me, and my glory; which no sooner said, but methinks I hear all those innumerable Saints in heaven to answer, worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing, and therefore unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us Kings unto God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever, Amen. Yea, methinks I hear every creature in heaven say, blessing, honour, Glory, and power be unto him that sitteth on the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever, Amen. Why is this their continual work in heaven; they have nothing else to do, but with joy and gladness to sing forth the praises of God, and of Christ, and that his mercy endureth for ever. And this likewise is comprehended under that notion of the Saints beholding of Christ, which compleatly makes up the proposition asserted, that Christ, or the glory of Christ, which the Saints shall behold to all eternity, is their all in all.

Thus far we have propounded the object, which is Jesus carrying on the Salvation of his Saints in his coming again to earth, and taking them up with himself and his Angels into Heaven; our next work is to direct you how to look unto Jesus in this respect, and then we have done.

CHAP. II.

SECT. I.

Of knowing Jesus as carrying on the great work of our Salvation in his second coming.

WHAT looking is, and what it contains, we have often heard; and that in these respects we may look on Jesus.

1. Let us know Jesus, carrying on the Saints Salvation in his second coming, and taking them to Heaven. Many glorious excellent things, many precious passages, many high and heavenly carriages are in this transaction; Is it not of high concernment that he that now sits at God's right hand interceding for us, should thence come again to judge the World, and after judgment take up his Saints with him into glory? can we read of the several actings of this general Assize, and not desire to read on still? nay, is not all our reading mixt with admiration of every passage? come! wonder, and sit, and pause, and stop at every word; stay and wonder, and adore that light, which appears in any beam of truth, and in the admiration of that truth which doth appear, cast thy self down at the feet of Christ, and cry out; O the depth of Glory, and Majesty, and Goodness, and Grace in thee! O the riches of love that thou shouldst let out thy self in these several admirable dispensations! come, be exact in this study; gather up all the crumbs and fyleings of this gold; the least beams of the glory of Christ (especially as it shines and glitters at his second coming) have so much light, and love, and splendour in them, as that they will be very sweet to look upon them: every piece or part of this knowledge will be of special use and worth, yea the low and imperfect knowledge of this mystery is of infinite more value then the high and perfect knowledge of Ten thousand things besides. And one thing (O my soul) let me tell thee it is possible for thee to attain a very sweet, and satisfactory degree of this very knowledge. And therefore study close, run over again all that hath been spoken, and dig yet deeper into that glorious myne; content not thy self with a bare discovery of that gold-ore which is only upon the superficies or top of the myne, but go so far as to find out the inward spiritual, and experimental knowledge, which the Saints by the light of the Spirit may come to attain. O study Christ in his second coming to judgment.

SECT. II.

Of considering Jesus in that respect.

2. LET us consider Jesus, carrying on this work of salvation at his second coming. It is not enough to know, but we must meditate and seriously consider of it: A meer student may know Christ, and study Christ, as he knows and studies other things: he may keep together many notions concerning Christ, and his coming to Judgment, but he hath no impression of the holiness of Christ upon his heart: and in this respect he is a stranger to Christ and all his actings; alas, he studies Christ, but he doth not rightly, seriously, inwardly consider of Christ, but he doth not look unto Jesus, as one that looks to his pattern, or as one that looks to his refuge, hope, and help; true and spiritual consideration, is a serious matter; its not some few and fleeting thoughts that are the discharge of this work, but thoughts resting, dwelling, fixing, and staying upon Christ; untill they come to some profitable issue; O it is another manner of business than many are aware of; it's a thinking with thought upon thought; it's a reiteration and multiplication of the thoughts of the mind upon the subject propounded; so the Scripture expresseth it, I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and in that next verse, I turned to see; he looked upon and considered his works, and he returned to behold them; he thought on them before, but now he returned to think; he renewed his thoughts upon the matter, and took a new view of them. Indeed when the understanding works seriously and spiritually, it will fetch things into sight, and not only so, but it will hold them there, and fasten upon them, and when they are gone, it will fetch them again, my soul hath them still in remembrance, my soul in remembrance doth remember them, and will not off till the end he obtained; so a man eyes Christ, till he have more of Christ, more of his presence, and more of his light, and more of his favour, and more of his image. O let this be our Work; let us thus consider Jesus in reference to his second coming to judgment. And that we may do it in order—

1. Consider Christ's preparing for judgment; realize it as if thou sawest or heardest the same; no sooner the time determined which God hath appointed, but Christ commands, make ready ye Angels to wait upon me, and make ready ye glorious souls that now are with me; it is the Fathers pleasure, and it is my pleasure to go down into the neather World, and to call before me all the men and women that ever lived in it; there will I pass my doom upon all flesh, and reward every one, good and bad, according to his his works. O what a shout may I imagine in Heaven at this news! what joy is in the souls of Saints that now they must go to their bodies, and enter into them, that both their souls and bodies, which sometimes lived together, may now dwell together with Christ, in glory, and never part more? if those that live on earth are commanded by Christ, To lift up their heads, because their redemption draweth nigh; how much more shall they joy in Heaven, who also have waited for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of their bodies, that now the long-looked-for day, is come, it is come; O the exaltation of the Angels at this tidings! This is worthy a pause, a Selah to be set upon it.

2. Consider Christ's coming to judgment; all now in readiness, the Son of God comes forth with all his glorious attendants; For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his Angels, and with the souls of Saints, that for a time have been in Paradise. Oh what a goodly sight is here! In this meditation I may see with John, The new Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a Bride adorned for her husband. Down comes Christ, and down comes the Angels, and down comes the Spirits of the Just made perfect: and as they come along, see how they shake the Heavens, and dim, and dark the very lights of Heaven; see what a flood of fire goes before them; see how they pass into the cloud, where Christ makes a stand, and erects a Throne for himself to sit on. Sure 'twill be a guilded glorious cloud, when Christ with all his celestial servants shall sit upon it: a mornings cloud guilded with the beams of the Sun is admirably fair and shining; but what a shining cloud is that where the Sun of righteousness with all his morning stars do sit and shine? here's enough to dazzle my eyes, and to take up my thoughts; O my soul think on it!

Mat. 16.
27.Rev. 21.

3. Consider Christ's summons of the Elect to come under Judgment; no sooner in the cloud, but He shall send his Angels with a great sound of a Trumpet, and they shall gather together his Elect from the four Winds, from the one end of heaven to another. Will not this be a strange sight to see Christ a coming, with Trumpets sounding before him, causing all the dead to awaken out of their sleeps of death; the very sound of this Trumpet was ever in Jerom's ears, Arise ye dead and come to Judgment, and no question but thy ears shall be filled with the blast thereof; the Trumpet shall sound that shall be heard over all the World; and then shall the dead arise out of their graves; and every Saints soul shall re-enter into his own body, by virtue of the resurrection of Christ their Head. Can I pass this meditation without some reflection on my self? O my soul how joyfully wilt thou greet thy body, when thou shalt enliven it again? how wilt thou say, O my dear Sister, whom I left behind me in the dust when I went to Heaven? how sweet is thy carcass, how comely is thy countenance? how do I enter into thee, and animate thee; and I will never more leave thee; thou wast my yoke-fellow in the Lords Labours, and my companion in persecution and wrong; now shall we enter together into our Masters joy? see, lift up thy head, behold Jesus Christ yonder sitting in the cloud; and lo here the Angels waiting on us, and coming to take us with the rest of the Saints into the Air, to meet our Redeemer there. Could I but realize this summons, this resurrection, this meeting of the soul and body, and going with the Angels into the Judgment-seat, oh how would it work! and what work would it make within!

Mat. 24.

4. Consider Christ and the Saints meeting at the judgment day; oh how shall the Saints look, and stare, and gaze at the beauty of Jesus Christ? oh how will they break out into admiration at the first view of those glories which never before appeared on this side Heaven? is not this he (will they say) of whom we read so often, that he was fairer than the sons of men? that he was white, and ruddy, the chiefest of ten thousands; that his countenance was as Lebanon, excellent as the Cedars, glorious as when the Sun shineth in his strength: but was ever the half told us of what now we see, and behold? O the super-excellent, transcendent beauty of this Son of righteousness! O the treasure of loveliness in this Jesus Christ never seen before! And thus as they admire, so they adore; now they begin those Hallelujahs, that never, never shall have end; they fall at the feet of Christ, and the Lord Christ takes them up with his hands, and folds them in his Arms; oh what mutual reciprocal salutations are these betwixt Christ and his members? oh my head! and oh my body! oh my husband! and oh my spouse! oh my dear! and oh my darling! never two lovers met with such heat of love, as Christ and his Saints; come, faith Christ, and sit you down here at my right hand, and let the World be on my left hand; it was otherwise with you in your life-time, my gold and my jewels were then cast in the dust; you were then clothed with infamy, and the vilest of men were then guilded with honour; but now I will set all right, now the dust shall be swept away, and the jewels of my Kingdom shall be gathered up; now the Goats shall be driven into the desert, and you who are the Sheep shall be brought into my fold. O my soul, what a meeting is this? what a sight will this be, to behold the Saints in this condition, and thy self amongst them? couldst thou but realize this one very passage, it were enough to quench thy lust, and to kindle a flame of pure love in thy heart to Jesus Christ; it is a quickning, rousing, rising, rejoicing, consideration.

5. Consider Christ sentencing the Saints for eternal glory; then shall the Books be opened, and all the good works of the Saints shall be revealed and made known; and then shall the Judge from his Throne of Majesty (in the sight and hearing of all the World) pronounce that sentence, Come ye blessed

Mat. 25. Blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the World. q. d. Come my Saints, come with me into glory; come now from labour to rest, from disgrace to glory, from the jaws of death to the joys of eternal life; for my sake ye have been railed on, reviled and cursed; but now it shall appear to all those cursed Esaus, that you are the true Jacobs that shall receive the blessing, and blessed shall you be; come now and possess with me the inheritance of Heaven, where you shall be for love, Sons; for birth-right, heirs; for dignity, Kings; for holiness, Priests: come, you may boldly enter in, for my Father hath prepared, and kept it for you, ever since the first foundation of the World was laid.

O my soul, dost thou not remember when sometimes thou hast been at the feet of Christ in the beauty of holyness, and there tookest in those droppings of his spirits; which were better to thee than the feasts of Kings? dost thou not remember when sometimes thou hast had the very beams of light darted from the face of Jesus Christ, when he whispered to thy soul the forgiveness of thy sins, saying, Fear not, thy sins shall not hurt thee, I am thy salvation? oh what joy was then? what meltings, movings, stirrings, leapings of heart were then in thy bosom? but was that joy any thing to this, or to be compared with this? that was a drop, but here's an Ocean, here's fulness of joy; oh what leapings of heart, what ravishments will be within when thou shalt see thy self in the arms of Christ, and shalt receive words of life from the mouth of Christ, in the face of all the World? what a thing will this be, when Christ shall pass a sentence of death on others, and speak words of life unto thee? when thou shalt see him frowning upon the World (and oh those frowns will break the heart) and shalt behold him smiling in the fulness of his love upon thy self? that Christ at such a time should be delighting thee with all the imbraces of love, and with this sweet invitation to Heaven, Come thou blessed inherit the Kingdom, it were enough to a spirit a soul half dead; the very meditation of this must needs be sweet.

6. Consider Christ and the Saints Judging the rest of the World; no sooner are the Saints sentenced, but Christ turns to the wicked, and bids them go into everlasting fire; in which sentence, the Saints shall joyn with Christ himself, Do ye not know that the Saints shall judge the World? when the Saints appear, it is not only by a Summons, but with commission; not only to be judged, but to judge; not only shall they stand at Christ's right hand, but they shall sit down on the Throne of the Son of God, to judge the wicked Angels and the World. O the torment! O the vexation of wicked Men and Devils, when they shall see those very men whom they scorned, oppressed, persecuted, to be now advanced, not onely to glory, but to be their judges! it is as if some Noble man had wronged some poor man, and that the King should therefore deliver the Noble man into the power of the poor man, to take his own revenge: Surely, The ungodly shall see this, and be grieved, he shall gnash with his teeth for indignation, and melt away: but on the contrary, The righteous shall rejoyce when he seeth the vengeance, he shall wash his foot-steps in the blood of the ungodly. Psal. 112. 10. Psal. 58. 10.

O my soul, dost thou believe this truth? and art thou confident that thou shalt sit with Christ on his very Throne to judge the World? why then be joyful in afflictions, exercise thou patience in the censures and judgments of the World, know thou for thy comfort, that there is a turn and time of judging, and therefore say, With me it is a small matter that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment; as the original hath it, of man's day. Is it not enough to command patience, if God's day be at hand, when I shall judge my unjust judges; hark what the Apostle saith, Be patient Brethren unto the coming of the Lord, behold the Husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the Earth, and hath long patience for it, untill he receive the early and latter rain; be ye also patient, stablish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, behold the Judge standeth before the door. Come exercise patience, let the World be judging; if they will needs slander, reproach, and persecute thy soul, then they had better abuse any judge on earth than thee: though thou art the poorest, weakest, meanest, of God's Saints upon the Earth, they will know one day that they have abused their own judge in abusing thee. And therefore be thou quiet, silent, patient; Say as David, let him alone, and let him curse, yea, let him judge, for the Lord hath bidden him; it may be the Lord will look on mine affliction, and will requite good for his Judging this day; this is his day; but the day of the Lord is my day, and then shall I sit with Christ on his Throne to judge the World. Oh the sweet that I may suck from this honeycomb, of Christ and his Saints judging the World.

7. Consider Christ and his Saints going up into Heaven. No sooner hath he done his work with the World, and sent them away, but then he shall conduct all his flock like a faithful shepherd to their fold; then shall he go with all his troops following him into Heaven. Hath not Christ said so? If I go away, I will come again, and receive you unto my self, that where I am, there you may be also. O those songs of joy, and shouts of praise that will fill the World at that day! And thus as they go along, Heaven opens unto them, and they enter in; what welcomes they have there is past my telling; if we may imagine and guess, O the welcome that Christ will give! Come my spouse, and come my dear, come all my Saints; here be those Mansions that I went before to prepare and make ready for you, here be those everlasting habitations wherein you and I will dwell together; here is your Fathers house, the building of the Wall is all of Jasper, and the worst piece John 14. 3. Rev. 21. 18.

piece of it is all of pure Gold, like unto clear Glass; why this is your home, your house made without hands, here you and I will spend our time, eternity it self, in joying, enjoying, and beholding of each other. And as thus Christ salutes them, so will the Angels, those Created Citizens of Heaven salute them too; for if joy be in Heaven at the conversion of one sinner, what joy will there be at the glorification of all these Saints? what welcome entertainment, will the Angels give to these new guests at their first entrance into Heaven?

O my soul, if thou art one of them that shalt have this welcome, what wilt thou say when thou art admitted in thither! if weeping were in Heaven, wouldst thou not weep for joy? sure these things are no fictions of man's brain, but truths, and realities; and as they are true and real, so they are exceeding full of joy; all the excellencies of this World are but a dream in comparison of them; even the Sun in its brightness is but darkness to this glory that shall then be seen. Come, think over these things, and be so enlarged in thy thoughts, that before they go, thou mayest feel the sweet, and taste of this goodness of the Lord.

8. Consider all the several transactions that will follow in Heaven: then will Christ present all his elect to God his Father; then will he give in all his commissions which he hath received from his Father; Then will the Son himself be subject to the Father, that God may be all in all. I cannot stay to enlarge on these; Onely remember, though God may be all in all, that excludes not Christ, for he also is all in all to all his Saints, even to all eternity; Immediate visions and fruitions of Christ, as God is the very top of Heavens joy: Christ is all and in all; Christ is the center of Heavens happiness; Christ is the well-spring that fills the capacities of Saints and Angels; Christ is the object of happiness it self, there is as much happiness in Christ as happiness is; what ever belongs to glory, is in Christ, In him dwells all the fulness: whatever excellency is in Heaven, it is in Christ; not onely in perfection, but connection, for all those excellencies meet together, rest in Christ; and Christ is all good things to all his Saints in Heaven; he is Beauty to their Eyes, Music to their Ears, Honey to their Mouths, Perfume to their Nostrils, Health to their Bodies, Joy to their Souls, Light to their Understandings, Content to their Wills; he is Time without sliding, Society without loathing, Desire without fainting, Alpha and Omega, the beginning and ending; wanting both, needing neither, yet the Author of them both, he is all in all, from one, not all. Even all the Strength, Wit, Pleasure, Vertues, Colours, Beauties, Harmony, and Goodness that are in Men, Beasts, Fishes, Fowls, Trees, Herbs, and all Creatures, are nothing but sparkles of those things which are in Christ. Christ himself will then supply their use, so that the best Creatures which now serve the Saints, shall not have the honour to serve them then; There will be no need of the Sun, nor of the Moon, to shine in that City, for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof. Rev. 21. 23.

And hence the beholding of Christ is the all in all to his glorified Saints: this was Christ's Prayer, Father I will that those whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, to what end? that they may behold my glory. John 17. 24.

Christ's heavenly presence is conspicuous, he is not present as some things that are not seen, and yet are present; but his presence is, or certainly shall be conspicuous to all his Saints: when he was in the world his glory was covered under a mean out side, he was like a bright light in a dark-Lantern, and there were very few that knew him then; but in Heaven he shall be as a Cabinet opened, or as the Sun in his full glory; We shall know him as we are known, and behold him face to face, and we shall see him as he is. John 3. 2.

Nor only will he be conspicuous, but his presence shall be vital; a stone may be with us, and seen clearly, but there's little in the sight of that; in the beholding of Christ there will be an acting of kindness upon the Saints, there will be visions with life and dear refreshing: O the influences that the sight of Christ will have on his Saints in Heaven! nor onely will he be conspicuous and vital, but his presence shall be fixed; he shall abide with the Saints, that they may for ever behold him. Oh if there was such running after Christ in this World, some getting on hills, and others on trees, that they might behold him, when he passed by, what will the sight of Christ in Heaven be, when he shall be always in the eye of his Saints, and never out of sight, when they shall be alwayes viewing of him, and be alwayes satisfied with that view? nor only will he be conspicuous, vital, fixed, but his very presence shall transform; They shall see his face, — and they shall reign for ever and ever. Rev. 22. 4, 5.

O the influence of this sight! it is of such a transforming Nature, that to see the King will make Kings; this vision of glory amounts unto a fruition of glory, if ever thou art a spectator of Christ, thou art sure to be a partaker of Christ in all his glory. I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness. It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; why so? for we shall see him as he is. Psal. 17. 15. 1 John 3. 2.

And no wonder, for if the imperfect beholding of his glory in the glass of his Gospel, change the soul into the same image from glory to glory; how much more shall the full view of his glory in Heaven transform both the souls and bodies of his Saints into a fulness of glory? Here then is the top of Heaven; here is the all in all; here is the satisfaction of souls to the very uttermost; if Christ's glory in his transfiguration was so satisfactory to Peter, as that he desired his sight of it might never have end, or interruption; O it is good to be here, let us here build Tabernacles; and yet Peter was onely a spectator of this glory, for he had himself no share in it; O then what infinite satisf-satisfaction mayest thou expect in the beholding of Christ's Glory in Heaven, which will be accompanied with an everlasting enjoyment? the lustre of his glory will be diffused unto all, so that some shall enjoy the glory of the Sun, others of the Moon, and others of the Stars. O my soul, if thou art but a Star there, yet if thou art filled with that light that comes from the Sun of righteousness, it is enough. O remember! oh consider! oh never forget this Looking unto Jesus! as it is thy duty on Earth, so it is thy privilege and highest happiness in Heaven for ever and ever.

SECT. III.

Of desiring after Jesus in that respect.

3. LET us desire after Jesus, carrying on this work of Man's Salvation at his second coming. It is true, many shrink at the thoughts of death and judgment; and 'tis an high pitch to desire the dissolution of our selves, and of this world; the best Christians are compounded of flesh and spirit, and if the spirit long to be in Heaven, yet the Flesh is loath to leave this Earth. Speak out of my soul, thou prayest daily, Come Lord Jesus, let thy Kingdom come; but is not the Flesh afraid, lest God should hear thy Prayers? Oh that we could loath our loathness in that respect! oh that we could long for this second coming of Christ to Judgment! And Christians, this is attainable, or otherwise I should not persuade you to it. I am in a straight (saith Paul) between two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ which is far better: And this is the voice of the desolate Bride, Come; for the spirit of Christ within her saith come, The Spirit and the Bride say come. Yea, the whole Creation saith come, Waiting to be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the Sons of God; and not onely they, but our selves also which have the first-fruits of the Spirit, even we our selves groan within our selves, waiting for the adoption, to wit the redemption of our body. Oh that we could groan! Oh that we could come up to this high pitch, even to sigh out, not our breath, but our spirits! even to groan out, not some vapours, but our hearts.

I know it is suitable to flesh and blood to tremble at the thoughts of judgment; When Paul reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and Judgments to come, Felix trembled. Weak Christians as well as Heathens may have many terrible fancies and notions of that day: Oh to think of a time, When there shall be a great earthquake, when the Sun shall become black as jet, and the Moon red as blood, when the Stars of heaven shall fall, and when the heavens themselves shall depart as a scroll; when the Trumpet shall sound, that will shake the Earth, and every Mountain and Island shall be moved out of their places; when the Kings of the Earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief Captains, and every bond-man, and every free-man shall hide themselves in the dens, and in the rocks of the Mountains, and shall say to the rocks, and to the mountains, fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the Throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb, for the great day of his wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand? Will it not be terrible? if the people were so afraid when the Lord came without such attendants to give the Law upon Mount Sinai; certainly much more terrible must such a coming in this manner be, when he shall come like a revenging judge to take an account of the world for the keeping, or for the breaking of that Law.

In this respect, I wonder not at some weak Christians, that cry out, O Lord thou knowest, that I have not desired this woful day; A wise Jew was wont to say, from a deep foresight of terror of this day, The Messiah will come, but Lord let me not live to see his coming. Now to conquer this fear, and to abate such slavish terror in such souls; oh that they would consider it in the whole notion of it, not only as it shall be a day of blackness, and of terror, but as it shall be a day of rest and of release. Some are apt to take it up in the half notion of it, they look on it only as a day of Judgment, and a day of condemnation, and so they fly from it as from a Serpent; but if they would take it up again, and look on the other side, the Serpent would be turned into a Rod. The day which will be so dreadful to the ungodly, and the beginning of their misery, it will be as joyful to the Saints, and beginning of their glory.

But in what respect is this day of Christ so desirable a day? I answer, in these particulars—

1. It is a day of refreshing. Here the Saints work in a furnace; his fire is in Zion, and his furnace in Jerusalem; but Christ in his second coming (when all the world shall be on fire) shall fan wind (as I may say) on his Saints to cool them; to the wicked it is an hot day, a day of everlasting burnings; but to the Saints it is a day of cooling, quickning, reviving, and refreshing.

2. It is a day of restoring of all things. Every creature is now in it's work-day dressed, all defiled with sin, but at that day there shall be a restitution of all things; all the disorders and ruins which sin hath brought into the World shall then be repaired, and man himself whose sin is the cause of all, shall then be restored to his original glory.

3. It is a day of the manifestation of the Sons of God. Then shall it be known who are true Saints, and who are Reprobates; here we live in confusion, and in our most refined Churches (if we have none scandalous) yet we may have many hypocrites, and we cannot discern them; but in that day it shall be known who are the Lords, and who are not; the hypocrite shall then be unmantled;

tled, and the Sons of God shall shine and glitter as the Sun, that all may run and read, These are God's Elect, these are the Sons and Daughters of the Almighty.

Rom. 8.

4. It is the day of adoption, and of the redemption of our Bodies. It is the day of our Sonship and deliverance; I deny not but that the Saints are adopted and redeemed before this day; but this adoption and redemption is not consummate, nor declared before Christ come again to judgment, then it is that he takes his Saints home to his house, and all the Angels and Men of the World shall understand the love wherewith he loves them; then shall Christ say, These are my sons whom I have redeemed, and as I have set them free, so now shall they live and reign with me for ever and ever.

5. It is The day of Christ's coming. He was here not long since travelling about the Earth, and about our business; which done, he went away to Heaven upon a special errand for his Saints; and there now he is to intercede for them, to attend the court, to be their advocate, and to agitate the business of their souls; and withal there now he is to take up lodgings for them, and to prepare them mansions for eternity: and no sooner shall he have dispatcht his business there, but he will come for earth again; he will bow the Heavens and come down to give a report of his transactions there; hath he not left us a letter to that effect, I will come again, and receive you to my self, that where I am, there you may be also. O why are his Chariots so long a coming? why tarry the wheels of his Chariots?

2 Thef.
1. 7.

6. It is the day of Christ's revealing. Christ to many of his Saints here is hidden and withdrawn; it is true, he may be in them, yea, certainly he is in them by his spirit, but no man knows it, no nor themselves neither, which makes them cry, O where is he whom my soul loveth; but at this day of Christ's revealing, all curtains shall be drawn aside, Christ shall be unhid, and the Saints shall see him face to face, they shall never lose him more; for without any intermission they shall stare, and gaze, and be ever looking unto Jesus.

Col. 3. 4.

7. It is the day of Christ's bright and glorious appearing. When he was upon the earth he appeared in our dress, many then saw him, who then said of him, there is no beauty in him, that we should desire him: Oh it was a sad sight to see him crowned with Thorns and scourged with Whips, and nailed to the cross? but in his next appearing we shall see him in his best attire, arrayed in white, attended with the retinue of glory, riding in his Chariot of light, and smiling upon all his Saints. Now is not this desirable? The Apostle tells us of the Saints, Looking for the glorious appearing of the great God, and of our Saviour Jesus Christ; therefore surely they desire it.

8. It is the day of Christ's joy. Then he shall see of the travail of his soul, and he shall be satisfied. Now what is the travail of his soul? it is not the perfection of his redeemed ones? oh when Christ seeth this, when he seeth his spouse as without spot, or wrinkle; then shall be fulfilled that prophesie, As Iſa. 62. 5. the Bridegroom rejoiceth over the Bride; so shall thy God rejoice over thee: look how the joy of a Bridegroom is over his Bride upon the wedding-day, (surely then if ever) all is love and joy; so is Christ's joy over his Saints at the last day; then begins that joy that never, never shall have an end, there shall be no moment of time wherein Christ will not rejoice over his Saints for ever after.

9. It is the day of Christ's perfection. Christ as Mediator is not fully perfect till all his members be in glory united to him: As an head that wants an arm, or hand, or leg, we say is lame; so it is a kind of mystical lameness that Christ our head hath not with him all his members; the Saints are little pieces of mystical Christ, and it shall not be well till Christ gather in his arms, and thighs, and pull them nearer to himself in glory: and is not this desirable to see the Lord Jesus Christ as Head of the Church in his perfection? to see the Son of righteousness with every beam united to him? O desirable day!

10. It is Christ's Wedding-day, or the Marriage-day of the Lamb. The Saints are betrothed to Christ when first they believe in Christ, that is Christ's word, I will betroth thee unto me, and thou art my sister, my spouse, not my Wife; thou art not yet married, only contracted here: but at that day the marriage of the Lamb will be compleat, and then will the voice be heard; Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him, for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his Wife hath made her self ready. O the joy that Christ, and Saints and Angels, and all that belong to Heaven will make at this marriage! Blessed are they that are called to the Marriage-supper of the Lamb. One of the seven Angels that came to John in visions, talked with him saying, Come hither, and I will shew thee the Bride, the Lamb's Wife. If the espoused Virgin be willing to be married, how is it that we cry not, Come Lord Jesus, come quickly?

11. It is Christ's day of presenting his Saints unto his Father; he delivers up the Kingdom to God, even the Father. Then shall he take his Bride by the hand and bring her to his house, and present her in all state and solemnity to the Father. Is not this a desirable day? surely Christ rejoiceth, and his very heart even springs again to present his Church unto his Father, Father here behold my Bride that I have married unto my self. It is true, a Child may sometimes marry such a one, as he may be ashamed to think of bringing to his Father's house; but how mean and sinful soever we are of our selves, when once we are married unto Christ, he will not think it any dishonour, no not before his Father, that he hath such a Bride, Father (will he say) lo here all my Saints of all that thou hast given me, I have lost none, but the children of perdition, these are mine, dearly bought, thou knowest the price, O welcome them to glory.

12. It is the day of Christ's Glory. What glorious descriptions have we in Scripture of Christ's coming to Judgment? The Son of Man shall come from Heaven with power and great Glory; and the work no sooner done, but he shall return again into Heaven with power and great glory. Not to mention the essential glory of Christ, O the glory of Christ as Mediator; all the glory that Absoluerus could put upon his favourites was nothing to this spiritual and heavenly glory, which the Father will put upon the Son; it is a glory above all the glories that ever were, or ever shall be; it is an eternal glory; not but that Christ shall at last give up his Kingdom to his Father; he shall no more discharge the acts of an Advocate, or intercessor for us in heaven, only the glory of this shall always continue; it shall to all eternity be recorded that he was the Mediator, and that he is the Saviour that hath brought us to life and immortality, and upon this ground the tongues of all the Saints shall be employed to all eternity to celebrate this glory. This will be their everlasting Song, Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us Kings and Priests unto God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever, Amen. Now is not this a desirable thing? do we believe there is such a thing as Christ's mediatory glory, and Christ's essential glory? as Christ's humane glory, and Christ's divine glory? and have we no desires to behold this glory? surely Christ himself desired it of God, he would have his Saints with him where he is, that they might behold his glory; and shall not we desire it, whom it most concerns? O the sweet temper of the spouse when she cried out, Make hast my beloved and be thou like a Roe, or to a young Hart upon the mountains of spices!

Come now, and run over these particulars; surely every one is motive enough to desire this day; it is a day of refreshing, a day of restoring, a day of manifestation of the sons of God, a day of adoption, and of the redemption of our bodies; a day of Christ's coming, of Christ's revealing, of Christ's appearing, of Christ's joy, of Christ's perfection, of Christ's wedding, of Christ's presenting of his Saints; of Christ's glory; what are we not yet in a longing frame? the wife of youth that wants her Husband for some years, and expects that he should return from over sea-lands, she is often on the shore, her very heart loves the wind that should bring him home; every ship in view, that is but a drawing near the shore, is her new joy, and new reviving hopes; she asks of every passenger, O saw you my husband? what is he a doing? when will he come? is he not yet shipped, and ready for a return? Souls truly related to the Lord Jesus Christ should methinks long no less; O what desire should the Spirit and the Bride have to hear when Christ shall say to his Angels, Make you ready for the journey, let us go down and divide the skies, and bow the Heavens; Plea gather my prisoners of hope unto me, I cannot want my Rachel, and her weeping Children any longer, behold I come quickly to judge the Nations? Methinks every spouse of Christ should love the quarter of the sky, that being rent asunder should yield unto her Husband; methinks she should love that part of the Heavens, where Christ puts through his glorious hand, and comes riding on the Rain-bow and Clouds to receive her to himself. I conclude this with the conclusion of the Bible, He that testifieth these things, saith, Rev. 22. surely I come quickly, Amen. Even so, come Lord Jesus.

SECT. IV.

Of hoping in Jesus in that respect.

4. LET us hope in Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in his second coming. Hope is of good things to come; hope is an act of the will extending it self towards that which it loves as future; only the future good as it is the object of hope is difficult to obtain, and therein it differs from desire; for desire looks at future good without any apprehension of difficulty, but hope respects the future good as it is gotten with difficulty. Lazy hopes that will not be in use of means, though difficult, are not true hopes; we see many desirable things set before us, of which we may say, Oh that we had our part and portion of them! but shall we go on, and search and find out the truth, whether we have any part or portion in them? or whether we have any hopes of any such thing? oh this is worthy our pains! come then, let us yet make a further progress, let us not only desire that it may be thus and so, but let us say, on some sure and certain grounds, we hope it is thus and so; we hope Christ will come again, and receive us to himself, that where he is, there we may be also.

Indeed there is the Christians stay and comfort; such an hope is a sure Anchor, that will hold the ship in a storm; only because our souls lie upon it, we had need to look to it that our hopes be true; the worst can say, They hope to be saved as well as the best; but I fear the hopes of many will be lamentably frustrated. Our Saviour brings in many pleading with confidence at the last day for life, who shall be rejected with miserable disappointment; Many shall say to me at that day, Lord, Lord, &c. and I will confess unto them, I never knew them; depart from me. Now to clear this point, that our hopes, are of the right stamp, and not counterfeit hopes, I shall lay down some signs, whereby we may know that Christ's coming is for us, and for our good, and for the grace that is to be given us at the revelation of Jesus Christ.

Heb. 9.

1. If we are born again, then will his glorious coming be to glorify us, Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his abundant mercy hath begotten

gotten us again unto a lively hope, to an inheritance incorruptible. Whoever hath the true hope of Heaven, he is one that is begotten again; so our Saviour, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God. Many things may be done, as Herod heard John the Baptist, and did many things: but except a man be born again, those many things are in God's account as nothing. When Peter had told Christ, that he and his fellow-disciples had forsaken all, and followed him; Then Jesus said, verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me in the regeneration, when the Son of man shall sit in the Throne of his glory, ye shall also sit upon twelve Thrones, judging the twelve Tribes of Israel. q. d. Peter, you have forsaken all, and followed me; but know, that bare forsaking is not enough: but you who have felt the Work of God regenerating your souls, upon which ye have followed me, ye shall sit upon twelve Thrones. In those who are alive at the last day there will be a change, and this change will be to them instead of death; Behold I shew you a mystery, we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed. Certainly in those who at the last day shall sit on Thrones with Christ, there must be a change likewise in this life; (i. e.) a new spirit, and a new life must be put into them; Oh what a change is this! suppose a rational soul were put into a beast, what a change would be in that Creature! suppose an angelical nature were put upon us, what a change would there be in us? oh but what a change is this, when a man is born again of water and of the spirit; I must tell you, that the highest degree of glory in Heaven, is not so different from the lowest degree of grace here, as the lowest degree of grace here, is different from the highest excellency of nature here; because the difference betwixt the highest degree of the glory of Heaven, and the lowest degree of grace is only gradual; but the difference that is betwixt the lowest degree of grace, and the highest excellency of nature, is a special difference. Oh there's a mighty work of God in preparing souls for glory by grace, and this change must they have that must sit on Thrones. Come then, you that hope for glory, try your selves by this; is there a change in your hearts, words, and lives? is there a mighty work of grace upon your spirits? are you experienc'd in the great mystery of regeneration? why here's your evidence, that your hopes are sound, and that you shall sit upon Thrones to judge the world.

2. If we long for his coming, then will he come to satisfy our longings. Blessed are they that hunger and thirst, for they shall be satisfied; how satisfied, but in being saved? Christ was offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time without sin to salvation; unto them that look for him, or long for him, shall he appear the second time unto salvation; it is very observable, how this looking for Christ, is in Scripture a frequent description of a true believer in Christ.

Who are true, sincere, and sound Christians, but such as live in a perpetual desire and hope of Christ's blessed coming? they are ever looking for, and hastning unto the coming of the day of God. Here are two signs in one verse, looking for, and hastning unto; true believers are not only in a posture looking for the coming of Jesus Christ, but also, as it were, going forth to meet Jesus Christ with burning Lamps. Luther could say, That he was no true Christian, neither could he truly recite the Lord's prayer, that with all his heart desired not this day of the coming of Christ. It is true, that whether we will or no, that day will come, but in the Lord's prayer Christ hath taught us to pray that God would accelerate and hasten the day of his glorious coming, thy Kingdom come, (i. e.) the Kingdom of glory at the Judgment, as well as the Kingdom of grace in the Church. It is true, that the day of the Lord is a terrible day, the Heavens, and Earth, and Sea, and Air shall be all on a Bone-fire, and burn to nothing; nevertheless we according to his promise look for new Heavens, and a new Earth; we that have laid hold upon God, and laid hold on him by the right handle, according to his promises, we look for this day of the Lord, we look for it, and hasten unto it, we are glad it is so near, and we do what we can to have it nearer, with an holy kind of impatience we beg of the Lord, Come Lord Jesus, come quickly. This was Paul's character, We know that the whole creation groaneth, and travaileth in pain together until now; and not only they, but our selves also, which have the first-fruits of the spirit, even we our selves groan within our selves, waiting for the adoption, to wit the redemption of our bodies: God's children, such as have the first-fruits of the spirit, the beginnings of true saving grace in them, they constantly look and long for the day of full deliverance, or of the coming of Christ. This the Apostle instanceth in his Corinthians, ye come behind in no gift, waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; and in like manner he writes to his Philipians, Our Conversation is in Heaven, from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: And to Titus himself he writes the same things, We look for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ. Now Christians lay this character to heart, do you long, pant, and look for this glorious and second coming of Christ? have you any such wishes, and sayings of heart and mind as these are; Oh that Christ would appear! Oh that Christ would now break the Heavens, and come to Judgment! oh that I could see him in the Cloud, and on his Throne! oh that his enemies were ruined, my sins subdued, my soul saved; that I might serve him without weariness, for ever and ever! Surely if these elongations of soul be in you, it is a comfortable evidence that your hopes are sound, and that Christ will come to receive you to himself, and to bring you to Glory.

3. If we love Christ's appearing, then
 2 Tim. 4. will he appear on our side; Henceforth there
 8. is laid up for me a Crown of Righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto them also that love his appearing. A true Christian loves Christ's appearing in Ordinances, and in all the means of Grace, how much more in his own Person? but how should we love that we see not? O yes! there's a kind of an Idea of Christ, and of his glorious appearing in every sanctified soul, and in that respect we love him, though we cannot see 1 Pet. 1. him, Who having not seen ye love, saith the
 1. Apostle; and so your love and faith at the Ver. 7. appearing of Jesus Christ shall be found unto praise, and honour, and glory. Those that have not seen Christ, and yet love the Idea of his sight, even they shall appear at the appearing of Christ in praise, and honour, and glory. Is not the Crown laid up for them that love the appearing of Christ? is it not a sign of a good cause to love a day of hearing?
 Surely the love of Christ's coming cannot consist without some assurance that a soul shall stand upright in the Judgment. He that hath not a confidence in this cause, loves not the coming of the Judge; no guilty Prisoner loves the Sessions, or loves the Judges presence; it is the cry of Reprobates, O ye
 Rev. 6. Mountains, and O ye Rocks, fall on us, and hide
 16. us from the face of him that sitteth on the Throne. But as for Christ and his Saints; O the mutual loves, and mutual longings in their Breasts! The last words that Christ speaks in the Bible (and amongst us, last words make deepest impressions) are surely I come quickly; and the last answer that is made in our behalf, is, Amen, even so come Lord Jesus. I know this Character is near the former, and therefore I shall pass it over.

4. If our Works be good, then will he reward us according to our Works. At that great day this will be the Trial, Works are no Works: Then will he say to them on his Mat. 25. right hand, Come ye Blessed of my Father, in-
 33. 34. herit the kingdom prepared for you, for I was
 35. 36. an hungred, and ye gave me meat; I was thir- sty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me,
 Ver. 46. I was sick, and ye visited me, I was in Prison, and ye came unto me. Here were Works, upon which followed the Rewards of Heaven, for these went into Eternal Life. I know Works are not meritorious, and yet they are Evidences; I know Works without Faith are but glittering sins, and yet works done in faith are signs, and fore-runners of Eternal glory;
 I know, that if all the Excellencies of all the Moralities of all the men in the World were put together, these could never reach Glory; and yet a cup of cold water given to one of Christ's little ones, in the name of a Disciple of Christ, shall not lose its Reward. If a Christian doubt, how should I know that my Works are of a right stamp? I answer,
 1. Look at the principle, Is there not something above Nature? Do I not find some new Light let out by God, that shews a glory, and excellency, and beauty in good Works? Is there not something in me that makes the same to be sweet, or pleasant, or agreeable to me?

2. Look at the end, natural works have no better end than self and creature respects; but in my works, is there no aim at something higher than self? Whatever I do, is not this in mine eye, that all I do may tend to the honour and glory of God? I had need take heed of Vain-glory and Self-applause; the Godly at the day of Judgment do not know the good works they did; if my aim be at God, I shall forget my self, as if all I did were swallowed up in God. 3. Look at the manner of my doing Works: Uzziah had a good intention, but his work was not good, because the manner was not good. Are my Works according to the Rule? Do they carry a conformity to the Law of God? Let every man try his own work in this: O my soul, bring thy works to the touch-stone, the Scripture, the Rule of Goodness; is not all thy Gold then discovered to be Dross? the Scripture doth not only tell of works, but tells us the manner of performing them; as for instance, If rightly done, they must be done in zeal, in fervency, in activity: Thus Gods People are called a peculiar People, zealous of good works; a formal, customary, superficial performance of holy Works fails in the manner of performing them. What, are my works performed in zeal? Is there not too much of coldness, emptiness, formality in all I do? Why, thus may I know whether my works are of a right stamp; Certainly all works, duties, actings, which are not done by a gracious heart, through a gracious power, to a gracious end, in a gracious manner, are sins, and not such works as shall have the Rewards of Heaven. Some may object, This is an hard saying, who then shall be saved? I answer, 1. By confession, very few; What is the whole company of christians, besides a very few (said Salvian) but a sink of Vices? Are they only good works which are thus and thus qualified? It were enough to make us all fear all the works that ever we have done. But secondly, here's all our hope, that in a Gospel-way Christ looks at our good works in the truth of them, and not in the perfection of them; no man goes beyond Paul, who when he would do good found evil present with him. Alas, there's a perpetual opposition and conflict betwixt the flesh and the spirit, so that the most spiritual man cannot do the good things he would do; and yet we must not conclude that nothing is good in us, because not perfectly good. Sincerity and truth in the inward parts, may in this case hold up our hearts from sinking;
 as he in the Gospel cried, I believe, Lord, help my unbelief; so if we can but say, I do good works, Lord help me in the concurrence of all needful circumstances. Here will be our evidence, that our hearts are sound, and that Christ will sentence us to Eternal Life. Come ye Blessed, &c. And why so?
For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat,
&c.

Rom. 7.
18, 19.

5. If we believe in Christ, then shall we live with Christ; if we come to him and receive

receive him by Faith, then will he come again and receive us to himself, that where he is, there we may be also. Good works are good evidences, but of all works those of the Gospel are clearest Evidences, and have clearest promises; come then, let us try our obedience to the Commandments of Faith, as well as life; let us try our submission to the Lord by believing, as well as doing. Surely the greatest Work of God that ever any Creature did, it is this Gospel-work, when it apprehends its own unworthiness, and ventures it self and its Estate upon the righteousness of Jesus Christ: If we were able to perform a full, exact, and accurate obedience to every particular of the Moral Law, it were not so great a work, nor so acceptable to God, nor should be so gloriously rewarded in heaven, as this one work of believing in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the work, to which in express terms salvation, Heaven, and Glory is promised; He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that heareth my words, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but he that passed from death to life.—And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him may have everlasting life.——And these things are written that ye might believe that Jesus is Christ the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name.——Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved.——And if thou shalt confess with thy mouth, the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.——And we are not of them who draw back unto perdition, but of them that believe unto the saving of the soul.——And these things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have everlasting life. Why this above all is the Gospel-work, to which are annexed those gracious promises of eternal life. So that if we believe in Christ, how may we be assured that we shall live with Christ.

O my soul, gather up all these Characters, and try by them. Every one can say, that they hope well, they hope to be saved, they hope to meet Christ with comfort, though they have no ground for it but their own vain Conceits; but hope on good ground, is that hope that maketh not ashamed; say then, art thou born again? Dost thou look and long for the coming of Christ in the Clouds? Dost thou love his appearing? Art thou rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to Communicate? Dost thou obey the Commandments of faith, as well as life? Sure these are firm, and sound, and comfortable grounds of an assured hope. Content not thy self with an hope of possibility, or probability; but reach out to that Plerophory, or full assurance of hope; the hope of possibility is but a weak hope, the hope of probability is but a fluctuating hope, but the hope of certainty is a settled hope; such an hope sweetens all the thoughts of God and Christ, of Death and Judgment, of Heaven ven, yea, and of Hell too, whiles we hope that we are saved from it; and are not the Scriptures written to this very purpose, That we might have this hope? We are not justified by his grace, that we might be heirs in hope, heirs according to the hope of eternal life? And was not this David's confidence, Lord I have hoped for thy salvation? Why then art thou cast down, O my soul? And why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance and my God.

If I may here enter into a Dialogue with my own poor, trembling, wavering soul—Person—Why art thou hopeless, O my soul? Wouldst thou not hope, if an honest man had made thee a promise of any thing within his power? And wilt thou not hope when thou hast the Promise, the Oath, and the Covenant of God in Christ?—Soul—

Yes; methinks I feel some little hope, but alas, it is but a little, a very little—Person—Ay, but go on my soul, true hope is called a lively hope, and a lively hope is an efficacious hope; no sooner faith commends the promise unto hope, but hope takes it, and hugs it, and reckons it as its Treasure, and feeds on it as Manna, which God hath given to refresh the weary soul in the desert of sin; go on then, till thou comest up to the highest pitch, even to that triumphant joyful expectation, and waiting for of Christ in glory.

—Soul—Why, methinks I would hope, I would ascend the highest step of hope; but alas, I cannot: Oh I am exposed to many Controversies, I am prone to many unquiet Agitations; though I have a present promise, yet I extend my cares and fears even to eternity: Alas, I cannot comprehend, and therefore I am hardly satisfied; my sinful reason sees not its own way and end, and because it must take all on trust and credit, therefore it falls to wrangling; nay, Satan himself so snarles the question, and I am so apt to listen to his doubts, that in the conclusion, I know not how to extricate my self.——Person—Sayest thou so? Surely in this case there's no cure, no remedy, but only the Testimony of God's Spirit; but saith not the Apostle, That the Spirit of it self bears witness with our spirit, that we are the Children of God: If a Man or Angel, or Archangel should promise Heaven, peradventure thou mightest doubt; but if the supream Essence of the Spirit of God bear witness within, what room for doubting? Why, this voice of the spirit is the very voice of God; hark then, enquire, O my soul, if thou hast but this testimony of the spirit, thou art sure enough—Soul—Oh that it were thus with me! Oh that the spirit would even now give me to drink of the Wells of salvation! Oh that the spirit would testify it home! Oh that he would shine upon, and enlighten all those graces which he hath planted in me! Fain would I come to the highest pitch of hope, oh that I could look upon the things hoped for as certainly future.——Person—Thou sayest well, O my soul, and if these wishes be real, then then pour out thy self unto God in prayer; Rom. 15. this was the Apostles method, Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the holy Ghost; let this be thy practise, pray as he prayed, pray thou for thy self as he prayed for others; if an earthly Father will Luk. 11. harken to his child, how much more will God the Father give the Spirit to them that ask the Spirit of him.—Soul—Why if this be it; to thee Lord do I come, O give me the Spirit, the witness of the Spirit, the first-fruits of the Spirit, the sealing of the Spirit, the earnest of the Spirit. O give me the Spirit, and let the Spirit give me this hope. O the hope of Israel, and Saviour thereof in the time of trouble, why shouldst thou be as a stranger in my soul, and as a way-faring man that turneth aside to tarry for a night? Come, O come, and dwell in my soul, Come, and blow on my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out: come and fill me with a lively hope; yea Lord excite, and quicken, and stir up my soul to act this hope, yea, so illighten, or shine upon my hope, that I may know that I hope, and know that I joyfully expect, and wait for the coming of Christ: O let me hear thy voice, Say unto my soul I am, and will be thy salvation.—Person—Well now, thou hast prayed, O my soul, Come, tell me, dost thou feel nothing stir? is there nothing at all in thee that assures thee of this assurance of hope? is there no life in thy affections? no spark that takes hold on thy heart to set it on flame? no comfort of the Spirit, no joy in the Holy Ghost?—Soul—Yes! methinks I feel it now begin to work, the Spirit that hath breathed this prayer into me comes in as a Comforter; O now that I realize Christ's coming and my resurrection, I cannot but conclude with David, Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth, and my flesh also shall rest in hope. Oh what an earnest is this? what a piece hath the Spirit put into my hand of the great sum promised? not onely that he in great mercy promised me Heaven, but because he doth not put me into a present possession, he now gives me an earnest of my future inheritance. Why, surely all is sure, unless the earnest deceive me; and what? shall I dispute the truth of the earnest? oh God forbid! the stamp is too well known to be mistrusted; this seal cannot be counterfeit, because it is agreeable with the Word; I find in my self an hope, a true sincere hope, though very weak: I find upon trial that I am regenerate, that I look and long for the second coming of Jesus, that I love his appearance even before hand: that my works, though imperfect, are sincere and true, that I believe on the Name of the Son of God, and flesh and blood could never work these duties or these graces in me; it is only that good Spirit of my God, which hath thus sealed me up to the day of redemption. Away, away despair, trouble me no longer with musing thoughts; I will henceforth (if the Lord enable) walk confidently, and cheerfully in the strength of this assurance, and joyfully expect the full accomplishment of my happy contract from the hands of Christ. The Lord is my portion, therefore will I hope in him; the Lord is good to them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him; it is good that I both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord.—It is good that I hope to the end, for the grace that is to be brought unto me at the revelation of Jesus Christ. Lam. 3. 24, 25, 26. 1 Pet. 1. 13.

SECT. V.

Of believing in Jesus in that respect.

5. LET us believe in Jesus as carrying on the great work of our salvation in his second coming. Now this believing in Christ is more than hoping in Christ; Faith eyes things as present, but hope eyes things as future; and hence the Apostle describes faith to the substance of things hoped for; it Heb. 11. is the substance, foundation, or prop which upholds the building; or it is the substance, essence, existence of things hoped for, and consequently absent and a far off, to be by a firm apprehension of the believer as already present and real. And this is as necessary as the former; oh if we could but see things now, as they shall appear at that last general day of Judgment, how mightily would they work upon our souls? I verily think the want of this work of faith is the cause almost of all the evil in the world; and the acting of faith on this subject would produce fruits even to admiration. If we could but see that glory of God in Christ, and those glorious treasures of mercies that shall then be communicated; if we could but see those dreadful evils that are now threatened, and shall then be fulfilled, would not this draw the hardest heart under Heaven? come, let us act faith this day, as if this day were the last day; a thousand years are but as one day to faith? it takes hold upon eternal life, whenever it acts; it takes present possession of the glorious things of the Kingdom of God even now.

O then let us believe in Jesus in reference to his second coming to judgment. But how should we believe? what directions to act our faith on Jesus in this respect? I answer—

1. Faith must directly go to Christ.
2. Faith must go to Christ as God in the flesh.
3. Faith must go to Christ as God in the flesh made under the Law.
4. Faith must go to Christ made under the directive part of the Law by his life, and under the penal part of the Law by his death.
5. Faith must go to Christ as put to death in the Flesh, and as quickened by the Spirit.
6. Faith must go to Christ, as going up into into glory, as sitting down at God's right hand, and as sending down the Holy Ghost.

7. Faith must go to Christ as interceding for his Saints, in which work he continues till his coming again. Of all these before.

8. Faith must go to Christ as coming again into this neather world to judge the quick and the dead; This is the last act of Faith in reference to Christ, From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead. The coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, the change of the living, the last judgment, and the glory of Christ with his Saints to all eternity, is that transaction which must be dispatched at the end of the world, now this is the object of Faith as well as the former; Christ's work is not fully perfected till all these be finished, nor is our work of Faith fully compleated till it reach to the very last act of Christ in saving souls.—Oh

John 17. 46. what an excellent worker is Jesus Christ? he doth all his works throughly and perfectly; the greatest work that ever Christ undertook was the work of redemption, that work would have broken Men and Angels, and yet Jesus Christ will carry it on to the end, and then will he say not only prophetically, but expressly, I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. Now Faith should eye Christ as far as he goes, if Christ will not have done till he comes again, and receive us to himself, and settle us in glory; no more should Faith, it should still follow after him, and take a view of all his transactions from first to last; what, will Christ come again? will he summon all the elect to come under judgment; will he sentence or judge them to eternal life? will he conduct them into glory, present them to his Father, and be their all in all to all eternity? why then let our Faith act it self upon all these promises; or if I may instance in one for all, Christ's coming is the most comprehensive of all; and is not the coming of Christ very frequently mentioned in the promises, as the great support and stay of his Peoples spirits till then? do not the Apostles usually quicken us to duty, and encourage us to waiting by the mentioning of this glorious coming of Jesus Christ? why then let us act our faith on this glorious Object; Christians, what do we believe, and hope, and wait for, but to see this coming? this was Pauls encouragement to rejoycing and moderation, Rejoyce in the Lord alwayes—and let your moderation be known to all, the Lord is at hand; To think and speak of that day with horror, doth well beseem the impenitent sinner, but doth ill beseem the believing Saint; such may be the voice of an unbeliever, and it may be of a believer in desertion or temptation, but it's not the voice of Faith. O believe on Christ, as carrying on our salvation at his coming again, For yet a little while, and he that shall come, will come, and he will not tarry.

9. Faith must principally and mainly look to the purpose, design, intent, and end of Christ in his second coming to judgment.

Now the ends are— 1. In respect of the wicked that they may be destroyed, for he must reign till he hath put all his enemies under his feet. He shall come with flaming fire, and then he will take vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. O miserable Men! now it is God's design to be revenged on you. This is the day when the wicked shall suddenly start out of sleep, and meet with gantly amazedness at the mouth of their sepulchers; above them stands the Judge condemning, beneath Hell gaping, on the right hand Justice threatening, on all sides the world burning; to go forward is intollerable, to go backward is impossible, to turn aside is unavilable; which way then? Heaven gates are shut, Hell mouth is open, where they must end their endless misery; the last torment lasteth ever. O the shrieks of the wicked at every passage of this day! when the Prophet Joel was describing the formidable accidents of this day, he was not able to express it, but stammered like a Child, or an amazed imperfect Person, A. A. A. for the day of the Lord is at hand. We translate it, alas, for the day of the Lord is at hand. But Lyra, Ribera, the Vulgar Latin, and others translate it, A. A. A. in Hebrew it is indeed but one word, and sounds as Aha, which howsoever so written, yet is it pronounced without any aspiration, as Aharon, is pronounced Aaron. The best Criticks would but have it one word, and so they write it, A-a a for the day of the Lord is at hand: thus they that stammer, and cannot suddenly speak, say A-a-a. It is not sense at first; the Prophet was so amazed, that he knew not what to say; the stammering tongue that is full of fear, can best speak that terror, which will make all the wicked of the World to cry, and shrike, and speak fearful accents; oh the shrieks! oh the fearful sounds that will then be heard! sure that noise must needs be terrible, when millions of Men and Women at the same instant shall fearfully cry out, and when their crys shall mingle with the thunders of the dying and groaning Heavens, and with the crack of the dissolving World, when the whole fabrick of nature shall shake into dissolution, and eternal ashes. Now consider this ye that forget God, lest he tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver you. Shall not the consideration of these things awake your spirits, and raise you from the death of sin? what? do you believe these things? or do you not? if you do not believe these things, where is your Faith? if you do believe them, and sin on, where is your prudence? and where is your hope? but enough of this; it belongs to the wicked.

2. In respect of the Godly that they may be saved. Now this contains several steps. As—

1. They must be regenerated. It is true they partake of this grace before, but now is the full perfection and manifestation of it, and therefore the last day is called the day of regeneration. Mat. 19. 28.

2. They must be redeemed. So they are in this life; Paul could tell his Colossians, that Christ had delivered them from the power of darkness; and that in him they had redemption through his blood. Yet the Scripture calls the day of judgment in a peculiar and eminent manner the day of redemption. And grieve not the holy spirit of God whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

3. They must be adopted. It is true, they are adopted in this life, We are now the Sons of God (saith the Apostle) yet it doth not appear what we shall be; the glory which Christ will put upon us at the last day, is so far transcendent and superlative to what now we are, that we know not what we shall be; sons, and more than sons; and therefore the Apostle calls the last day, the day of adoption.

4. They must be justified. I know they were justified by Faith before, and this justification was evidenced to some of their consciences; but now shall they be justified fully by the lively voice of the Judge himself; now shall their justification be solemnly and publickly declared to all the world; The Syriack word to Justifie, is also to conquer, because when a Man is justified, he overcomes all those bills and indictments which were brought in against him; now this is manifestly done in the day of judgment when Christ shall before Men and Angels acquit, and absolve his people: oh what a glorious conquest will that be over Sin, Death, and Hell, when the judge of the whole World shall pronounce them free from all Sin, and from all those miserable effects of Sin, Death, Hell, and Dominion.

5. They must inherit the Kingdom prepared for them, so is the sentence at that day, Come ye Blessed, inherit the Kingdom. Not only are they freed from Hell, but they must inherit Heaven. Now herein is an high step of salvation, and a great part of the design of Christ's coming, to bring his Saints into Heaven; he went thither before to prepare it for them, and now he comes again to give them the possession of it, Come enter into Heaven. Heaven? what is Heaven? surely it is not one single Palace; but a City, a Metropolis, a Mother-City, the first City of God's Creation: When the Angel carried John in the spirit to a great and high Mountain, he shewed him the great City, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of Heaven from God, having the glory of God. But a City is too little, therefore its more, its a Kingdom; Fear not little Flock, for your Father's good pleasure, to give you the Kingdom; and at this last day he bids his Saints to inherit the Kingdom. Or if a Kingdom be too little, it is called a World; the children of this world marry, and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage, neither can they dye any more. There's another world besides this, and for eminency it is called the World to come. O the breadth and largeness of that world! as the greater circle must contain the less, so doth that world contain this; alas, all our dwellings here are but as caves under the earth, and holes of poor clay in comparison. In the bosome of that Heaven is many a dwelling place: In my Father's house are many mansions; there lodges many thousand of glorious Kings; O what fair fields, and mountains of roses and spices are there? surely gardens of length and breadth above millions of miles are nothing in comparison. O the Vines, the Lillies, the Roses, the precious Trees that grow in Immanuel's Land! an hundred harvests in one year are nothing there, the lowest stones in every mansion there, are precious stones; the very building of the wall about it is Jasper, and the City is pure Gold, like unto clear Glass. O glorious inheritance!

Tell me Christians, in what City on Earth do Men walk upon Gold? or dwell within the walls of Gold? though none such here, yet under the feet of the inhabitants of Heaven there is Gold; All the streets, and fields of that City, Kingdom, World, are pure Gold, as it were transparent Glass. But alas, what speak I of Gold or Glass; all these are but shadows; indeed and in truth there is nothing so low as Gold, or precious Stones; there is nothing so base in this high and glorious Kingdom, as Gardens, Trees, or Roses, comparisons are but created shadows, that come not up to express the glory of the thing. I shall therefore leave to speak this, because unspeakable.

6. They must live with Christ in Heaven; they must see, and enjoy Christ there to all eternity. This is a main end of Christ's coming, I will come again, and receive you unto my self, that where I am, there ye may be also. And Father, I will that those whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold the glory which thou hast given me. O let faith eye this above all the former! what? will my Saviour come again? and shall I see his face? Oh what a pleasant sight will this same be? if Heaven, if the inheritance be such a wonder to the beholders, what a beauty is that which is in the samplar? oh what an happiness to stand besides that dainty precious Prince in Heaven? to see the King on his Throne? to see the Lamb, the fair tree of life, the flower of Angels, the spotless Rose, that Crown, the Garland, the joy of Heaven, the wonder of wonders for eternity? oh what a life to see the precious Tree of life! to see a multitude without quantity of the Apples of glory! to see love it self, and to be warmed with the heat of immediate love that comes out from the precious heart and bowels of Jesus Christ! Oh what a dearness to see all relations meet in one! to see the Saviour, the good Shepherd, the Redeemer, the great Bishop of our souls, the Angel of the Covenant, the Head of the body of the Church, the King of ages, the Prince of peace, the Creator of the ends of the Earth, the Song of Angels and glorified Saints. Not only must they see Christ, but they shall enjoy him whom they see; they fly with doves.

doves-wings of beauty after the Lamb, and in flying after him they lay hold upon him, and they will not leave him; they can never have enough of the chaste fruition of the glorious Prince Immanuel, and they never want his in-most presence to the full; they suck the hony and the hony-comb; they drink of the floods of eternal consolations, and fill all empty desires; and as if the souls of Saints were without bottom, a fresh they suck again to all eternity. Now this is salvation indeed, the soul that attains this full enjoyment, is saved to the uttermost.

3. In respect of Christ himself that he may be glorified. Now in two things more especially will he be glorified at that day.

1. In his justice. 2. In his mercy, or free grace.

1. His justice will be glorified, especially in punishing the wicked here on Earth, little justice is done on most offenders; though some publick crimes are sometimes punished, yet the actions of closets and chambers, the designs and thoughts of Men; the businesses of retirements, and of the night, escape the hand of justice; and therefore God hath so ordained it, that there shall be a day of doom, wherein all that are let alone by men, shall be questioned by God;

Gen. 18. Shall not the judge of all the World do right?

then all thoughts shall be examined, and secret actions viewed on each side, and the infinite number of those sins which escaped here, shall be blazoned there; all shall have justice; and the justice of the judge shall be so exact, that he will account with men by minutes; and that justice may reign entirely, God shall open his treasure: I mean the wicked man's treasure, and tell the sums, and weigh the grains and scruples. Is not
Deut. 32. this laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures? I will restore it in the day of vengeance saith the Lord. Oh how will God glorify his justice at that day? surely his justice shall shine, and be eminently glorious in every passage.

2. His mercy, or free grace will be glorified in rewarding the Saints. And this is the main, the supream end of his coming to judgment, He shall come (saith the Apostle) to be glorified in his Saints; not but that the Angels shall glorify the riches of his grace, as well as Saints; but because the Angels never sinned, (they have now kept their Robes of innocency, their cloth of Gold above five thousand years, without one spark of dirt, or change of colour:) therefore the glory of his grace is more especially fastned on Saints, that sometimes were sinners. Oh what stories will be told at this day of graces acts? I was a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and an injurious Person (saith Paul) but I obtained mercy; ἀλλ' ἠλθέην, but I was be-mercied, as if he had been dipt in a River, in a Sea of mercy; it may be he will make the same acknowledgment at the day of judgment; I was a sinner, but the grace of the Lord Jesus to me was abundant, superabundant; I obtained as much grace as would have saved a World. Certainly free grace shall then be discovered in some purpose; then it shall be known, That where Rom. 5: sin abounded, grace far more; it over-abounded, 20. ed, or more than overabounded: ὑπερεπερίσσευσεν.

It is a word borrowed from Fountains and Rivers, which have over-flowed with Waters ever since the Creation; then all the Saints shall exalt, and magnifie, and with loud voices praise the Glory of his grace; they shall look on their debts written in graces book, and then shall they sing and say, O the mystery of grace! O the gold-mines, and the depts of Christ's free love! why this was the great design of our salvation: at the first, when God was willing to communicate himself out of his aloneness everlasting, he laid this plot, that all he would do, should be to the Praise of the Glory of his grace; Epli. 1.6: and now at his second coming, have done all he will do, the Saints for whom he hath done all, admire, esteem, honour, and sound forth the praises of his grace. Is not this their everlasting song which they begin at this day? Glory to the Lamb, and Glory to his Grace, that sitteth on the Throne for evermore? not but that they glorify him in his Wisdom, Power, Holiness, and his other Attributes, ay but especially in this, it is his Grace in which he most delighteth; even as vertuous Kings affect, above all their other Vertues, to be had in honour for their Clemency, and Bounty; so Jesus Christ the King of Kings affects, above all, the glory of his grace. And to this purpose Heaven it self is an house full of broken men, who have borrowed millions from Christ, but can never repay more than to read, and sing the Praises of Free-grace; Glory to the Lamb, and glory to the riches of his grace for evermore.

Thus for directions; one word of Application, or a few motives to work Faith in you in this respect.

1. Christ in his word invites you to believe; these are his Letters from Heaven, Come all to the Marriage-supper of the Lamb; Ho every one that thirsts come in; Heaven gate is open to all that knock, but fools, foolish Virgins, foolish souls, which have no Faith, nor will have any, to render them fit for Heaven. This meets with some that scruple, what? will Christ come again to receive me to himself? shall I enter with him into glory? alas no unclean thing shall enter into that Holy City, and shall such a sinner as I am be admitted? Oh believe, believe thy part in this coming of Christ, to receive thee to himself; and no sin, that thou feelest a burthen, shall keep thee out of Heaven. There is Rahab the Harlot; and Manasseth the Murtherer, and Mary that had so many Devils; a man that hath many Devils may come where there is not one; Lame, and Blind, and Halt may enter into Luke 14: Heaven, and yet still there is room; there is 22. a great variety of guests above, and yet one Table large enough for all; no crouding, and yet thousands, and thousands of thousands sitting together; Ah poor soul, why dost thou make exceptions, where God makes none? why shouldst thou exclude thy self out of these golden Gates, when God doth not? believe, only believe in the Lord Jesus, and the promise is sure, and without all controversy, thou shalt be saved.

K k k k k and

2. Christ by his Ministry intreats you to believe; come, say they, we beseech you believe in your judge; it may be you startle at this, what? to believe in him who is a coming to be your judge? but if your judge be Jesus, if the same person who died for you, shall come to judge you, why should you fear? indeed if your judge were your enemy, you might fear; but if he who is your Lord, and who loves your souls shall judge you, there is no such cause; will a man fear to be judged by his dearest friends? a brother by a brother? a child by a Father? or a wife by her husband? consider! is not he your Judge who came down from Heaven, and who being on earth was judged, condemned, and executed in your stead? and yet are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Oh what an unreasonable sin is unbelief! nay, say the scrupulous, if I were assured of this; If I knew that my judge were my friend, I should not fear; but is he not my enemy; have not I provoked him to enmity against my soul? do I not stand it out in arms against my judge? am not I daily sinning against him, who justly may condemn me for my sin? give this for granted, that this and no other, no better is my case, and what say you then? if it be so, hearken then to the voice of our Ministry. We poor Ministers that love your souls (say what you will of us) would fain have all this enmity against God, and against Christ done away; and to this purpose we not only appear many and many a time upon our knees to God for you, but (maugre all your opposition against us) we could be content to come upon our knees from God to you, to beseech you not to provoke your judge against your souls: what, is Christ and you at odds? is the difference wide betwixt your Judge and you? I do now in my Masters Name, in the Name of God, and in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ, beseech you to believe; I beseech you in Christ's Name; in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled unto God. Is not this the Apostles word?

2 Cor. 5. 20. Now then we are Embassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you in Christ's stead? Christ's Ministers are not only God's Legates, but Christ's Surrogates; to make this plain to you, when a Prince sends a messenger to another Prince, that messenger is only an Embassador, the Prince being not bound to carry the message himself in Person; but now Jesus Christ, he is the Fathers Embassador, and Christ is thereby bound to bring the message of peace himself, but being necessarily employed elsewhere (in the same design of grace) he constitutes us his Officers; so that we do not come only in the Name of God, but in the place of Christ to do that work which is primarily his; As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you; and this was the commendation of Gal. 4. 14. the Galathians, that they received the Apostle Paul even as Jesus Christ. Now weigh our desire, we beseech you to believe; we be- seech you to sign the Articles of agreement betwixt Christ and you; what? shall some base inconsiderable lust stand in competition with Jesus Christ? will you not make your peace with your judge whilst you are in a way and before he sit in the Throne? behold we give you warning, the Judge is at the door, now believe and be saved. Oh how fain would we tempt you (as it were) with glory? we tender Christ, and we offer peace, we come in the judges name to beseech you to make ready for him, and for Heaven; we bring salvation to your very doors, to your very ears, and there we are sounding, knocking, Will ye go to Heaven, sinners? will ye go to Heaven? O believe in him that will judge you, and he will save you.

3. Christ by his Spirit moves, excites, and provokes you to believe. Sometimes in Reading, and sometimes in Hearing, and sometimes in Meditating you may feel him stir; have you felt no gale of the spirit all this while? It is the spirit that convinceth the World of sin, especially of that great sin of unbelief; and then of righteousness, which Christ procureth by going to his Father; observe here, it is the work of the spirit thus to convince, so that all moral Philosophy, and the wisest directions of the most Civil men will leave you in a Wilderness; yea ten thousands of Sermons may be preached to you to believe, and yet you never shall, till you are over-powered by Gods Spirit: It is the Spirit that enlightens, and directs you, as occasion is; saying this is the way, walk in it. It is the spirit that rouseth, and awakeneth you by effectual motions, Arise my love, my fair one, and come away. He stands at the door and knocks; he stretches out his hand with Heaven in it, and he doth so all the day long; all the day long have I stretched out my hand; and that you may find his yoke easie, and his burthen light; it is the Spirit that draws the yoke with you; and by secret animations, and sweet inspirations heartens, and enables you to do the work with ease; and in this respect the Saints are said to be led by the Spirit; even as a Mother leads her child that is weak, and enables it to go the better, so the Spirit leads the Saints (as it were) by the hand, and strengthens them to believe yet more and more. I speak now to Saints, if whilst I press you to believe in Jesus, you feel the spirit in his stirrings, and impetuous acts, surely it concerns you to believe, it concerns you to be obsequious and yeilding to the breathings of Gods Spirit, it concerns you to co-operate with the Spirit, and to answer his wind-blowing. As you are to take Christ at his word, so you are to take Christ's Spirit at his work: if now he knocks, do you knock with him; if now his fingers make a stirring upon the handles of the bar, let your hearts make a stirring with his fingers also; O reach in your hearts under the stirrings of free grace; obey dispositions of grace as God himself; if now you feel your hearts as hot as Iron, it is good then to smite with the hammer; if now you feel feel your spirits docile, say then with him in the Gospel, I believe, Lord help my unbelief: I believe, what? I believe when Jesus comes again, he will receive me to himself, and that I shall be for ever with the Lord. Amen, Amen.

SECT. VI.

Of Loving Jesus in that respect.

John 4. 19. LET us love Jesus, as carrying on the great Work of our salvation for us in his second coming. In prosecution of this I must first set down Christ's love to us, and then our love to Christ; that is the cause, and this effect; that is the spring, and this is the stream; in vain should we persuade our hearts to love the Lord, if in the first place we are not sensible that our Lord loves us, We love him (saith the Apostle) because he first loved us; it is Christ's way of winning hearts, he draws a lump of love out of his own heart, and casts it into the sinners heart, and so he loves him. Comethen let us first take a view of Christ's love to us, and see if from thence any sparks of love will fall on our hearts to love him again. Should I make a Table of Christ's acts of love and free-grace to us, I might begin with that eternity of his love before the beginning, and never end till I draw it down to that eternity of his love without all ending: his love is as his mercy, from everlasting to everlasting; he loved us before time, in the beginning of time, in the fulness of time, at this time the flames of his love are as hot in his breast as they were at first, and when time shall be no more, he will love us still; this fire of Heaven is everlasting; there is in the breast of Christ an eternal coal of burning love, that never, never shall be quenched. But I have in some measure already discovered all those acts of his grace and love, till his second coming: and therefore I begin there.

John 14. 18. 1. Christ will come; is not this love? as his departure was a rich testimony of his love. It is expedient for you that I go away; so is his returning, I will not leave you comfortless, I will come unto you; Oh how can we think of Christ's returning, and not meditate on the greatness of his love? might he not send his Angels, but he must come himself? is it not state and majesty enough to have the Angels come for us, but that he himself must come with his Angels, to meet us more than half the way? what King on Earth would adopt a beggar, and after his adoption would himself go in person, to fetch him from the dunghil to his Throne? we are filthy lazars, from the crown of our heads to the soles of our feet we are full of sores, and yet the King of Heaven puts on his best attire, and comes in person with all his retinue of glory, to fetch us from our graves, to his own Court of Heaven. Oh the loves of Christ in this one act, he will come again, he is but gone for a while, but he will come again in his own person.

2. Christ will welcome all his Saints into his presence; and is not this love? after he is come down from Heaven; he stays for them a while in the Clouds, and commanding his Angels to bring them thither, anon they come; and oh how his heart springs within him at their coming! what throbs and pangs of love are in his heart at the first view of them? as they draw near, and fall down at his feet, and worship him; so he draws near, and falls upon their necks, and welcomes them. Methinks I hear him say, Come blessed souls, you are my purchase, for whom I Covenanted with my Father from eternity; O you are dearly welcome to your Lord, in that now I have you in my arms; I feel the fruit of my death, the acceptance of my Sacrifice, the return of my prayers; for this I was born and dyed, for this I rose again and ascended into heaven, for this I have interceded a Priest in Heaven these many years; and now I have the end and design of all my actings and sufferings for you; how is my joy full? look as at the meeting of two lovers there is great joy, especially if the distance hath been great, and the desires of enjoying one another vehement; so is the meeting of Christ with his Saints; the joy is so great that it runs over, and wets the fair brows, and beauteous locks of Cherubims and Seraphims; and all the Angels have a part of this banquet at this day.

3. Christ will sentence his Saints for eternal life; here is love indeed, every word of the sentence is full of love; it contains the reward of his Saints, a reward beyond their work, and beyond their wages, and beyond the promise, and beyond their thoughts, and beyond their understanding; it is a participation of the joyes of God, and of the inheritance of the Judge himself: Come enter into your Masters joy, inherit the Kingdom. Oh but if all the Saints have only one Kingdom, where is my room? fear not O my soul, thou shalt have room enough; though but one Kingdom, yet all the Inhabitants they are Kings; whole Heaven is such a Kingdom, as is intirely, and fully enjoyed by one glorified Saint, all and every one hath the whole Kingdom at his own will; every one is filled with God, as if there were no fellows there to share with him. Oh that I may come under this blessed sentence! never was more love expressed in words, than Christ expresseth in this sentence, Come ye blessed, &c.

4. Christ will take up all his Saints with him into glory; where he will present them to his Father; and then be their all in all to all eternity. This is the height of Christ's love; this is the immediate love that comes out from the precious heart and bowels of Jesus Christ; this is the Zenith of love, when sensibly and feelingly it burns at hottest; it is true, that Christ's love breaks out in all those procedaneous acts, we have already spoken; Oh but what loves will he cast out from himself in glory? the more excellent the soyl is, and the nearer the Sun is, the more of Summer, and the more of day; the more delicious must be the Apples, the Pomegranates, the Roses, the Lillies that grow there; surely Christ in glory is a blessed soyl; Roses, and Lillies, and Apples of love, that are eternally Summer-green and sweet, grow out of him; the honey of Heaven is more than honey; the honey of love that is pure, and unmixt, and glorious in Christ, must needs be incomparable. I cannot say, but that Christ's love, like himself, is the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever; there is no intension, or remission of his love as in it self; for God is love; he is essentially love; and therefore admits of no degrees; yet in respect of the sense, or manifestation of this love of Christ, there must needs be a difference; thus if he loved his spouse on earth, how much more will he love her when his Bride in Heaven? If he loves us while sinners, and enemies to his holiness; how much more will he love us, when we are Sons, and perfected Saints in glory; he that could spread his arms, and open his heart on the Cross, will he not then open arms, and heart, and all to them that reign with him in his Kingdom? if in this life such is loves puissance, that we usually say of Christ, Though the head be in Heaven, yet he hath left his heart on Earth with sinners; what shall we say of Christ in glory, where love like the Sun ever stands in the Zenith? where the eternal God is the souls everlasting refuge, and underneath are his everlasting Arms?

5. And if Christ love thus; how should we love again for such a love? Lord, what a sum of love are we indebted to thee? is it possible that ever we should pay the debt? can we love as high, as deep, as broad, as long as love it self, or as Christ himself? no, no; all we can do is but to love a little; and oh that in the consideration of his love we could love a little in sincerity! Oh that we were but able feelingly to say, Why Lord I love thee, I feel I love thee, even as I feel I love my friend, or as I feel I love my self. Such arguments of love have been laid before us, as that now I know no more; we have seen whole Christ cap-a-pe; we have heard of the loves of Christ from eternity to eternity; we have had a view of the everlasting Gospel of Jesus Christ, wherein his love is represented to us as hot as death, or as the flames of God; and do we not yet love him? hath Christ all this while opened his breast and heart to us, saying, Friends, Doves, come in, and dwell in the holes of this Rock? And do we scratch his breast? do we turn our backs upon him, and requite his love with hatred? surely this is more than sin; for what is sin but a transgression of the Law? but this sin is both a transgression of Law and Gospel. What? to spurn against the warm bowels of love? to spit on grace? to disdain him who is the white and ruddy, the fairest of Heaven? Oh the aggravation of this sin! 'tis an heart of Flint and Adamant that spits at Evangelick love: Law-love, is love, but Evangelick love is more than love; its the Gold, the Flower of Christ's Wheat, and of his finest love. Oh the many Gospel-passages of love that we have heard! Oh the sweet streams of love that we have followed, till now that we are come to a Sea of love, to an Heaven of love, to an infinite, eternal, everlasting love in Heaven! I want words to express this love of Jesus; a Sea of love is nothing, it hath a bottom; an Heaven of love is nothing, it hath a brim; but infinite, eternal, everlasting love hath no bottom, no brim, no bounds, and do we not yet love him? do we not yet feel the fire of love break forth? if not, it is time to turn our preaching into Praying; O thou who art the Element or Sun of love, come with thy power, let out one beam, one ray, one gleam of love upon my soul, shine hot upon my heart, cast my soul into a love-transf, remember thy promise to circumcise my heart, that I may love the Lord my God with all my heart, and with all my soul. Surely the great Marriage of the Lamb is coming on, he will come, and welcome all his Saints into his presence; he will bid them inherit the Kingdom, and put them in a possession of the inheritance; and then we cannot choose but love our Jesus with all our hearts, and with all our souls; only begin we it here; let us now be sick of love, that we may then be well with love? let us now rub and chafe our hearts (our dead cold hearts) before this fire, till we say with Peter, Why Lord thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee.

SECT. VII.

Of joying in Jesus in that respect.

7. LET us joy in Jesus, as carrying on the great work of our salvation for us in his second coming. Christ delights to have his People look upon him with delight; for a soul to be always under a spirit of bondage, and so to look upon Christ as a Judge, a Lyon, or an offended God, it doth not please God; the Lord Jesus is tender of the joy of his Saints, Rejoyce, and be exceeding glad, saith Christ; rejoyce evermore,---rejoyce in the Lord always; and again, I say rejoyce. Let the righteous be glad, let them rejoyce before God, yea let them exceedingly rejoyce. All that Christ doth to his Saints tends to this joy, as the upshot or end of all; if he cast down, it is but to raise them up; if he humble, it is but to exalt; if he kill, it is but to make alive; in every dispensation still he hath a tender care to preserve their joy. This is the Benjamin, about which Christ's bowels beat; Let my Children suffer any thing, but nothing in their joy; I would have all that love my Name to be joyful in me.

Oh, say some, but Christ's day is a terrible day; when Christ appears, he will make the Heavens, and Earth, and Hell to shake and tremble. Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before him, and

and it shall be very tempestuous round about him. True! but what's all this terror but an argument of my Father's power, and justice against sinners? if thou art Christ's, and hast thy part in him, not one jot of all this terror belongs to thee, The Lord knows how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust to the day of judgment to be punished. He knows how to make the same day a terror to his foes, and a joy to his People; he ever intended it for the great distinguishing and separating day, wherein both joy and sorrow should be manifested to the highest. O then let the Heavens rejoice, the Sea, the Earth, the Floods, the Hills, for the Lord cometh to judge the Earth: with righteousness shall he judge the World, and the People with equity. If you find it an hard thing to joy in Jesus, as in reference to his second coming, think of these motives—

1. Christ's coming is the Christians encouragement; so Christ himself lays it down, You shall see the Son of Man coming in a Cloud with power and great glory; and when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh. The signs of his coming are the hopes of your approaching introduction into glory, and what should you do then but prepare for your approaching with exceeding joy? many evils do now surround you every where; Satan hath his snares, and the World his baits, and your own hearts are apt to betray you into your enemies hands; but when Christ comes, you shall have full deliverance, and perfect redemption; and therefore look up, and lift up your heads. The Apostle speaks the very same encouragement. The Lord himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive, and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the Air;—wherefore comfort one another with these words. Christ's coming is a comfortable doctrine to all believers; and therefore all the Elect that hear these words, should be comforted by them. Comfort ye, comfort ye my People.

2. Christ our Saviour must be our Judge; the same Jesus that was born for us, and lived for us, and dyed for us, and doth now pray for us, will come at last to judge us; is not this comfortable? you that have heard all his transactions, can you ever forget the unweariness of Christ's love, in his constant and continual actings for your souls? how long hath he been interceding for his Saints? how long hath he been knocking at their hearts for entrance? it is now above a thousand six hundred years that he hath been praying, and knocking, and he resolves not to give over till all be his, till all the Tribes in ones and twos be over Jordan, and up with him in the heavenly Canaan. And if this be he that must be our Judge; if he that loves our souls must Judge our souls; if he that hath a great interest and increase of joy in our salvation, must pass our sentence, will not this work us into a rejoicing frame.

3. Christ's sentence is the Christian's acquittance; (I may call it his general acquittance from the beginning of the World to the end thereof.) Hence some call this the day of the believers full justification; they were before made just, and esteemed just, but now by a lively sentence they shall be pronounced just by Christ himself; now is the compleat acquittance, or the full absolution from all sin; now will Christ pardon, and speak out his pardon once for all; now will he take his book (wherein all our sins, as so many debts or trespasses are written) and he will cancel all; Your sins shall be blotted out (saith Acts 3: Peter) when the time of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord. And is not this enough to cause our joy? when the spirit witnessing with our spirits, doth but in part assure us of sins pardon, is it not exceeding sweet? Oh but how sweet will be that sentence, which will fully resolve the question, and leave no room of doubting any more for ever? consider O my soul, the day is a coming, when the Judge of Heaven and Earth will acquit thee of all thy sins before all the World; it is a part of his business at that day to glorify his Justice and free grace in thy absolution. O Christians! how may we comfort one another with these words?

4. Christ in the issue, will lead us into glory. As the Bridegroom after nuptials, leads his Bride to his own home, that there they may live together, and dwell together; so Christ our Royal Bridegroom will lead us into the Palace of his glory. And is not this joy of our Lord enough to cause our joy; Oh what embraces of love, what shaking of hands, what welcomes shall we have into this City? there shall we see Christ in his Garden, there shall we be set as a seal on Christ's arm, and as a seal upon his heart; there shall we be filled with his love, enlightened with his light, encircled in his arms, following his steps, and praising his Name, and admiring his Glory; there shall we joy indeed, For in thy presence there is fulness of joy, and at thy right hand there are pleasures evermore. There is joy, and full joy, and fulness of joy; there are pleasures, and pleasures evermore, and pleasures evermore at God's right Hand. O the musick of the Sanctuary! O the sinless and well-tuned Psalms! O the Songs of the high Temple, without either Temple or Ordinances, as we have them here! can we choose to joy at the thought of this joy above? if God would so dispense, that even now we might stand at the the utmost door of Heaven, and that God would strike up a window, and give us a spiritual eye, and an heavenly heart, so that we could look in, and behold the Throne, and the Lamb, and the Troops of glorified ones cloathed in white; would not this cheer up our hearts, and fill them with joy unspeakable, and full of glory? certainly this day will come, when Christ will will bring us not only to the door, but through the Gates into the City; and then we shall see all these sights, and hear all the musick made in heaven: how then should we but joy in the hope of the Glory of God? O methinks raised thoughts of our mansion in glory, should make us swim through the deepest Sea of troubles, and afflictions, and never fear. Come then, O my drowzy soul, and hearken to these motives; if yet thou feelt not the Son it self appear, methinks the twilight of a promise should revive thee; it is but a little while, And he that shall come, will come, and he will not tarry. It may be thou art reviled, and persecuted here on Earth; and what then? hath not Christ bid thee to rejoyce in afflictions? is it not his word, that in this very case thou shouldest rejoyce, and be exceeding glad?—is it not his command, Think it not strange concerning the fiery tryals, but rather rejoyce, in as much as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings, that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy. We must rejoyce now, that we may rejoyce then; indeed our present joy is a taste of our future joy, and God would have us to begin our Heaven here on Earth. Come then, come forth, O my dull conjealed heart! thou that spendest thy days in sorrow, and thy breath in sighing, that minglest thy bread with tears, and drinkest the tears which thou weepest; thou that prayest for joy, and waitest for joy, and longest for joy, and complaineest for want of joy; O the times a coming, when thou shalt have fulness of joy; the times a coming when the Angels shall bring thee to Christ, and when Christ shall take thee by the hand, and lead thee into his purchased joy, and present thee unspotted before his Father, and give thee thy place about his Throne; and dost thou not rejoyce in this: art thou not exceedingly raised in such a Meditation as this? surely if one drop of lively faith were but mixed with these motives, thou mightest carry an Heaven within thee, and go on ever singing to thy grave; say then, dost thou believe? or dost thou not believe? if thy Faith be firm, how should'st thou but rejoyce? if thou rollest thy self on Christ, and on that promise, I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoyce, and your joy no Man taketh from you; how shouldest thou but rejoyce, and be exceeding glad? if thou lookest upon the Holy Ghost as designed by the Father and the Son to bring joy and delight into thy soul? how shouldest thou but be filled with the Water of life, with the Oil of gladness, and with the new Wine of the Kingdom of God? O the blessed workings of Faith on such a subject as this! if once we are but justified by Faith, and that we can act our Faith on Christ's glorious coming, then it will follow, that we shall have peace with God, and rejoyce in the hope of the glory of God; and not only so, but we shall glory in tribulation also.

SECT. VIII.

Of calling on Jesus in that respect.

8. LET us call on Jesus, as carrying on our souls salvation at his second coming; this contains prayer and praise.

1. Let us pray for the coming of Christ; this was the constant Prayer of the Church, Come Lord Jesus, come quickly. The Spirit and the Bride say come. Well knows the Bride that the day of Christ's coming is her wedding day, her coronation day, the day of presenting her unto his Father, and therefore no wonder if she pray for the hastning of it; Make hast my beloved, and be thou like to a Roe, or to a young Hart; thy Kingdom come. Many prayers are in the bowels of this, as that Christ, when he comes, may bid us welcome, and give us a place on his Throne, on his right Hand, and pronounce us blessed, and take us to himself, to live with himself in eternal Glory, &c. But I mention only this general, and let each soul expatiate on the rest.

2. Let us Praise him for his coming, and for all his actings at his coming. Our engagement to Christ even for his transaction is so great, that we can never enough extol his Name; at that day the Books shall be opened, and why not the Book of our engagements to Jesus Christ? if it must be opened, I can surely tell you it is written full; the Page and Margent, both within and without, is written full; it's an huge book of many volumes. O then let our hearts be full of Praises! let us joyn with those blessed Elders that fell down before the Lamb, and sung, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and Wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing. Yea, let us joyn with all those creatures in heaven, and on Earth, and under the earth, and in the sea; whom John heard, saying, Blessing, Honour, Glory, and Power be unto him that sitteth on the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever, Amen.

SECT. IX.

Of Conforming to Jesus in that respect.

9. LET us Conform to Jesus, as coming again to judge the World. Looking to Jesus, contains this; when the Apostle would perswade Christians to patience under the Cross, he lays down first the cloud of witnesses, all the Martyrs of the Church of Christ; and secondly Jesus Christ himself, as of more vertue and power than all the rest; the Martyrs suffered much, but Christ endured more than they all; and therefore saith the Apostle, Look unto Jesus; surely

Heb. 12.
he 2.

he is the best exemplar, the chief pattern to whom in all his transactions, we may in some way or other conform.

But how should we conform to Christ in this respect? I answer—

1. Christ will in time prepare for judgment; Oh let us at all times prepare for his judging of us; doth it not concern us to prepare for him, as well as it concerns him to prepare for us? if Christ come, and find us careless, negligent, unprepared, what will become of us? the very thought of Christ's sudden coming to judgment might well put us into a waiting, watching posture, that we might be still in readiness; it cannot be long, and alas, what is a little time when it is gone; how quickly shall we be in another World, and our souls receive their particular judgments; and so wait till our bodies be raised, and judged to the same condition, or salvation? it is not an hundred years in all likelihood, till every soul of us shall be in Heaven or Hell; it may be within a year, or two, or ten, or thereabouts, the greatest part of this congregation will be in Heaven or Hell; and I beseech you what is a year, or two, or ten? what is an hundred, or a thousand years to the days of eternity? how speedily is this gone? and how endless is that time, or eternity that is come? is it not high time then to prepare our Lamps, to trim our souls, to watch, and fast, and pray, and meditate, and to remember that for all our deeds, good or evil, God will bring us to judgment? herein is our Conformity to Christ's coming; before he comes he prepares for us, oh let us against his coming prepare for him.

2. Christ at his coming will summon all his Saints to arise, to ascend and to come to him in the Clouds; O let us summon our souls to arise, to ascend, and to go to Christ in the Heavens. What Christ will do really at that day, let us do spiritually on this day. It was the Prodigal's saying, I will arise, and go to my Father, and say unto him. We are naturally sluggish, we lye in a bed of sin, and security; and we are loath to arise, to ascend, and to go to God. Oh then let us call upon our own souls! Awake, awake Deborah! why art thou so heavy O my soul? let us stir up our spirits, consciences, wills, affections every day; let us wind them up, as a man doth his watch, that it may be in a continual motion. Alas! alas! we had need to be continually stirring up the gifts and graces that are in us; it is the Lords pleasure that we should daily come to him, he would have us on the wing of Prayer, and on the wing of Meditation, and on the wing of Faith; he would have us to be still arising, ascending and mounting up in divine contemplation to his Majesty. And is it not our duty, and the Saints disposition to be thus? Whithersoever the dead carcass is, thither will the Eagles resort: If Christ be in Heaven, where should we be but in Heaven with him? For where you treasure is, there will your hearts be also. Oh that every morning, and every evening, at least our hearts would arise, ascend, and go to Christ in the Heavens.

3. Christ will at the last judge all our souls, and judge all the wicked to eternal flames; oh let us judge our selves, that we may not be judged of the Lord in that sad judgment, If we would judge our selves (saith the Apostle) we should not be judged. Good reason we have to conform to Christ in this point, or otherwise how should we escape the judgment of Christ at the last day? but in what manner should we judge our selves? I answer—

1. We must search our sins.
2. We must confess them before the Lord.
3. We must condemn our selves, or pass a sentence against our own souls.
4. We must plead pardon, and cry mightily to God in Christ for the remission of all those sins whereof we have judged our selves, and condemned our selves.

1. We must search out our sins. Winnow your selves O People, not worthy to be beloved. Zeph. 2. There should be a strict scrutiny to find out all the prophaneſs of our hearts and lives, all our sins against light, and love, and checks, and vows; Winnow your selves. If you will not, I pronounce to you from the eternal God, that ere long the Lord will come in the Clouds, and then will he open the black Book wherein all your sins are written; he will search Jerusalem with candles, he will come with a Sword in his hand to search out all secure sinners every where, and then will all your sins be discovered to all the World. O that we would prevent this by our search and scrutinizing a forehand.

2. We must confess our sins before the Lord; we must spread them before the Lord as Hezekiah did his letter; only in our confessions observe these rules; As—

1. Our confession must be full of sorrow I will declare my iniquity (saith David) I will be sorry for my sin. This confessions were dolorous confessions; he felt sin, and it wrought upon him as an heavy burthen, They were too heavy for me. There's nothing in the World can make an heart more heavy, than when it feels the weight and heaviness of sin.

2. Our confession must be a full confession, we must pour it out. Thus David styles one of his Psalms. A prayer of the afflicted when he is overwhelmed, and poureth out his complaint before the Lord. We must pour out our complaints, as a man poureth water out of a Vessel. Arise, cry out in the night in the beginning of the watches, pour out thine heart like water before the face of the Lord. Water runs all out of a Vessel, when you turn the mouth downward, never a spoonful will then stay behind; so should we pour out our hearts before God, (and if it were possible) leave not a sin unconfessed, at least for the kinds, if not for the particular sins.

3. Our confession must be with full aggravation; we should aggravate our sins by all the circumstances, that they may shew them odious. Thus Peter when he had denied

Mat. 14. nied Christ, it is said that he thought thereon, and he wept. He thought thereon, or he calt in his thoughts one thing upon another; q. d. Jesus Christ was my Master and yet I denied him, he told me of this before hand, that I might take heed of it, and yet I denied him; I professed to him that I would never do it, I would never forsake him, and yet I denied him; yea, this very night, and no longer since, I said it again and again that I would not deny him, and yet I denied him; yea, I fail'd, Although others deny thee, yet will not I; and yet worse than all others, I denied him with a witness, for I affirmed desperately that I knew not the man; nay, I sware desperately that I knew not the man; nay more than so, I sware, and I cursed too, If I knew the man, let God's curse fall upon me; and all this I did within a few strides of my Lord; at that very time when I should have stood for my Lord, in that all the World forsook him; why, these were the circumstances of Peters sin, and meditating on them, He went out and wept bitterly. And thus we should aggravate our sins in our confessions; O my sins were out of measure sinful. O they were sins against knowledge, and light, against many mercies received, against many judgments threatned, against many checks of conscience, against many vows and promises; thus oft, and in this place, and at that time, and in that manner, I committed these and these sins; but of all the aggravations, let us be sure to remember how we sinned against the goodness, and patience, and love, and mercy of God; surely these circumstances will make our sins out of measure sinful. The Angel that reproved the Children of Israel at Bochim, after the repetition of his mercies towards them, and of their sins against him, he questioned them in these words, Oh why have ye done this? q. d. The Lord hath done thus and thus mercifully unto you, oh why have ye done thus unthankfully towards him? why was his mercy abused, his goodness slighted, his patience despised? do ye thus requite the Lord O foolish people and unwise? in like manner should we confess and aggravate our sins, O my God, thou art my Father; was I ever in want, and thou didst not relieve me? was I ever in weakness, and thou didst not strengthen me? was I ever in straits, and thou didst not deliver me? was I ever in sickness, and thou didst not cure me? was I ever in misery, and thou didst not succour me? hast thou not been a gracious God to me? all my bones can say, who is like unto thee; Lord, who is like unto thee? and shall I thus and thus reward the Lord for all his mercies towards me? hear O Heavens, and bearken O Earth; Sun stand thou still, and thou Moon be thou amazed at this! hear Angels, and hear Devils; hear Heaven, and hear Hell, and be you avenged on such a sin as this is! O the sinfulness of my sin in regard of these many circumstances.

Judges 2. 2. Itions them in these words, Oh why have ye done this? q. d. The Lord hath done thus and thus mercifully unto you, oh why have ye done thus unthankfully towards him? why was his mercy abused, his goodness slighted, his patience despised? do ye thus requite the Lord O foolish people and unwise? in like manner should we confess and aggravate our sins, O my God, thou art my Father; was I ever in want, and thou didst not relieve me? was I ever in weakness, and thou didst not strengthen me? was I ever in straits, and thou didst not deliver me? was I ever in sickness, and thou didst not cure me? was I ever in misery, and thou didst not succour me? hast thou not been a gracious God to me? all my bones can say, who is like unto thee; Lord, who is like unto thee? and shall I thus and thus reward the Lord for all his mercies towards me? hear O Heavens, and bearken O Earth; Sun stand thou still, and thou Moon be thou amazed at this! hear Angels, and hear Devils; hear Heaven, and hear Hell, and be you avenged on such a sin as this is! O the sinfulness of my sin in regard of these many circumstances.

3. We must condemn our selves, or pass sentence against our own souls; Lord, the worst place in Hell is too good for me;

Lord here is my soul, thou mayest if thou pleasest send Satan for it, and give me a portion among the damned. This self judging, or self condemning is exemplified to this life in Ezra; for—

1. He fell on his Knees, he did not bow down his knees, but like a man astonished he fell on his knees; he had before rent his garment, and mantle, and pluckt off the hair of his head and off his beard, and sat down astonished; and now at the evening Sacrifice he falls on his knees, and on the ground in great amazement.

2. He spread out his hands unto the Lord; Verse 5. q. d. here is my breast, and here is my heart-blood, I spread my arms, and lay all open, that thou mayest set the naked point of thy sword of justice at my very heart.

3. He is dum, and speechless (as it were) before the Lord; And now our God, what shall we say after all this? for we have forsaken thy Commandments; q. d. shall I excuse the matter? alas! it is inexcuseable? what shall we say after all this? shall we call for thy patience? we have had it, but how did we abuse it? should we call for mercy? indeed we had it, but our stubborn hearts would never come down: O our God what shall we say? I know not what to say, for we have sinned against thee.

4. He lays down his soul, and all the Peoples souls at God's feet, q. d. here we are, thou mayest damn us if thou wilt, Behold we are all hear before thee in our trespasses, for we cannot stand before thee, because of this. Behold here we are, rebels we are; here are our heads and throats before the naked point of thy vengeance, if now thou shouldst take us from our knees, and throw us into Hell, if we must go from our prayers to damnation, we cannot but say that thou art just, and righteous; Oh its mercy, its mercy indeed that we have been spared, its just and righteous with God that we should be damned.

In this more especially lies self-condemnation; it makes a man to trample upon his own self, it makes a man freely to accept of damnation; They shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity, and then will I remember my covenant with Jacob; they save God (as it were) a labour, judging themselves, that they may not be judged. Levit. 26 41, 42.

4. We must plead pardon, and cry mightily to God in Christ, for the remission of all our sins. This is the way of judging our selves, we see nothing but Hell and damnation in our selves, but then we fling down our selves at God's gate of mercy; we despair not in God, though in our selves; God in Christ is gracious and merciful, forgiving iniquity, transgression, and sin; and hence we make bold to intreat the Lord for Christ's sake to be merciful to us; surely herein lies the difference betwixt nature and grace; the natural man may see his sins, and confess his sins, and judge himself for his sins; thus Saul did, and thus Judas did, but then they despaired in God, and were damned ned indeed; now the gracious man hath a conscience within, that represents to him his damned estate, but withal, it represents to him the free grace of God in Jesus Christ, and so he only despairs in himself, and not in his God; now thus far good: come Christians! do we despair in our selves? do we fling off all our hopes, and our own dependencies, hangings, holdings on duties, purposes, graces, performances? and do we go to God in Christ, and tell him, We hang upon nothing but the meer mercy, the free grace of God in Christ; and therefore Lord pardon, Lord forgive for thy Names sake, promise sake, mercies sake, and for the Lord Jesus sake: O let free grace have his work; Lord glorifie thy Name, and glorifie the riches of thy grace in saving us: Why, this is the best hold in the World, though the World cannot abide it; surely if we thus judge our selves, we should not be judged.

4. Christ at his coming will be glorified in his Saints; not only in himself, but in his Saints also; whose glory as it comes from him, so it will redound to him: Oh let him now be glorified in us, let us now in some high way conform to the image of his glory, let us look on Christ till we are like Christ, not only in grace, but in glory; and this glory as it comes from him, so let it redound to him. I will not say, that the Kingdom of Heaven and Glory is in this life, I leave this opinion to the dreamers of this time, I mean to the Familists, Quakers, and such like; but this I say, that even in this life the Saints of God enjoy a begun and imperfect conformity to Christ's Glory; and this is that I would now press upon us; let us so behold the glory of the Lord in the glass of the Gospel, as that we may be changed into the same image from glory to glory; from a lesser measure to an higher measure of glory. The day is a coming that Christ will be glorified in himself, and he will be glorified in his Saints, O the glories then that will be accumulated and heaped upon Jesus Christ! come now, let us behold this glory of Christ till we are changed in some high measure into the the same glory with Christ; Christ's glory rightly viewed is a changing glory: And herein the views of Christ surpass all creature-views, if we behold the Sun, we cannot possibly be changed into another Sun, but if with the eye of knowledge and faith we behold Jesus Christ, we shall be changed into the glorious image of Jesus Christ; if the Sun of righteousness cast forth his golden beams upon us, and we enjoy this light; why then, Who is she that looketh forth as the morning (as Aurora, the first birth of the day) fair as the Moon, clear as the Sun.

I know this glorious change is but a growing change by degrees, from glory to glory; and yet who can deny but there is some conformity to Christ's glory, even in this life? do not these very Texts speak the self same thing? These things have I spoken to you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full. And these things write we unto you, that your joy may be full. And ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full. John 16. And rejoyce with Jerusalem, and be glad with her all ye that love her, — that ye may suck and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations, that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory. And the God of all hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing. Surely all joy and peace, are Synecdochically put for all other inchoations of glorification. But how is a Saint in this life filled with all joy? I answer, 1. In regard of the object, God and Christ. 2. In regard of the degrees; though not absolutely, yet so far forth, as the measure of joy is in this life attainable; I might instance in the joy of Mr. Peacock, Mrs. Brettergh, and of some Martyrs, who sung in the fires. 3. In regard of duration, rejoyce always, not only in the calm of peace, but in the storm of violent opposition. A Saint may have his troubles, but these troubles can never totally or finally extinguish his joy, your joy no man taketh from you. He rejoyceth always.

O that something of the glory of Christ might rest upon us! oh that having this glory of Christ in our thoughts, we could now feel a change from glory to glory! Is it so that the Lord Jesus will be glorified in all his Saints? and shall we have inglorious souls; base and unworthy affections and conversations? or shall we content our selves with a little measure of grace? O be we holy, even as he is holy; let our conversations be heavenly, let us purifie our selves even as he is pure; let us resemble him in some high measure of grace. And lastly, let us glorifie him in bodies and spirits; all our glory is from him; and therefore let all our glory redound to him; let us now begin that Gospel-tune of the eternal song of free grace, which one day we shall more perfectly chant in glory; Allelujah! and again Allelujah! and Amen Allelujah! salvation, and glory, and power, and praise, and thanksgiving, and obedience, be unto him that sits on the Throne, the Lamb blessed for ever and ever, Amen.

The Conclusion.

And now (my brethren) I have done the errand which Christ sent me on, I verily believe, I have now delivered this work of the everlasting Gospel, or of Christ's carrying on the great work of Man's salvation, hath been somewhat long in speaking, but oh how long in acting! may I give you a short view of what I have said; and of what hath been acted from eternity, and will yet be acted to eternity; you may remember, that God in his eternity laid a plot or design to glorifie the riches of his grace in saving sinners; and to that purpose first he decreed a Christ. 2. Presently after the fall, he promised the Christ he had decreed. 3. In fulness of time he exhibited the Christ that he had promised; then it was that the same Christ took upon him our nature, and joyned it to his God.

God-head to be one Person; and in that person he was born, and lived, and died, and rose again, and ascended into Heaven; there now he hath been sitting, sending down the Holy Ghost, and interceding for his Saints for above one thousand six hundred years: And in this last work he will continue till the end of the World, and then he will come again to judge the World, and to receive his Saints to himself, that where he is, they may be with him, to see and enjoy him to all eternity. This is the Epitome of all I have said; only in every particular I have set down Christ's actings towards us, and our actings towards Christ; in various formes, and out-goings of his love he hath acted towards us; and in various forms, and out-goings of our souls we have been taught fitly and suitably to act towards him.

Now in all these actings, how doth the free-grace of God in Christ appear? Ye are saved by grace, saith the Apostle, Eph. 2. 5. the decrees, the means, the end of our salvation is grace, and only grace. The decree is grace, and therefore it is called the election of grace; the means are of grace, and therefore we are called according to his grace; and we are justified freely by his grace. And the end is of grace, for eternal life is the gift of God, both beginning, and progress, and execution is all of grace. This is the riches of his grace, the exceeding, the hyperbolical riches of his grace; the conclusion of all is this, God's free grace which was first designed, will at last be manifested, and eternally praised by Saints and Angels; the same free grace which from the beginning of the age of God, from everlasting drove on the saving plot, and sweet design of our salvation, will at last be glorified to purpose; when Heavens inhabitants will be ever digging into this Golden-mine; ever rolling this soul-delighting and precious stone; ever beholding, viewing, enquiring, and searching, into the excellency of this same Christ, and this free grace. Now all is done, shall I speak a word for Christ, or rather for our selves in relation to Christ; and so an end? if I had but one word more to speak in the World, it should be this; Oh let all our spirits be taken up with Christ! let us not busie our selves too much with toys, or trifles, with ordinary and low things, but look unto Jesus. Surely Christ is enough to fill all our thoughts, desires, hopes, loves, joys, or whatever is within us, or without us; Christ alone comprehends all the circumference of all our happiness; Christ is the Pearl hid in the large field of God's Word; Christ is the scope of all the Scriptures; all things and persons in the old World were Types of him; all the Prophets foretold him, all God's love runs through him, all the gifts and graces of the Spirit flow from him, the whole eye of God is upon him, and all his designs both in Heaven and Earth meet in him; the great design of God is this, That he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in Heaven, and which are on Earth, even in him. All things are summed up in one Jesus Christ; if we look on the Creation, the whole World was made by Christ, if we look on providences, all things subsist in Christ, they have their being, and their well being in him. Where may we find God but in Christ? where may we see God but in this essential and eternal glass? Christ is the face of God, the brightness of his glory, the express image of his Father's person; the Father is as it were all Sun, and all Pearl; and Jesus Christ is the substantial rayes, the eternal and essential irradiation of this Sun of glory: Christ outs God as the seal doth the stamp; Christ reveals God, as the face of a man doth reveal the man; so Christ to Philip, He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father; q. d. I am as like the Father, as God is like himself; there is a perfect indivisible unity between the Father and me, I and the Father are one; one very God, he the begetter, and I the begotten; Christ is the substantial Rose that grew out of the Father from eternity; Christ is the essential wisdom of God; Christ is the substantial Word of God, the intellectual birth of the Lord's infinite understanding. Oh the worth of Christ! compare we other things with Christ, and they will bear no weight at all; cast into the ballance with him Angels, they are wise, but he is wisdom; cast into the ballance with him Men, they are liars, lighter than vanity, but Christ is the Amen, the faithful witness; cast into the scales Kings, and all Kings, and all their glory, why he is King of Kings; cast into the scale millions of tallents-weight of glory; cast in two Worlds, and add to the weight, millions of Heavens of Heavens, and the ballance cannot down, the scales are unequal, Christ out-weighs all. Shall I yet come nearer home? what is Heaven but to be with Christ; what is life eternal but to believe in God, and in his Son Jesus Christ? where may we find peace with God, and reconciliation with God, but only in Christ; God was in Christ reconciling the World unto himself; where may we find compassion, mercy, and gentleness to sinners, but only in Christ? it is Christ that takes off infinite wrath, and satisfies justice, and so God is a most lovely, compassionate, desirable God in Jesus; all the goodness of God comes out of God through this golden pipe the Lord Jesus Christ: It is true, those essential attributes of love, grace, mercy, goodness, are only in God, and they abide in God, yet the mediatory manifestation of love, grace, mercy, and goodness, is only in Christ; Christ alone is the Treasury, Store-house, Magazene of the free goodness and mercy of the God-head. In him we are Elected, Adopted, Redeemed, Justified, Sanctified, Saved; he is the ladder, and every step of it betwixt Heaven and Earth; he is the way, the truth, and the life; he is honour, riches, beauty, health, peace, and salvation; he is a suitable and rich portion to every man's soul;

soul; that which some of the Jews observe of the Mannah, that it was in taste according to every man's palate, it is really true of Christ, that he is to the soul whatsoever the soul would have him to be. All the spiritual blessings wherewith we are enriched, are in and by Christ: God hears our prayers by Christ; God forgives our iniquities through Christ; all we have, and all we expect to have, hangs only on Christ; he is the golden hinge, upon which all our salvation turns.

Oh how should all hearts be taken with this Christ? Christians, turn your eyes upon the Lord; Look, and look again unto Jesus: Why stand ye gazing on the toys of this World, when such a Christ is offered to you in the Gospel? can the World die for you? can the World reconcile you to the Father? can the World advance you to the Kingdom of Heaven? As Christ is all in all, so let him be the full and compleat subject of our desire, and hope, and faith, and love, and joy; let him be in your thoughts the first in the morning, and the last at night. Shall I speak one word more to thee that believest? Oh apply in particular all the transactions of Jesus Christ to thy very self; remember how he came out of his Father's bosom for thee, wept for thee, bled for thee, poured out his life for thee, is now risen for thee, gone to Heaven for thee, sits at God's right hand, and rules all the World for thee; makes intercession for thee, and at the end of the World will come again for thee, and receive thee to himself, to live with him for ever and ever. Surely if thus thou believest, and livest, thy life is comfortable, and thy death will be sweet; if there be any Heaven upon Earth, thou wilt find it in the practise, and exercise of this Gospel-duty, in Looking unto Jesus.

J E S U is in my Heart, his Sacred Name
Is deeply Carved there; but th' other Week,
A great Affliction broke the little Frame,
Ev'n all to pieces; which I went to seek:
And first I found the corner, where was J,
After, where E S, and next where U was graved.
When I had got these parcels, instantly
I sate me down to Spell them, and perceived,
That to my broken Heart he was I ease you, and to my whole is J E S U.

That to my broken Heart he was a safe son,
I laid me down to spell them, and perceived,
When I had got these parcels, instantly
After, where E S, and near where O was buried
And still I found the corner, where was S
With all to pieces; which I went to seek;
A great Affliction broke to the ground;
It is deeply Curved in the other Walls
The S O is in my Heart's Great Mine

The brightness of his Fathers Glory, the express Image of his Fathers Person : The substantial Wildom of God, and Power of God, and Word of God : the Way, the Truth, and the Life ; the Golden Hinge on which mens Salvation turns ; the Food, the Robe, the Rock, the Refuge, the Strength, the Deliverer of his People ; the real Protector, Physician, Shepherd, Saviour of all that trust in him ; the true Light, true Vine, true Rock, true Fountain opened for sin and for uncleanness, the Water of Life, the Dew of Heaven, the chief Corner-stone, the Son of Righteousness ; the Glory of his People, the Desire of Nations, the Hope of Salvation, the consolation of Israel.

My Lord and my God ; my hiding place from the wind, and my Covert from the Tempest ; my Shadow, Cloud, Defence and Tabernacle my cleft of the Rock, and secret place of the Stairs ; my dearest Patron, and choicest Friend in all the World, (for all others, Men or Angels are but instruments, and subordinate if they'l act as such.) This worthless work, and last piece of Practical Divinity, with all I have, and all I am, do I submissively offer, yield, consecrate and dedicate. And Oh that I, and all I bring, may find acceptance with him, through his glorious Merits ! whose promise it is, not to despise the day of small things ; and in no wise to cast out, or to shut the doors against them whom his Father hath given him.

Right Honourable,

I Have known you from your Childhood: and when I call to remembrance the unfeigned Faith, which dwelt first in your Grandmother Lois, and your Mother Eunice (if I may so call her of Pious memory) and I am perswaded in you also ab incunabilis, I cannot but comfortably hope, that the same Seed of God sown in your heart by the Spirit so early, doth still remain, and abide in you to this very day: Many changes have you seen, and run through, in these few days of the years of your Pilgrimage, and yet I hear the same Faith, and Love, and Spirit of moderation continue with you as at the first, and increase in you daily like the Rivers drawing nearer to the Ocean. My heart rejoiceth in this good report, and I know not what more to beg of God for you, as truly necessary in this World, than that you may abound in these Graces of Faith in Christ, love to the Saints, and moderation towards all men. In acting the first Grace you look Heaven-wards; in the second on those that are heavenly; in the third on the divided interests of them, who should study and practise mutual forbearance, and condescension towards each other. Oh that in this last we had many more imitators of his Majesty that now is, or of you that walk in the steps of so gracious a Sovereign! It is observed that in the Primitive times, while the true Church was still known by its Faith and Love, and moderation, and sweetness of deportment towards all its members; that on the contrary the Arians and Donatists, and such like, were still dividing, and separating, and rigorously imposing on others unnecessary things. If I may speak without offence to any, were it not happy with us, if all that agree in the Substantials and Essentials of Religion, would make it their main work to press Faith and Holiness, and allow a liberty to each other in indifferent things? Were all as sensible of the advantage we give to the common Enemy, (I mean the Papists) as I am, that live and reside amongst them, I suppose we should be more willing to unite our selves, and to bear the burthens of one another in love. It was a working meditation of St. Hierom, That whatever he did, he thought still he heard that sound of the Trumpet, Arise ye dead and come to Judgment; the same meditation is held forth to us, to perswade us to unity, or at least to moderation, Let your moderation be known unto all men, the Lord is at hand; it were sad that when he comes, he should find us smiting our fellow-servants; Oh that rather we may cherish one another, and help one another another to promote those essential Duties wherein the Kingdom of God especially consists, viz. righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. These are the things, wherein you were trained, and wherein you profited, and which I hope, and desire you will promote to your dying day. O that that golden ^{2 Tim. 2. 22.} rule were written on the doors of all Christians hearts follow righteousness, faith, charity, peace with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart. We have enemies enough to wrestle with, even against Principalities, Powers, Rulers of the darkness of this World, and Spiritual wickednesses in heavenlies; and we have many friends that wait upon us, and minister to us, and perswade us in their Spiritual and mysterious way to those essential Duties of Peace and Patience, Gentleness and Meekness; of both these you will read in the following Treatise; and they will lead you on to another Duty of looking unto Jesus, wherein if we spend all the time we can spare, for such a contemplation, we shall find work enough besides unnecessaries, to busie our minds and consciences upon; And surely blessed is that servant ^{Matth. 24. 46.} (let the world say what it will) whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing. I know you are full-handed with several high and necessary employments; I resolve therefore to make no long Epistle: If you please to patronize the following Work of War with Devils, and Communion with Angels; both which I hope you will find consonant to holy Scriptures, I shall be yet more ingaged to acknowledge my self, and to remain,

AMongst the means, duties, ordinances, which once I discover in their right method, manner, and proceedings, I observe three Ordinances made little use of, though most necessary. The first is War with Devils held forth in Ephes. 6. 12. the second is Ministration of, and Communion with Angels, held forth in Heb. 1. 14. the third is Looking unto Jesus, held forth in Heb. 12. 2. These three have some suitableness among themselves, and accordingly I have observed some suitableness in this Work: In themselves it is suitable that War with Devils should have encouragement from holy Angels, and yet that we should not stay there, or dwell on them, but look a little further, and rest on nothing on this side Jesus Christ. In the work, I have first enlarged by way of Preface on each Duty; I see they are Ordinances little practised, or made use of, and therefore I thought a confirmation of each Duty, and a perswasion to it, as well as direction in it, was not altogether labour in vain: In the direction it self, I have followed each one from first to last; War with Devils begins with the beginning of our life, and continues to death: Ministration of and Communion with Angels begins at our beginning, and continues till the ending of this World, or Resurrection day: Looking unto Jesus begins with Eternity, and continues to Eternity; it minds what was before the World was; and minds what shall be, when time shall be no more. Now in that I have observed such a correspondency in all these Ordinances, I thought it not amiss to joyn all these together; and though for the largeness they contain two Volumes, yet to comprise them in one Work. ~~Thou hast now my last Works of Practical Divinity that~~ ever I mean to publish to the World; and if last words are wont to bear the greatest weight, and to make the deepest impression, much more let these last Practical lines, find some entertainment from thee, and acceptance of thee, for thy spiritual good. This (next to Gods glory) is my chiefest aim: and so I leave thee, and the Book together in Gods hands: may his spirit inspire good motions, whilst thou readest my directions, and bring them to good issue: It is the Prayer of

Thy unworthy Friend, and Servant in Christs Vineyard.

WAR

The First Book.

EPHES. VI. 12.

We wrestle not against Flesh and Blood, but against Principalities, against Powers, against the Rulers of the Darkness of this World, against Spiritual Wickednesses in Heavenlies.

CHAP. I. SECT. I.

The Coherence, and Division of the Words.

Verse 10.

AMongst other Exhortations, our Apostle gives in this, Be strong in the Lord, and in the Power of his Might: And to this end he propounds, 1.

Verse 11.

The means, put on the whole Armour of God: And 2. The Motives, drawn from a Christian Fight and Combat; wherein is 1. The kind of Verse 12.

Combat; called Wrestling, we Wrestle: 2. The Combatants themselves; to wit, Christians and Devils; we are the Defendants, and they are the Assailants: They, who are they? 1. Negatively, or Comparatively, not flesh and blood: 2. Affirmatively, or Positively, Principalities, Powers, Rulers of the darkness of this World, and spiritual Wickednesses in (or about) Heavenlies.

SECT. II.

Of the several Doctrines deduced from the Words.

FROM every part we may deduce a several Doctrine, as 1. our spiritual Combat is a wrestling. 2. All Gods People are to be in the Fight. 3. Our Enemies are more than Flesh and Blood. 4. They are mighty and malicious Enemies that war against us, even Principalities, Powers, Rulers, and spiritual Wickednesses. My design is to insist on the first: Only we shall begin with the three latter, and briefly say something of every one of them.

CHAP. II. SECT. I.

Of the first Doctrine to be handled.

ALL Gods People are to be in the Fight, We wrestle. This we, is either Exclusive or Inclusive. 1. Exclusive, not the Wicked. 2. Inclusive, but we that are Saints and the People of God.

1. Not the wicked, they serve not in this War; instead of fighting the Lords Battels, they spend their time in Chambering and Wantonness, in Lusts and Uncleaness, in Carelessness and Idleness: they sleep in security they make no resistance, for they are altogether ignorant of Satans assaults. Oh that mens eyes were opened! Oh that such men would know they are none of the We in this Text! They are not the Lords Soldiers, but the Devils Revellers; and therefore they fight not against him, nor will he fight against them: for they have made a Covenant with Death, and with Hell are they at agreement. Isa. 28. 15.

2. All the Saints must be in this fight, We wrestle. I Paul, and you Ephesians, and all Gods people, from first to last. First for Paul himself, I have fought a good fight; and then for Paul and others jointly; for though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh, for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds. Or, if we may bring in the example of Gods Saints in all ages; Adam had his Combat; Job his Temptations;

tations;

tations; Moses, and Aaron, and Lot, and David, and all the Patriarchs, and all the Prophets had their several onsets: nor was it thus only before Christs time, but since his coming, Peter was winnowed; Paul was buffeted; the Hebrews endured a great fight of affliction; and Timothy was encouraged by Paul, Thou O man of God, fly these things, and follow after Righteousness, Godliness, Faith, Love, Patience, Meekness, fighting the good fight of Faith; but to what purpose should I instance? never was there any Member of Christs Church, who was not exercised with this Christian warfare: not Adam in innocency; not the Apostles of Christ; no, nor Christ himself, when he was upon Earth; Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the Wilderness to be tempted of the Devil.

SECT. II. Uses.

Use 1.

ARE all Gods people to war with Devils? then consider all of you what Religion will cost you: You that are strangers, know, that a Christian Soldier must endure hardness; Thou therefore endure hardness as a good Soldier of Jesus Christ. Saints must be winnowed and buffeted, and tryed, and tempted; sharp war, sudden violences, dreadful dangers, are the portion of Gods people; They must through much tribulation enter into the Kingdom of God: They must proceed from one affliction to another, and out of one temptation into another: was it not Pauls case? how was he in labours more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent, in death oft, in perils of Waters, in perils of Robbers, in perils by Countrymen, in perils by Heathen, in perils in the City, in perils in the Wilderness, in perils in the Sea, in perils amongst false Brethren; in weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness? Certainly Christianity is not so easie as many take it to be. I speak not these things to dismay any, but to awaken all, and to advise all to cast up their accounts, and to be resolved men.

Use 2.

2. Are we to fight with Devils? then courage Christians! you that are of the right stamp of the number of this We: O be not you dejected because of the Enemy, but be you of good heart! what, are ye afraid of Sathans Fiery Darts? know, they are but as the waves tossing the Ark, yet saving Noah: or as the Whale swallowing up, yet preserving Jonah: or as the Dragon pursuing the Woman, yet procuring her greater preservation: or as the File grating the Iron, yet making it cleaner and brighter than before: or as the Mill grinding the Wheat, yet making it useful: or as the Coals heating Perfume, yet making it thereby more odoriferous. You say this War is troublesome; this indeed is Jacob's voice, for never an Esau complained thus: but do not you feel your spirits sharpened, your pride depressed, your flesh cooled, your old man destroyed, your new man renewed day by day? tell me, are not you provoked to more earnest and ardent Prayers by this War? do not you accustom your selves to more patience, as now experiencing the fragility and forwardness of your Natures? are not Sathans temptations as thorns in your ways, to keep you from straying and running wrong? O then be not you afraid: Come, enter into the Lists, and fight valiantly: it is an honest War: Christ invites you to it, and he will lead you, and never leave you in it, what needs more? Be strong, and of a good Courage.

CHAP. III.

Of the second Doctrine and Uses.

OUR Enemies are more than flesh and blood: We wrestle, but with whom?

1. Negatively, not with flesh and blood: or rather comparatively, not only, or not so much with flesh and blood. By flesh and blood, is either meant man, as having a bodily substance consisting of flesh and blood: or our bosom-corruptions, so often called in Scripture flesh; the flesh lusteth against the spirit, and sometimes flesh and blood; as flesh and blood hath not revealed this: and flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.

1. It by flesh and blood be meant the former, it hints to us our weak and infirm Natures: q. d. our Adversaries are not such as we are, they are not poor, weak, inconsiderable Enemies: when the Lord speaks our frail condition, he gives it the like expression, my spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh; and the Prophet Isaiah hath the same expression concerning the Egyptians, Now the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses flesh, and not spirit. In this sense the Apostle removes the usual Militia, or more tolerable Conflicts, q. d. We wrestle not so much with man, as with Devils: we wrestle not only, or chiefly with flesh and blood, weak, frail, foolish, visible, or mortal creatures, alas! what are they? the Enemies that we fight with, are more than flesh and blood, more envious, malicious, furious, dangerous, numerous, more subtil, powerful, every way fearful: and therefore in comparison we wrestle not with flesh and blood: we matter not man, we mean no such Combatants.

Here then I must leave our martial men, whose war is with flesh and blood, and 'tis well if it be not only with flesh and blood, and nothing else. The Apostles question needs but application, from whence come wars, and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? q. d. you have wars and fightings among your selves; if they were only with foreign Enemies, they were more tolerable; civil Wars are ever worst, and whence are these? are they not of a base original and descent, of the lineage of lust? O the covetousness, pride and ambition that is amongst you! O the loathing, rejection and disobedience of the Gospel of Christ? O the dear and high esteem, advancement, and vile embracement of the interest of this present world! do not worldly private interests bear the sway? and what are these but lusts? and what what are the effects of lusts, but wars and fightings amongst your selves? In way of application; Oh that I could not truly say, we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against Devils: Or oh that I could not truly say, we wrestle not against Devils, but only against flesh and blood: But my design is not to intermeddle with outward wars, it is a more inward and spiritual work I have in hand.

2. If by flesh and blood be meant the latter, viz. our bosom-corruptions, it hints to us our strong Enemies, strong indeed, q. d. We have Enemies within us; do we not feel how the flesh lusteth against the spirit? and are not these Enemies as the Sons of Zeruiah, too hard for us? but that is not all, for Satan who is yet stronger, strikes in with the flesh, and by this means we wrestle not only with flesh and blood, naked corruptions, but with Sathan in them; our flesh is strong, but when it is edged with Sathans policy, and backt by Sathans power, oh how strong is it then?

This Enemy within us the Holy Ghost deciphereth by many names; it is called the old man; the old Adam; the earthly, carnal, natural man; the sin which is inherent, and dwelleth in us: the adjoyning evil: the Law of the members: the lusts of the flesh which fight against the Soul. By all which is signified our corruption of nature, derived from our first Parents, whereby we are made backward to all good, and prone to all evil. Every man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his own concupiscence, and is enticed; and then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin, and sin when it is finished, it bringeth forth death: The Apostle here intimates, that as Sathan is the Father, so flesh is the Mother of sin, which receiving Sathans temptations into a fruitful Womb, it doth conceive, nourish, and bring forth sin; and when sin is born, like a deadly stinging Serpent, it brings forth death both to Body and Soul, unless the poyson thereof be took away by the precious Blood of Jesus Christ.

Use.

And what, my Brethren? are our Enemies more than flesh and blood? Oh, the sad condition of men that provide not for this war! Christians! how doth it concern you to stand upon your guard, and to be in use of all means against flesh and blood? If a City were besieged with foreign forces, and they within knew that they harboured home-bred Traytors, would they not lay hands on them, and put them to death? My Brethren, your Souls are as Cities, besieged with all the power and policies of Devils, and you have within you home-bred Enemies, even your own flesh and blood, and these seek all occasions to betray your Souls into the Devils hands; is it not time then to mortifie the flesh, and lusts thereof? Is it not time then to implore the aid and assistance of Gods Spirit, whereby you may be strengthened and enabled to stay those lusts, which war against the Soul: these are in some respects more dangerous and pernicious than Devils themselves; they are within your bosoms, and like secret Traytors, they open the City-Gates, yea, they disarm you of your weapons, and lay you naked to Sathans invasions and temptations: Probable it is, that Sathan could never vanquish you, unless the flesh and the lust thereof did betray you into his hands: probably this policy could never circumvent you, unless these secret Traytors did give him continual intelligence of all advantages. Sure I am, the Devil is but an outward cause of Sin, he cannot compel or force you to sin, but your lusts help on; Oh, then how should you watch over your bosom-corruptions, and be in use of all means for the mortifying of this flesh and blood.

CHAP. IV. SECT. I.

Of the third Doctrine.

They are mighty and malicious Enemies that war against us, even Principalities, Powers, Rulers of the Darkness of this World, and spiritual wickednesses in Heavenlies: Thus are they positively described. I shall a little search into the words, that we may understand, what puissant Enemies we have against us.

1. Principalities, they are not only Princes, but Principalities, in the abstract; it sets forth the eminency of their Government, above all the Princes in the World: other Princes rule in some parts, but Sathan rules over all the Earth: Hence sometimes he is called the Prince of this World, and sometimes the God of this World; he could tell Jesus Christ, that all the Kingdoms of the World, and the glory of them were delivered unto him, and to whomsoever he would he gave them. I do not say that the Devil spake truth to Christ; for the World was not his either in possession or disposition; for possession, the earth is the Lords and all that therein is, the World, and all that dwell therein; and for disposition, it is Gods Prerogative, and Peculiar, By me Kings reign. All Powers that are, are ordained of God. He maketh low and he maketh high, it is the Most high that beareth rule over the Kingdoms of Men: Yet this we grant, that Sathan is truly called the Prince of the World as it is corrupted; when the World departed from God to his Adversary, God in Justice gave Sathan leave to prevail and rule in the Sons of Disobedience; and thus Devils are Princes, or in the abstract Principalities over all the Earth.

2. Powers. They are not only powerful, but Powers in the abstract, (i. e.) they are clothed and filled with a mighty Power: were Devils Princes only in their Style, and had no power, the Title could not carry it: we little esteem of Sound, Syllables, and Words: have we not seen what the Sword can do without a Title, and how empty the Title is without the Sword? Well, but Devils have both; as they are Principalities, so they are Powers; they are Princes of the Power. What this Power is, is past my telling, only if we look in the World, we may find it wonderful in several parts of it. As—

1. For the Elementary part of the World, what Element is it, that he hath not power over?

over? 1. Fire is the Element prepared for him; and he can (if let loose) send it down contrary to its nature from Heaven to earth: thus one of the Messengers told Job, The Fire of God is fallen from Heaven, and hath burnt up the Sheep and the Servants, and consumed them, and I only am escaped alone to tell thee: it is called the Fire of God, though caused by Satan: it was not God but Satan, that was the immediate kindler of it; and yet called the Fire of God, because of the strangeness of the Fire: it was a wonderful, great, and extraordinary Fire; some think it was a flash of Lightning, and it is more probable, because it is said to fall down from Heaven. Satan can do mighty things, command much in that Magazine of Heaven, where the dreadful Artillery, those fiery meteors, which make men tremble are lodged and stored up. For instance, he can discharge the great Ordnance of Heaven, Thunder and Lightning; and by his Art he can make them more terrible and dreadful than they are in nature. 2. The Air is his own Element, wherein now he reigneth; he is

Prince of the power of the air (i. e.) of the airy Dominion or Principdom. The Jews have a Tradition, that all the space between the Earth and the Firmament is full of Troops of evil Spirits, their Chieftains having their residence in the Air. Augustin and Hierome tell us, that this was the opinion of all the Primitive Doctors: Now if there they are as Princes, and have Power, no wonder if they can violently move the Air, and cause Tempests and Storms:

Ephes. 2. 2.

thus another Messenger told Job, There came a great wind from the Wilderness, and smote the four corners of the House, and it fell upon the Young men and they are dead. Satan being left to his own dispose, can raise and enrage Storms and Tempests. I believe (saith one) Satan cannot raise so much wind by his own Power, and at his own Pleasure, as will wave a feather; but when God saith, Go, and do such things, then he can raise wind enough to move Mountains, and raise the Foundations of the proudest and strongest Buildings. Thus Job's Children were buried in the ruins of their House, by a Puff (as one calls it) of the Devils mouth. 3. The Water is an Element commanded by him; he can trouble the Seas and cause such Waves and Billows to arise, as shall swallow up Ships and Men: he can make such Surges as shall swell over Banks: It is Mr. Gurnals expression, He can burl the Sea into such a commotion, that the depths shall boil like a Pot, as if Heaven and Earth would meet. I cannot but think the Devil was in that storm, when the Waves beat into the Ship wherein Christ slept, for being awake;

Job 1. 19.

He rebuked the wind and said unto the sea, peace, be still. ἡσυχία, a word that sometimes he used to the Devil, Luke 4. 35. g. d. he milled Satan, thou stirrest these Waves: had my Disciples believed, as they should have done, thou hadst not done this; by Faith Satan avoids, and by Diffidence Satan re-enters and is full of rage. 4. The Earth is an Element over which he rangeth; when the Lord asked him, Whence comest thou Satan? he answered, from going to and fro in the Earth, and from walking up and down in it: Satan here speaks like a Prince that had gone about his Countries to view his Provinces, his Kingdoms, and Cities; I come (saith he) from visiting my several places and Dominions: and though his intent be to devour men, yet in reference to this very Element, he can cause Earth-quakes, throw down the strongest Buildings, root up the best settled Trees, and move all things.

Mar. 4. 35.

2. For the sensible part of the World, he can enter into the bodies of Beasts, and act them at his pleasure: We have one notable instance of a Legion of Devils, entering into an herd of Swine, and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the Sea (they were about 2000) and were choaked in the Sea: An easie thing it is with Satan to hurry up and down the Bodies of Beasts, and make them with violence rush hither and thither: and they have no less power on the bodies of men: have they not possessed them, and made them lunatick, and so vexed them, that oftentimes they have fallen into the Fire, and oftentimes into the Water? Nay, have they not made some deaf, and dumb, dashing them, and tearing them, till they foamed, and gnashed with their teeth, and even pined away? or, (if I may say more) have they not sometimes carried and hurried up and down even in the Air, the bodies of men? I could instance in that Sacred body of Christ; whom the Devil took up into the Holy City, and set him on a Pinnacle of the Temple: and after took him up again into an exceeding high Mountain, and there shewed him all the Kingdoms of the World, and the glory of them. That Satan can transport the bodies of Witches, many Histories record: and that he can bewitch the bodies of Unbelievers none will deny: but here Scripture speaks of a power that the Devil had over Christs body, and elsewhere, of a like power that he had over the bodies of the Saints. Job is one instance, and the Daughter of that woman of Canaan, that was a Daughter of Abraham, may serve for another instance: and if the Lord should not restrain the malice and power of the Adversary, we might have as many instances as there are men and women in the World.

Job 1. 7.

3. For the Souls of men, which we call the intellectual part of the World, he hath a great power over them. 1. He can work on the Understanding: he can penetrate into the fancy, which is the Organ of the internal Senses, and move those Phantasms, he finds there, and by that means excite various thoughts in the understanding, and perswade to this or that; do we not experience his power within us? do we not perceive evil thoughts injected into our minds against our wills? not that Satan imports any new thing into our minds, which he found not in our fancies before: it is usually delivered in Schools, That the Devil cannot put into the fancy new species of things, and such as the senses had never any knowledge of; as he cannot make a man born blind, to dream of Colours, and their differences: but he can make many compositions and deductions of those various Phantasms he finds within, and accordingly move the understanding to this or that. 2. He can move the Will: I cannot say absolutely he can determine it: the bowing, bending,

ing,

Mat. 5. 13.

Mat. 17. 15.

Mat. 4. 5, 8.

ing,

ing,

ing, turning, and forming of the Will efficaciously, is only proper to God, yet can the Devil act something as towards the Will, and his acting carries a kind of power with it, though God only can determine it. The Will may be said to be moved, or bowed, two ways, either inwardly or outwardly: the internal mover or agent, is either our own natural inclination, and propension to its object, God himself who is the Author of that natural inclination: now in this way, there is nothing can move the Will, but God and our selves. The external mover or principal, is either the object propounded to the Will, the Understanding having apprehended it as good; or the affections and concupiscence which reside in the sensitive appetite; for by them is the Will often seduced, and drawn to consent: very passions can make that many things which are evil, may seem good to the Will, and so incline it to embrace them: Now this is certain, that Devils can propound an object; and they can move and trouble, and affect our passions; they can stir up Wrath, Pride, Covetousness, Lusts in Men; and therefore externally they can move the Will.

3. Rulers of the Darknes of this World. These words hold forth a proper seat of the Devils Empire; he is not Lord over all, that is the incommunicable title of God, but a Ruler of the Darknes of this World. Where the time, and place, and subjects of his Empire are set down and limited.

1. The time when he rules, it is during the time of this world: immediately after Adams fall, he began his rule, and while the World stands he will continue it without any change or alteration. Here is a difference betwixt the Devil and any humane power, for these have but a short time: the same man that rules now will be dethroned within a few days, or months, or years, by death, if not by treason: or suppose his line, or model of government continue longer, yet some observe that scarce any rule continues in one form above 600 years continuance: See Abraham's time from the promise of his Seed to the giving of the Law 460 years. See Israels time from their going out of Egypt, to the building of the Temple, 480 years. See David's time, from the Anointing of him King to the death of Zedekiah, 470 years. What say we to our own Kingdom? Cæsars time betwixt his invasion, and the rule of Valentinian, 500 years. The Saxons time betwixt their Heptarchy, and Egbert's Monarchy, 460 years. The Normans time betwixt their Conquest, and the Union of whole Britain, 536 years. On what unsureness is Majesty possest, that within a few years time, so much is altered? But the Devil hath a longer time, even so long as the World lasts, from the beginning to the end, until time shall be no more. Indeed when the frame of this World shall be taken down, then shall the Devil be degraded, his Crown taken off, his Sword broken over his own head, and he himself become a close Prisoner in Hell. In the mean he rules, and will rule, during the time of this present World.

2. The place where he rules, it is here in this World below: he was a bright Angel in Heaven, and he sometimes ruled there; but he would not keep in his own Chair of Estate, and therefore aspiring higher, he fell down into this nether World, and here now he rules. In the Air, and here about Earth the Devils have their Mansions, and here they tempt, seduce, and do all the mischief they can to the souls of men. I know it is our sadness, and trouble that they are amongst us: Wo, wo, wo Rev. 8. 31. to the inhabitants of the Earth in this respect! and yet here is the joy of Saints, they have no power or rule in Heaven, whence they are fallen, and where the Saints Happiness must forever be: well may this make us long for Heaven, whilst we are on Earth. Soldiers in tedious and dangerous Voyages cannot but desire earnestly after Victory: Oh, (may we think) how welcome is triumph, and leading Captivity Captive be after war! as the hopes of a safe Haven is to Mariners tossed up and down in troublesome Seas; so is Heaven to Christians, whose life in this World is a warfare. O friends! look after Heaven, for on Earth is many a Snare, and many a Gin, and many a plot of Satan to undo your Souls, and to subject you to his Rule.

3. The Subject, or Persons whom he rules, they are the darknes of this World. (1) Such as have no life of Grace, no light of knowledge; for by darknes is meant, such who are in darknes; and they are of two sorts: first those who are in state of sin, called the work of darknes: secondly, those who are in state of ignorance, compared to darknes: Ye were sometime darknes, but now are ye light in the Lord. Eph. 5. 11. Eph. 5. 8. But I am discovering the Prince or Ruler, and not his Vassal; and therefore I shall pretermitt this title, and come to the next.

4. Spiritual wickednesses. They are not stilled wicked Spirits, or spiritual wicked ones; but in the abstract Spiritual Wickednesses. Oh, what Enemies are these! 1. They are Spirits, and not Bodies: if we had only to deal with flesh and blood, whether men or beasts, it were not so very much, though very terrible: but we wrestle; not with flesh and blood, but with spiritual substances, with invisable Spirits: An arm of flesh against poor fleshly Creatures were enough to startle us; Oh, what startling, frightening work have we had within these very few years? but how much more startling is an arm of Spirits, that can reach to Spirits? that know how to fight with us at all times, in all conditions; in all postures; whether we are alone, or in company, idle, or imployed; sleeping, or waking; that can fight invisibly, when we cannot see them; for as their nature, so are their assaults, such as by the eyes of flesh and blood cannot be seen. 2. They are wickednesses, as by nature they are Spirits, so by their condition they are evil and malicious Spirits, spiritual wickednesses, or Spirits of wickedness, (1) most monstrously wicked and malicious Spirits. Some observe, that the Devil hath his name: malice, the wicked one, to denote his spiteful nature; he is not barely wicked, but maliciously wicked, he cannot endure that Souls of men should fare any better than himself; and therefore he makes it his trade, trade, his delight, his main work to damn Souls. 3. Some yet go higher, saying, that these spiritual wickednesses are such, as provoke men to wickednesses of a spiritual nature; we wrestle (saith the Apostle) against whom? it is in the original πρὸς τὰ πνευματικά & πονηρά, (2) against the spirituals of wickedness; as if these wicked Spirits should make it their great design, not only to beset us with gross and fleshly sins, but with sins spiritualized, or with spiritual wickednesses, such as unbelief, pride, hypocrisy, idolatry, blasphemy, &c. As black as Devils are, they can, if they will, appear as Angels of Light, and accordingly suit their temptations of the finest make.

But what is meant by the last word, in Heavenly things? I cannot say Heavenly places, but Heavenly things: as if the Apostle should say, the cause of this fight is not for Earthly things, it is an otherwise quarrel than is usual with us in our Battels: Devils will not fight for Lands, or Livings, for Riches, or Mines of Gold, but for Heavenly things; they would if they could, bereave us of our God, our Saviour, Sanctifier, of all our hopes of Salvation, and Glory of Heaven.

SECT. II. Uses.

Use 1.

ARE Devils thus mighty and malicious? then mind this, consider what Enemies you must fight against! Methinks a serious consideration of their power should raise up your hearts to bless that God that keeps you from them. Oh, the mighty advantage they have over you! Should the Lord but give the Chain, what work would they make in the World? how would they rend the Heavens, shake the Earth, undo all Men and Women in the World in an instant? My Brethren, I would not have you dread them too much; and yet because they are such mighty malicious Enemies, I would not have you slight them too much: I tell you there is nothing in this inferiour World able to stand before them, no Creature, no Man. The good Angels indeed can match and master Devils; but if God stop his Angels, and withdraw his hand, they would quickly over-run, unsettle, unsettle all the World. Oh! then maintain such apprehensions of their greatness, as that you may for ever bless that God, who binds up such Enemies, that they do not the mischief unto which their nature inclines them, and inables them.

Use 2.

Are Devils mighty and malicious? then let all tempted ones fly to God, and relye on his power; be they never so mighty, yet the Lord only is Almighty; he hath all Devils in a Chain, and he straightens or enlargeth it as he pleaseth: his power is not only in Heaven, but on Earth, and in Hell, and here is the hope of Saints, here is their Tower of refuge. He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high, shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. O then, that Gods people would in all danger haste to their fortrels! that they would say of the Lord, he is my refuge, and my Fortress, my God, in Him will I trust. But the uses of this nature we shall bring into the next point, and to that I hasten.

Psal 91.1.

CHAP. V. SECT. I.

Of the main Doctrine intended.

OUR spiritual combate is a wrestling. ὁρίν ἡμῶν ἡ πάλη, there is a wrestling to us: or, we wrestle. πάλη dicitur, quia corpus πάλεται, id est, quatitur: the Greek Word, according to the proper notation of it, signifieth such a strife as maketh the body of him that striveth to shake: and howsoever sometimes it is given to a strife of sport; yet here it is used for a serious and fierce Fight and Combate, so fierce as it may well make the Soul shake again.

But why is this Combate called a wrestling?

1. Because Satans fight is very close. This is the nature of wrestling, not to fight at a distance, but very near; Satan is so near that he closeth with us; yea, gets within us; he takes hold of the Heart within, the Soul within. Other Wrestlers may catch at the Head, or Arms, or Thighs, or they may fold their Arms about the middle of the Body, and strive with it, but Satan is a Spirit, and enters into Spirits; his wrestling is so close, that neither Understanding, Will, Affections, nor any thing within can escape his fangs.

2. Because this fight is very violent; wrestling is not an easie, lasie, idle Combate: they that wrestle, do it with their might, and strength, and utmost vigour. So deals Satan with us, he goes about as a roaring Lion, he is very active to do mischief, he puts to his strength to devour our Souls: and accordingly must we deal with Satan, finally my Brethren, be strong in the Lord; as we must take Heaven by violence, so we must escape Hell by violence; Devils are not to dallied withal; we must quit our selves like men, resist unto blood.

3. Because this fight hath in it many wrenches, windings, wiles, and arts. The cunning Wrestler carries it not merely with his strength, but with his seats; his eye is upon all advantages; with a wrench, a turn a trip, a sleight he gets the mastery: Satan in this respect is an eminent Wrestler; he makes it his trade, and is well acquainted with all the mysteries of it: he hath thousands, and ten thousands of stratagems and wiles: he hath his sedes and vincula, as the Apostle calls them, that is his depths, his profound plots and contrivances, moulded by malice and subtilty in his own large understanding, furnished with the experience of our corruptions, and the success of his many temptations for some thousands of years, managed with all the crafts and policies of the most dark and hidden corners of Hell: he hath his sedes, as they are called, artifice methods, in the wily conveyance of his stratagems, in ordering his assaults, and spitting his fiery darts. And is it not our duty and prudence to be well skilled in his wiles, and to counter-work him in his crafts? are we not therefore advised to put on the whole armour of God; that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the Devil?

2 Pet. 5.8.

Eph. 6. 10.

2 Cor. 2.

12.

Eph. 6. 11.

Eph. 6. 11.

vil? As there is no standing without armour, so there is no fear of falling, if we are but armed and prepared for him: his wiles should make us wise unto Salvation, that though he wrestle artificially with us, we may be able to stand.

4. Because in this combat, each party hath usually his Aids or Seconds. It is thus both with Satan and us: First, he hath his Aids; these are led under the conduct of those two Captain-Generals the World and the Flesh: This World is the Devils Darling, and chief Champion: on the right hand it encounters us with prosperity, it casts before us the golden Apples of Riches, and how prone we are to listen to these Syren-Songs, our experience tells us: on the left hand it tempts us by adversity, turning it's smiles into Frowns, its Allurements into Threats, its offers of Honours and Riches, to proud menacings of Poverty and ignominy: and how terrible these are in the eyes of flesh and blood, the best hearts can tell. The flesh is the Devils darling, by which we understand the corruption of Nature; it fighteth and lusteth against the Spirit, it rebels against the Law of our mind, and leadeth us captive to the Law of Sin: The Flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit lusteth against the Flesh, and these are contrary the one to the other; so that we cannot do the same things that we would: both these are Satans aids. Secondly, we have our aids; as first God takes our part, and he hath appointed his own Son as General of the Field, called the Captain of our Salvation; whensoever we wrestle, he stands by with a reserve (as it were) for our relief at a pinch; and if we will but call upon him at our need, he will never leave us, fail us, nor forsake us. Secondly, the Angels take our part: Behold Chariots of fire upon the Mountains round about Elsha: Wrestlers are usually compassed with a Ring, and such a Ring have Saints, the Angels of the Lord encamp round about them that fear him, and they deliver them. Now what better Aids, or Seconds can we have than the Angels of God, and the God of Angels? Surely, there are more for us than can be against us: Oh, the comfort of this!

SECT. II.

Use of Terrour.

IS our spiritual Combate a Wrestling? then Iwo to the wicked, that never wrestle at all: Let them know, that they are not the Lords Soldiers, but the Devils Revellers, and therefore he fights not against them, because they are his friends. When the strong armed man (Satan) keepeth his Palace, his Goods are in Peace: but when a stronger than he cometh to dispossess him, there will be many a ruffle, and many a wrestle, and usually such a man will feel the Conflict. Now wo to them that are at ease in Zion: can we be Gods Servants, and not his Souldiers? Is not Christs Church on Earth a truly Militant Church? in a warfare, as well as wayfare? Oh, then what is their condition that are rid only by the Devil! they will not grapple with Satan, they love to sleep in a whole Skin, they crown themselves with pleasant Garlands of restless security, they imagine they may go to Heaven in a bed of down; Oh, but what will be the end of these men; the Devil hath already laid them on their backs, and there remains nothing more but to kick them out of their security into Hell.

SECT. III.

Use of Incouragement.

IS our spiritual Combate a Wrestling? then I encourage Christians! from those Words be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might: Eph. 6.10. Let us therefore, brethren, put on the whole armour of God, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil: that the Christian of all men needs courage; a cowardly Spirit is beneath the lowest duty of a Christian: the fearful are in the forefront of those that march for Hell: the Valiant and Valiant are they which take Heaven by force; except thou canst prove thy Pedigree by an heroic Spirit, except thou wilt dare to be bold in sight of Men and Devils, never think that thou art begotten of God. Oh, how uncomely a fight is it, a bold Sinner, and a fearful Saint! one resolved to be wicked, and a Christian wavering in his Holy course! to see Hell keep the Field, impudently braving it with displayed banners of open prophaneness, and Saints to hide their Colours for shame, or to run from them for fear, who should rather wrap themselves in them, and die upon the place.

Take courage therefore, O ye Saints, and be strong. When Joshua was to march before Israel into Canaan, the Lord was fain to raise up his Spirit with redoubled words, Be strong and of a good courage. — Only be thou strong and very courageous. — Have not I commanded thee? be strong and of a good courage, be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord thy God is with thee, whithersoever thou goest. I say the same to you, who are to march through this Wilderness into that Heavenly Canaan, Take courage, for the Lord your God is with you: what if Devils come behind, and trip up your heels? Nay what if they fly in your faces, and grapple with you hand to hand? any weak David may wrestle with Goliath, so long as the Battel is the Lords, and that he comes to the Field in the Name of the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel. But motives I shall reserve for the next use.

Josh. 1:6, 7, 9.

SECT. IV.

Use of Exhortation, with Motives.

IS your spiritual Combat a wrestling? Come then, fall on the duty: here's a world of Devils ready to encounter: you may imagine (and really it is so) that they come swiftly, furiously, strongly, their arms spread wide, and their fangs are open, and if they can, they will fasten on the whole man; their aim is to throw Body, Soul, and all into Hell. What

What will you do now? Will you turn your backs and fly? shall the Devil conquer without a stroke? no, God forbid! I beseech you stretch forth your arms, bid Devils defiance, resist them to your utmost, wrestle with all your might. Why, this is the duty I am pressing on you: Be serious, and wrestle, though all shake by it.

The Motives are several.

1. There is a necessity for it: either you must wrestle with him, or be taken Captive by him; there is no middle course; and shall not necessity make you fight? it is said that necessity and despair will produce wonders, they would make Cowards fight, and are you worse than Cowards.

2. The Victory is certain, if you will but wrestle. When Christ hath made a valiant resistance, the Devil gave way, and left him. Mar. 4. 11. And to this purpose you have a promise, resist the Devil and he will fly from you. Jam. 4. 7. Satan is a foiled Adversary, Christ hath overcome him already, and so shall ye, if ye will but valiantly enter in Christs Name into the Lists.

3. The sweetness of victory will abundantly recompence the trouble of your wrestling: usually we mistake in the Traverses of our minds: we reckon upon the sweetness of sin, and the trouble of wrestling; but the right comparison is between the fruit of sin, and the fruits of Victory: you have often had experience what it is to be overcome, do you now make tryal how sweet Victory will be in overcoming.

4. The Cause is just, your Combat is lawful: God, who is Justice it self, hath proclaimed it by his Heralds, Finally my Brethren be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye might be able to stand against the assault of the Devil. Resist the Devil, and he will fly from you; be sober and watch, for your Adversary the Devil is a roaring Lyon, walketh about seeking whom he may devour, whom resist stedfast in the Faith. Eph. 6. 10. 11. There are two things, which make a War lawful and just. 1. The call of a just Authority. 2. A just Cause; now in this conflict is a concurrence of both. 1. You have a lawful Authority calling you to fight, even God, who is the Authority Supreme. 2. Your Cause is just, for Satan assaulting any of the Children of God, is a meet Usurper, he hath no right over you, you are not his, but the Lords, by Creation; by Redemption, by special Dedication: you do but defend your own Souls, and the Territory and Dominion of God, and Jesus Christ in you, and over you, whose Dominion you are bound to preserve. Surely you have good cause to wrestle, if you had none but this, because your cause is good.

5. You have already in Baptism taken a military Sacrament, and therein promised that you will continue Gods faithful Soldiers unto your lives end: What, my Brethren, take press-money to serve in Gods Wars against the Devil, and all his Aids, and now to run away from your Colours! A sworn Enemy to Sin and Satan, should never of all other turn his back; why you are sworn Enemies, and therefore stand to it, be of a good courage, resist unto blood.

6. The Lord measures out your temptations, weigheth your strength, and will not suffer you to be tempted above that you are able; he giveth shoulders and fitteth the burthen. Is not this his promise? There hath no temptation taken you, but such as is moderate, (or common to man) but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that you are able, but will with the temptation also make way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. 1 Cor. 10. 13. Souls are apt to complain, the Devil is strong, and temptation is strong, and I shall fall by the hand of Saul: why, know now that all these temptations are weighed and measured out by God himself, he saith to Satan as to the Waves of the Sea, Thus far shalt thou go, and no further: Thus he said concerning Job; Behold Satan, all that he hath is in thy power, only upon himself put not forth thy hand: Satan had a mind to have gone further, he would have been upon Job himself, if God had not stopt and curbed him: Certainly Satan would break all your backs, if he were let alone; but God will not suffer it; let Satan do his worst, you shall be able to bear it, for God hath set him bounds, and he will give you a proportionable strength. As a wise Physician does not give the same Physick to every Person, but considers every ones ability; so the Lord orders Satan in tempting, that he cannot put the least dram into any temptation, but as it is measured out by the hand of God.

7. The Lord hath promised his presence with you in six dangers, and in seven: He goeth out with you into the Field, not only as a Looker on, but to weaken the Enemies, and to supply you with new strength. 1. He weakens your Enemies, and upon this account partly it is said, that we are more than Conquerors through Christ that loveth us: because in and through Jesus Christ, our Enemy is overcome before he strikes, and his blow is broken as he strikes. 2. He supplies you with new strength. I will not deny, but now and then you may have a foil, but if so, the Lord will raise you up again, for though we fall, yet shall we not be cast down, because the Lord putteth under his hand, or, he upholdeth us with his hand. Rom. 8. 37. Psal 37. 24.

8. Your Weapons are impenetrable: your Armour is Armour of proof, compleat Armour, every way sufficient to defend and keep you harmless. This if you put it on, will make you able to stand against the Wiles of the Devil, and to withstand in the evil day: and to quench all the fiery darts of the Wicked. Eph. 6. 11. 13. 16. If you say, what is this Armour? the Apostle tells you Eph. 6. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18. of a girdle of truth; and a breast-plate of Righteousness, and shoes of the preparation of the Gospel of Peace; and a shield of Faith, and an helmet of Salvation, and a sword of the Spirit, praying always with all Prayer, and supplication in the Spirit. The meaning is, that your Armour is the Graces and Ordinances of Jesus Christ. Truth, and Righteousness, and Patience, and Faith, and Hope, and the Word, and Prayer, (under which by a Synecdoche all other Graces ces and Ordinances are comprehended) are your spiritual Armour. I know that all the vertue of this Armour depends wholly upon God alone : Our Faith, and Hope, and Love, and the Word, and Prayer, would all be broken to shivers at one stroke of temptation, if the Lord did not establish, and confirm them ;

Luk. 22. 32. and this is that which Christ tells Peter, I have prayed for thee that thy Faith fail not : but this Armour by God's power hath been successful, and in the power of his might it ever will be successful : What is said of the Bow of Jonathan, and of the Sword of Saul, is truly said of this Armour in this respect, they never returned empty from the blood of the slain, and from the fat of the mighty. Surely, never any harnessed with this Armour of God, lost the Field finally. Oh, what encouragement is this !

9. To put all out of question, the Lord hath made promises of life to those that wrestle, he will give them to eat of the Tree of Life in the midst of Paradise : He will give them of the Manna that is hid, and he will write their names in the Book of Life. Blessed is he that endureth temptation, for when he is tryed he shall receive a Crown of Life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him. We do not contend for Counters, but for Crowns, and those not temporal and corruptible, but eternal and incorruptible, even for a Crown of Life.

Jam. 1. 12.

1 Cor. 9. 25

10. There will be a day of triumph to all that will but wrestle : if you ask when ? I answer, 1. At the day of Judgment, then shall Christ your Captain stand upon the Earth, and you shall stand with him, glorying and triumphing to see your Enemies dead, or wounded before you. Indeed others that were faint and delicate, and would not wrestle, as they were led captives by Satan at his pleasure, so shall they be led in triumph by him into Hell : but for you that fight the Lords Battels, the day is a coming when you shall march with Christ into Glory, and then shall you triumph all the way, and those Enemies that now assault you, shall lie dead (as it were) before you, and you shall see them again no more for ever. 2. In that Eternity, which follows after : no sooner shall Christ and his Saints enter into Heaven ; but oh, the glorious astonishing triumphs that will be there ! The Poet sung sweetly.

*There shall we conquer, have our Conquest crown'd
By hands of Seraphims, triumph't with the sound
Of Heavens loud Trumpet, warbled by the shrill
Celestial Quire, recorded with a quill Pluckt from the Pinion of an Angels Wing, Confirm'd with joy by Heavens eternal King.*

O my Brethren where is now your courage ? where is your Spirit ? where is your Ambition ? think not on mean things, but on Crowns, and Victories, and Glories : Hold fast that which thou hast, that no man take

Rev. 3. 11. thy Crown.

CHAP. V.

Other sorts of Motives.

That I may yet prevail with you to make you Wrestlers : Consider further,

1. God is on the side of all that wrestle. What, art thou afraid of the Issue ? Art thou indeed in Satans hands ? know then that Satan is in Gods hands : If thou art but the Lords Souldier, he will not suffer himself to be so much disgraced as to suffer thee to be overcome by his mortal Enemies : he hath armed thee with his own Armour, and sent thee out to fight his Battels ; and therefore he will not have thee vanquished, being fortified with his strength : for so should his weapons be esteemed weak, and he himself be overcome in thee. When the Lord sent the Angel to encourage Zacheariah concerning Jerusalem, the message was this ; I, saith the Lord, will be unto her a wall of fire round about her. Surely, Jerusalem must needs be impregnable that is thus walled about : the same promise is made to all the Saints, and therefore they must needs be all invincible ; if your Shelter were Stones, these might be battered : were it Walls of Lead, these might be melted : were it defence of Waters, these might be dried up : were it Garrisons of mighty Men, these might be scattered : were it Engines of War, these might be defeated : were it Trenches, these might be stopped : were it Bulwarks, these might be overthrown : But you are guarded with such a defence, which cannot be demolisht, to wit, with a wall of fire round about you. Balls of Wild-fire are a Terror and Consumption to any Enemies : who could quench the fire of Sodom ? or who shall quench the World when it shall be on fire ? Surely none : Paradise was kept with a fiery flaming Sword, and none could enter thereinto, Gen. 3. 24. Israel was guided and protected by a fiery Pillar, and none could molest them in their march, Exod. 13. 21. What shall we say then, when the Lord our God is a wall of fire round about you, to consume your Enemies, and to succour you ? Cheer up Christians ! your God whose you are, and whom you serve, to whom nothing is too hard, Gen. 18. 14. To whom nothing is impossible, Matth. 19. 16. To whom none is like among the Gods, glorious in Holiness, fearful in Praises, doing Wonders, Exod. 15. 11. Who removeth Mountains, shaketh the Earth, commandeth the Sun, sealeth the Stars, and thundereth marvelously with his Voice, even he is a Wall of fire round about you. Oh, what encouragement is this.

2. Jesus Christ is your Captain ; God hath made him General of the Field, and if you had none other to fight for you, yet he alone is mightier than all your Enemies : he hath already vanquished Satan, yea he hath so bruised the Serpents head, that now he cannot overcome finally the least of his followers. Satan was the strong man, who possessed all in peace ; but our Saviour Christ, who is stronger than he, coming upon him hath overcome him, and taken from him all his Armour wherein he trusted,

trusted, and divided his spoils. Hence he is truly called our King, our Redeemer, our Head, our Captain; and will not you, the Subjects of this King, the Ransomed of this Redeemer, the Members of their Head, the Soldiers of this Captain, fight under his Standard. Why consider, if you wrestle, Jesus Christ stands by to bring you off with honour. Sure you need not doubt of help, who have Christ your Captain for your Second: If Satan be a roaring Lyon, Christ is the Lyon of the Tribe of Judah: If Satan be an Accuser, Christ is an Advocate: He lived and died for you, and rather than you miscarry, he will live and die with you: for mercy and tenderness to his Soldiers, none like him; he knoweth what it is to be exposed to the rage of a Cruel Fiend, and therefore he will succour those that are tempt-

Heb. 4. 15. ed. Christ's heart is intendered by his own experience, ever since he grappled with Satan; he is full of Bowels to all them that are incoffed by him; yea, Christ is so dear over them, that then especially he intercedes his Father, when he observes his people in temptations, q. d. O Father, I pray that this poor Man or Woman may not fall in time of temptation: Thus he prayed for Peter, when he was on Earth, I have prayed for thee that thy Faith fail not: and thus he prays now for you in Heaven. No sooner he sees Satan run in upon you, but he runs into the presence of God the Father, and spreads his blood and his satisfaction for your help. Oh, the love of the Lord Jesus Christ.

3. The Spirit of God will strengthen you against the power of the evil Spirit: This is that Spirit of Wisdom and understanding, that Spirit of Counsel and Might; that Spirit that helpeth your infirmities; that kindleth and healeth your Hearts with love, and zeal, and other Graces; that comforts your Consciences, and consumes your corruptions, and continues in you, sealing you to the day of Redemption: even He it is that strengthens you against the power of the Devil. But how doth the Spirit strengthen? I answer, 1. He teacheth you in, and by your temptations. Luther could say, that three things made a good Divine, Meditation, Prayer, and Temptation. And, indeed, when and where doth the Holy Spirit reveal himself more fully unto his People, than in the times of their temptations? It is said that at Massah and Meribah, the waters of strife, and of temptation, there the Lord gave Israel all his Statutes. 2. He bears up, and upholds your hearts with Grace, My Grace is sufficient for thee, said the Lord to Paul; the Spirit of the Lord in your Combates usually comes in with assisting Grace; or if that be not enough, he comes in also with accepting Grace: though thy Prayer be weak, and thy Faith low, yet saith the Spirit, it is the time of Temptation with my poor Servant, and therefore I will take the duty though it be never so little.

4. The good Angels wait upon you as a Guard, have they not a charge from God to see to your safety? and is not one Angel stronger than all Devils? if a man were to pass by Ship over a dangerous Sea, full of Rocks, Pirates, Robbers, would not Letters of safe conduct be his comfort? but if a great Navy should be sent to conduct him over, if the Admiral should call out all his men of War to see him safely arrived, how much more comfortable would this be? Even thus God deals with us, he sends his Angels, who willingly afford their ministry, because of their love to man, but in respect of Gods Word and Charge, they are much more willing. O the strong Motives that we have to fight! God, and Christ, and his Spirit, and Angels, all take our part: What greater Dignities? What better defence? What greater Solace? What better safety than this? to be attended and guarded, not by men (which we count an honour and happiness) but by Angels, who pitch their Tents about the Saints? Methinks the Knowledge, Assurance, Remembrance, and Meditation of this should marvellously comfort and encourage the People of God.

5. The Spirits of the Just, made perfect with God, contribute their assistance: do they not pray for the Church in general? Do they not mind the condition of those, who are yet militant here upon Earth? do they not stand upon the Walls of Heaven and call on you to march up the Hill after them, crying aloud, fall on and the City will be yours as now it is ours? the same words that Paul spake living, he even speaks now dead, Watch ye, stand fast in the Faith, quit your selves like men. The printed Books, the living Examples of dead Saints, call on you still to be valorous: Do they not really speak in Joab's Language, Be of good Courage for your Souls, and for the Glory of your God.

9. Other Saints on Earth are in the same posture with your selves: they are all wrestling, they are all enduring a great fight of Afflictions and Temptations. Certainly you march in the midst of gallant Spirits: your fellow-Soldiers are every one the Son of a Prince, yea of the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords; and this is their way, to encourage you, and to be encouraged by you: there's not a watch you make, nor a stroke you strike, but it pleaseth them, and it refresheth them; as on the other side, there is not a negligence, nor a fail but it wounds them, and afflicts them.

7. The Devil himself is not altogether so terrible as he seems. Do you look on him in these particulars. —

1. He is but a Creature, though he be filed a Principality and Power, yet his Power is but a created power, he is Potent, but not Omnipotent; he is the strong man armed, but Jesus Christ is stronger than he; and though you cannot, yet the Lord Jesus can easily disarm him, and take away that wherein he trusteth.

Luk. 11.

2. He is a Creature under a Curse; this may take off much from that dreadfulnes which many look upon him with. Cursed shalt thou be above all the Beasts of the Field. O the encouragement, that all our Enemies (both that Field-Serpent and the old Serpent called the Devil) are under a Divine Curse. Surely Gods Curse is a weakning thing.

3. He is a wounded Creature. 1. Wounded by Christ, he shall break thy Head, and thou shalt bruise his Heel. The Lord Jesus breaks Satans Satans Head, as he is our Head; he hath wounded him for us, and for our sakes. Here is comfort; Alas! Satan was too strong for us hand to hand, and therefore our Lord first enters the List, and gives him a wound, and then, as Joshua, he bids us come and tread on his Neck. Thus when we read of Christs glorious Acts, that he overcame Satan, Matth. 4. 11. Lead Captivity captive, Ephes. 4. 8. Spoiled Principalities and Powers, Colos. 2. 15. Made his Enemies his Foot-stool, Matth. 22. 44. Overcame those that war against him, Rev. 17. 14. We are to understand that all these Acts were for our benefit, and that for us he combated with, and conquered all these Foes. 2. He is wounded by the Members of Christ. Satan is fallen from Heaven like Lightning, and made subject to the Saints. His Weapons have been often battered and blunted, not only by Christ, but also by Christians. I write unto you young men, because you have overcome the wicked one. Others have been, and if we will but wrestle, we also shall be more than Conquerors through Christ that loveth us.

4. He is a chained Creature. The Angel that came down from Heaven had a great Chain in his hand, and he laid hold on the Dragon, that old Serpent, which is the Devil and Satan, and bound him a thousand years. In this Chain he is so confined, that he cannot stir until God slack his Chain: nor need we trouble our selves, because it is said only for a thousand years; for indeed God hath ever kept him in Fetters since his Fall, either less or more, and he shall never shake them off again until Dooms-day: He hath delivered him into Chains of darkness, to be reserved unto the Judgment of the great Day. Oh, what encouragement is this! think of it Christians, Devils can do nothing without a Commission from your God: though they ruined Job's state, yet they had their power from God; and though they infested his Body with sad Diseases, yet they were fain to ask new leave from God; they could not so much as enter into Swine, but Christ must give them Authority, and bid them go. How should this animate us, that our greatest Enemy is subject to the power of our best and dearest Friend! Enough for Motives.

SECT. VI.

Use of Doctrine.

IS our Spiritual Combate a wrestling? then some directions how we are to manage this Spiritual Combate. This is that special use which I ever aim at in all practical Points. Many are convinc'd of such and such a duty, that know but little how to go about it: Others indeed may abound in their own sense, and they may in their own experiences find out some Rules most proper for their own disposition, and most powerful for their own Reformation; and for my part, I shall gladly leave them to themselves; yet for such who are not better furnished, and yet desire some help how to manage wisely this great Duty of wrestling with Devils, I shall prescribe for their use and mine own (as the Lord shall enable) these following directions.

In our Spiritual Combate two things are necessary to be known. 1. Satans assaults. 2. Our repulses. His assaults I shall trace, according to the several periods of our life, wherein more especially he combates with us in such or such a kind: As in our Infancy he combates thus; and in our Youth, or time of Conversion, he Combates thus; and in our riper Years he combates thus; and in the end and period of our life he combates thus. Now herein lies our duty. 1. To be acquainted with his several methods at such times. 2. To repel him in such a manner, and by such means, as are most suitable to his methods. And, O that the Lord would help, and strengthen me in this work! O that he would present his Light and Truth, that I may discover to you these works of darkness, both for the avoiding and conquering of him, who is reserved for everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great Day. Jude 6.

WAR

DEVILS.

The Second Book.

CHAP. I. SECT. I.

Of the time when Devils begin their first Assaults.

THE first Period, wherein Satan first begins to assault the Elect, it is from their quickning in the Womb, and during their Infancy, till they become adult. Come then, and first learn we his methods; and secondly, practise we those Duties that concern us in our wrestling with him in these respects.

1. For Satans first Assaults; certain it is, that then he begins, when we begin first to live, and move, and have our being: are we not by nature in Satans Power? is not the Devil then said to rule in us, when the Soul and Body do first meet, and are both defiled by sin? As it is said of the Dragon, that he stood before the Woman which was ready to be delivered, to devour her Child as soon as it was born: So may we say of every Child, as soon as it is quickned in the Womb, that the great Red Dragon, the Devil, stands ready to devour it. And upon this supposition, even in Augustine's time, there were Exorcisms used at the Baptisms of Infants, by which they signified that the Child was under the Power and Dominion of Satan: we use not this Ceremony now, though it be very ancient; we desire rather to content our selves with the simplicity of the Gospel in all the Institutions and Ordinances of Jesus Christ; but this discovers the ancient truth of Satans Assaults, and Kingdom over Children by nature, even in the Womb. Be-hold, I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my Mother conceive me, saith David. 1. I was shapen in iniquity; in the very forming of the parts of his body, and disposing it for Animation there was sin, though not explicitly and formally, yet initially, inchoatively, and imperfectly, because the body was in tendency to take up man. 2. And in sin did my Mother conceive me: It is in the Hebrew, my Mother did warm me, or nourish me: which relates not so much to the actual conception, as to the time that his Mother did bear, and warm him in the Womb. The inference from the Text is this, that so soon as that Mass of the Body is enlivened, and animated, so soon is original sin in a man; and when original sin like a Leprosie, spreads it self over the whole man, the Devil also doth seize upon him as his own: So that as a man is said to dwell in his own house, it is his home; he may do there what he will, such a right and claim hath the Devil to a man by nature, he dwells in him, reigns in him, and leads him captive at his will.

But if thus it be with us, whilst we are in the Womb, is it not otherwise in our birth, and in our Infancy, till we become adult? I answer.

1. So long as we are in nature it is all one: no sooner are we born, but we are Atheists, Idolaters, Blasphemers, Sabbath-breakers, Murtherers, Adulterers, Thieves, False-Witnesses, Covetous; not by actual transgression, but by an habitual disposition: as we are said to be men, because we have in us the Image of man, and seeds of Humanity, though we never did any manly action, seeing nothing is wanting but growth and maturity: so by as good right we are called sinners of all kinds, because we have the nature and very image of sin, and the seeds of all corruption living in us in our very infancy: Which if we grow, will grow with us, and without preventing Grace will come to full ripeness, if we ever attain unto perfect age. In this respect how should Satan but dwell in us, move in us, reign in us; and at our very birth, and during our infancy, do with us, and domineer it in us, even as he pleaseth.

2. So long as we are in infancy, and not adult, supposing that we live to the age when we

† His opinion is, that the instance of Jeremy being sanctified from the Womb, is but only a setting him apart for his office.

Jer. 1. 5.

we may enjoy use of means, appointed by God for Regeneration, Justification, Sanctification, it is very probable that we are in a state of nature, and Vassals of Satan, as we are in the Womb. A late Divine thus delivers himself, I know no reason to conclude, that God should break his own ordinary road of bestowing Grace in Infant-age, upon those that live to the use of means appointed to that end, and I suppose (excepting the case of John the Baptist, who yet may be looked upon as privileged by an extraordinary account; to wit, that by a miraculous instinct he might bear witness to Christ, as his Fore-runner in the Womb, as well as in the Wilderness) it can hardly be asserted de facto, concerning † any one that ever lived to perfect use of reason, that he was justified and sanctified from the Womb, or any period of infancy whatsoever; nor have we any Scripture-warrant to expect it: nay, it were against the very end for which God appoints the use of means, seeing by bestowing saving grace out of them, to those that live to enjoy them, God would in a sort make void his own Institutions; for what need of them, when the ends of them may be otherwise attained? I confess, grace is wrought in some very early, possibly in Child-hood, but ordinarily 'tis after they come under Catechizing. And if this be so, then Satan keeps his hold for this first period, (i) from our first quickning in the Womb, and during our Infancy, till we become adult.

SECT. II

Of the manner of Devils assaulting at that time.

Luke 11. 21.

BUT how do the Devils assault, or tyrannize it in us at such a time? I answer, they do it quietly, and without resistance. The strong armed man, Satan, quietly keeps the house, and the things that he possesseth are in peace. Poor Creatures in this case are as Prisoners, content to be tyed in the Fetters of sin: and therefore to what purpose should Satan rage it in their Consciences? I know Satan is subtil, and more exactly watcheth them that are sprung of Godly Parents: he observes from time to time how they bewail the sin of their Babes, and how they press God with a Covenant of Grace, and how they dedicate their Children to the Lord, and how they present them to God in that Ordinance of Baptism: and though for all this he holds his Claim, and leads them as Captives at his will; yet I verily believe, upon these Observations, he looks very enviously and maliciously upon such Children; as if it were not that God hedgeeth them about with a Wall of Holy and Blessed Angels, he would do his utmost to cut off their lives in their polluted state of nature, and immediately hurry them to Hell, unto the Judgment of the great day. Howsoever he matters not much, whilst he keeps possession; he knows well enough that till they are actually regenerated, he is their Lord; he needs not plant any of his strongest Batteries, main temptations against them yet; and therefore in that respect, as a Keeper of such Prisoners, he may sleep securely; he commands with ease; he keeps the house quiet, and all are obeyant to his will.

SECT. III.

Of the State of Infants dying at that time, either in the Womb, or in their Infancy.

IF this be so, then well may we say of our Infants dying at this time; Oh that they had never been conceived! Oh, that they had never come out of the Womb into the World! not so neither; for amongst Infants, some are Elect, and some are not: and some are within a Covenant of Grace, and some are not.

1. Some Infants are Elect. For the Children not being yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to Election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth, it was said, the Elder it shall serve the Younger; as it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Esau, have I hated. When Jacob was but an Infant in the Womb, he was Elect; and if Jacob had died in the Cradle, he had been saved. Hence believing Parents may comfort their Souls concerning those Children that early die, in that they may be Elected, and by consequence eternally saved.

2 Some Infants are within a Covenant of Grace, and this speaks yet more encouragement. Indeed, we cannot look into the Book of Life, which is in Heaven, and thereby know that the names of our dying Infants are written there; yet may we look into the Covenant of Grace, and satisfy our selves as in the effect of their Election. Are not the Children of believing Parents the reputed Members of Jesus Christ? Is not the same promise made to the Children that is made to the Parents, for receiving both as Members? I am thy God, Gen. 17. 7. and the God of thy Seed, said the Lord to Abraham; and the Promise is to you, and to your Children, and to all that are afar off, said Peter to the Jews. God is in Covenant with our Infants as soon as they are living in the Womb, and God is Sacramentally and solemnly engaged to our Infants in Baptism, as soon almost as they are born into the World: nor doth it hinder, that such Infants were shapen in iniquity, and conceived in Sin; for that is first which is Natural, and then that which is Spiritual: The Devil first reigns in them as his Subjects, and then the Lord passing by, and seeing them in their blood, he saith to them in their blood, live; yea, 6, 7, 8. be saith to them in their blood, live, that time is as a time of Love, and therefore the Lord spreads his skirts over them, and covers their nakedness, and swears to them (in Baptism) and enters into a Covenant with them, and so they become his.

But when is it that Infants dying in the womb or in their Infancy, are entred into this Covenant of Grace? I answer.—

1. Externally, the Infants of Church Members are in Covenant so soon as they are quickened in the Womb.

In-

2 Internally, they are in Covenant so soon as by the intervention of the Spirit they are wrought on savingly and effectually: now this may be either in the Womb; and so Godly Parents may comfortably hope of all their Infants as die in the Womb, before they see this Worlds light; or after Birth, at any time, before they become adult: Only as we will not limit the Spirit, so we cannot but probably think, that the time of the Spirits Regeneration is ordinarily in this case, the very time of their Baptism. Thus a Modern speaks:

Mr. Ford in his Infant-Baptism.

*Although God be not bound to his Ordinance of Baptism, so as to give grace to all Elect Children at the instant of their Baptism, yet seeing Sacraments are not only bare Signs and Seals of the Covenant, but Conduits of the Grace of the Covenant, when, and in what manner God is pleased to dispence it; I know not why the Sacrament of Baptism to some Elect Children, I mean to those that die in Infancy, may not be indeed the Laver of Regeneration, and they receive the Grace of Baptism with the sign: For no person can enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, except his person be justified, and his Nature sanctified, and God useth to dispence these Graces in some ordinance or other; and seeing such Infants live not to be capable of any other Ordinance, why should I not believe them Regenerated in Baptism? If this Opinion may be thought of any to favour the Papacy, that holds the Sacrament to be effectual, ex opere operato: He answers solidly, that his Opinion stands at a great distance from theirs; for that by their Doctrine they make no difference between Good and Bad, Elect or Non-Elect, in the participation of those Benefits: They hold that in Baptism all Infants that receive it are actually Regenerate, whereas he restrains the Efficacy of that ordinance only to the Elect; and he admits not all of them neither, for he excludes those of the Elect that afterwards live to come under the means of Regeneration, only he supposeth a possibility and probability, that in some Elect Infants (viz those that die in Infancy) the season of Gods doing that, which all Christians acknowledge, is done at one time or other before the separation of Soul and Body, (sc. their Renovation, Justification, and Sanctification) is rather the time of Baptism, than any other time.*

If any demand, how can Infants in the Womb, or in their Infancy be justified and sanctified? Is not Justification bestowed on believing? and is not Sanctification conveyed to us in the attendance upon the outward and ordinary means? The answer is, That God justifies them upon another account, and sanctifies them in another way, than those that are of Age: and for this my Author cites another; saying, As in the bodily life, one Organ is the instrument of nourishment to the Child in the Womb, another when born; so in the conveyance of spiritual life, 'tis one way to a Child, another to one of years: For this is not the most universal Proposition of the Gospel [he that believeth shall be saved,] but this, [he that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son hath not life:] now God gives his Son by the Spirit, and we receive him by Faith: but God can supply the want of that hand in a Child, by dropping into his mouth what he cannot receive with his hand, as I may say. All this I have said of Infants dying in the Womb, or in their infancy; but as for such, whose life God prolongs till they come to years of age and discretion, I have already delivered my mind in the former Sections.

SECT. IV.

Of the Priviledges of Elect Infants living beyond that time, but for present under Satans Power.

WE see it may be well with Elect Infants dying in their Infancy; but what say we of them who may live longer, and are for present under Satans power? have they no Priviledge above those Children that are not Elect?

I answer, Yes; and I may instance in these particulars.

1. They have Gods love, Jacob have I loved, said God of Jacob before he was born: which must needs be as true of Jacob when he was born: There is in God a love of benevolence, and that is afforded to Elect Infants whilst yet carnal, and dead in sin: as a Woman lately conceiving loves her future fruit, so the Lord loves those whom he purposeth for himself: Indeed, his love of complacency is not till their change and conversion; but his love of benevolence, is from eternity.

2. They have a right to the Covenant of Fore-Fathers. This difference the Apostle makes between Jews and Jews, The Election have obtained, and the Election are beloved for the Fathers sake. I speak here of the Covenant of God with fore-Fathers, as it undergoes an abstracted consideration from the personal Covenant with us by Faith: Infants of believers are far from actual Faith, and yet they have this Priviledge, that the ancient Covenant betwixt God and their Fore-Fathers hath run (as it were) down in a line to them: and upon this account, Godly Fathers many times speak for their tender Babes, before they are able to speak for themselves; they plead a Covenant entailed, and put it into suit for them, whilst they are not yet but as a span long: as if every such a one should say, Lord, here is a Child conceived in sin; and born in sin; the very guilt and pollution of his Nativity renders him obnoxious to eternal fire; and yet thou hast said, I will be thy God, and the God of thy Seed; and the Promise is to you, and to your Children; and thou hast stiled thy self a God, shewing mercy unto thousands of Generations of them that love thee; and thy Word is clear, that the Election is beloved for the Fathers sake: Now therefore be merciful to my poor Child that comes of such and such a Race, even for the Covenant sake.

3. They have a right to the inward part of Baptism; as to Regeneration, Renovation, Remission of Sins, &c. You will say, if Infants were then regenerated, they could not be under Satans Power. I grant the improbability of their being actually regenerate until years of discretion, and yet by Baptism they have jus ad rem, a remote right to those initial Graces.

Graces. Sacraments were never intended by God to exert their vertue only in, or during the administration. As in the Lords Supper, Christians by their experiences can testify, that the benefit is most what after the receiving of it: so in Baptism it may be many years after the receiving of it: For otherwise it would follow, that Baptism would be altogether a barren Sacrament all our lives long; except only during the little time of its administration. Oh, what a blessed Privilege is this! the Non-Elect, may indeed be baptized, and have the washing of water: but the Elect sooner or later, are baptized also with the Holy Ghost, and with Fire; they have that initial Sacrament for the bestowing of initial Graces upon them in the Lords own time.

4. They have the tutelage of Angels. Are Heb. 1. 14. they not all ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister for them, who shall be heirs of Salvation; It is true, they are under Satans power; Devils move in them, dwell in them, reign in them; they keep the house of poor Infants Souls, and they are in quiet and peaceable possession; yet notwithstanding all this, the Holy Angels have a charge from God to see those Infants, and to preserve them charily as chosen Vessels (maugre the Dominion of Satan) against the time he shall manifest himself unto them. But of this Privilege more fully in another discourse.

SECT. V.

Of the Duty of Wrestling, that concerns Parents in this respect.

2. THE Duties that concern us in our wrestling with Satan, as to his first Assaults, are either Parents Duties, or Childrens.

1. For the Parents, they are to perform some Duties before, and some after their Childrens birth.

1. The Duties before they are born are these.

1. Let the Parents be humbled for that sin which they transmit to their Children. Oh, how should this pierce their hearts, that in Adam all sinned, and by reason of that sin both they and theirs are all defiled. Good Lord, (may they say) is not this lamentable, that we should derive sin from our Parents, and that we should convey the same sin to our Children! that we should make our little ones so soon as they live Vassals of Satan, and Objects of Gods Wrath! Oh, the wo of this sin! did we but rightly consider it, what is this Original sin but in some sense all sin, and universal guilt? it makes the Understanding guilty, the Will guilty, the Affections guilty, even guilt all over; there is no part of man, no not his Mind, nor his Conscience, but it is all over defiled with this Sin; this is the Sin, that is the Root and Fountain of all the actual Evils we commit every day: is not every one tempted, and drawn aside by his own Lust? Oh wretched Babes, whom we have begotten after this Image! how just were it now that God should turn you out of your Mothers Womb into Hell flames? and are we the Instruments of your damnation, except the mercy of God shall prevent it? O deplorable condition! O wretched men that we are! Here's matter of Humiliation.

2. Let Parents call to remembrance, and improve the free and gracious Covenant which God hath made with them and their Posterity; I am thy God, and the God of thy Seed: Gen. 17. 7. for the promise is unto you, and to your Children: 9. Act. 2. 39. It is true, that by Natural Generation the Children of Believing Parents are defiled with sin, and so under wrath; and yet they are holy by Covenant, and free acceptance: We see the Promise is not only to the Parents, but also to their Children: Oh, then that this Promise may come into remembrance! Oh, that Parents would improve this Promise, and make sure, (as much as in them lies) that their Children are indeed under the promise! But what can they do to make this hopefully sure? I answer,

1. Let them make sure that they themselves are under the promise: If their Evidences are but clear, that they have an interest in the Covenant of Grace, and that God is their God in Christ, then may they have a comfortable hope that God will be the God even of their Seed also.

2. Let them give themselves unto God by a renewed Covenant: Let them again resign up themselves in all things to be guided by his Word. Surely, they that would give their Children up unto God, must first give up themselves. As the Promise is made to the Faithful, so that Faith which truly acts in Dedication of Children to God, must first draw the Parties themselves to yield up their Souls and Bodies as a Living Sacrifice unto the same God.

3. Let them offer their Children up unto God by hearty Prayer: Gods promise to accept our Children, calls for prayer on our part, that he would be pleased to make good his promise. Thus David reasoned, Thou, O Lord 2 Sam. 7. of Hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed to thy Ser- 27. vant, saying, I will build thee an House, therefore hath thy Servant found in his heart to pray this prayer unto thee: And so should every Parent say unto God, O Lord of Hosts, God of Israel, thou hast covenanted to be my God, and the God of my Seed; therefore am I bold to entreat thy Fatherly acceptance of my poor Infant: Hast thou not said, that Children Psal. 127. 3. are an Heritage of the Lord, and the Fruit of the Womb is thy reward? Oh, Child may be one of thy Heritage or I. Society of Saints, and that thou wouldest to it a God and Father in the Lord Jesus Christ; I press thee with thy promise, and I rely on thy promise; why Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief.

2. The Duties after they are born are these.

1. Let the Parents give up their Children again to God. We read in Christs time, that some devout Persons brought their Chil- Luk. 10. dren to Christ, putting them into his hands and 13. 16. arms; And thus should Parents deal with their Children, no sooner they are born, and received by their Parents from God, but they should

We read in Christs time, that some devout Persons brought their Children to Christ, putting them into his hands and arms; And thus should Parents deal with their Children, no sooner they are born, and received by their Parents from God, but they should should again by Prayer and Thanksgiving be offered up to God. Parents should put them into his hands, and cast them into his arms: q. d. Blessed Lord, thou hast given us in mercy these tender Babes, and now we see them perfect in Limbs, and like thee in their Souls (for which we ever bless thy Name,) we desire now to throw them into the hands of thy Fatherly Providence, and to cast them into the arms of thy everlasting Mercy: own them, we humbly pray thee as thy Children in Jesus Christ.

2. Let Parents tender them to the Ordinance of Baptism, that they may receive the Sign and Seal of Regeneration. But what needs this (say some Phanaticks) is not the promise it self sufficient? and cannot God make it good unto our Children without this Sacrament? I answer, yes, he can; but seeing God so far condescends to our weakness as to give us a Sign and Seal for the confirmation of our Faith, in this case to slight it, to neglect it, to refuse it, what is it but to tempt God? This Sacrament is a Sign ordained by God, and shall we refuse it? This was Abaz case, the Lord bids him ask a sign for the confirmation of his Faith in the promise, but he refuseth it as a thing needless; I will not ask a sign, neither will I tempt the Lord: Nay, Abaz, in not asking it at Gods command, therein thou didst tempt the Lord. Indeed not to believe without a Sign, were in some sense to tempt the Lord. Master we would see a sign from thee, said the Scribes and Pharisees to Christ, for which he calls them an evil and adulterous Generation; but where God affords a Sign for the help of our infirmity, there to refuse it, is both presumption and rebellion. Nor is this Sacrament only a Sign, but a Seal; and howsoever the Promise may be made good without a Seal, yet cannot we urge the Promise with the same evidence and ground of assurance, when the Seal is added to the Promise, otherwise it must needs follow, that the Sacraments add nothing at all to the Covenant, in point of certainty and evidence. Away, away with these Heterodox Doctrines, and let all that fear God take heed of contemning or neglecting this Ordinance of God. Christians! bring your Children to Baptism; and when you bring them, endeavour to affect your Hearts with suitable dispositions to that action. As. —

1. Have an high thankful esteem of the rich mercy of God in Christ to you and yours. Is it not your that God should make your Issue, your of the visible Church, that Christ should through a Covenant of Grace should send in your Line, and become in a sort (as we may say,) hereditary. Surely, the truest nobility is to be made a Christian. Theodosius was more glad to be called a Christian, than to be the Emperour of the World. You would think it a great honour if you could but make your Children Heirs of the World, but what Honour is this, that God makes them by Covenant and Seal, Heirs of Heaven? Oh, for an Heart raised up, and enlarged in thankfulness for this.

2. Rejoice in the Lord, and again I say rejoice. Is there not cause? What is this day of Baptism, but the day of your Childrens espousals to Jesus Christ? Now they have his name put upon them, and he makes them a Jointure beyond the abilities of all the Monarchs of the World now they are his † Souldiers; his Sons and Daughters by a Spirit of Adoption sealed in Baptism. I remember when Jacob blessed the Sons of Joseph, Ephraim, and Manasse, he blessed them thus, Let my name be named upon them, and the names of my Father Abraham and Isaac, Gen. 48. 16. He adopted them for his Sons, they must be two of the twelve Tribes of Israel, to have an Inheritance with them in the Land of Canaan. So when God puts his name upon your Children, he signifieth and assureth that they are his Sons: * Ye are all the Children of God by Faith in Christ Jesus, for as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ.

SECT. VI.

Of the Duties that concern Children in this respect.

1. FOR the Children or Parties themselves when grown. —

1. Let them bewail their own original sin. Oh, that as this is the first sin, so it might be first taken notice of! Oh, that so soon as Children come to ripeness they would consider thus: Blessed Lord, how comes this to pass? the Psalmist tells me, I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin bath my Mother conceived me: Oh, I am a Child of Adam, the Son or Daughter of a sinful brood: he was the Rock whence I was hewn, and the hole of the pit whence I was digged, and who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? not one. As soon as ever I lived I was polluted, and for that one sin, if I had never sinned more, the Lord might justly have condemned my Soul long since to Hell, and am I yet alive? Why Lord, what a long Reprieve have I enjoyed? How many years have I lived in a condemned condition? Oh, that I had been the Child of a Toad, or Serpent, or venomous Creature; for surely God doth not loath and abhor their young ones, they are not by nature Objects of Gods Wrath, neither doth Satan rule in them, nor are they exposed to eternal Torments; but thus is the sinful Off-spring of all mankind. Now I wonder not that Luther in the deeps, and troubles, and sorrows of his heart, because of this sin, cried out so pitifully, Oh, that I had never been a man? Now I wonder not that Paul, beset with this original sin, was forc'd to say, Oh, wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death? In this or the like manner should they bewail themselves. Many are apt to mourn for Actual sin, but few mourn for this sin, that first made the breach and began the Controversie betwixt God and Man. Surely the horrible nature of this first sin is not well understood; Christians, let me tell you, next unto the sin against the Holy Ghost, and contempt of the Gospel, this is the greatest sin, that cries loudest in Gods Ears for vengeance day and night against a World of men. Oh, then let Children grown take notice of this, and bewail this sin.

2. Let

2. Let them urge the Covenant of God made to them in their Fathers. q. d. Lord, we are sinners from the womb, and yet by good providence we are sprung of a believing Race: was there not a League of old betwixt thee, and our Fathers, and wilt thou not remember thy gracious promise to them and us? Should David do kindness to Mephibosheth for his Father Jonathan's sake, and are there no remnants of Love in thy Breast towards the Posterity of thy old dear Friends? why remember, Lord, the unfeigned Faith that dwelt in our Grand-mother Lois, or in our Mother Eunice, or in some other of our Godly Progenitors; and remember how often they acted their Faith upon that Promise that thou wouldst be the God of them and theirs: Did they not press thee with thy Promise on our behalf? Did they not pray to thee once and again, to be good and gracious unto us their Children? Why dear Father, the God of our Fathers, and our God; wilt thou please to read over the Petitions which are yet on file in Heaven on our behalf: nay, wilt thou please to read over thy Answers to them, when as yet our bones were only written in thy Book! Oh, let it never be said that Children descended of such a Prayerful Race are cast out of thy favour, or that the Prayers of that race should become unsuccessful unto us, on whose behalf they were put up. What though we were conceived and born in sin? and what though Satan doth claim and challenge us for his own? yet thou wast pleased to enter into a Covenant of Grace, and thou hast stiled thy self to be the God of Abraham and his Seed: O now remember thy Word, and remember thy Promise, and remember the Covenant, and remember our Fathers in Covenant with thee for thy Mercies sake.

3. Let them sue out the Grace and Benefit of their former Baptism: They had the outward washing before, but not the inward washing till now: why now let them press hard for this. Now Satan wrestles, and now should they wrestle (as we shall hear more particularly another time) now should every such a one cry to God, Come Lord Jesu, come quickly, O rescue thy Creature out of Satans slavery: See, he holds me fast in his Net, and Gins, and Shares, and he will not let me go; he tells me, I am one of his Subjects, a Goat of his Fold; but Lord, dost thou not know that I have had thy Sheep-mark upon me from a Lamb? was not I born in thy Family? and did I not in Baptism put on Christ Sacramentally? O that now I may put him on savingly: It is true, the Sacramental washing in water is not enough; and is it not high time for me now to make out, after Sacramental Grace to cleanse my filthy nature? Had I not need to apply my self to those promises, whereby I may be made partaker of a new nature? Lord, I come to the Fountain opened in the Gospel for sin, and for uncleanness: O sprinkle clean water upon me, regenerate me (as thou hast already with water, so) now with the Spirit: bestow on me the inward and spiritual part of my Baptism, sanctifie me in pursuance of thy promise sealed therein by the Word, and present my Soul to thy self without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing.

4. Let them repent of their Apostasy, and breach of Vows, since they were admitted into Covenant with God. This brings into their remembrance all their actual sins, and seasonably are they to be remembered, and repented of, when they mind conversion. The Spirits first work is to convince of sin: of sin original, and of sin actual, and amongst other aggravations of actual sins, this is a great and mighty aggravation, the breach of Vows. But what Vows were made by them whilst they were Infants? I answer, they vowed to be Gods and Christs; they vowed to forsake the World, and Flesh, and Devil, and to manage war against them all their days: they vowed to fight under the Banner of Christ, and to be his Souldiers, and to maintain his cause, and to promote his Kingdom. For understanding whereof, we must take notice of a double Vow: the first is a virtual Vow, when we vow legally, though in our own persons we promise nothing. The second is a formal Vow, when in express terms we take upon us any Obligation: Infants, whilst Infants, cannot vow formally, but they do virtually; their Fathers stand instead of themselves and Infants, and privately at their first quickning in the Womb, but solemnly at their Baptism in the Church, they bind themselves, and their Seed to God in this manner. Know all men by these Presents, that J. A. do hereby oblige my self, and my Heirs, and posterity from me descending, to the great God of Heaven and Earth, in all the Duties required in the Law and Gospel. Now this Vow is it that virtually was made by Infants: they could not do it in their own persons; and therefore by a gracious Prolepsis God accepts it on their behalf, thus made and signed, by their mediate, or immediate Parents. And have they not many and many a time broken these Sacred vows? have they not as soon as they could learn to speak, begun to swear and lie? have they not very early forfeited their bonds, and entered into a contrary Covenant and confederacy with the Devil, and Death, and Hell, and their own Lusts, and maintained a War rather with God than Devils, with abundance of youthful heat and activity? Oh, then what remains, but that they should remember from whence they are fallen, and repent, and renew their Covenant with God in their own Persons, with all possible speed and seriousness. And thus much for our wrestling with Satan, or repelling Satan, as to his first Assaults.

CHAP. II. SECT. I.

Of the Devils Assaults in our Youth, or at the time of Conversion.

THE Second Period, wherein Satan assaults or combates with us, it is from our youth to our riper ears: or especially from the beginning to the end of our Conversion. And in prosecution of this, first learn we some of those depths and wiles, and methods of Satan in his assaults: and secondly, practise we those Duties that concern us in our wrestling with him in these respects.

1. For Satans Assaults; then he begins his strongest Batteries, or main temptations, when we are first entring into a renewed state: Now this is most usual in the days of our youth. So many of our Worthies observe: One speaking of young People, saith, Amongst them usually the stream of converting Grace most runs.— It may be in some: Grace is wrought very early, even in Child-hood, but ordinarily 'tis after they come under catechizing; and are more adult. Another thus: Conversion doth not only belong to the old but to the young: yea commonly Conversion is sooner wrought upon the young sort of people, for they have not resisted the Grace of God so much, they have not provoked God to give them up to their own Hearts, Lusts, and Desires, as many aged persons have: so then let young ones hearken to Sermons, let them attend to what the Ministers of God exhort, Remember thy Creator in the dayes of thy Youth; and it is good to bear the yoke in thy youth; it is good to feel the bitterness of sin betimes. Another thus, The Lord can convert and bring home to himself at all times, in middle age, in old age, at the very last, as the Thief upon the Cross; yet the time of effectual calling is more ordinary in the time of youth. Some have observed the time of effectual calling to be between the years of eighteen, and thirty most commonly.— And I believe that most Saints experience, that the Lord wrought upon them in their younger days.— Marriages are most in younger time; so are spiritual contracts in Jesus Christ: David was good when young, Daniel a young Prophet, Timothy a young Preacher, Samuel began with God betimes, Abijah good when a Child, so was Josiah. Another thus, Those who in their Infancy were considered as parts of their Parents, and so by vertue of their Parents membership enjoyed the Ordinance of Baptism; whence once grown up to maturity and ripeness of years, they are to be looked upon and considered in themselves, and no longer as in their Parents, and therefore as being in a capacity so to do, they ought now to take hold of the Covenant for themselves, and to render a personal account of their Faith. It pleaseth God that many do so even very betimes: which agrees with the former opinion, that some are regenerated after they come under Catechizing. It was the use of the Jews (as Buxtorf reports) that so soon as their circumcised Children were able to speak, they taught them some select places of Scripture, and so proceeding on by degrees, at thirteen years of age they were called filii precepti, Sons of the Precept; and then they were to receive the Passover (as saith Mr. Weens) and to observe the 613 Precepts, which comprehended in them the sum of the Mosacal Law, and Jewish Religion; and then they themselves were accounted guilty and lyable to punishment both Divine and Humane, if they did transgress the Law, whereas before their faults were imputed to their Fathers, of whom the punishment was exacted. The manner of the Jews, it seems was thus: The Son being thirteen years compleat, The Father calls ten Jews to witness, saying, that his Son is now of age, hath been instructed in the Precepts, well learned their Customs, and can readily recite the benedictions and daily Prayers, and therefore he is willing to be henceforth free, and to shake off the Sins of his Son; after which he concludes with Prayer, beseeching God that his Son may grow up into many years and good works. I hope I may say of Gentiles, as well as Jews, that Conversion is sometimes very early, even so early as at thirteen years of age, though it be not ordinary. And oh, how good is it for a man to bear the yoke in his youth, seeing it must be born at one time or other? the burthen of sin at that age will be the lighter, the flowing of Heavenly Affections will be the sweeter, the removal of Sin, in likelihood, will be sooner, at least the surer, God having engaged himself, that they that seek him early shall find him. Satan knows all this full well, and therefore he sets a stricter watch on youth; he observes all the motions, stirrings, actings of the Soul, and of Gods Spirit at such a time most narrowly: and if he spy any thing that may probably disturb him of his Possession, he presently foams and fumes, and prepares himself for Battel, and now he is ready with all his fiery Darts (his thousands of temptations) to throw them at him, that would throw down his Kingdom.

Prov. 8.17.

SECT. II.

Of the Occasion of Satans first, and furious Assaults.

BUT what ails Satan, that he begins thus to rage? it was but erewhile that he kept the house quietly, and possessed all in peace; and is he now disturbed? O yes; for now the Soul begins to consider, it was but lately that the man was at some Sermon, or read some Book, or observed some providence, or heard some pray: Some Gospel-news, or glad Tidings is freshly come, that Jesus Christ is in the Field, sent of God on this very account, to rescue Souls from the Devils power; and to that end he hath made a Proclamation, that if any poor Sinner weary of the Devils Government, and heavy laden with the Chains of his Spiritual Bondage, will but come and repair to Christ, he shall have protection from Gods Justice, the Devils Wrath, and sins Dominion. This, or the like message hath perswaded the Soul to pause, to consider, to ponder, commune with it self what it had best to do.

Consideration is the first step to Repentance; the Prodigal first came to himself before he came to his Father; he considered with himself what a starving condition he was in; his Husks were poor Meat, and yet he had not enough of them neither; but at his Fathers House was Bread enough, and to spare, and should he perish with Hunger? It is usual with the Soul thus at first to consider with it self, And am I a Satans Vassal, and under Satans power? and shall I continue in this state? Is not the sweet Government of Christ a thousand times better than the Tyranny of Satan? and is not Christs Rewards a thousand times better than the Devils Wages? What is not Heaven better than Hell? and all I now promise to fight under Christs Banner against the World, Flesh, and Devil? How is it then that I have served him thus long? and that yet he leads me captive at his will and pleasure? What if this Night I should leave this World in this state? What would become of me to all Eternity? could I be content to lose God, and Christ, and the Joy above, and to dwell with Devils, and Reprobates, and all those Infernal Fiends below? Consider, O my Soul, and have sad thoughts on these weighty and everlasting Affairs; for as the Tree falleth, so it must lye for ever and ever. This or the like consideration, is the Devils Alarm: now is he occasioned to bestir himself, or he sees he is gone; and therefore as a Giant awoke out of sleep, he rouseth and shakes himself, and besets the Soul with these several Temptations following.

SECT. III.

Of the several immediate Assaults that Satan at first doth make.

HIS Assaults in this case are either immediate, or mediate; by himself, or Aids.

He assaults by himself, either by removing those pious Thoughts tending to Holiness, or by injecting such impious thoughts as tend to Wickedness.

1. He endeavours to remove pious thoughts. q. d. What do these Strangers here? How come these Guests into my House and Dwelling without my leave? Are these fit Companions for the Soul where I bear rule? away with them, shut them out of Doors, for I cannot endure them, in my Territories.

2. He injects impious thoughts instead of good, these are the Darts which he throws into the Soul at pleasure; and now is he most busie, lest the Soul want work to busie it self withal. By his good will, (saith one) the Soul should not have a thought of Heaven or Hell from one end of the week to the other; and that he may have as few as may be, he keeps him full handed with work: The Sinner grinds, and he is filling the Hopper, that the Mill may not stand still: he is with the Sinner as soon as he wakes, and fills his wretched Heart with some wicked thoughts; and all the day long he watcheth him, and injects more ill thoughts; and at night, like a careful Faylor, he locks him up again in his Chamber, with more Bolts and Fetters upon him, not suffering him to sleep as he lies in his Bed, till he hath done some mischief.

Before I proceed, I shall propound these Questions.

1. Whether Satan knows our thoughts?
2. Whether Satan can shut the Door that good thoughts may not enter?
3. Whether Satan can at pleasure inject sinful thoughts, and so set on the Soul to embrace them, and to tamper with them.

1. Whether Satan knows our Thoughts? I answer; As Thoughts are taken strictly, simply, or meerly for Conceits, Apprehensions, Meditations, Discussions, Deliberations, which the Understanding or Mind in and by it self, or by the help of fancy frames within it self, they are not known unto Satan: but as thoughts are taken largely, conjunctly, or as they are accompanied and waited on with the stirred up Images of the Fancy, and Passions of the Body; so our Thoughts, as well as Words and Actions, are known to Satan. Now I must confess, few thoughts are in us, but they stir up the fancy, or some affection of Fear, or Joy, or Grief, or some such like; and therefore in that respect we have very few thoughts but they are known to Satan: That Satan hath an insight into the Fancy and the Images therein, there is no doubt; and that Satan hath an insight into the Passions, which are but the flowing and reflowing of Corporal Spirits, the most will grant; it must therefore needs follow, that howsoever the immediate Acts, which are immanent in the Soul it self are utterly hidden from Satan, yet as those Acts are do transire, and appear, and are put forth in the Body and Corporal Organs, either outwardly in Actions, or inwardly in the Images of the fancy, or in the Passions, so they may be discerned and known by Satan.

2. Whether Satan can shut the Door, that good thoughts may not enter? I answer, in natural men, as yet unregenerate, he may shut the common Gate of the Fancy, that no good Thoughts shall enter in that way; and the reason is, because the Devil hath the Keys in his own hands of all the Rooms, next to the Privy Chamber; he rules there, and locks, or unlocks at his pleasure. For the better understanding of this, we must know that within man are several Rooms or Chambers; the Fancy, the Affections, the Heart or Soul, which consists of the Understanding and Will; the Understanding is joyned to the Fancy, as the next Room to it; and the Will is joyned to the Affections as the next room to it; hence the Fancy brings in to the Understanding, and the Affections bring in to the Will; and on the other side, the Understanding imprints much upon the Fancy what it conceives, and the Will imprints much upon the Affections what it commands: Now for the outer Rooms, as Satan can discern them intuitively, so he can work upon them at his pleasure; in the Fancy he can make such Compositions, as the Understanding may presently take off, and read what is written there; and in the sensitive Passions such as Love, Hatred, Anger, Concupiscence, he can so move the Humours and Spirits in which they float, that the Will is apt to choose and command accordingly as the Passions are moved there; but for the most inner Room or privy Chamber, wherein we place the Understanding and Will, as Satan cannot intuitively or immediately discern it, so neither can he imperiously or efficaciously work upon it. Indeed (saith a Modern) to speak exactly, the Devil hath no efficient power over the rational part of a man, he cannot change the Will, he cannot alter the Heart of a Man, neither doth he know the thoughts of a man, so that the utmost he can do in tempting of a man to sin, is by swasion and suggestion only; but then how doth the Devil do this? even by working upon the imagination; Learned men make this his method, that he observeth the temper, and bodily constitution of a man, and thereupon suggests to his fancy, and injects his fiery Darts therein, by which the Mind and Will come to be wrought upon: for it is Aristotle's Rule) that Phantasmata movent intellectum sicut sensibilia sensum, that Phantasms and Imaginations move the Understanding, as the objects of sense being present do presently move the sense; the Devil then though he have no imperious efficacy over the Understanding and Will, yet because he can stir and move the Imagination, it follows that any sin in the Imagination, though but in the outward works of the Soul, yet doth it quickly lay hold on all. Well then, if Satan be Lord of the outer-works, and if through those Doors and Chambers every good thought must usually enter, before it comes into the privy-chamber; if (as the School-men say) the Understanding receives things by the mediation first of the external Senses, then of the Fancy, of which the Memory is the Treasure, so that all comes to us in ordinary no way but that; how easily may we conclude, that Satan will bar, and lock, and shut those Doors in men unregenerate, that no good thought shall enter in that way: Nor doth this at all trench on that Prerogative of God, who is said alone to be the Heart-searcher, the Understandings Light, and Wills Determiner; for he knows either immediately how to speak to the Soul, or he can countermand the Devil's power, and speak by the Senses and Fancy, maugre the malice of Satan and all his power.

3. Whether Satan can at pleasure inject sinful Thoughts, and set on the Soul to embrace them, or to tamper with them? I answer. As he hath a power to hinder good Thoughts, so he hath a power to suggest evil Thoughts.

Joh. 13.2. It is clearly and expressly said of Judas that the Devil put it into his heart to betray Christ: The Devil being a Spirit, had access to his Spirit, and so he instilled his Suggestions into him. As the Lord Christ did breath upon his Disciples, and so they received the Holy Ghost, and were filled with the Spirit; so Satan breaths filthy Suggestions into the Spirits of wicked men, and fills them with all manner of wickedness, Malice, Unrighteousness, he fills them with the Spirit of Hell; Why hath Satan filled thine heart, said Peter to Ananias? Satan had filled his heart to lie to the Holy Ghost. I know the Devil tempts several ways: as sometimes he presents and holds up an Object, and so he dealt with Jesus Christ, representing the Worlds Glory to him in a Map, or a Land-skip: and usually Objects are first presented, which he causeth to dwell upon the Fancy, till the heart be inspired: But sometimes, yea oftentimes the Devil tempts through the immision of Thoughts, which he doth also by the help of the Fancy; for otherwise how should the Devil tempt to Despair, or to Blasphemy, or to Spiritual Sins; or how should he blind the Mind by carnal Imaginations, and Conceits; and obstinate Prejudices against the Truth? And these Thoughts once immitted, may be continued in a Discourse, till at last the Soul both tampers with them, and yields unto them. I have done with these Questions; and now we see how Satan assaults by himself.

SECT. IV.

Of the several mediate Assaults that Satan at first doth make.

2. HE assaults mediately and by his Aids. he likes not that the Soul should have any thoughts of leaving him, or of coming to Christ: The very first Meditation gives all the Legions of Hell an Alarm, as it were; they are as much troubled at it, as Herod and Jerusalem were when they heard the news that Christ was born: and therefore they call in all their Aids, and command them to stifle those holy Thoughts and Considerations.

These Aids are either the World or Flesh.

1. By the World I understand impious, carnal, and unbelieving men, with all their Baits and Enticements unto Vanity; and all their Discouragements, Afflictions and Miseries, wherewith they hinder God's Children in travelling the path of Righteousness which leads to Heaven. This wicked World assaults us on both sides; on the right hand it offers us the Bait of Pleasure, Honours, Riches, that thereby it may allure us to swallow the Hook of sin: it casts before us Golden Apples, that by stooping down to gather them, we may be hindred in running the Christian Race, and so lose the Goal and Garland of everlasting Glory. On the left hand it encounters us with Threats, Miseries, Afflictions, Poverty, Ignominy; all which being terrible in the eyes of flesh and blood, so far prevail with some that they move them to make shipwreck of Faith, and a good Conscience.

Methinks I imagine the World speaking to the Soul in such a Language as this: What Strangers are these that disturb our dwelling? have we not possessed this Heart so many years; and must we now be gone, and give up our room to Foreigners that invade? Come take up other thoughts of the sweet and pleasure of this World; here Soul! we offer thee Wealth; or if that will not allure, thou shalt have Honour; or if that will not prevail, thou shalt have pleasure. As Balak dealt with Balaam, who first sent under-Messengers, and they not prevailing, he yet again sent Princes, more and more honourable than they; and they came to Balaam, and said unto him, Thus saith Balak, the Son of Zippor, let nothing I Numb. 22. pray thee hinder thee from coming unto me, for I 16. 16. will promote thee unto very great honour: so saith the World; Let nothing, I pray thee, divorce thee and me; for I will promote thee unto very great honour. Or, if these Allurements do not divert thy Soul, but still it considers; Oh, what will become of me in the other World! Then doth the World frown, and threaten, and boast of his great strength; then he marcheth against the Soul with all his Forces, sometimes hiding his Troops in the Ambushments of worldly worldly Vanities; and sometimes drawing out his Forces in open view: q. d. Come Afflictions! and come persecutions! and set on this Soul by force and violence! will it needs run away from us in the ways of Godliness? be you like Briars in the way to hold it from going forwards? or be you like Thorns under its feet to vex and torment it, that it may be weary in its passage? And, Oh, the Vexations, Grievs, Fears, and Torments, which the frowning World darts into the Soul at such a time!

2. By the Flesh, I mean not the body and the flesh thereof, but that corruption of nature, which hath defiled the Body and Soul, being spread and mixt with every part of both, even as the Light is mixt with Darkness in the twilight, or dawning of the day; hereby we find our selves prone to all sin, and ready to entertain all temptations; which promise the satisfying the lusts of the Flesh. This Enemy is called the old man, the old Adam; the earthly, carnal, natural man; the sin which is inherent, and dwelleth in us; the adjoyning evil, the Law of the Members; the lusts of the Flesh which fight against the Soul. As Satan is the Father, so the Flesh is the Mother of sin, which receiving Satan's temptations into a fruitful Womb, doth contain, nourish, and bring forth sin.

Now as this is another of Satan's Aids, so methinks I imagine the Flesh bespeaking the Soul in this or the like kind, What manner of communication is this which thou hast with my Enemy? Are Godly thoughts suitable to dwell with me? Or to sit down with me? Am not I thy self, conceived, and born, and brought up with thy self! And wilt thou now entertain an Enemy, either to weaken, or destroy me? I cannot endure any thought tending to the spiritual man: thou canst not, but be sensible, that we two cannot reign together and flourish together in the same Soul at once: If the Spirit live I dye, and if the Spirit thrive I perish: and am I not nearer to thee, and dearer to thee than the Spirit? Was not I with thee in the Womb? and did I ever leave thee till this time? have not I studied to please thee with all the Delights, and Incomes, and pleasures of this World? and wilt thou now turn thy back upon the old man, thy ancient acquaintance? See here a Legion of Lusts attending on thee; Come, let us greet, and embrace, and throw out these pious thoughts that seem to disturb us in our dalliances. And thus we see how Satan assaults us by his Aids.

SECT. V.

Of the Duties that concern us, in respect of the immediate Assaults.

FOR the Duties in our wrestling with Satan as to these Assaults, let Souls practise respectively. As—

1. To Satans immediate Assaults use these repulses.

1. Give entertainments to pious Thoughts, hear what they say; what if they are strangers to thy unregenerate heart (for so I may yet suppose thee) this hinders not, but thou shouldst bid them welcom. It was the old Law, Love ye therefore the strangers, for ye were strangers in the Land of Egypt. And it is the 19. Apostle's charge, be not forgetful to entertain Heb. 13. 2. strangers, for thereby some have entertained Angels unawares. Holy thoughts are precious things, and if not Angels (strictly so called) yet are they God's Messengers, and in that sense Angels sent from God: they are the immediate Fruits and Buds of an immortal nature; they come from God, and they tend to God: they never come but for good, nor do they dwell any where, but in the issue they give exceeding great rewards. Why! then cherish these motions of the Spirit; commune with them again and again; know the errand fully and thoroughly, on which they come from Heaven: their meaning is to bring up thy Soul from Earth to Heaven, and were it not pity to let them go before they have done the great business on which they come.

2. Complain of Satan's shutting the Doors against such thoughts: tell thy God that his Enemy and thine has got the Possession of thy Fancy and Affections, and of all the outer Rooms that lead to the Privy-chamber of thy Heart; and that he hath put his Bars and Bolts so strongly in, that thou canst not open to those strangers. Yea, cry out against Satan and thy self, O the tyranny of Satan! and oh the loathsomeness of my own heart to entertain these holy thoughts! if they stand at the Door and offer their service, do not I join with Satan, and bid them be gone? or if they step in before I am aware, am not I weary, and willing with Satan to drive them out again? Why Lord I am not sufficient of my self, to think any thing as of my self, but my sufficiency is of thee, if I endeavour never so much to wind up my Soul to an holy Meditation, presently I find my Fancy or Imagination, like the Peggs of an Instrument slip between my fingers as I am winding them up, and to fall down suddenly again. Oh wo is me, that my nature is thus vile, and that Satan is thus strong in me! Come Lord, and break open these Doors, that thy Messengers may come in, and find due welcome; all my sufficiency is of thee, and thou art God all-sufficient; Why Lord if thou wilt, thou canst throw out Satan, and make room for these Harbingers, and Forerunners of thy Majesty.

3. Stand and startle at those wicked thoughts, that come instead of the former good ones. Is Satan so busie with thee, that now he hath filled thy heart with proud, unclean, or distrustful thoughts? doth he now suggest, That there is no God, that the world is for ever, that Riches are better than Grace, that the Pleasures of sin are better than Hopes of Heaven? Oh shew thy abhorrency of them, and chide thy Soul sharply for so much as holding any conference with them: But in this repulse begin betimes, crush them early at the very first rising, or Satan will prevail. It is not to tell what a world of miseries man brings upon himself: by giving way to the first wicked thoughts. In the first place therefore, remember that Text, Let the wicked man forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts. Isa. 55. 7.

SECT.

SECT. VI.

Of the Duties that concern us in respect of the mediate Assaults.

2. TO Satan's mediate Assaults by the World, or Flesh, make use of these repulses.

As —

1. To his Assaults by the World, Consider —

1. It is the Lord's command that we should have no intimate, indeared Amity, or Correspondency with the World. Love not the World, neither the things that are in the World, if any man love the World, the love of the Father is not in him.

1 Joh. 2. 15.

2. God and the World are at such enmity, that we cannot serve both. No man can serve two Masters (that are opposite) for either he shall hate the one, and love the other, or else he shall lean to the one and despise the other; ye cannot serve God and Mammon. The Apostle herein appeals to our Consciences; know ye not that the amity of the World is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the World, maketh himself the Enemy of God. It is a rousing question, know ye not? worldly men do not so much out of ignorance, as out of incogitancy; they do not consider: and what should they consider? That the amity of the World is enmity with God, that to please the World is to wage war against Heaven. Oh, consider this ye that forget God.

Mat. 6. 24.

Jam. 4. 4.

3. In our Baptism we renounced the World, with all the vain Pomps and glorious Vanities thereof; then we professed that we would courageously fight against them under Christ; and shall we run away from the Banner of Christ? shall we cast aside the Livery of Jesus Christ? Shall we backslide from our Religion in Truth and Power, and joyn in League with the profest Enemies of God and Christ? what is this but to be worse, and more nefarious in the latter end, than we were in the beginning? For if after we have escaped the pollutions of the World, through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we are again entangled, therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse than the beginning.

2 Pet. 2. 20.

4. What is the World, but changeable, variable, deceitful, miserable? was there ever more experience of this truth than at this time? Oh, what rumblings and tossings have been of late? how have men been deceived in their expectations and fruitions? fair shews have been represented to some, as they were to Christ, when the Devil shewed him all the Kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them, and how many have fallen down and worshipped? but are they not deceived? what matters the worlds gorgeous shews? It is in touch a Feather, in sight a shadow, in weight a Smoak, in trust a Reed, in all deceitful. Achitophel for all his policy, Haman for all his sway, Goliath for all his strength, Nebuchadnezzar for all his pleasure; these worldlings, that sucked in the sweets of this World, they found its deceit, and now feel its punishment. Wicked World!

Mat. 4. 8.

how dost thou undo men with a world of Treacheries? it hates them that love it, deceives them that trust it? afflicts them that serve it, reproaches them that honour it, damns them that follow it. Athanasius tells of an Hermite to whom God should reveal the state of this World, Et omnia viscosa, omnia operata tenebris, & obsessa laqueis, All hanged full of nets and Devils sate by to watch them. Go you over the whole world, behold Countries, view Provinces, look into Cities, hearken at Doors, see what is done in Halls, in Palaces, in private Houses; are not the Devils Snares in every corner? Justice is sold, Shame is lost, Truth is wrested, Right despised; what lying, what flandering, what deceiving is there? the innocent are condemned, the guilty delivered, the wicked advanced, the Virtuous oppressed; Pride, Envy, Perjury, Vanity, these bear sway.

Ah poor Soul! doth the World interpose to hinder thy consideration, or thought of change? doth it tell thee of Riches, Honours, Pleasures? say then with Christ, what if a man gain the whole world, and lose his Soul? or doth it tell thee of Afflictions, Persecutions, Torments? say then with the Apostle, That the afflictions of this life are not worthy of the Glory, which shall be revealed in us. Or if all this will not stop the mouth of the World, consider again, and consider of these particulars; the commands of Christ, the enmity betwixt the World and Christ, thy Promise and Vow, and first obligation to Christ; yea, consider of what the World is, either in it self, or to thy self; and then bid it be gone; away world, 1 Cor. 7. 31. for it is written, the time is short, — and the fashion of this world passeth away.

2. To his Assaults by the Flesh, Consider —

1. It is the Lord's command that we should depose the Flesh; Let not sin reign in your mortal Bodies, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof. And put off the man, which is corrupt, according to the deceitful lusts. And mortifie your members which are upon Earth, as Fornication, Uncleaness, inordinate Affection, evil Concupiscence.

Rom. 6. 11.
Eph. 4. 22.
Col. 3. 5.

2. The Flesh is a worse Enemy than the Devil himself; for never could the Devil hurt us, if this inbred Enemy did not betray us: This is the Root, the Fountain, the Origine, of all other sin, when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin. Hence we say, that suggestion could do nothing without lust: if there were no fire in our Wood, never could Devils breath kindle any flame in our Souls.

3. We are to weaken the Flesh, by abating the Fewel of whatsoever may nourish or strengthen it: Make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof. As in a siege all means are used to stop the passages of sin, by which the Enemy may be victualled, so must we stop those passages of sin, by which the Flesh is strengthened. Now as the Flesh is resident in all parts and powers of the Body and Soul, so must we in every respect keep back Provision from every part; from the Body, Delicacy, Drunkenness, Wantonness; from the Fantastic, vain Imaginations, pernicious Errors: from the Mind and Will, sinful Cogitations, wicked Deliberations; from the Memory

Rom. 13. 14.

mory, the remembrance of sinful pleasures, unless it be to repent of those that are past, and to flee from those that are present: from the Heart unlawful Lusts, wicked Desires, unruly Passions. I might thus instance in every part.

4. As we must weaken, so we must watch over the flesh: and the rather, because though we should get the better in many conflicts, yet still it is plotting and practising new and fresh Treasons. But what are those parts of the flesh we must especially watch? I answer.

1. The Senses; these are the Gates of our Souls, and therefore they had need to be strongly guarded: I made a Covenant with my eyes, why then should I think upon a Maid? And turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity, and quicken thou me in thy way. And put a knife to thy mouth, if thou be a man given to appetite. And I said I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue.

And let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that may minister grace unto the hearers.

2. The Heart; this of all parts is the most subtil and crafty, the heart is deceitful, and desperately wicked above all things, who can know it?

The Counsel of the wise is therefore good, keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life. Indeed the Heart is the chief Monarch in this little World of man, which rules and commands all other parts; it is the Guide and Captain, which leads and directs them in all their courses, it is as the primum mobile, which moves all inferior Spheres; or as the chief Wheel in the Clock, which sets all the rest of the Wheels a going; it is the Spring and Fountain of all our Thoughts, Words and Actions, which being defiled, defileth them, or being purified, communicates its purity unto them: as the heart directeth, the Tongue speaketh, the Hand worketh, the Eye seeth, the Foot walketh: A good man out of the good Treasure of his Heart bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man out of the evil Treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil; for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.

Ah, poor Soul! doth the flesh interpose to hinder thy consideration or thoughts of change? doth it tell thee of its nearness and dearness to thee, of its ancient acquaintance with thee even from the Womb, of those many pleasures and incomes of delight it hath provided? tell it again of its ill neighbourhood, of its ancient feud, by so much the worse because more ancient; and for the pleasures and delights it speaks of, tell it that such Baits have Hooks under them, the Harlots Lips drop Honey in the greeting, and Worm-wood in the parting:

what is the end of such Delights but death and damnation: For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: and therefore say again, Oh why should I satisfy my flesh, to endanger my Soul? Or if these reasonings will not satisfy, consider seriously, and dwell upon these Considerations, that God hath commanded thee to despise it, and that no Enemy is so bad as that in thy bosom: that either thou must weaken it, and watch over it, or it will prevail, and lead thee to the Chambers of death. For when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin, and sin being finished, it bringeth forth death.

Only one Objection remains. Alas! saith the Soul, I am unregenerate, and though I hear a voice behind me, saying, this is the way, Isa. 30. 21. walk in it, yet I do want fear, and strength to walk therein; these are good rules of wrestling against the Devil, World and Flesh, but I cannot stir, nor move, nor meditate: I am not sufficient of my self to think, how then should I follow these rules? you sing to a deaf man, you prescribe to a man dead in sins and trespasses.

I answer, indeed I suppose no less: and yet if I speak not to a man spiritual, I do to one rational, and as a meer rational man, thou may'st fix thy thoughts on this or that object electively, which is a posture of Soul, wherein the Lord may appear, and affect thy Heart. Come then, and peruse these directions, and reason thus, Why should I not do thus as I am directed? Heart, what hast thou to say, why shouldst thou not follow this Counsel that is given thee? Again, it may be the Lord will come in, whilst thou art endeavouring after him: I will not say, that God is bound ex congruo to give grace to thy endeavours: In all the Word of God we find not one promise to any meerly natural, or moral act of ours; Yet (as one observes) God hath seldom been observed, if ever, to fail any in their expectations of grace from him, doing in the way of means, what they by the power of nature can, and what the Spirit of God moves them unto. Hearken then to these rules, and obey: What if thy endeavours have no immediate influence upon grace, yet are a necessary way that God hath commanded every one to walk in, and they are as a means wherein God will dispence his grace to whom he pleaseth; so that whosoever doth wilfully neglect the use of such means, he cannot promise to himself any conversion; yea, he may certainly conclude, God will not convert him. In all the directions which may be hereafter to the unregenerate, I wish this may still be remembered.

CHAP. III. SECT. I.

Of the next Assaults that Satan makes against us.

IF in the first assault Satan be foiled, and the Soul be resolv'd to go on, the Holy Spirit usually comes in and works on the Soul these several steps. As 1. A sight of sin. 2. A first thing. See my
3. Sorrow for sin. 4. Seeking for comfort. 5. A sight of Christ. 6. Desire after Christ. 7. Relying on Christ. 8. Obedience to Christ. And accordingly Satan counter-works, and in every of these steps assaults the Soul either less or more, to keep it still in his hold: Oh, he is loath to leave, and therefore at every step he meets the Soul, and wrestles with it. I shall (as the Lord enables) first observe his assaults, and then inform the Soul of its several Duties, in repelling of Satan respectively.

SECT.

SECT. II.

Of Satan's Assault upon sight of sin.

NO sooner hath the Holy Ghost opened the Eye of the Soul to see its sin, but presently Satan comes on with his fiery Darts: Sometimes he makes sin little, is it not a little one; and sometimes he makes sin great, Oh, the greatness, and oh the numberfulness of thy sins!

1. Sometimes he makes sin little, and herein he prevails with many Souls: they are loath to hear the worst of themselves, and therefore Satan helps them with Fig-leaves to cover their nakedness. What? is it not Satan's Language that we hear in men? Surely, our sins are not so great, we are not so bad, we have some good, we have some hopes, if God be merciful, what matters it if we be sinful? Thus do men flie and resist the first breathings of the Spirit of God. I believe (saith one) that all the powers of Hell conspire together to blind mens eyes, and darken mens minds in this first work of Christ; Principiis obsta: It is the policy of Satan to stop Christ in his entrance, in his first stroke upon the Soul. No wonder then if he puts the wrong end of the Prospective-Glass to the Eye, that sin appears very little, if any thing at all.

2. Sometimes he makes sin great; he draws a charge at length, he takes up all the bloody aggravations he can think of; as partly in respect of the nature and quality of the sins themselves; and partly in respect of the circumstances, as being committed against knowledge, at such a time, in such a place, and by such a person, as that God is thereby most dishonoured, his Brethren most offended, &c. It is not to tell how the Devil can stretch out sin upon the Tethers of his Temptations: yea, of a small drop with the blast of his Suggestions, he can make a great Bubble: and which is most to be admired, he can in this charge present himself as an Angel of Light; he knows how to imitate those Convictions of the Holy Spirit, whose Office it is to convince of sin, and therefore many a time in his Aggravations of sin, he comes in Gods Name: he observes well enough how the Squares go between God and the Soul, and that the Spirit of God lays sin home, and close, q. d. O thou wretch, What hast thou done? What sins are these that cry up to Heaven against thee? So saith Satan, Oh thou damned wretch, what a life hast thou lived upon the Earth? What gross, and grievous, and bloody, and crying sins standest thou guilty of.

SECT. III.

Of the Duties that concern us, in this respect.

THE Duties in wrestling with Satan, must be sutable to his Temptations: and therefore —

2. To that Temptation, that sin, was but little, Consider —

1. That no sin is so little, but it is against a great God. Against thee, thee only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight. As all Inditements in criminal Pleas are filed against the King, his Crown, and Dignity: So are sins against God, a great God, be they in our esteem never so little.

Psal. 51. 4.

2. No sin is so little, but it deserves death and damnation. The wages of sin is death: the Wages of every sin, whether little or great sin: indeed great sins may have greater Punishments, but the Stipend or Desert of every sin is formally death, be it never so little.

Rom. 6. 13.

3. Every sin, whether little or great, is a strong and Soul-killing Poyson. We may know this by that first sin that ever the Sun saw: no sooner was it committed, but presently it polluted mankind: All the Sons and Daughters of Adam that were ever since, or ever shall be to the Worlds end, have been, and will be infected by that very sin. And we find to this day, that any little sin doted on impenitently, like a lump of Leaven, it sowers all the Soul, defiles the whole man, and every thing that proceeds from him: it doth not only unhallow his Meat, Drink, Buying, Selling, Giving, Lending, and other Dealings in the World, but also turns all his Spiritual Services and Duties, his Praying, Hearing, Reading, Meditating, &c. into Abomination.

4. The less the sin, the greater our folly to commit it: for what is it to sin, but to lay as it were in one Scale of the Ballance the Glory of God, the Blood of Christ, the Joys of Heaven, the loss of an Immortal Soul; and in the other some rotten Pleasure, earthly Pelf, worldly Preferment, fleshly Lust, sensual Vanity, and to suffer this to outweigh all those, if Christ could say, What is a man profited if he gains the whole world and lose his Soul? How much more may I say, what profit in this exchange, to lose a Soul for a Pin, a Point, a Trifle, a Vanity; or confessedly for a small punctilio peccadillo, a very little sin? Speak no more of sin as little, if we will prefer it before the great things of God, and Christ, and Heaven, and Souls of men. O prodigious madness!

1. 3. 10. 2.

2. To that Temptation, that sin is great, or as Cain cried, My iniquity is greater than can be forgiven. Consider —

Gen. 4. 13.

1. The dew of grace hath ordinarily fallen upon most graceless Souls. What if thy sins be great? was it not the case of many a Saint, whose sins were forgiven? hast thou been an Idolater? so was Abraham; hast thou been an Adulterer?

1. 1. 1. 1.

Adulterer? so was David; halt thou been a Blasphemer? So was Paul? What needs more instances? poor Soul, if thou could'st but peep into Heaven, thou should'st find, there is Rahab the Harlot, there is Manassah the Murderer, that made the Streets of Jerusalem swim with Blood; there is Mary Magdalen that had seven Devils in her: A Man or Woman that hath many Devils may come where there is not one; the most devillish, hellish Creature, may, through the mercy of God, be partaker of Heaven; lame, and halt and blind may come in there, and yet still there is room.

2. It is as easie, with God to forgive the greatest sin upon repentance, as the least sin. 1 Tim. 1. 15. This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the World to save sinners, of whom I am chief: though Paul was the greatest sinner in the World, yet God could, and did forgive him. What, do thy sins cry up to Heaven? yet is God's Mercy above the Heavens: indeed God's Mercy is infinite, for as God is an infinite God, so every Mercy of God is as infinite as himself: his Attributes and his Essence are but one and the same: and therefore no wonder if it be all one with infinite Mercy to forgive sins of the greatest size, as well as the least; thy sin is but the sin of a finite Creature, but God's Mercy is the Mercy of an infinite Creator; thy greatest sins are but the sins of a Man, but the least of Gods Mercies is the Mercy of God.

3. The Lord calleth all, even those sinners which are heavy laden with sins, to come unto him, Mat. 11. 28. Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden. Is not this enough to rouze and raise up thy heart from sinking? Remember what was said to Bartimeus the blind man sitting by the way-side at Jericho; Mar. 10. 49. be of good comfort, arise, he calleth thee. So cheer up thy heavy heart with this sweet Balsom; lift up thy Hands which hang down, and thy Knees which are weak, and make strait steps with thy Feet, even unto the Throne of Grace, behold he calleth: q. d. poor Soul! thou that complaineest thy sin is great, come hither, and and I will ease thee of it: Let me bear thy Cares, and thou shalt bear my Comfort: Give me thy Sins, and I will give thee my Righteousness. Heavy hearts, whom this Call of Christ cannot revive.

4. Thy sins indeed are great, and very great: and if ever the Holy Ghost do but open thy eyes, he will make thee see it: but yet they are not so great, as that therefore they cannot be forgiven; that is not the voice of the Holy Spirit, but of him who is the Father of Lyes: If thy sins were a thousand thousand times greater than they are, and if thou should'st add to them the sins of Cain and Judas, and all the Reprobates in the World, doubtless there would be a great heap, yet lay this huge heap before infinite pardoning Grace, and there will be no comparison; what sayest thou? that God either cannot, or will not pardon thee? or that never such a sinner as thy self was pardoned: Oh do not limit the Holy One of Israel: have no low thoughts of God's love, which (saith the Apostle) passeth all understanding. Suppose the like sinner to thy self was never pardoned: Behold saith God, I will do a new thing, now it shall spring forth, shall ye not know it? I will make a Way in the Wilderness, and Rivers in the Desert, — to give Drink to my people, my Chosen: This people have I formed for my self, they shall shew forth my praise. It is the same with that promise, he will abundantly pardon; or, he will multiply to pardon, q. d. I'll drop Mercy with your Sin, and spend all I have, rather than it should be said, my Good is overcome of your Evil. Eph. 3. 19. Isa. 43. 19, 20, 21. Isa. 55. 7.

But how may I know the false accusations of Satan, from the convictions of God's own Spirit? for both tell me, my sins are great, and very great: I answer; When they asperse God, and so charge the Soul, that withal they reflect on God's Goodness, and Mercy, and Love, and the Riches of his Grace, then are they not of the Holy Spirit, but of the Evil Spirit. Oh mark this sign! if thy sins are so represented to thee, as exceeding the greatness of God's Mercy, and thou cryest with Cain, My iniquity is greater than can be forgiven; here the Devil opens himself. One sweetly observes, The holy Spirit is Christ's Spokes-man to commend him to Souls, and to woo sinners to imbrace the grace of the Gospel, and can such words drop from his sacred lips, as should break the match, and sink Christ's esteem in the thoughts of the creature? you may easily know where this is minted; when you hear one commend another for a wife, and a good man, and at last comes in with a But — that dasheth all; you will think he is no friend to the man, but some sly Enemy, that by seeming to commend, desires to disgrace the more. Thus when you find God represented to you, as Merciful, Gracious, but not to such great sinners; to have power and strength, but not able to save such as you are, you may say, Avant Satan, thy speech bewrayeth thee. Mr. Gurnal in his Christian Armour.

SECT. IV.

Of Satan's Assault upon sense of Misery.

THE Holy Spirit that convinceth of sin, in the next place works fear: or sense of misery. Thus Paul trembled, and the Goal-er trembled. As when a man sees danger neer and imminent, he naturally fears: so when the Spirit presents a man's danger, death and wrath even at the Door, he begins then to fear, Ye have not received (saith the Apostle) Rom. 8. 15. the spirit of Bondage again to fear: This plainly intimates, that once they had received it: The Spirit pursues Souls whom he purposeth for Heaven with strong fears, till proud man falls down before God, crying, and saying, Oh, I am undone! Oh, that I had never been born! &c. Now in this case Satan steps in, and either allays these fears with worldly comforts, some counterfeit calm, or else he works further and deeper fears than the Holy Ghost himself alone intended.

For the first; sometimes he allays these Fears with worldly Comforts, or some counterfeit Calm. Of this I shall speak when I come to that other step of seeking for comfort. Satan hath his Comforters, though the Lord knows they are miserable Comforters all.

For the second; sometimes he aggravates fears, and to that purpose he tells men of God's Eternal Wrath, and of God's Eternal Rejection, and that God will never be merciful, and so he lays them lower, and casts them into a further fear and bondage than the Holy Ghost is cause of; yea Devils now combine, and say as David's Enemies said in his distress, What? would these Souls escape our clutches? Come, let us now take them, for God hath forsaken them; let us now devour them, and swallow them up with fear and despair: As God says of those Enemies of his Church, I was but a little displeased and they helped forward the affliction: So when the Spirit works fear, in order to conversion, Satan watcheth his opportunity, and puts on that fear to utter despair.

It is a question, how Satan can work this fear on the Conscience, which is usually attributed to God's Spirit? But the answer is given in thus, —

1. That Satan cannot immediately wound the Conscience; for as no Creature can shed abroad God's love, and cause a poor Soul to taste of the sweetness of it, so no creature can make impressions of God's wrath upon the Conscience, but only God himself, or the Spirit of God immediately. But —

2. Satan can do it upon the Conscience mediately, and that in these several respects.

1. When the Holy Ghost hath last and whipt the Conscience, and made it tender, and fetcht off the skin, then Satan can fret it more and more, and so be still rubbing upon the sore by his horrid suggestions, and false fears cast in.

2. From renewing the remembrance of those terrors impressed by the Spirit, he can amaze the Soul afresh with fear of worse.

3. He can bring home all the Threatnings that are thundred forth in the Word against Hypocrites, and men unregenerate, and discharge them all with much violence and noise upon the poor doubting Soul.

4. He can stir up the passions of Fear, and Grief, and trembling of Spirit; he is the Prince of the airy part of the little world in man, as well as of that elementary Region in the great World, and so can raise unnatural storms and vapours that shall darken Reason, and cause such Thunders and Lightnings, as shall burn all into a black confusion, such as if Hell and the Soul would presently come together. And this he doth more than simply morally, (i) by bare propounding such objects as shall move them (which men only can do) but further also physically, by stirring such humours in the Body which such passions do act and stir in; and when he hath thus distempered and disordered all in a man, and put a man to such dispositions of fears, then he comes with his suggestions, and speaks nothing but of wrath and terrors; and then looks as when a man's choler is up, every small thing provokes him; so now when fear is excited, every suggestion, every surmise, doth strike the Soul through and through with horrid fears: And thus though not immediately, yet through the means of these Mists, and Vapours, and Fogs raised, which environ and darken this Sun, he works upon the Conscience.

But what means Satan thus to fill the Conscience with fears? I answer, his end is especially double. 1. To bring the Soul to despair of Eternal Life. 2. To bring the body to some violent temporary death, in both which if he can prevail, then he makes sure to hurry the whole man into the torments of Hell. We may imagine him to bespeak the Soul in his horrid hellish Language. Wouldst thou now, vile wretch, turn unto God, hoping to be received to Grace and Mercy? Why assure thyself it is too late; are not thy sins in number numberless, and in their quality and nature most heinous and outrageous? and hast thou not continued in this thy rebellion a long, a very long time? Hath not Christ often called, and yet thou wouldst not come? Hath he not graciously offered and tendered himself to thee, but thou saidst, he should not reign over thee? And hast thou not served me, and obeyed me all the days of my life? Now therefore the day of Salvation is gone, the acceptable time is past, and never, never can be recalled; thou mayst with Esau seek repentance with tears, but thou shalt never find it no more than Esau did. Moreover, add to the consideration of thy sins the remembrance of God's Justice, the terrible curse of the Law, the fearful torments of hell prepared for sinners, amongst which number thou art one of the chief: Come do not flatter thyself with hope of Mercy, but rather expect those fearful judgments, and endless torments which are due unto thee for thy rebellions. Thus Satan labours to bring a poor sinner to deep despair, and to fill his Conscience with horror and fear, which if he can accomplish, he rests not there, but like a cruel Coward, who can never be quiet till he see the death of his Enemy, he then persuades him to seek some ease of his present torments, by imbruing his hands in his own blood, and putting himself to some violent death: this is sad, yet some are brought to this, the Lord knows, I will instance in none but Cain and Judas, of whom the former desperately blasphemed the Mercy of God; and the other desperately laid violent hands on himself, he banged himself, and falling head-long, he burst asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out. Mat. 27: 5.
Acts 1: 18.

SECT. V.

Of the Duties that concern Souls in this case.

THE Duties, or Defeat, or Souls Encounter in this case, must be suitable to Satan's Assaults: and therefore —

1. To that of Despair, consider: 1. As to Sin. 2. As to God's Justice. 3. As to the Law. 4. As to Hell.

1. As to Sin, consider; that no sin, though never so great, should be a cause to move thee to despair. What would Satan persuade thee, because thou hast been so great and prodigious a sinner, therefore to despair? Retort his argument.

gument upon himself, and tell him, that very thing by which he would persuade thee to despair, doth much more deter thee from despairing; for though thy sins be great, yet this is the greatest of all other sins; other sins bind thee over to wrath, but this sin gives fire to the threatening, and sets the Soul on flame with extreme horror; other sins wound the Law, and the Name of God through the sides of the Law, but this sin wounds the Gospel, in that it is not willing to have the wounds healed which former sins have made; other sins have wronged God the Father in trespassing against him; but this sin will not let Jesus Christ make satisfaction for the wrong that by his sins are done to the Father; other sins reflect on the Name, or Power, or Justice, or Holiness of God, but this sin fights against all his lovely Attributes of Goodness, Mercy, Love, and Grace, and Satan claps his hands to see all the glorious Attributes of God served alike, and divested of their Honour; other sins, though great, are pardonable, if not mixed with this, but the least sin envenomed by this of despair, is wholly unpardonable. Hence we say that Judas sinned more, and more dishonoured God in despairing of his Mercies, than in betraying of his Son; and Cain more grievously offended in saying, My sin is greater than can be pardoned, than by murdering his Brother. ☉ tremble at despair! for this sin draws nearer to the sin of Devils, and is of the complexion of the damned Souls in Hell.

2. As to God's Justice, consider; thou art not to look only on Justice, but on Justice and Mercy, as meeting together and kissing each other. These two are long since reconciled, so that now God knows how to be just, and yet to save thy Soul. In that promise of God's betrothing himself to sinners, it runs Hof. 2, 19. thus, I will betroth thee unto me in Righteousness, in Judgment, in Loving-kindness, and in Mercies; he will do it in Justice and Mercy, he will be righteous and gracious. If Satan object, Can the Lord be just, and save such a sinner as thou art? Yes, may'st thou say, God tells me, that he will marry me in righteousness as well as mercy; that is to say, he will do it in Christ, whose great undertaking was to bring Justice to kiss Mercy, that there might not be a dissenting Attribute of God in his marrying of me. In this case, as I would wish sinners have an eye on God's Justice to keep them from presumption, so likewise to have an eye on God's Mercy to keep them from despair; or (which is all one) to think of Christ, who hath already paid the price for the pardon of sin; and therefore as it were against Mercy to damn, so it were against Justice to exact the debt of them for whom Christ hath paid it: what should we think of that man, who having a debt fully discharged by the Surety, should press upon the Principal for the payment of the same debt again? Surely it were a fearful dishonour to the righteous Judge of all the world, to conceive, that having received an exact and full satisfaction for all thy sins by the Hearts blood of his own dear Son, he should ever require them again at thy hands. If thou sayest, but hath Christ paid the debt for my sins? Yes, if thou wilt but accept of Christ on his own Terms; come then poor Soul, thou who art tossed with the waves of despair, think of Justice interwoven with Mercy; or if Justice be it thou fearest, think of it as now thy friend in the Lord Jesus Christ, it is Justice that acquits thee, if thou but relyest on Christ, and who then shall condemn the? who then shall lay any thing to thy charge?

3. As to the Law, look not upon that exact obedience which the Law requireth, for then Satan will attain his purpose, but go out of thy self, Look upon Jesus, and reject thy own righteousness, as altogether imperfect and insufficient. Alas! Who can exactly live up to the Law? the Law requires of us things that we cannot do; the Law accepts of nothing, but absolute perfection in all it requires: the Law looks that things should be done in a right manner, out of a right principle, and to a right end; yea, that all should be done in the perfection of degrees, to the uttermost that is required: Now if Souls pore on this, and look only on this, no wonder if the Devil tempt them either to looseness or despair; the way is therefore to go out of thy self, and to rely upon the alone righteousness and obedience of Jesus Christ, as being in it self, all-sufficient for thy justification and salvation: Thou canst not perform the Duties of Obedience, which the Law requireth, but Christ hath done it, and God himself professeth that he is well-pleased with him, and as contented with him and his Obedience for thee, as if done by thy self. Surely this is Gospel, the glad Tidings: O what Courage and Comfort may'st thou take at this news.

4. As to Hell, with which the Devil frights thee; meditate that Hell is thy desert, but Heaven is God's Gift; and though Satan may hold thee over Hell, yet he cannot turn thee into Hell; if the Lord will save thee, not all the Devils in Hell can possibly damn thee: And is Hell a place to be expected, or rather to be avoided? Tell Satan to his face, that thou wilt not willingly be his companion in Torments, and therefore thou wilt not so far gratifie him, nor be so cruel to thy self, as to be led by him into that grisly Gulph of Despair, which is the very next door to Hell; no, no, thou wilt rather hope and wait on God in a way of contentedness to be at his disposal; say, If the Lord will have mercy on me, I shall live; or if the Lord will glorifie his Power and Justice in condemning me, which I have deserved, I must dye, only I will hope and wait; and be contented still to be at the Lord's disposal, and not at Satan's; and therefore avaunt Devils, be gone, I am of Paul's mind, we are 2 Cor. 4.8. troubled on every side, but not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair.

One Objection here must be removed: The Soul now in fear, or sense of misery, is advised for the avoiding of despair, to look on Justice as its friend in Christ, and to look on Christ as having paid the price for the pardon of its sin, and to rely on the obedience of Obj.

Christ as all-sufficient for its salvation, and to hope, and wait, and to be content to be at God's disposal: Now how should the Soul do thus that is in a state of nature? all these are the props and peculiar works of believers, and not of the unregenerate; what can they do to be saved? or what can they do to resist Satan in order to conversion? I answer.

Ans.

1. Men, though unregenerate, may yet be in the use of means, duties, and Ordinances; and if ever the Spirit comes into the hearts of people, it is usually this way: Nay, I shall say more, that besides the rational acts of meditation, application, &c. which are common to men, the Spirit of God doth always in a general, but sometimes in a special way draw out those acts, so as may be most for God's glory, and our good. For example, it is in the power of Nature to go to Church, and to hear the Word; yet that I go at such a time (it may be against my own inclination) and that I observe the Word, and lay it up, and meditate on it more than others; this is the Spirit's special influence, by way of gifts, for in all this there may be no grace neither.

Word of the Spirit of Bondage.

2. The men I am speaking to, I do not look upon as wholly unregenerate, nor as yet regenerate, they are just as Embryo's in the womb, before they have any perfect shape; neither are they as they were, nor as they must be, but imperfect Creatures of God's Spirit, that will, if the womb miscarry not, be children of God. Now in this case I suppose thou may'st go further than a meet natural man; as for instance, thou may'st hope, and if thy hope be not the grace of hope, yet grace may be seminally in it, and may first appear by it. A Reverend Divine gives us the distinction of a gracious hope, and a rational or moral hope, whereby the Soul comes up to a firm assent of this Proposition, though my case is sad, yet it is not desperate: Now although Grace do not always attend or accompany this hope, yet the Spirit of God doth use it, as it doth all other preparatory works, to dispose the Soul for grace: Nay (saith my Author) I know not, but that if the soul follow this moral hope, with a constant use of all means and ordinances, and in them resolve to cast himself upon Christ, to be saved by him in his own way: I say, I know not but this hope may be the immediate ground, if not the Vehicle or Chariot of the very first act of justifying faith, wherefore let this hope produce waiting, and let this hope and waiting in the use of means produce endeavours, and resolutions to believe on Christ, and then to look on Justice as thy friend in Christ, and to look on Christ as having paid the price for the pardon of thy sin, and to rely on the obedience of Christ, as all-sufficient for thy salvation. Thus for the defeature of the first assault.

2. To that assault of self-murder, I almost tremble to name it, yet if Satan inject such thoughts, let the poor soul consider, this sin above other sins is against God, and Christ, and the Spirit, and thy neighbour, and thy own self.

1. Against God, in breaking his pure and perfect Law, Thou shalt not kill. If it be an horrible crying sin to kill another, if it stain the face of a whole kingdom with such a bloody brand, that it cannot be razed out, but by the blood of him that shed it; surely it is much more execrable and villainous to kill a mans self, for not only God's Law, but his Majesty, Crown and Dignity, is struck at by this sin. Numb. 35. 33.

2. Against Jesus Christ; for hath he not bought thee with his dearest Heart-blood? why then should'st thou murder another man's servant? hath he not invited thee to come in and close with him, and told thee, that the union should be near, as near might be betwixt thy Soul and him: why then should'st thou offer violence, maiming, deformity, to his Mystical Body? If any sin be a crucifying of Christ, this must needs be one: Harken then to the voice of Christ from heaven, Soul, Soul, why persecutest thou me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whose Image thou defacest; and whom thou killest.

3. Against the Holy Spirit, whose office is to sanctifie us, to dwell in us, to reveal unto us the mercies of God, the merits of Christ, the power of the Word, the sweetness of the Promise; to beget in us assurance, and hope and affiance, and patience and Christian fortitude: But thou that layest violent hands on thy self, contrary to all these holy operations, thou defilest thy self with thy own blood, thou ruinest the house and habitation of the Spirit, and thrusts him out of his lodging; thou tramplest upon the truth of all those glorious discoveries of the Spirit of Grace, and for his promises of assurance, hope, patience, fortitude, thou neglectest, and rejectest them all. Oh what a sin is this!

4. Against thy Neighbour; for hereby the Church is offended, the Land is defiled, thy friends, kindred, wife, children, parents, are grieved and ashamed; yea, thy very name, house, posterity, are stained and branded; or if all this be little in thy eyes, consider how the mouths of God's enemies are hereby opened, and the profession of Religion hereby vilified: Is it not usual for worldlings in this case to censure thy over-much studying of the Scriptures, hearing of the Word, praying and meditating, and other duties, as if they were the causes that should bring thee unhappily to this fearful end? and is it a small matter to give occasion to wicked men to blaspheme God's truth, or to expose that Religion which thou professest to their slanders and calumniation? Oh far be it from thee! Now the good Lord prevent this! Let it not be told in Gath, nor published in the streets of Ashkelon, lest the Daughters of the Philistines rejoice, and of the uncircumcised triumph.

5. Against thy own self, by making thee guilty of a most horrible sin, and also obnoxious to most grievous punishments for sin, self-murder is a misshapen monster, compounded of many sins: As 1. of hellish pride, which suffers thee not to stoop under God's afflicting hand. 2. Of impatience, whereby thou murmurest and repinest against God's providence. 3. Of despair, whereby thou castest away all hope of mercy, and miserably becomest thy own own butcher and hang-man: But oh the fearful plagues that follow after this sin! not only a temporary death, but immediately after death thou send'st thy soul bleeding to the dreadful Tribunal of the ever-living God, the most certain and sure revenger of all bloodshed; and what follows this but damnation? A sad business, to be so impatient of the heat of the Sun, as for ease to leap into the fire of hell: I will not, I dare not thus judge of them, who through the abundance of melancholy are distracted of their wits, or who being terrified with Satans temptations, do run headlong into this sin, not knowing what to do; but if thou art in thy right mind, and upon settled purpose, and willing choice, and serious deliberation, shalt murder thy self, that thou may'st be freed from some miseries, losses, or disgraces which thou wilt not out-live, profess to thee in the Word of Christ, thy soul is in danger of hell fire; and therefore thou hadst need to pray, Lord, lead me not into temptation, but deliver me from evil.

By this time we may discern the difference between the Holy Spirit, and the evil spirits workings, both bring into, and keep souls under bondage, only the bondage of the Holy Spirit is mitigated by the conjunction of hope, and works towards a deliverance, but the bondage of Satan excludes all hope, or possibility in the souls apprehension of ever being removed. Again, the bondage or fears of the holy Spirit are destinate for conversion, they are not penal only, but medicinal also; they are a sort of God's Rods, by which he brings men within the bonds of the Covenant, and makes them to enquire what they shall do to be saved; but the bondage, fears, and horrors, which Satan sets home on souls, are meerly for destruction, they are not medicinal, but only penal.

Yea, but my spirit of bondage is hellish and desperate; sometimes I am apt to blaspheme the mercy of God, as not able to pardon me, and out of desperate horror of spirit to chuse strangling, or any thing, that I might be but out of my present terrors, and know the worst of my condition: and is there, or can there be any thing of God's Spirit in such a dismal bondage as mine is?

This is Mr. Ford's objection, and I have known it the real objection of many a soul; but he answers—No doubt these fearful suggestions and injections proceed from the Prince of Darkness emanative, they are minted in hell, for they bear his Image and superscription, but the Spirit of God hath an hand in them divers times dispositive, by way of disposal and management; and that the poor soul may clearly see, in that he hath not utterly left him to himself, but hath preserved him many and many a time from executing those horrid temptations, and gratifying Satan by self-destruction. Come then, and bear up poor soul, think with thy self, if the Spirit of God would have given thee over to Satan, why not sooner? and if he have preserved thee hitherto, why may he not longer? whilst thou livest under means of grace, there is hope; he that is above ground, is in sight of heaven: See, and acknowledge the gracious conduct of the holy Spirit hitherto, and do not by too long adventuring to parle with Satan, drive the Holy Ghost from thee.

SECT. VI.

Of Satan's Assaults upon sorrow for sin.

THe next work of the Spirit is sorrow for sin, it is God's promise, I will take away Ezek. 36. the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh, that is to say, a soft heart, a plyable heart, the Spirit of God works on the affections, and melts them into godly sorrow for sin, which is all one with an heart of flesh here promised.

Now herein Satan counter-works, and either keeps the heart, as long as he can, from mourning for sin, or if that will not be, then he labours might and main to keep the Conscience continually upon the wrack: And I shall speak to both these.

1. Satan is exceedingly industrious to keep the heart resolutely stubborn and hard. Well he knows, that if once a poor soul bruised with the burden of sin, into tears of godly sorrow, and penitent softness, shall but fly into the Bosom of Christ Jesus bleeding upon the Cross, it will deprive him of all right and interest unto that Soul for ever, and therefore he labours to keep it as long as he can from mourning for sin; yea, such a stirrer he is against true sorrow, that indeed most know not what it means; or if the heart begins to be wrought upon by the Word, he raises all possible opposition against its yielding: And oh the loathsomeness of Souls to leave Satan's service! Oh the withstanding of the Word, Ministry, motions of the spirit, and all other means to lead Souls out of hell into the glorious liberty of the Sons of God! but above all, Oh the hardness of mens hearts! Oh the difficulty of Ministers duty to prick a stony heart to the quick, to make a rock to weep and tremble! either must God bear his own arm, and put to his own strength, power, and efficacy, or it will never be done.

2. And if indeed, God's merciful violence shall conquer Souls, and they begin to melt kindly under sin, then Satan labours on the other side, that such may be swallowed up with over-much sorrow: Was not this the case of the incestuous Corinthian? No question the sentence of Excommunication, and his delivering up to Satan, wrought deeply upon him, so that Paul was fain to write in his second Epistle, that they should release him of his censure, receive him into the Church, and minister a word of comfort to him, lest he were swallowed up with overmuch sorrow. This is another of Satan's depths; when godly sorrow is once on foot in an afflicted Soul, very prone it is to feed still on tears: When the flood-gates of the heart are but once opened, it is Satan's desire that they should run for ever; and in this case what ado is there, and what an hard matter is it to be perswaded of God's mercy, and to apply the promises; Oh how the devil interposes with all his cruel policy, and and cursed contradiction ! He then objects, and urges to the utmost, the hainousness of our sins, the littleness of our sorrow, together with the great disproportion betwixt our heinous sins and little sorrow, the number of our sins, and fewness of our tears.

SECT. VII.

Of the duties that concern us in this respect.

THe duties of wrestling must still be suitable to Satan's assaults. So then—

1. To that assault of keeping the heart from mourning for sin. Consider—

1. Thy heart hath been the fountain whence all thy filthy thoughts, raging passions, wicked purposes, rotten speeches, rebellious actions have sprung and issued out, then great reason hast thou to make that heart of thine a fountain of godly sorrow; of penitent tears, of mourning and lamenting, of bleeding and bewailing over all thy sins.

2. if Christ Jesus open a fountain of his own dear warm hearts-blood for sins and for uncleanness; Surely thou art a cursed wretch, and cruel enemy to thy Soul's comfort, if thou dost not endeavour to keep open in thy heart a counter-well (as it were) of weeping over him whom thou hast pierced, and for those sins which have put the Son of God to death? What? shall the precious heart of God's own Son fall asunder in his breast, like drops of water for thy sins? and shall not thy sinful heart groan and sigh at all? shall it not mourn and melt for the infinite abominations of thine own heart and life?

3. If that heart of thine be not wounded by the ministry of the Word, while it is called to day, it will and must hereafter be filled with that horror which would burst a thousand hearts to think upon it. This was Luke 6.25. Christ's threat, Woe be to you that laugh now, for ye shall weep and weep! There is a weeping of despair in hell; there shall be weeping and Matt. 22. gnashing of teeth. Either therefore now make thy heart the subject of godly sorrow, or as sure as thy heart is in thy body, it will hereafter become the object upon which the fierce wrath of God, and fiercest torments in hell shall be exercised and executed with extremity and everlastingness.

4. In case of outward troubles, as losses crosses, disgraces, death of friends, or the like, thou canst take on extremely; and is not sin more grievous than any of these? If all outward miseries require one tear, the least sin of the Soul may justly challenge a whole torrent; if the death of thy Friend, or of thy Son deserve a sigh, well may the death of thy soul challenge the last drop of thy dearest heart-blood.

5. A truly broken heart gets a title, right, and interest to all the purchases of Christ's passion, all the promises of life, and all the pleasures in heaven; yea in this way thou shalt bring down the great Majesty of heaven to dwell in thy heart, as in a Royal Throne,

Chair of Estate, and Seat of Eternity: Thus Isa. 57.25. saith the high and lofty one, that inhabiteth Eternity, whose name is Holy, I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of an humble and contrite spirit, to revive the spirits of the humble, and to revive the hearts of the contrite ones.

6. God hath appointed especial Sovereign means for the softning of hearts, if thou say'st what Sovereign means? I answer

1. The Word: Is not my Word like a fire (saith Jer. 23.29. God) and like an hammer that breaks the rock in pieces? An hammer it is that breaks, and thus doth the Law break our hearts, by shewing us the terrors thereof; a fire it is that melts, and thus doth the Gospel melt our hearts, by revealing to us the mercy of God in Christ; Oh, will a soul say, hath the great God of heaven and earth sent Christ into the world for me? hath he left Angels (now Devils) and many thousands of men to chuse me? whose heart will not melt that is warmed with this love of God?

2. Prayer; and to that purpose we have his wishes and promises, which we may turn into prayer: O go to God, and put him in remembrance of that which he hath desired in his Word, O that this people had such hearts, as would fear me, and keep my Commandments always! say unto the Lord, it is as easie with him to create such an heart in thee, as to wish thou hadst such an heart: put the Lord in mind of his promise, I will take away their stony hearts, and I will give them hearts of flesh; entreat him for the Lord Jesus sake to make good this Word to thee, cry to him, Come Lord, and break this hard heart of mine, prick it, and lance it, and rather than I perish, let thy holy Spirit be a spirit of bondage to it, that I may be afflicted, and mourn, and weep for my sins.

2. To that assault of swallowing up thy heart with over-much sorrow, this is more usual with God's people; many a soul hath many a time complained, No heart so hard as mine, my sins are above ordinary, of a scarlet crimson dye, and my sorrow is very poor, and scant, in no proportion to my great and grievous provocations, and therefore as yet I cannot, dare not, will not meddle with any mercy, apply any promise, or be persuaded that Jesus Christ belongs unto me: Oh that any should thus wilfully lye upon the rack of terror, and trouble of mind! Oh that any should lay himself thus open to Satan's horrible Injections, and cruel temptations! Away, away with all exceptions, pretexts, scruples, standings out to receive Jesus Christ: And consider—

1. It is not the muchness of thy sorrow, but the truth of thy sorrow for sin, as sin, that God expects. The Devil tells thee of thy great sin, and little sorrow, and of the poor proportion betwixt these two; and the truth is, if an exact proportion of sorrow to the inherent nature and demerit of sin be looked at, there is none such to be found: Alas, what proportion is there betwixt finite and infinite? thy sorrow is finite, but thy least sin being against an infinite God it is therefore infinite: And suppose thy sorrow were infinite as thy sin, yet according to the tenour of the first Covenant it would not be acceptable, because cause there is no clause in the Covenant to give any hope of repentance; look therefore at the truth and sincerity of thy sorrow, for this is the proportion of the Gospel; Heart-sorrow is Gospel-sorrow: When the Jews were pricked in their Hearts, then Peter like a good Chyrurgeon, would not keep those bleeding Patients any longer in pain with their wounds open, but presently he clapt on the healing Plaister of the Gospel, believe on the Lord Jesus. Weeping Soul, doth thy Heart, when thou art in secret weeping for thy sin, condemn thee? Or doth it clear thee? If thy Heart be false, I cannot help thee; no, nor the Gospel neither; but if thy Heart be sincere, then be of good comfort, for certainly thou art not far from the Kingdom of Heaven.

2. Jesus Christ calls thee, is not that his voice, Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Wade on a little with me in the unfolding of this so comfortable a Call, and be revived. First then here is to be considered, who calleth: Secondly, whom he calleth: Thirdly, why he calleth: Every of these contains in it Wine of comfort, and Oyl of Grace to glad the Heart, and to cheer up the heavy Countenance of the sorrowful and fobbing Soul.

1. Consider who calleth; is it not the Womans Seed appointed to crush and bruise the Serpents Head? Is it not that root of Jesse, that Son of David, that sweet Emanuel, that meek Messias, that merciful Jesus, that sole and only Mediator, which in his own person hath concluded a peace, and made a full attonement between the Lord and thee: Is it not that Jesus Christ shadowed in the Law, foretold by the Prophets, and in the appointed time exhibited? surely he it is, and none but he: Thou sayest, thou art a sinner, a grievous sinner, and he tells thee, his name is Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins: Oh! if Souls would believe this, would not this dry up their Tears? Thou sayest, thou seest him not, but thou hast his Word, and he is real in what he speaketh: Suppose then, that in the Chamber where thou art crying after him, or in the Church where thou art waiting for him, he should appear; suppose that he whom thou hearest in his Word should appear, and visibly appear before thine eyes; opening his Bosome, and Bowels, and Blood before thee, and calling unto thee to this purpose, I entreat thee, and beseech thee, by all those Tears I have shed for thee in the days of my flesh, by all those bitter Agonies I have suffered for thee, by all those tender Bowels which have been rolled together towards thee, come to me, embrace thou me, and lay thy weary weltring Soul in this blessed Bosome of mine: Who would not now come in? Who would not rise out of the Dust and with cheerful spirit embrace the motion of his dear Redeemer? why he it is that calleth thee.

2. Consider whom he calleth: Is it not those who are weary and heavy laden? Is it not those who are tired and over-burthened with the weight of sin? Christ, and all Gospel-promises belong to them that mourn in Sin:

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me (saith Christ) Luk. 4. 18. because he hath anointed me to preach the Gospel to the poor, he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted.

—O thou afflicted, and tossed with Tempests, that hast no comfort, behold I will lay thy Stones with fair Colours, and lay thy Foundations with Saphires, &c. The spiritual excellency of such a Soul is declared by a Similitude of a goodly, costly, stately Structure, which the Lord would build for himself. Thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth Eternity, whose Name is Holy, I will dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of an humble contrite spirit, to revive the Spirits of the humble, and to revive the hearts of the contrite ones: He that hath Heaven for his Throne, and Earth for his Footstool, hath yet another Throne on Earth, even in the Hearts of humble contrite sinners:

They that sow in tears shall reap in joy; he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his Sheaves with him: As sure as Harvest follows Seed time, will comfort follow mourning, for therefore Christ calls, that he may wipe away all Tears from such as weep for sin: Indeed sorrow for sin gives not the Soul an interest in Christ as any cause; in strict speaking there is no other condition in the Covenant of Grace, but only believing in Christ; yet because no man will come to a Saviour, but he must know what need he hath of a Saviour; therefore we must first be convinced of sin, and must be sensible of sin; they only will attend to Christ's Call, who feel sin a burthen; as if a man be under an heavy Burthen in some dark night, and hears but the noise of the feet of one passing by, then he cries out for help; so the Soul under the heavy burthen of sin, is glad to hear of any direction out of the Word of God to come to Christ, and therefore Christ only calls them who are thus qualified, Come to me all ye that are weary and heavy laden.

3. Consider why, or to what end he calleth: Is it not to take possession of Christ and all his Graces? Is it not to come to a near, and sweet, and everlasting fellowship with Christ himself? Is it not to have his person, and to have his priviledges, rest, and peace, and reconciliation with his Majesty? If Christ should say to thee, Come into the Garden, and there watch and pray with me, sorrow and suffer with me, wouldst thou not count it an Honour? what is it then to say, Come, and have rest; Come, and I will ease thee of thy burthen of sin; Come, and I will sprinkle thy Conscience with my blood, that thou shalt be able to give an answer to all the temptations of Satan; thou shalt have thy pardon now, and at the great day of Judgment thy pardon shall be solemnized by men and Angels. Ah poor Soul! why weepest thou? Is it not time to wipe thine Eyes with Mary, and to say Rabboni? Surely if God gives thee but an Heart to make this real to thy Soul, thou may'st depart in peace, and go away, and bless thy God, and say with the Psalmist, O now my Soul return unto thy rest, for the Lord hath dealt very bountifully with thee.

Psal. 126.

Psal. 11. 6.

If

If yet thou say'it, when is my sorrow sufficient? and when may I receive comfort in due season? I answer—

1. When the Soul is weary of its Bonds and Fetters of sin, as much, or more than of the Fetters of trouble; when the Chains of Corruption are grievous as pangs of Consciences; when the Soul hates Satan as a Tempter, as much as a Troubler, then is it ripe for comfort; but when the cry is louder, Oh my sorrow and oh my grief! than oh my sin! and oh my guilt! When it follows God, and means with, O give me comfort! but never with, Oh give me grace! this Soul is not ripe for comfort.

2. When the Soul is contented, if God see it fit and needful for the Soul to be longer without comfort; when a Soul can pray in sincerity, Lord, if my rotten heart be not broken enough, break it more; if my searched wounds be not thoroughly searched, lance them, and search them more; if there be any wickedness in me, search me Lord, and try me till thou find it out? If I would be proud of thy favour, or if I would turn thy grace into wantonness, or get above Ordinances and Duties of Religion, or proudly despise my Brethren that are lower than I, let me fast longer from comfort; here is a Soul (if any) that is ripe for comfort; but till a man come to this frame, it is a sign that he is not truly broken, and therefore comfort to such a one would be like raw Meat, that would never digest with him, the Lord hath not yet gotten the Mastery over his Will, and therefore no wonder if he lay more Irons yet upon him.

SECT. VII.

Of Satan's Assault for seeking for comfort.

THE Soul sorrowing for sin, is now commanded to seek for comfort, and to that purpose it is the Lord's Message to his Ministers, Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned. Satan knowing this, and perceiving the Soul's disposition to enquire after this, coins comforts of his own devisings, and presents them to the Soul, q. d. Come Soul, will nothing serve but comfort? Is this thy voice, some crumbs of comfort to a poor languishing Soul? O make me to bear joy and gladness, that the bones which God hath broken may rejoice; why then thou shalt have comfort; Lo at the Door stands waiting on thee, thy old Companions, joyn but with them, and they will drive away these dumps and melancholy fits: dost thou not hear them say, Come on, let us enjoy the good things that are present, let us speedily use the Creatures as in youth, let us fill our selves with costly Wines and Ointments; and let no shower of the Spring pass by us; let us crown our selves with Rose-buds, before they be withered, let none of us go without his part of our Voluptuousness, let us leave tokens of joyfulness in every place, for this is our portion, and our lot is this. Or if thou say'st, all these are carnal, and thy sorrow is spiritual, and there is no proportion betwixt these two; why then (saith Satan) go to the Word, and Prayer, and other means, kindle a fire, and compass thy self about with sparks, and then walk in the light of thy fire, and in the sparks which thou hast kindled? go thy ways to Duties, and rest in Duties, and never talk more of a principle of Grace or of love to God; fetcht from Christ Jesus, as the Spring of all. Thus Satan tempts, this is his Method and Malice in this case, he plots first to allay, and take away the smart which God hath made by outward mirth; but if he finds the Soul bleeds still, and will not be stanced, but only by the Blood of Christ, and that is it which it is busily enquiring after, then by way of diversion he bids such pray, and hear, and meditate, and confer, and joy in them, and rest in them: He cares not where they have comfort, so it be on this side Jesus Christ; well he knows, that a reaching out of the Soul towards that merciful hand of Christ, holden out to help it up, is the next and immediate act, by which a Man is quite and for ever pull'd out of Satan's Power, and put into the Paradise of Grace; and therefore here now he bestirs himself, and to the Soul that cries after ease and comfort, he offers comforts, of these several sorts, Carnal and Spiritual, outward Mirths, and resting on means of Grace.

SECT. IX.

Of the Souls wrestling with Satan, as to these Assaults.

TO these two Assaults we must use suitable Repulses. To the first then of wicked Companions, and their Temptations, consider of these particulars.

1. It is not so much a Companion, a Friend, a loose company of men, as the Devil in and by them that tempts thee to carnal comforts. When Christ began to shew to his Disciples how that he must go into Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the Elders, and Chief Priests and Scribes; then Peter took him aside, and would needs comfort him, with Be it far from thee Lord, this shall not be unto thee; But he turned and said unto Peter, Get thee behind me Satan, thou art an offence unto me, thou favour'st not the things of God, but those that be of men. Peter in his dissuasion was an Instrument of Satan and set on work by Satan, and therefore Christ calls him Satan; no less are they that bring carnal Comforts to spiritual Sores.

2. In seeking comfort, it is no way of God to advise with carnal and unregenerate friends: Alas they think thou art mad, they know not what trouble for sin means, why then shouldst thou discover thy disease to such who are no Physicians? when God wrought wonderfully from Heaven in the Conversion of Paul, it is said, that he obeyed God immediately, and never consulted with flesh and blood. Thus do thou, both God by his Ministry convince thee of thy thy sinful ways of becoming a new man, of coming to him for ease and refreshing? give up thy self to this Call immediately, and consult not with flesh and blood,

3. There is no suitableness of what they offer to the healing of thy sorrowful and sick Soul: What idle Companions can quiet thy Conscience, forgive thy sin, support thy Spirit, or fill thee with spiritual joy? Alas! all their joys are but like the crackling of Thorns under a Pot; Vanity, vanity of vanities, all is vanity. — I said of laughter, it is mad, and of joy what doth it? There is no more agreement betwixt carnal Mirth, and a spiritual Sore, than betwixt light and darkness. Away then, depart from the Tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest thou be consumed in all their sin.

4. It was the Apostles advice to them, who upon the prick of the heart enquired for cure, save your selves from this crooked Generation. And this he did very earnestly, for with many words did he testify and exhort, saying, save your selves from them. He insisted much on it, and seriously charged, adjured, entreated them, as knowing it to be a business of very great importance in what company such young beginners lighted; surely this concerns thee as much as him. Oh that when such temptations are abroad, thou wouldst think as if thou heardst that question put to thee, Why seek ye the living among the dead? what living-lasting joys can be found with them that are dead in sins? Oh save thy self from them.

To the second Assault of going to Duties, and resting on Duties for ease and comfort, consider—

1. This is seeking for a righteousness, as it were, by the works of the Law, not directly, but as it were, it sets up one thing for another: being ignorant of the righteousness of God, we establish our own righteousness and are not subject to the righteousness of God.

2. Duties may pacify Conscience for a time, but certainly it will not hold: Then Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah saw his wound, then went Ephraim to the Assyrian, and sent to King Jareb, yet could they not heal him, nor cure him of his wound. It is natural to men to rest in Duties, so it was at first, Adam and all his Posterity was to be saved by doing; Do this, and live: And hence all to this day seek in like manner to be saved by doing; but if this were sufficient, what need of a Saviour? If we rest on Duties, or on any thing on this side Christ, we shall find them as weak as the Assyrian, or as Jareb, they cannot heal us, they will not cure us of our Wounds.

3. Duties must be used, but carnally applauded and glorified in; they will undo Souls. Duties are to Satan as the Ark of God was to the Philistines: he trembles to see a Soul diligent in the use of Duties, but when the Creature confides in them and rests on them, he hath his design. This was Bernard's Temptation, when being assisted in Duty, he could stroke his own head with bene fecisti Bernard: O Bernard! this was gallantly done, now cheer up thy self. Many a poor Soul would have comfort, and knows not whither to go for it but to Prayer, Hearing, Reading, &c. and that done he goes away, and strokes himself, Surely I shall do well now, I shall be able to wrestle with Devils: This is the very way to miscarry. One speaks it out boldly, but truly; Many Souls do not only perish praying and repenting, but they perish by their praying and repenting, whilst they carnally trust, and comfort themselves in them. I desire to be rightly understood in this point, some because they must not rely on Duties, let go their Duties because their comfort ought to be all in Christ; therefore they imagine a Christ talked of, and not desired, loved, believed in, or prayed to, will solidly comfort: Oh take heed of Satan's deceits either way! What? is thy Soul sad, and seeks to be comforted? go to Christ, but go to him in a way of Duty, not resting on the Duty but only on him; hear a Sermon to bring thee to Christ, fast and pray, and get a full tide of Affections in them to carry thee to the Lord Jesus Christ; in thus doing Satan will vanish, and depart from thee, at least for a season, as he did from Christ, the Captain of thy Souls Salvation.

SECT. X.

Of Satan's Assaults upon a sight of Christ.

THE Soul now understanding that there is no solid suitable comfort on this side Christ, begins therefore to look out for Christ: Come (say Converts) let us return unto the Lord, for he hath broken us, and he will heal us; he hath smitten us, and he will bind us up: after two days he will revive us, in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight; then shall we know, if we follow on to know the Lord, his going forth is prepared as the morning, and he shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth: Well (saith Satan) if it be thus, if nothing but Jesus Christ will serve the turn, if a sight of Christ be the next thing looked after, then take a view of Christ in his Beauties, Graces, Sweetnesses; acquaint thy self with the history of Christ from first to last; learn him in his Natures, Person, Incarnation, Offices, indowments; for his Natures he is God and Man, God manifested in the flesh; for his Person, he is the second Person in the Trinity, in which Person both the natures are united; for his Incarnation, he was Conceived of the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary; for his Office, he is a King, a Priest, and a Prophet; and for his Endowments, he received the Spirit without measure, in him are hid all the Treasures of Wisdom and Knowledge, in which respect he is said to be fairer than all the Children of Men: Why all this (saith Satan) I am willing thou shouldst learn, study, and gain as much of the speculative, notional knowledge of Christ as possibly thou canst; launch out (if thou wilt) into the deep questions and Controversies of three Persons in one Nature, and of two Natures in one Person; consult all Schoolmen in their hot Disputes and new Opinions, there thou may'st hear enough of the sound of his Name: Oh the Temptations of Satan, when he hears sinners complain! What? no remedy for a sin-sick Soul: is there no Balm in Gilead, no Physician there? And when the answer is given, no, there is no other name under Heaven, whereby possibly thou canst be saved, but only Jesus Christ: Why then let me see Christ (saith the Soul) give me a view of Jesus, or I dye, I am undone, I perish everlastingly: Hereupon steps in Satan, saying, Come, thou shalt have a view of Christ, I am no Enemy to a General, Notional, Historical, Speculative Knowledge of Jesus Christ, only content thy self with Christ as an Object of Knowledge, and not of Faith. And thus Satan deals with Souls as we do with Surveyors of Lands, that take an exact compass of our Grounds or Lands, of which they shall never enjoy a Foot; and many are taken in this Snare: There is much talking of Christ, many luxuriate into a Theoretical Knowledge, a meer brain-knowledge of Christ, that have no right nor title to Christ, nor ever look after it, and so they miscarry,

SECT. XI.

Of the Souls wrestling with Satan as to this Assault.

TO this Assault you must use these Repulses.

1. Labour so to know Christ, as to have your Hearts taken up with the practical admiration of the Glory of Christ above all Glories in the World, that is true Knowledge, which stirs up Affections in the Heart, and the Effects thereof in your life: and the first Affection that is stirred up in the Hearts of men at the sight of Christ, it is a wondering and admiring at the Glories, Splendours, and Excellencies that are in Christ, his Name shall be called Wonderful: You have seen many Wonders abroad, you have seen the Heavens and the Earth, at which you many times wonder: but when God darts light into your Spirits, to cause you to see the Beauties of Jesus Christ, all other Wonders will cease, and give way to this great wonder: As the Stars, though they be Glorious Creatures in themselves, yet when the Sun arises, all their Glory is eclipsed: so though God hath many wonders in the World, yet when the Sun of Righteousness ariseth, all other Works of God are darkened with the Glory of him. Certainly that Soul knows not God nor Christ savingly, that knows him not practically as the Wonder of the World, and so cries out, Oh the height and depth, and breadth, and length of the Glory of God in Jesus Christ!

2. Labour so to know Christ, as to have a practical and experimental knowledge of Christ in his Influences, and not merely a notional. Alas! Christ is but a meer Notion, and Imagination to most people in the World; how few know Jesus Christ by way of influence, and power, and fellowship with him? It is said of them that fear his Name, That Christ the Son of Righteousness will arise with healing in his Wings, and they shall go forth, and grow up as the Calves of the Stall: This clears it up, that as the Sun by an influence into the earth doth quicken and enliven the earth, and makes all the Seeds and Roots hidden in the Earth to revive, and put themselves forth to sprout and flourish; so there is an influence going forth from the Son of Righteousness into the Souls of men, to make them of dead to become living, and of barren to become fruitful; and this is called the power of Christ, that I may know him, and the power of his Resurrection, (1) that I may know Christ, and be made partaker of the good things flowing from Christ; this is the voice of one that would savingly know Christ; Oh that I may know him as a Prophet instructing me, as a Priest sanctifying me, and as a King reigning spiritually in me? Oh that I may know the Power of his Resurrection in the vivification of my Soul, in the abolition of my sin, in the acquisition of righteousness, and in the restoring of me to the assured hope of future Glory! The Devil is no great Enemy to an Historical Knowledge of the Prophetical, Priestly, and Kingly Offices of Christ, or of the Resurrection of Christ, of which Paul speaks Synecdochically; but to the holy Virtue and Power which comes from Christ in any of these particulars, he is a deadly Enemy: it is your Duty therefore so to know Christ, as that you may feel the Heavenly influences of whatever you know of Christ: For instance, it is one part of the cry, Oh that I may know Christ as a Prophet instructing me! How is that? why Christ in his Prophetical Office teacheth the Heart concerning himself, which none can do but only Jesus Christ. I will not deny but men or Angels may present Truths, and convince the Understanding, but they cannot so make known a Truth, as to gain the Heart by it, or to transform the Heart into the very Image of that Truth; only Jesus Christ in the administration of the Prophetical Office teaches and prevails with the heart when he comes with Truths. We see many people come to Sermons, and there Christ is opened clearly and distinctly, and thereupon they get some notional, speculative Brain-knowledge of Jesus Christ, but they are not changed, their Hearts are not over-powered. At another time the same persons may come to a Sermon, when Christ is named only by the By, and then their Hearts are mightily wrought upon, and they go away saying, Verily God is in this place; why now Christ speaks to the Heart, and before man speaks only to the ear. (2) It is another part of the cry, Oh that I may know the power of the Resurrection of Christ! How is that? why there is a Virtue flowing from the Resurrection of Christ from the Grave, to the Resurrection of the Souls of men from the death of Sin: as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. And this influence of Christ is called, The exceeding greatness

ness of his power : It is exceeding great power that by the Resurrection of Christ, an holy and gracious change should be wrought in the Souls of men, from death to life, from Bondage to Liberty, from Uncleaness to Holiness, and from the power of Satan unto God. Oh that thus you would labour to know Christ in a powerful, practical, and experimental Knowledge.

3. Labour so to know Christ, as to make him the Object of your Faith, and not merely as the Object of your Knowledge : Many study Christ, but herein they act only as Students, and not as Believers : Oh be acquainted with this Mystery of Grace ! the very setting of Christ before the Soul as the full object of justifying Faith, hath a mighty power to draw out Faith upon Jesus Christ ; as the setting of a temptation before a Man, hath a power to draw out his corruptions ; so the setting of Christ in his Glory and Excellency, in his Active and Passive Obedience, in what he is, and what he came into the World for, as an Object of Faith, it hath a mighty power both to draw out Faith where it is, and to cause or procure Faith where it is not : Christ is not only an Object for you to work upon when you have Faith, but such an Object, as being set before the Soul, hath a quickning power to cause Faith : It may be your complaint, Christ is a Glorious Object indeed, he is the chiefest of ten thousands, but alas, I am dead in sin, and I want a faculty to see him savingly in all his Glories. Why now set Christ before you as the Object of Faith, and sooner or later, if you belong to him, you will feel his influences ; he is not only an Object of Faith for the Soul to work upon, when it can see but such an Object, as the very setting of it before the Soul, hath a quickning power to work life in the Soul to cause the Eye to see him, and to cause the Heart to make after him, though it were never so dead.

4. Labour so to know Christ, as he is your Righteousness, both to expiate former iniquities ; and to yield Obedience to the Law for your Justification. This is the Spirit's second conviction of all whom he purposeth for Salvation : First he convinceth them of sin, and secondly he convinceth them of Righteousness ; but of what, or whose Righteousness ? surely not of their own. Alas ! Souls in this case usually look upon themselves first as sinners, obnoxious to the Law of God, and the curse thereof, and therefore never able to expiate sin. Secondly, as creatures made to a supernatural end, and therefore bound to answer the whole mind of God in the obedience required at their Hands ; now it being discovered to them, that both these are beyond the compass of their own Endeavours, there is no other way, but to look to Jesus Christ as their Righteousness, the Spirit therefore convinceth them of Christ's Righteousness : And indeed it is Christ, and only Christ, who first expiates former Iniquities, he satisfies for sin, and procures the remission of sins, In his blood we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins : And secondly, he fulfils all Righteousness, he performs all the Obedience which justly might have been required of us, For if when we were Enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life. His death reconciles us, and his life saves us ; his Passive Obedience, and the Actual Obedience which he yielded to the whole Law of God, is that Righteousness whereby we are reconciled and saved. Oh, that you would labour to know Christ thus, as he is God your righteousness, and so act your Faith on him.

Rom. 5. 10.

SECT. XII.

Of Satan's Assaults upon Desires after Christ.

THE Holy Ghost that hath brought on the Soul thus far, in the next place begins to breed in the Heart some desires after Christ, and indeed, how should it be otherwise ? the frequent Discourses of Christ, and of the Mercies of God in Christ to poor sinners, are so suitable and savoury, that the Soul begins to taste some sweetness in hearing of them, and this sweetness stirs up some passionate desires ; Oh that Christ were mine ! Oh that I had my share in the passion and purity of the Lord Jesus Christ ! Oh I thirst, I faint, I languish, I long for one drop of Mercy, as the Hart panteth after the water-brooks, so my Soul panteth after thee, my Lord, and my God : Oh that my poor trembling Soul were now received into the blessed bleeding arms of Jesus Christ !

Satan that hears this, understands well enough that now the Soul is not far from the Kingdom of God, it is even upon the quickning ; and therefore he plyes this season, therefore he bestirs himself with all the policy and power of hell to cause it to miscarry q. d. Come my Angels, come Devils, and bestir your selves, it may be these desires are only flashy, it may be these pantings are nothing but a Pang ; have not the desires of many been like lightning, soon in and soon out, too violent to hold ? or like the wind, which how strongly soever it seem to blow one way at present, yet soon after is found in the quite contrary point : A man may be drunk with passion and affection as really as with Wine : and as it is ordinary for a man to make a Bargain when he is in his Cups, which he repents of so soon as he is sober again ; so it is ordinary for sinners, who make choice of Christ and his ways in a Sermon (while their Affections have been elevated above their ordinary pitch by some moving Discourse) to repent of all they have done a while after : How many have come from a Sermon with a full gale of desires, but when the impression of the Word (which heated their Affections) was but once worn off, then they came to themselves again, and were as far from any such desires after Christ, as ever they were before ? Sudden desires seldom ripen into a deliberate choice ; rash and hasty wishes do but seldom settle into a permanent resolution to renounce sin and self, and to cast the Soul wholly on Jesus Christ ; Come then, and blow on these desires, blast them in the bud, that they never bear Fruit, nor come to maturity of Faith. Thus Satan calls on his Legions, and they arm themselves against the Soul, now panting and breathing after Jesus Christ.

SECT. XIII.

Of the Souls wrestling with Satan as to this Assault.

THE Duties therefore that now concern you, are these. —

1. Content not your selves with some sudden pangs of Affection, but labour to preserve those Impressions, which the Spirit at any time makes on your Souls. This is the Caveat of the Apostle, therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip, or run out, as leaking Vessels. It may be at present your desires are strong, earnest, eager, vehement, extreme thirstings, as the parched Earth for refreshing showers, or as the hunted Hart for the Water-brooks; surely this is well, and herein you difference your desires from lazy, cold, heartless, indifferent desires: But oh take heed now lest this prove but as the early Dew, none of which is to be seen at Noon.

Quest.

But what shall I do to preserve these impressions?

Ans.

I answer: 1. If thou hast got this heat in a Sermon, or any other publick Ordinances, betake thy self to thy Closet, and there labour to take the advantage of thy present frame, for the more effectual pouring out of thy Soul to God. Oh beg of God! that now he will not leave thee short of Faith, which begins in desires, but he that will cherish these beginnings, and remember his promise, for he hath said, that he will not quench the smoking flax, nor break the bruised reed until he bring forth Judgment unto Victory. 2. If thou hast got this heat in prayer, or any other private or secret duty, hold out in that duty begun, and joyn therewithal a waiting on God in the use of publick means: The Spouse that sought Jesus Christ by night on her Bed, would not rest there, but now her desire was up, she would up too, and go to the publick Assemblies, I will rise now, and go about the City in the streets, and in the broad ways I will seek him whom my Soul loveth. The Soul that would preserve her desires, will go from Duty to Duty, from publick to private, and from private to publick, and never faint: What (saith the Soul) is Christ whom I breath after to be found in publick? why then to those publick Assemblies let me go. As the Hart panteth after the water-brooks, so my Soul panteth after thee; O God, my Soul thirsteth for God, for the living God; O when shall I come and appear before God! — O God, thou art my God, early will I seek thee, my Soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee, in a dry and thirsty Land where no water is, to see thy power, and thy Glory, as I have seen thee in the Sanctuary.

2. Try your desires by the Touch-stone of God's Word, that you may not be baffled out of them, as if they were spurious. But what are those signs, or marks, by which I may try, and be assured that my desires are right? I answer. —

1. Every true desire is ever joyned with an hearty willingness, and unfeigned resolution to sell all for Christ; to part with all sin, to bid adieu for ever to thy darling delight: It is not an ordinary wish of a natural appetite, like Balaam's: we have many that desire to be happy, but are unwilling to be holy; they would gladly be saved, but are loath to be sanctified: Now if thou desirest truly, thou wilt live according, and willingly part with any sin for Christ: what? is not Christ better than sin, wilt thou say? O that I may sin no more.

2. True desire is ever quickened and enlivened with a continued and conscionable use of the means, and it draws from them, by little and little, spiritual strength and vigour; it is not an idle, ignorant, unexercised desire; it were very vain and absurd, to hear a man talk of his desire to live, and yet would neither eat, nor drink, nor sleep, nor exercise himself: It is as fruitless and foolish for any one to pretend to a desire of Grace and Salvation, and yet he will not prize and ply the Word, Prayer, Meditation, Conferences, and all the means and Ordinances appointed and sanctified by God; desires themselves will quickly vanish, if they be not nourished in the use of means. Take heed then of living above Ordinances, if thou lovest thy Soul, or wouldst have any part in Jesus Christ.

3. True desire is ever constant, and importunately greedy after supply and satisfaction, it is not begot by the tempest of some present extremity and then quite vanishing away, when the storm of Terror and Temptation is over; this is it that the Devil looks at, he observes how many in a fit could be content to leap out of their skin to get Heaven, and to keep out of Hell; but after this is over, they cannot away with crossing their nature, fighting against Lusts, wrestling against Satan, labouring for the Righteousness of God, and of Jesus Christ, above all things, and therefore their Wishings and Wouldings come to nothing. Come then, and try thy desire by this mark, which utterly confounds Satan, if thy desire takes root in a truly humbled Heart, and never determines, nor expires, till thou hast what thou desirest after: If thou cryest, Oh give me Christ, or I will never be satisfied! my Soul is restless, and it shall be restless, till I have Christ in my Arms, and Hand of Faith. Surely this is a good sign, and thou mayst build upon it, and at last thou shalt see, he will fulfil the desire of them that breath thus after him.

SECT.

SECT. XIV.

Of Satan's Assaults upon relying on Christ.

THE Holy Spirit that leads on the Soul by steps, begins now to work in the Soul a relying on Christ; and this is that act of Faith to which Justification is usually promised; it is called an affiance, dependance, adherence, reliance; or if there be any word that expresseth the act of an humbled Soul, whereby it casteth and reposeth it self upon the promise of God in Christ, for the obtaining remission of sins, and everlasting life, that is it which now the Spirit works in the Soul of whom he purposeth to save. I would have this well understood and felt; this is that hinge on which the Doors of Heaven do turn: In this act, the poor Soul inlightned, and affrighted with the sense, and sight of its sin, and misery for sin, and having a sight of Christ, which breeds in it some desires after Christ, it throws it self into Christ's Arms, grasping fast about him, and hiding it self in the clefts of this Rock, crying and saying, my Lord, and my God, O save me or I sink; O hold me fast, or I perish for ever. By this Act we are accepted for Just before God, for the Sake and Sufferings of Jesus Christ.

Now when the Devil perceives this, he sees himself gone, and the Soul in safety out of his power, only he will not cease to tempt and trouble; and to that purpose, if he cannot prevail against the esse of a Christian, he wrestles against the bene esse; if he cannot keep off the hand of Faith, from laying hold on Christ, yet will he trouble the Head and Heart of a Christian with cloudy Vapours, and misgiving Thoughts. But first sometimes he keeps off the Hand of Faith, darkning the Soul with a deep melancholly, that it cannot see and remember the promise; or if it be remembered, yet he scares the Soul from off the promise, q. d. What do you meddle with the promise, it does not belong unto you, you have sinned so and so, and therefore the threatnings and not the promise blongs unto you. Secondly, sometimes he breeds in the Soul a jealous and suspicious frame, that it will not believe that it doth believe. And hence we hear these cries, Alas! I cannot think that I do really rest, and rely on Christ; or if sometimes I be in such a frame, yet at some other times I cleave again to a sensual good, more than to a spiritual promise, or to an heavenly Christ: Oh I do not fully and constantly cling unto the bleeding wounds of Jesus, I am up and down, I rest not continually on the freeness of his love, and merit of his passion, and truth of his promise, as upon a rock of Eternity; And is this to rely on Jesus Christ? Oh the depths of Satan! 1. He designs to keep the Soul from believing, but if he cannot keep the Edifice of Faith from being built in the Soul, yet he will keep it (if possible) from standing sure: Simon, Simon, (saith Christ) Satan hath desired to winnow thee like wheat, but I have prayed for thee that thy Faith fail not. The word [winnow] signifies to shake up and down, as with a Fan the Wheat is used. Look how he dealt with Job, because Satan had no power over his life, he executed his power to the utmost upon the comforts of his life: So he deals with the Soul of a Christian, if he have no power over the life of Faith, then he will execute his power to the utmost, that the Soul may never come to have the comfortable Sense of Faith; and when he brings his Rams to batter his comforts, no wonder if the poor mud-wall of a Christian shakes up and down.

SECT. XV.

Of the Souls wrestling with Satan as to this Assault.

FOR the bearing off these blows in time of Temptation, let us consider them apart: And first, to that of Satan's endeavouring to sunder or sever the Soul from the promise, and to keep it off from Faith, do you take this course. —

1. Do you gather in promises that you may have them at hand: I shall instance in such as these, — let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will, let him take of the water of Life freely. — Come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will ease you. — If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink. — These things are written, that ye might believe, and that believing, ye might have life through his Name. — Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved. Rev. 22. 17. Mat. 11. 28. Joh. 7. 37. Joh. 20. 31. Act. 16. 31.

2. Take possession of the Promises, and value them as your own: the Prophet recording a Promise in Isa. 54. 17. adds thus, This is the Heritage of the Servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord. If you look into God's Book, and find any promise of Christ, or of Christ your Righteousness, or of Christ offering himself for your Righteousness, you shall make it your own, for it is your Heritage: O lay hold on those promises, and say, This is mine, it is a part of my Heritage, and I am to live upon it. Isa. 54. 17.

3. If Satan stave you off, saying, Hands off, the Threatnings, and not the Promise belongs unto you; tell Satan again, that when you went on in a way of sin, he could tell you otherwise, viz. That the Promise and not the Threatning belonged to you; but now it is not with you as it was then, now all sin is to you as a burthen, and now every promise is to you as a world of Gold, and therefore Satan, didst thou tell me that the promise did belong to me then? surely now, much more: Avoid Satan, for it is written, Come to me, ye that are weary and heavy laden with sin.

4. Remember that the same Lord Jesus that invites you, commands you to believe, and to rely upon him, and therefore apply the promise to your selves, This is the Commandment, that we should believe on the Name of his Son Jesus Christ. Joh. 3. 23. Luther was a man that laboured under great Temptations, and being once sorely tempted, and the tears trickling down his Checks, my Friend (saith he) came unto me, and said, O my Son, why dost thou mourn! dost thou not know that God hath commanded thee to believe? When (says Luther) I heard that word [Command] it prevailed more more with my heart than all that was said, or thought on before : So say I now unto thee, doth not Satan come in with this temptation, and tell thee, The promise belongs not to thee? Answer, Ay, but the Lord hath commanded me to believe ; and therefore it is my duty to believe ; and because I cannot believe, unless I apply the promise to my self, therefore I may conclude that the promise doth belong unto me. Thus for the first temptation.

2. For the other, that your relying on Christ is not constant : True faith (faith Satan) is ever alike strong and steadfast ; but thy faith is but a wavering, inconstant, flitting faith. Consider—

1. It is a fallacy, and no truth, that faith in the exercise or sense, is ever alike strong and steadfast. The experience of all Saints can tell you, that faith hath its flowings and ebblings, full and wane : Sometimes a Christian is on the wing, and then he saith, I think if the Devil laid hold on me, yet I could trust in God for heaven ; as Job could sometimes say, If the Lord slay me, yet will I trust in him : but we know that was not Job's temper always : sometimes I think, that if God would take me away in a massacre, I should yield my blood without a repining word ; another time, I so doubt my interest in Christ, that I do not know how I should die upon my bed, unless with crying, Lord take me not away with the wicked. David sometimes would not be afraid of his Soul going out of his Body, if ten thousand swords were ready to cut out a passage ; I will not be afraid of ten thousand of people, that have set themselves against me round about : at another time he cries, complaining and shrieking, O spare me, that I may recover strength before I go hence, and be no more. Faith may be so interrupted, that the pulse of it cannot always beat alike, and yet while there is life, the pulse of Faith beats, though sometimes more faintly and deadly, than at other times.

2. Faith, that in the exercise or sense is not ever alike strong and steadfast, yet in the Habit or Essence is ever true, and truly relies upon Jesus Christ. Sense in a Christian, may not only have a mist cast before its eyes, but (as faith a modern) may have its eyes put out. Christians are mis-judging creatures, and too ready upon Satan's temptations to suspect their own happiness ; they may call their Faith presumption, as well as some call their presumption Faith : the hypocrite calls his dross, gold, and his alchymy, silver, and the suspecting Christian is as ready on the other hand to call his gold, brass, and his silver, lead : Christ may be saying in heaven, concerning such a one, Thou art saved, thou art saved, whilst he may be crying on earth, O I am damned, I am damned : The Angels may be in heaven rejoicing over him whom we see here mourning over his own Soul for sin, and will not be comforted ; It may be thou sayest, I do not believe, I do not rely on Jesus Christ : But let me ask, Could there be such an hungry, and thirsting after Christ, if thou didst not believe on Christ ? Could there be such a care to please Christ, and a fear of offending Christ in thy whole life and conversation, if thou didst not rely upon him for Eternal Life and Salvation ? Could there be such a willingness in thee to part with all for Christ, if thou didst not rely upon him as thy Portion, and thy All in All ? Surely this is impossible, content thy self ; if thou hast not the Sense, yet thou hast the Habit, and not only the Habit, but the act of Faith also in some measure, at some times, though it seem very weak.

SECT. XVI.

Of Satans assaults upon obedience to Christ.

THE last act of the Spirit, as to conversion, is to work in the Soul an obedience to Christ : True faith cannot be without works ; the Soul that truly takes Christ as a Saviour, to free him from the misery of sin, is willing also to take him as a Lord, Husband, and King, to serve, love, honour, and obey him : And to this purpose the spirit now works in such a one, a willingness to spend the remainder of his life in endeavouring after mortification of sin, conquests over corruptions, sanctification, purity, new obedience, ability to do, or suffer, any thing for Jesus Christ ; and this is that which we ordinarily intend, by saying, Saving faith to be operative : That faith which brings forth nothing of holiness, what is it but a dead faith ? As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also. Jam. 2. 26.

Satan that observes this, begets scruples in the soul, as to that point of working faith, and either fills the heart with an opinion, that works are unnecessary, or makes the soul conceit, that the faith it hath, is not a working, but an idle, lazy, fruitless and barren faith. I shall speak to both these.—

1. In some Satan works strongly, that works are not needful, and therefore to what purpose should they work ? naked Christ and a naked Faith is enough for them : Christ as a Priest and Saviour is Gospel-news ; let them hear such, and only such Sermons as hold forth free love, free justification, free grace, without any mixture of the works of the Law, to what purpose (say they) is this living faith, or working faith, or power of faith, evidenced in strictness of walking ? Christ hath redeemed us, and Christ requires no other condition but only this, Believe, and be saved ; and why then should we vex and torment our selves by embracing mortification, newness of life, &c.

2. In others (whom I rather mind) Satan suggests, that their faith is not a working faith, and therefore no true faith : Convinc'd they are, that faith and grace, where ever it is, cannot be idle ; faith hath its work, and therefore it is called, The work of Faith with power : But alas, they cannot find any thing in their souls that looks like the powerful work of faith : Satan tells them, that if they do any good it is but from natural or moral Principles, and not from this quickning power of faith ; it is not the obedience of faith, as the Apostle calls it. Rom. 16. 26.

SECT.

S E C T. XVII.

Of our wrestling with Satan as to these assaults.

IN repelling these assaults, let us avoid both extremes. And first, to that of denying works, Consider—

1. That a naked faith is no faith, that only Gal. 5. 6. is true faith which worketh by love. This was the saying of John Husse, Where good works appear not without, faith is not within. There is a natural connexion of faith and works; and therefore of necessity both must be in the same subject though both appear not in the same Court: Faith that imbraceth Christ is obediential, and fruitful in all good works; and hence we say, that faith hath two notable acts, first to apprehend and lay hold on Christ; and secondly to purifie and cleanse the heart: O, let no man separate those things which

1 Cor. 1. 30. God hath joyned together; as Christ is made to us righteousness and sanctification, so they that by faith receive the righteousness of Christ, must be also sanctified by Christ; whosoever is in Christ, is a new creature.

2. That good works are necessary by command of God, for this is the will of God, even your sanctification. Hence the Law of God still remaineth as a rule and Directory; and Paul professeth, that he delighteth in the Law of God in his inward man. And how often do we read of this Command of God in his Word?

1 Tim. 16. 17, 18, 19. Charge them that are rich in the World—that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on Eternal Life—For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained, that we should walk in them. A multitude of such passages may we find in Scripture.

3. That to hold forth Christ only as a Saviour, and not as a Prince, faith, and not works, it is not right and full Gospel-preaching: This Titus 3. 8. is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God, must be careful to maintain good works; these things are good and profitable unto men. Oh how unfaithful are they in their sayings that deny that, which Paul would have Titus to affirm constantly? Surely this is true Gospel-preaching, He gave himself for us, that 12, 13, 14, he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purifie unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works; these things speak and exhort. Paul to Titus, and Peter to the Jews, speak one and the same thing, The God of our Fathers hath raised up Jesus, to be not only a Saviour, but a Prince, not only to give remission of sins, but also repentance to Israel. Away, away with that temptation, that works are unnecessary.

2. To that complaint, that the soul cannot find the powerful work of faith in it [All these works of mine (saith the soul) are but natural, or moral; or if I have any faith, it is the idlest, laziest, loofest faith that ever Christian had]. Give me leave to sum up these directions.—

See them at large in Collins's Cordials.

1. Clear up the eyes of thy understanding, and judge aright: Some works may be only the effects of natural or moral causes, but other works, respecting the principles and circumstances of them, cannot proceed from any but a true faith: For instance, an unfeigned hatred of every false way, a doing of duty in pure obedience to the command of God, and impure respect to the glory of God: These are such effects of faith, as no hypocrite in the world either hath, or can have. An hypocrite may leave the Commission of some sins, or he may hate some enormities of life, but he cannot, as David did, hate every false way. An hypocrite may fast, and pray, and mourn, as the Pharisee, and Abab did, but he cannot do thus merely out of obedience to God and for the glory of God: Come then, clear up thy eyes, and see if there be no more ingredients in thy actions, then what an hypocrite may have.

2. Set thy faith on work, on the powerful works of faith, and so put all out of question. As 1. Cause thy soul every day in solemn manner to act that first work of faith, of panting, breathing, desiring after Christ, of trusting, resting, relying on Christ for life, and for Salvation. 2. Act that next work of faith, of depending on Christ for holiness and sanctification: draw virtue out of Christ his death for the mortification of thy sins, knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin, and draw virtue out of Christ his Resurrection, for a quickning power from the death of sin to the life of holiness, that as thou art dead with Christ, and buried with Christ, so thou mayest also rise with Christ through the faith of the operation of God, who hath also raised him from the dead. 3. Be much in prayer, meditation, reading, hearing the Word, &c. yea, lay out thy gifts, graces, time, strength, riches, interest to thy Masters use; think which way thou mayst do most to promote the Gospel, to save souls as Christ bad Peter, When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren. Why thus wouldest thou do in sincerity and truth, thou wouldest put all out of question, that thy faith were not a dead faith, but a living, working, justifying, soul-saving faith.

3. Despise not the day of small things, the breathings of faith are as much true faith as its full voice, when it saith, My beloved is mine and I am his.

4. State thy condition, and see if thou dost not find such a temper of spirit as faith useth to suit the soul with in such a condition: Faith hath his change of rayments for gracious souls; sometimes it acts the soul in joy and rejoycing, sometimes only in adherence and waiting: Thou sayst thou canst not find in thy soul such a perswasion of Gods love, such an holy rejoycing in God, as the Scripture expresseth, to be effects of true faith; why, it may be it is a day of darkness in thy soul, and therefore examin the other way: Is not thy heart wrought into a fit temper to wait upon him who hides his face from thee, and to seek him who seems to have forsaken thee, and to cling unto him that seems as if he

he would kill thee? This is true tryal: First, state thy condition, and look for Faiths answerable workings to thy condition, as it is stated. And thus much of our wrestling with Satan, as to his Assaults in our Youth, or the time of our Conversion, or second Period.

I cannot say, but Satan in his time hath many more Assaults then I have numbered, or possibly can number. As the Spirits workings are various, so are Satans counter-workings; the Spirit humbles some much, and comforts others as much: Some it may be, had a false and counterfeit work before a true one, and others were never illighted until savingly; and this variety affords rise and occasion for several temptations: I was never thus humbled, says one, nor I thus comforted, says another; I had some workings and illightnings heretofore, says a third, and I was deceived then, and I may be so now also: And I had a sudden violent work indeed, says a fourth, which came in like a spring-tide, but now the tide is fallen, and my first love is abated. Thus every several way of working lies open to several exceptions, and hath its several temptations; but the remedy is, that Souls should look to the main, and for the manner and measure of the work in every part and piece of it, to leave it to the good pleasure of the Spirit, who is a free Agent, and must not be limited by our reasonings. I fear I have been too tedious in this Period, and therefore I shall add no more.

CHAP. IV. SECT. I.

Of the Devils Assaults in our manhood or riper years.

THE third Period, wherein Satan assaults or combats with us, it is from our manhood or riper years, until our death or dying moment: And in prosecution of this, as of the former; first learn we some of those depths, or wiles of Satan against us; and secondly, practise we those Duties that concern us in our wrestling with him in these respects.

I. For his Assaults in this Period, I shall reduce them into this method; viz. they are either Persecutions, Temptations, or diabolical Injections: So * one of our Worthies divided his fiery Darts, his Persecutions are by the World, his Temptations are by the Flesh, his Injections are only and immediately by himself.

SECT. II.

Of Satan's Persecutions by the World.

Rev. 2. 10. HIS Persecutions are by the World, so Christ tells the Church of Smyrna, The Devil shall cast some of you into Prison, that ye may be tryed, and ye shall have tribulation ten days: The Devil should do it; but how should the Devil do it, but by the aid of his Instrument the World? He is the God of this World, he rules in the hearts of wicked men, he directs their Thoughts, Wills, and Affections, and so he moves them, and carries them to persecute the Children of God, and to cast them into prison.

This is ordinary after Conversion; no sooner is the change wrought, and the man brought truly home to Christ, but by this time is he become the Drunkards Song, Table-talk to those that sit in the Gate, Musick to great men at their Feasts, a By-word to the Children of Fools, more vile than the Earth. Now it is that the Seed of the Serpent discovers it self, the Devil, and his Angels and his Sons combine to lay a load of lying Imputations, unworthy usages, and any kind of persecutions upon his Saints. In this case the Wicked are as Prefers, and the Godly are as Olives and Grapes; And what can they expect from such men, but to be pressed and squeezed till the blood come out? But why is it that the Wicked should be thus enraged against the Godly? have they done them any wrong? do they wish them any evil? or would they not be glad to do them good, as to their eternal welfare? No question of all this; but ungodly men are compelled by Satan to do what they do; the old Serpent hates God, and the Holiness of God, which shines in his Saints, with deadly hatred; he knows that he himself is cast out of Heaven, and therefore he envies and vexes at the Salvation of any. And as thus it is with Satan, so ungodly men, (that are Satans Tools and Instruments whereby he works) have sucked up the old Serpents Poison, and they swell with it, and by it they are enraged against all Godliness also, that as it is said of Tygers, they enter into a rage upon the scent of fragrant Spices; so ungodly men, without any other reason are in a rage at the blessed favour of Godliness, wherefore ever it is: An unjust man is an abomination to the just, and he that is upright in the way, is an abomination to the wicked. Pro. 29. 27.

I know not any that fear God, but in some measure or other, they have felt this Assault. Blessed Mr. Bolton could say, If Satan meet with a man, that by the Grace of God is already entred into a state of Regeneracy, then he stands like a great red Dragon in the way, and casts out of his mouth floods of persecution, vexations and oppositions, that so he may overwhelm and crush him before he come to any growth or strength in Christ; and to this end he sets on foot and fire too, and whets with keen Razors many lewd and prophane Tongues, to scoff, disgrace and discourage him in his narrow, but blessed passage to immortality? But how do they do it? why either by reproaches, slanders, exprobration of his former life, or by odious names of Hypocrite, Singularist, Puritan, a fellow of irregular Conscience, and stirring humour, of a factious and contradictory Spirit, and such like. Nor is it thus only at first entrance, but ever after, for so he goes on. Every faithful Christian knows by good experience, that as he shall stir in a good cause, stand against the Corruptions of the place where he lives, or discharge his Calling with Conscience science and faithfulness, that presently he shall have the spirit of Prophaneness to fly in his face with brutish and implacable malice and insolency. So true is that of the Apostle, at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra, I endured persecutions; yea, and all that will live Godly in Christ Jesus, shall suffer persecution.

SECT. III.

Of our wrestling with Satan, as to this Assault.

IN repelling these Assaults, consider we the kinds of persecution wherewith Satan assaults; it is either in word, or in deed.

1. If it be only in Word, as Taunts, Jeers, Reproaches, then practise these rules. —

1. Take heed that we be not hindred in our way, or break off our profession of Religion because of reproach; what though there be filth cast in the way, shall we decline our way? though Clouds do arise and darken the light of the Sun; does the Sun cease in its course because its darkned? No, no, it goes on still, and anon it breaks forth; so should we go on and say, I knew this way would be cloudy, I entred into it upon these Terms, to be willing to suffer reproaches; this is God's ordinary way towards his people, and I expect yet greater trials than these.

2. Consider, how is God and Christ reproached daily? How is the Majesty, Sovereignty, and Authority of God contemned in the World? how are the dreadful Threatnings of God and the Revelation of Gods Wrath scorned in the World? this made † Luther to say, No man is able to bear so much contempt as Christ bears daily; and Bolton to say, If any meek spirit should sit but one hour in the Throne of God Almighty, and should look down upon the earth as God doth continually, he undoubtedly in the next hour would set all the World on fire and not suffer his Wrath to be pacified or the fire to be quenched; he should then for ever ashamed to take on, or to break patience for every trivial provocation. Oh, what be our names to Gods name? or what are the Reproaches of a Creature, to the Reproaches, Dishonour and vilifying of God.

3. Consider the great Mercy of God in concealing the secret sins of our thoughts? there are none so innocent, but if God should turn the inside outwards, and discover all the filth and baseness within the heart to the World, certainly it would make them ashamed of the Society of men. Now if God conceal these, well may this quiet our Hearts, when troubled for any reproach? It is a great work of nature to keep the filth of the body, when it is in a man, from being unsavoury to others; so it is a great mercy of God to keep the filth of the Soul, though it be unsavoury to God, from that unsavouriness that it might be to men.

4. Consider what Honour God hath put, and will put upon us, besides the Honour of Reproach it self: Hath not the Lord been pleased to bring us into the honourable estate of Sons and Daughters? Hath he not put his Glory upon our Souls, and honour'd us by that near relation we have to Christ? Hath he not honour'd us in the Hearts of his Saints, men of precious spirits; who know much of Gods mind, who are able to judge wherein true excellency consists? when Doeg reproached David with devouring base Words in Saul's Court, yet David blessed himself in this, But I am like a green Olive Tree in the house of my God, Psal. 52. 8. q. d. Doeg flourisheth in the Court, and my name may be blasted there, but in the House of my God my name is precious, I am there as a green Olive tree. Besides what honour hath the Lord provided for us in that other World of Souls? If a man were going to be crowned, and some as he goes along contemns him, and vilifies him, what cares he for that? He knows that within a few days he shall be honored by those that now reproach him; if we believe there are such things to come, that we shall sit with Christ, and judge the Angels, and judge the Reproachers, why should we be troubled at what they say? it will not be long but they shall be forced to call us, The blessed of the Lord, and the blessings of the whole World: it will not be long but Christ will bring forth over Righteousness as the light, and set all straight, which slanderous Tongues have now made crooked.

5. Make our moan unto God, and lay our case before him. Thus when Rabshakeh reviled God, and the people of God, Hezekiah spread the Letter before God and made his moan there: This was the practice of Job and David: My friends scorn me (saith Job) but mine eyes pour out tears unto God — And bold not thy peace, O God of my praise (saith David) for the mouth of the wicked, and the mouth of the deceitful are opened against me; they have spoken against me with a lying Tongue, they have compassed me about with words of hatred, they are my Adversaries, — but I give my self unto Prayer, q. d. For my part, I go for help to my God; others have evil Tongues to help them, and run to this and that witness to seek help for themselves, but I give my self unto Prayer, I cry unto the Lord, and he shall send from Heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah.

6. Return good for evil, as occasion and providence offers it self: Being reviled we bless (saith Paul) being persecuted, we suffer it, being defamed, we entreat. Thus if we can pray for our Reproachers, and desire good for them, and be willing to take notice of any good in them, and be ready to offer any offices of love and respect, and kindness unto them, and so heap coals of fire upon them, there is a great sign of Grace, and we have made a good progress in Gods way: It was Christs own Command to his Apostles, Bliss them that curse you: pray for them that despitefully use you: that ye may be the Children of your Father. Why, were they not Children before? Yes, but this declares it; now God owns them for his Children: And certainly if we behave our selves thus we may have the comfort of this, that our reproaches come to us as to Gods people, we are the Children of God.

It is part of the state which belongs to the true Ministers of the Gospel, to be followed by such black mouthed Lacqueys, who by their virulent speeches are so far their friends as to keep them from that curse, *We be unto you when all men speak well of you. 7. If our persecutions be in deed, as to imprisonment, loss of Goods, Exile, or Death, then practise those rules I have elsewhere laid down; viz. in Self-denial, and Saints sufferings.

SECT. IV.

Of Satans Temptations by the Flesh.

Satans next Assaults we call Temptations, which are by the flesh, our own lusts, or concupiscence; not but that Satan can tempt us by himself, and so can we; he can tempt us, and we not joyn with him; and we can tempt our selves, and Satan not joyn with us; but most times our Temptations are mixt, he and we concur, and make one act of tempting; and herein either Satan begins to us, and we pledge him, or we begin to him, and he joyns with us; when we by discontent or other inward motion, expose our selves to temptation, then we begin to him; but when Satan doth make the offer, by moving the fancy with thoughts within, or by proposing some object without, then doth he begin to us: These ways are ordinary, and it is but rare that the Devil will not interpose. Hence Paul speaking to the married, he bids them not to be long asunder, but to come together again, lest Satan tempt them for their incontinency: Why? was there not flesh and blood in them, corrupt affections, and natural concupiscence, enough to dispose them to lusts and to make them incontinent? Yes, but they wrestled not against flesh and blood, but against Principalities and Powers: The Devil puts in, even in those very things wherein flesh and blood doth assail us also; as we have temptations within, so the Devil without sharpens those Temptations, and gives them points, and makes them taking, and mingles and joyns himself with the Temptation.

SECT. V.

Of Temptations, in respect of our natural Dispositions.

NOW these Temptations are infinite, and past my recounting; yet that I may reduce them into some method, they have either a respect to our natural dispositions, or to our outward conditions, or to our spiritual Estates.

First, Satan hath an eye to our dispositions, he observes to what sins we are most inclined by our nature, temper and bodily constitution, and to those he inclines us, thrusting us, as it were down the Hill, where we are apt to run headlong of our own accord: For example, if he find a man ambitiously affected, then he covers his Hook with the Bait of Honours; or if he find a man addicted to voluptuousness, then he covers it with the Bait of pleasures; or if he find a man given to covetousness, then he lays the a golden Net, or he makes a breach in his Heart with a Golden Bullet.

In this case it is the Christians best skill, as soon as may be, to observe his own nature, temper, and disposition, and to find out what sin he is most prone to; I may call it his bosom sin, his beloved sin, his darling pleasure, his minion delight; certainly this is Satans strongest hold, his Tower of greatest confidence, and security: Oh how it sticks and cleaves to the Soul! Oh what a deal of ado must the best Saints have with Satan and this sin, before it be killed!

In some this sin is Worldliness, Wantonness, Pride, Passion, in others it may be drunkenness, Gluttony, Gaming, scurril Jestings, obstinate Insatiableness in allowed Recreations, or the like. I cannot speak to every of these, for so would the work swell under hand, yet to some I dare not but speak, and oh that it may be with fruit and profit, both to others, and my own Soul!

SECT. VI.

Of Satans Temptations to Worldliness.

Some Souls the Devil tempts to worldliness, he sees them prone to it, and he sets it on, and drives it forwards: But how does he that? I answer: 1. He sometimes sets the very images and Representations of the worlds Glory before mens eyes, and so he tempts them: Thus I am sure he dealt with Christ, he shewed him all the Kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them (1) He offered the Images sensibly and actually, after a wonderful and strange manner, making those images to appear to his Senses. This is not ordinary, but this, no question, is in Satans power: If a man by this art can represent to the Senses in a Glas, any person or thing, by which he that sees not the thing it self, discerneth a notable Image of it; how much more may we think that Satan by his art can represent to the Sense the Images of things not present (2)

2. He sometimes sets the very World it self, or the things of the World before mens eyes, and so he tempts them. Thus he set the Babylonish Garment in the Eye of Achan, and Nabobs Vineyard in the Eye of Ahab, and Bathsheba the Wife of Uriah in the Eye of David; and then according to the Proverb, He comes to the Sea by the River, to the Heart by the Eye; and indeed, what poyson is there almost that he doth not convey into our Souls by this very passage? our Eyes are his Spokes-men to our Hearts; first we see, and then we covet and desire the World, and hereupon Covetousness is called by the Apostle, the Lust of the Eyes.

3. He sometimes and most usually works upon the Imagination, Affections, and consequently upon the Will: And indeed an easie thing it is for him to move them all, when they are so willing to receive his Suggestions, and of themselves urge the Soul to yield to his temptations. This made the Apostle say, They

1 Tim. 6. 9, that will be rich, fall into temptations and snares, — for the desire of money is the root of all evil. Satan sees before hand, there's a man resolved that he will be rich, and therefore Satan needs not strive against the stream, let him but use the tide of such a mans will, and he may carry him swiftly into a Sea of sin: They that will be rich fall (without pulling, even as the stone that descends naturally downwards) into temptations and snares.

SECT. VII.

Of wrestling with Satan to overcome this sin.

Now if this be thy darling sin, then wrestle thus —

1. Consider, worldliness is extremely fertile of ill; what frauds, what deceits, what perjuries, what cruelties, what hatreds, what murders, what villanies have been exercised for the nourishing of this lust? other sins have their aggravations, but this is the most earthly of all other, and in some respects the most unworthy a man; why, a man hath a soul, which is a sparkle of heaven, and for him to imploy it in no other service but merely to be an earth-worm, to creep in and upon the ground, this must needs be a very great evil.

2. Consider, worldliness is attended with manifold sorrows: As 1. It is full of cares. 2. It is full of snares; grins are in gold, birdlime in silver, saith an Ancient. 3. It is full of labours, men toil all day, and they cannot rest by night; the fear of losing pierceth as much as the pain of getting, and there is no end of their travel. 4. It is full of trouble of conscience, and flashes of hell fire:

Matt. 4. 8. It may be the Devil for a while may conceal these griefs; it is said, that he shewed Christ the Kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; only the glory, he shewed the pleasure but not the punishment; he shewed the gain, but not the pain: now we knowing this craft, must labour in these temptations to see that which the Devil hides, and to apprehend the fearful after-claps: Oh let us labour to see Jacks nail, as well as her milk, the Bees sting, as well as her honey; the Snakes poyson, as well as her beauty and embraces; the speech of Abner is true of the world, Knowest thou not that it will be bitterness in the latter end? Oh let this be considered seriously.

Luke 12. 15. 3. Consider, A mans life stands not in the abundance of the things that he possesseth. A mans life (i. e.) the good, and happiness, and comfort of his life, is not in riches, but in God that fills them: And hence we say, that the true enjoyment of riches is the portion of Gods people, and not of the wicked; they may have them, but they do not truly enjoy them; the Devil encourageth them to crack the nut, but God takes away the kernel, and gives it to them that are godly before them: Is not this the meaning of the Preacher, God giveth to a Man good in his sight, wisdom and knowledge, and joy, but to the sinner he giveth travail? He gives to the godly wisdom to pursue riches, and to go right ways for the attainment of them; he gives them also knowledge how to improve them, and joy, or the comfort of them; but to the sinner he gives travail, to gather and heap up, but not for his comfort; the wicked dig the mines, they plough the ground, but the Saints enjoy, they only reap and gather: And is not this the meaning of the Apostle, Godliness with contentment is great gain? These two, godliness and contentment, make up riches; thou talkest of gain, but art thou content? and art thou godly? there is the gain, there lies the happiness: in this sense, the little that a righteous man hath, is better than the riches of many wicked. The solid comfort of all outward things, is the Saints peculiar, because of his nearness unto God; never tell me of this great man, and the other noble man, for indeed that which men are, they are unto God, their true value is according to the proportion of their nearness, not to Riches, nor to Princes, nor to the great things of this world, but to God.

4. Consider that of the Apostle, No man that warreth intangleth himself with the affairs of this life. Now, what are we but warriors against Principalities, Powers, Rulers, of the darkness of this world, and spiritual wickednesses? How then do we intangle our selves with the affairs of this life? It is true, we may use the world as if not, but to be intangled with it, is dangerous and pernicious: As rivers that slide in the Ocean, touch the Coasts and shore by which they run, but they stay not there; so must our souls in their return to heaven, only touch the earth as we pass along, but not stay there for fear of intanglements. Luther tells us, that when the Pope sent some Cardinals to him, to intangle him with the promise of great wealth and honour, turning himself to God, he speedily said, Se nolle sic sapiari ab eo; that God should not put him off with these low things. Oh that all Soldiers under Christs Banner were but of this mind! for then might they say, The snare is broken, and we are delivered, or then might they do, as the silly bird which mounts aloft towards heaven, when she seeth any danger of being caught, and thereby she frustrates the Fowlers hope: Sursum corda, lift up your hearts, mount on the wings of faith and love, have your conversations in heaven, be much in meditation of those surpassing joys; so will you frustrate Satans hopes, and escape the worlds intanglements or snares.

5. Consider the words of the Preacher, Eccles. 1. 2. Vanity of vanities, all is vanity: How is all vanity? yes, all, and some? I know not any thing in the world, but thou mayst write vanity on it: *Bethink thy self, O deluded world, (saith one) and write over all thy School doors, Let not the smiths wife man glory in his wisdom; and over all thy Court-gates, Let not the mighty man glory in his might; and over all thy Exchanges and Banks, Let not the rich man glory in his riches; yes, write upon thy Looking-glasses that of Bathsheba, *Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain; upon thy Mows and Artillery-yards, that of the Psalmist, Psal. 147. God delighteth not in the strength of a Horse; he taketh no pleasure in the legs of a man; upon

Pro. 20. 1. thy Taverns that of Solomon, Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise; upon thy Magazines and Wardrobes, that of our Saviour, Lay not up for your selves treasures on earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt; and where thieves break through and steal; upon thy Counting-houses that of Habakkuk, Woe to him that increaseth in that which is not his, how long? and to him that ladeth himself with thick clay; upon thy Banqueting-houses, that of the Apostle, Meats for the belly and the belly for Meats, but God will destroy both it and them. O the vanity of the World, and all things in it! Will a man hearken to Satan, and give his Soul to the Devil for vanity, emptiness, nothing at all? God forbid.

6. Consider the counsel and promise of God himself, Let your Conversation be without Covetousness, and be content with such things as you have, for he hath said, I will never, never, never, never, never, leave thee nor forsake thee: The word in the original is so often repeated: and if one promise be enough to stay thine Heart, shall not five promises in one?

Rev. 3. 21. But hearken again, To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my Throne, even as I overcome, and sit with my Father in his Throne. One serious thought of sitting upon the Throne with Jesus Christ, were enough (through Grace) to wean a Soul from worldly-mindedness: He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my Son. Let the World be as nothing, and thou shalt have all things: sit loose to thy Relations here, and Christ will be instead of all Relations; Who so forsaketh House, or Brethren, or Sisters, or Father, or Mother, or Wife, or Children, or Lands for my Names sake, shall receive an hundred fold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

7. Act thy faith upon those promises, Heb. 13. 5. Revel. 3. 21. Revel. 21. 7. Mat. 19. 29. O the faithless and freeness of these precious promises! how shouldst thou want, that by the promise hast a command (as I may say) of Gods own Power? Let him that is without God in the World, thurst and thirst by his Wits, but do thou live by thy faith in reference to these promises.

8. Commend thy self to God in Prayer, that he may keep thee faultless before the presence of his Glory, that he may incline thine heart unto his Testimonies, and not do Covetousness; that he may prepare thy Soul, and spread his wings, and hasten his coming; Make

Rev. 21. I come quickly, Amen, even so come, Lord Jesus.

9. Look up to Heaven, and grow more and more weary of the World: A man that would always live here, is like a Scullion that loveth to lie among the Pans, in those blessed Mansions above thou shalt have pure company, and be out of the reach and danger of temptations; there is no Devil in Heaven, they were cast out long since, and we are to fill up their vacant rooms and places: The Devil when he was not fit for Heaven, he was cast into the World, a fit place for misery, sin, and torment; and now this is the Devils walk, be compasseth the Earth to and fro: Oh who would be in love with a place of Bondage, with Satans Diocesi! Oh who in this Pilgrimage, would not often look upwards and heaven-wards, and mind his home?

10. Go before-hand into that World to come, mind thy Eternity, into which thou must enter, the Lord knows how soon: It is a wonderful thing, that men of reason, that are here to day, and in endless joy or misery to morrow, should ever forget, or should not ever remember such unexpressible concerns: Come shake off thy worldly-mindedness, and instead thereof get this into thy mind, and dwell upon it, within a few days and nights thy soul will either be in Heaven or Hell; and if in Heaven, thou'lt little care for the World then, and why should thy care of it be too excessive now? or if in Hell, the World will leave thee for its pleasure, then only thy sinful care and minding of it, will vex and torment thee everlastingly: O relish this, as if now thou wert entering into that other World of Souls! Certainly thou standest at the Door, thou art daily dying, and even stepping in, there is but a thin Vail of flesh betwixt thee and that amazing sight, that eternal Gulf, and shall not this wean thee from thy worldliness?

11. Think over thy beginning, and thy ending. 1. For thy beginning, it was of nothing: Methinks I am considering what and where thou wast some few years ago, what and where thou wast when thy Father was born, or when he was a Child; if I lay aside an odd trifle of days, if I take away a short course of running time, no man or Woman now living was alive, and then creeping things, though they could but creep, did live, and rejoice in a comfortable being; and other little Creatures had Wings, and were able to fly readily, here, there, and here again, upwards and downwards; and thou (who now goest with such a grace, and lookest so full eyed, and buidest such Babels in thy imagination) hadst thou then no kind of being; these Churches, these Towns, these Kingdoms, this heap of Kingdoms, the World, were as now we see them, but thou for thy part was not so much as heard of, and all because thou wast not; the very same Sun that rises and sets did shine, now red, now pale upon the World, it ran its days journey, and constantly keep its time, such Birds of the same colours did sing, and hop from Branch to Branch, and fly from Tree to Tree, as now they do; Beasts and Fishes in the same diversity of shapes followed their several instincts of nature, the Winds blew cold and warm, and warm and cold again; men and women such as thou art, did as thou dost, and all this while thou wast not: O wonderful! a little while before yesterday thou knewest not that there was a World, that there were Angels, that there was a God; thou hadst no knowledge, no being, which is the foundation and ground of knowledge: O think think of this beginning! 2. For thy ending, it will be worse then nothing, if thou continuest a worldling still: Methinks I see thee lying on thy sick bed, or on thy deaths bed: Oh how pale and wan thou art! thou hadst a fresh and youthful colour the other day: Alas how much art thou changed from the gallant man thou wast? how thy breath labours, how every joynt shakes for excess of pain, how every Vein trembles, thy Eyes fix constantly upon one thing, as if there thou sawest the dreadful sentence of Eternity: Oh how little now do all thy profits, and incomes of the World pleasure thee! such rich Purchase, the favour of such a Noble Man, such and such a merry meeting, what do they help thee in this Agony? thy Friends are present, yet of themselves they are miserable Comforters; humane power stands amazed and cannot help thee, and for thy self, thou art so dulled and overclouded, with the pangs of death, that thou canst not raise from the fog of thy body one clean thought towards God or Heaven: See, see, thou art going, thou standest upon the Threshold, Death looks in at yonder corner, and aims at thy Heart, there flew the Arrow, and now here's a change indeed, thy Soul is gone, but it could not be seen. Verily, verily, here is the mind that bath Wisdom, to improve this Meditation, so as to avoid the Devils Temptation to worldliness, or worldly-mindedness

SECT. VIII.

Of Satan's Temptations to Wantonness, or fleshly Lusts.

IT is Satan which tempts men for their incontinency, and incontinency is in the Apostles stile, a turning aside after Satan, a neer correspondence and communion there is betwixt these two, the Devil and fleshly Lusts; and hence as he is called, the unclean Spirit, so are they called unclean Lusts, or uncleanness it self in the abstract, Rom. 1. 24. Ephes. 4. 19. 2 Pet. 2. 10. Some call these Lusts the Devils Captain, that smite at the Soul especially, 1 Pet. 2. 11. Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and Pilgrims abstain from fleshly Lusts, which war against the Soul.

Quest. But how doth Satan stir up these Lusts in men? I answer.—

Ans. 1. He observes the Temperature and Complexion of such and such a man, and if it be sanguine, he takes the advantage thereof, and accordingly tempts him to lust, incontinency, and all voluptuous pleasures of the flesh. Hence the Apostle was much afraid of his body, as probably being of such a temperature, 1 Cor. 9. 27. I keep under my body and bring it unto subjection, lest that by any means when I have preached unto others, I my self should be a cast-away. It is an allusion to Wrestlers, who fought for Masteries, when one did beat the other black and blew about the face: so was he fain to wrestle with his body to keep under his body, and to bring his body by mortifying of his carnal Lusts into subjection: He names not his fighting with the World and the Devil, though these be potent Enemies, but with the body only, because they could not easily hurt us, if this Domestical Enemy, and home-bred Adversary, did not betray us; lusts lies in the body like fire in the Flint, and any Temptation will draw them out. This Satan marks in the first place, that he may suitably fit his Temptations to the temperature and disposition of the body.

2. Sometimes he sets before such a one a taking object; he presents or holds up a sight or spectacle suitable to his Temper. Thus when David walked upon the roof of the Kings House, he saw a Woman washing her self, and the woman was very beautiful to look upon, and David sent, and enquired after the woman. I make no question but Satan had an hand in this: Many a time such a wanton object is cast into the way by Satans sleight, and he needs do no more to overcome a lascivious mind, if he but say, See yonder is a naked Breast, a naked Arm, a naked neck; and if such Signs hang at the Door, you may guess what immodesty is within: This he knows is taking, and thus he overcomes thousands of men, by stirring up their Lusts even through their Eyes.

3. Satan deals with a man a degree further, he not only presents such and such an object, but he casts in and injects the motion, he stirs and moves the imagination (surely that is the Devils Room wherein he doth often appear) he works upon the imagination many an impression, and many a suggestion to this and that base Lust; in this respect we may all cry out, O wretched men that we are, who shall deliver us from this body of death! or from these carnal Lusts, which are a death to us, or which threaten our spiritual death: A man while unblameable in his life, may yet have his imagination like a Cage of unclean Birds, and so in his Soul become guilty before God. The Apostle Peter speaks of some, who had eyes full of Adultery (it is in the original, full of the Adulterers) and that ceased not from sin: The meaning is, that imagination set their Eyes continually upon the Adulterers, so that they ceased not from sin, even while she was absent; they might be restrained from the actings of sin, and yet their Hearts burned inwardly with Lusts: and that is the meaning of the Prophet, They have made ready their Hearts like an Oven; that as the Oven heated is ready to bake any thing put therein, so was the Heart of those wicked men prepared for any kind of naughtiness, it lay in their Heart and Imagination day and night: O the perpetual constant workings of Satan upon the imagination! We say of other parts of the Soul (as of the will and mind,) that they are only subject to sin whiles we are awake, but the fancy or imagination, is many times very sinful in the night-time: How many polluted and wicked Dreams do men fall into at such a time, at which they tremble, and abhor themselves when once awakened?

4. Satan can do somewhat more than inject and suggest such thoughts; for he can mightily irritate and provoke; he can stir up the heart to be willing to give entertainment to such a lust: As Satan stood up and provoked David to number Israel; so I believe he stood up and provoked David to lie with Bathsheba; he did not only present the object, and move the imagination, but he provoked David, he never let him alone but followed him, and solicited him to it. It is true he could not force David to do evil, the will is never forced by Satan nor can it be, he uses no compulsion beyond a moral persuasion well set on, he hath no imperious efficacy over the will, yet he can strongly stir the imagination, and that exceedingly provokes the will, that it gives consent: And indeed, if the Soul be naturally destitute of Grace, it cannot withstand the suggestion and provocations of Satan, but anon it yields. And this is the manner of Satans stirring up fleshly Lusts in the Minds and Spirits of the Sons of men.

SECT. IX.

Of wrestling with Satan to overcome this sin.

IF this be thy darling sin; if by the constitution and grain of thy body, or by sinister Education or otherwise, thy mind and heart run much this way, then wrestle thus.

1. Avoid all occasions of Lusts. The Jewish Doctors thus charged their Novices, That by no means they should feed their Eyes with staring on the Generation of Beasts for fear of provocations. It is our wisdom to check the beginning of temptations, to cast away the very first fancy of Lust with indignation: Surely if we give liberty, and fall to parley and talk with Lusts, they will gain more and more upon us, and then be harder to resist. He walks more evenly that flyeth from temptations, and keeps at a distance from that which would ensnare him, then he that suffers the Bait to be near him, and at hand. Davids woful experience may tell what it is to give way to a wandering lustful Eye; and Josephs Resolution may tell what an advantage it is to fly away, and not stand a parley with temptations. In this case, he wrestles best with the Devil, that turns his back on the temptation: Fly youthful Lusts, saith Paul to Timothy; he calls on him, not only to avoid, nor only to run, but to fly from, or to make all post haste away from them. Come not near the door of her house. It was the speech of one, who though sick, yet would not have the temptation come nigh him; saying, Auferte ignem, adhuc enim paleas habeo: Take away the fire, for I have yet chaff within me.

2. Set a guard on the outward Senses. He that looketh on a woman to lust after her (saith Christ), hath committed adultery with her already in his heart. There are Stories of Heathens, that they would not look upon excellent beauties, lest they should have been ensnared: I made a Covenant with my eyes (saith Job). Why then should I look upon a Maid? The Eye Job 31. 1. must be guarded; nor is that all, Take heed also of lending thy ears to filthy talk, rotten Speeches, wanton Discourses, ribald Songs; it was the Apostles charge, But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named amongst you, as becometh Saints; neither filthiness, nor foolish talking, nor jesting, which are not convenient; and let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good, to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers. Eph. 5. 3, 4. Eph. 4. 29. Mark here, how filthy speech is called corrupt, or rotten communication, like Carrion in a Ditch, which should cause all that pass by to stop their Noses. Oh that any should delight to speak or hear such things! what (say some) may we not jest and be merry, without all this ado? But we answer, Have you no honester mirth than this? will you feed upon that which is Carrion, and corrupt? Will you make merriness with that which God condemneth, and threatneth to shut you out of his Kingdom for? Have you nothing but filthiness, and the service of the Devil, and the wrath of God to play with, and to make merry withal? Idle talk is the Devils Minstrelsie, and prepareth people to actual Whoredomes, for thoughts and words are but preparatives to deeds. The same may we say of unchaste touchings, lascivious behaviours, lustful smilings, &c. why, all these must be avoided; a sparkle, if it lye maketh a great fire; a little leaven doth run through the whole lump.

3. Act all thy affections of desire, and love, and joy, on Jesus Christ: Is not he thy Bridegroom? hath not he married thee to himself in holiness? and wilt thou espouse thy self to the Devil his Enemy, by the meditation of filthy and base lusts? Oh what indignity is this to Jesus Christ? if there be any thing of Christ in thee, turn the stream of thy desires and lustings in a spiritual manner towards him, it is, he is thy Husband, whose comeliness should be always in thy eye, and whose beauty should for ever inflame thy heart, whose loves should draw out thy affections strongly, and whose converse should fill thy mind and enlarge it altogether; here is one that should lead thee captive, body and soul. Now for this excellent one to be out-bid by so base and harlotary love, for Jesus Christ to be cast off, as if not fair, or worthy enough for a polluted Creature, how should it but be deep in the Heart of God, and of Jesus Christ? Hark how the Apostle questions, Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the Members of an Harlot? God forbid. 1 Cor. 6. 15.

4. Avoid idleness, for that is the proper soil for these filthy weeds to grow in: Fancies of sinful lusts seldom offer themselves, where the Soul is busied in some innocent or virtuous employment. A man that diligently follows his particular calling, hath something else to mind, but if he gives himself up to idleness, then Satan is bane with a bait:

bait : As a standing Pool, not having any course of running, groweth filthy of it self, and full of Toads, and noisom Vermin, so the Heart, that is not taken up in some good and honest Calling, is a fit place for the Devil, wherein to breed, and to ingender Lusts : What was the reason why the Sodomites grew so filthy and unclean, but because having the most fruitful and abundant Country in the world, they grew rich, and gave themselves to nothing else but to ease and delight ? Their nature was no worse than others, but their idleness did so corrupt their Hearts, as the Devil had liberty to cast in, and they had leisure to put on all monstrous and unclean desires.

Cor. 9. 27. 5. Keep under thy body, and bring it into subjection; subdue thy flesh to the obedience and discipline of the Spirit of God : My meaning is not to fasten any thing of will-worship on thee, such as Scourges, Hair-cloaths, Pilgrimages, Vows of willing Beggery, and perpetual Continency : The keeping under of thy Body, is a business of another nature, and consists in the mortifying of Lusts, and in the exercises of Piety, and yet this I grant, that intemperance and delicacy in meat and drink, is herein forbidden; the more the fewer, the greater is the flame; the body must be so dieted, as that the nimbleness and readiness requisite to a Spiritual Combate may still be maintained : This was Paul's care, lest that when he had preached to others, he himself should have been a Cast-away : A Cast-away; what's that ? not a Reprobate, as if he were uncertain of his Election, but reprobable or unapproved : It is a Metaphor taken from those who proved Masteries, and hath regard to those times, when there were certain Colleges or Academies (like our Artillery Gardens) for exercise of Arms, where the Novices that submitted not themselves to the rigour of their discipline, or were found tardy in their trials, or of purse or unweildy bodies, were cashiered or reprov'd by their Masters : in this respect Paul kept his body under, lest he should have been reprobable, or unapproved, as those were that poorly and faintly wrestled, or ran for the prize.

6. Be in the use of holy Ordinances. What Ordinances ?

1. The Word, whether read, or heard, or meditated on. Paul calls it, the Sword of the Spirit : When Christ had his combate with Satan, he made no use of his Authority to command him away, but of the Word, thus it is written. Meek reason was never appointed by God to drive away Satan, but run we to the Word, and that will do it : I have suffered, (saith Luther) many great Passions, but so soon as I lay hold on any piece of Scripture, and staid my self upon it, as upon my chief Anchor-bolt, straightway my temptations vanished. Hence we are commanded to search the Scriptures, as men search in Mines for Gold, and the rather because here is all Gold, and no Dross. The particulars that herein thou art to follow, are these.

1. Thou must have ready the Precept, forbidding that sin to which thou art prone ;

what is it, uncleanness ? urgethen these Texts, Avoid Satan, for it is written, thou shalt not commit adultery; and, Avoid Satan, for it is written, mortifie your members which are upon earth, fornication, uncleanness, inordinate affection, evil concupiscence. Again, Avoid Satan, for it is written this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication, that every one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honour, not in the lust of concupiscence; — for God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness.

2. Thou must have ready the threatening, that if thou yieldest, thou indangerest all. Eve was strict enough to mind the Commandment, God hath said ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it; but when she came to the commination, where God said, ye shall surely die, she falters, and hath it thus, lest ye die : Take care therefore of this, to add the commination, to the prohibition, not only to say, it is written thou shalt not commit adultery, but withal fornicators and adulterers God will judge : The works of the flesh are manifest, which are these, adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, of which I tell you before, as I have also told you in times past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the Kingdom of God : Be not deceived, neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, — shall inherit the Kingdom of God. Lust, as it is inkindled of Hell, so it shall be there perpetually punished; the Holy Angels will at the last day be most active against such, to bring them to condign punishment, 2 Pet. 2. 10.

3. Thou must have ready the promise, both for avoiding, and rewarding. 1. For avoiding the temptation, thou hast these promises, Whoso pleaseth God, shall escape from her, but the sinner shall be taken by her. — And the God of peace sanctifie you wholly, and I pray God your whole spirit, and Soul, and body may be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it. 2. For rewarding thee if thou overcomest, thou hast these promises, Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God : And I looked, and the Lamb stood on the Mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Fathers name written in their foreheads. — These are they which were not defiled with women, for they are Virgins; these are they which follow the Lamb, whithersoever he goeth; these were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God, and to the Lamb. O live by faith, and feed on these promises !

2. Prayer. A man is never overcome by temptation, as long as he can pray against it, he may perhaps be more troubled then, but what if he be, let him pray on still, yea pray with perseverance, and all manner of Prayer, and the end will be, that if he do not give over to pray, Satan must and will give over to tempt : But what should I pray for ? why, pray that God may purifie thy heart, and sanctifie it by his holy Spirit; pray that God may give thee strength to overcome Satan in his fiery temptation; tell him, that thy Lusts and Corruptions are too hard for thee, thee, and therefore thou art forced to bring to him this unclean Devil, and either he must help thee to cast him out, or thou shalt not prevail: Pray also that God may give thee patience to wait upon him, till he shall perform thy desires, how long thou must be put to wait, I know not, but if thou diest waiting, thou shalt be blessed; only pray that it may be, and wait with patience till it shall be, and God will come in then in his appointed time.

3. Meditation. But on what should I meditate? 1. On Gods Presence, he sees, knows, understands thy Actions, Words, Gestures, Thoughts within thee, thou wouldst be ashamed to be seen of men, and is not God of purer Eyes? Oh let thine Heart be on his Eye! 2. On the shortness of pleasure, it is but momentary, but the gnawing of thy guilty Conscience will abide for ever. 3. On thy mortality: Oh let thoughts of thy death be the death of thy Lusts! Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims abstain from fleshly lusts. 4. On Hell fire; fiery sins will beget fiery torments. I have read a Story of a young Virgin, that being tempted by a young Man to the act of Uncleanness, she gave him this answer, If you will grant me one thing (said she) I will satisfy your demand; he told her he would; why then (said she) I desire you would put your finger for a whole hour to burn in this Candle: O, said the man, that you ask me is unreasonable: It is true (said she) it is unreasonable, but you ask me a request more unreasonable, to satisfy you in a thing, for which I shall not only burn one hour, but for ever and ever in the fire of hell. The like Story is that of a young man, who every time he felt lust to arise in him, he would run to the fire, and put his finger in the flame, and scorch his finger, and then would reason with himself, and say, O my soul, and O my body, if thou canst not endure a minutes time to hold thy finger in the Fire, how wilt thou endure to all Eternity, to have not only thy finger, but thy whole body in hell flames? And by this means (as he saith of himself) he got such strength to mortifie those burning Lusts within him.

4. Looking unto Jesus in his death. Art thou troubled with a spirit of uncleanness? go to the Cross of Christ, contemplate his death, consider seriously and sadly his bitter, shameful, painful Suffering, and then cry, O that virtue may come out of this death of Christ to mortifie my Lusts? Certainly there is a conveyance of mortifying virtue flowing into the Soul, in the time of its viewing, eying, contemplating, reflecting, upon Christ crucified, Christ lifted up, and this comes from the secret presence of God, blessing this our looking upon Christ, as the Ordinance by which he hath appointed to make an effectual impression upon the Heart. It may be when all is done, this sin as to some burlings within, will not die or cease in thee altogether, only through the Grace of Christ it shall not reign, it shall not have dominion over thee, Christs death will kill it by degrees, and be thankful for that.

5. The last Ordinance I shall name, is Marriage, and the due and lawful enjoyment of it. This is a principal end of Marriage, to keep a man chaste; It is good for a man not to touch a Virgin; nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife. And if this prevail not, see whether thou hast not been guilty of uncleanness before Marriage; if so, thou must truly repent of it, for Marriage, without Repentance, abates not the power of lust. Be in the practice of all the particulars mentioned before, avoid all occasions of Lust, set a guard on thy Senses, for thou mayst be drunk with thy own Fountain, if either in Eye, or Ear, or Tongue or Hand, or out of time, or out of measure thou abusest thyself; set thy affections of desire and love, and joy on Jesus Christ, take heed of idleness, and idle company, keep under thy body, be in use of Holy Ordinances, bring the unclean Devil to Christ himself to be cast out, and if the Word, or Prayer will not do it, add fasting to all, and either in ordinary or extraordinary Duties God will be seen. And if ever thou diest to Lust in thy Affections, and in thy Conversations, if ever thou gettest the Victory and God ease thee of thy Vexation and give thee a chaste Mind, to thy content and comfort. Oh remember to be thankful, lest the temptation come again, and bring seven Temptations with it worse than himself.

SECT. X.

Of Satan's Temptations to Pride.

Some men are naturally, and by disposition prone to Pride; not that any one is free, but some are more prone than others. Indeed there is a great dispute, which is the Master-sin in every man? No question (as we have said) in every one is some one sin, which carries one one way, another another way; and this sin, whatsoever it is, ariseth from Complexion, Education, Condition, and other causes, and occasions, which often varies, as the temper of our Bodies, and the order of our estate doth change: Hence this year it is one sin, and seven years hence (as every seventh year there is a sensible change in the humour of the body) it is another sin: But that sin of all sins, which runs through all Ages, and through all the race of Mankind, it is Pride; and in this respect, this is the Captain sin, the most general and universal sin in all the World: Unbelief may have that name, and be well called our Master-sin, in respect of Justification; but the chief sin which is our greatest moral Vice, and carries continually the greatest power with it, in respect of Sanctification, it is the sin of Pride. All other sins do a kind of homage to Pride, as to their King and Lord: other sins that we (speaking from feeling) do call our Master-sins, are made use of by God to humble his Saints, and to eat out this sin; and therefore this sin of Pride is in that respect also the chiefest sin. As we say in Tracts, there is a Master master-root, so in original sin the master-root is pride; and therefore God that resists all other sins, is said especially to resist this sin afar off, he cannot abide the sight of it. Now Satan that knows this full well, labours with might and main to provoke all men to this sin; it was his own sin, the very sin that made him of a blessed Angel a cursed Devil, and therefore he chiefly labours to derive this sin to all the sons of men; and indeed he so far prevailed on our first parents, by telling them, Ye shall be as Gods, Gen. 3. 5. that ever since this sin hath claimed a kind of Regency in the hearts of all; as we are sinful, so we are all proud, all would be flattered into an esteem of themselves, ye shall be as gods, is a temptation to all sorts of men: Hence we say, pride is a weed that grows in every ground, yea, on humility it self. Do we not see men pretend to humility for their greater rise in the world? What self-denial and hardship will men and women endure for this very sin? witness, naked breasts, and naked arms, and naked shoulders, we all hold of Adam in Capite: Pride was the first and great sin in Adam, and so it is in all his seed; we had this lust from him, and he had this lust from the Angels: O the pride of Angels! it gives them their fall, and O the pride of Adam! it gave him his fall; and O the pride that is in us! and therefore without repentance we also may perish by this Epidemical sin.

S E C T. XI.

Of our wrestling with Satan to overcome this sin in some particulars.

THat by Gods grace we may be able to wrestle with Satan and this sin: we may do well to observe some things in particular, and then deal with it in general.

1. In particular: Pride is either conversant about carnal objects, as pride of beauty, strength, riches, apparel, &c. or about spiritual objects, as pride of gifts, graces, priviledges. I shall speak to both these.

1. For the former, as the objects are several, so in respect of them severally consider thus.

1. For beauty, consider thy beauty is but skin deep; and never was any so beautiful, but the flowers of the field, such as the Rose and Lilly, do in beauty of colours go beyond them:

Pro. 31. 30. This made the wise man say, Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vanity, but a woman that feareth the Lord she shall be praised; that is the true comeliness, and best beauty, which a picture cannot express. Art thou fair and beautiful (saith Chrysostome) why this is the glory of Daws, and not of men; thou art not fairer than the Peacock, or the Swan; do we not see harlots, and effeminate men have a great share in this glory? Besides, what loathsome matter lieth hid under this fair skin? what filthy excrements are they that issue out of the nose, eyes, and ears, and pores, and other passages? if the fountain within were but viewed whence all these come, how might this humble thee?

I may add this ill of beauty, it is used most frequently by the Devil for a bait to sin, it is a shining flame to set mens hearts on fire with unlawful lusts: But if there were nothing else, alas! to what purpose art thou proud of a thing so mutable, a little scratch impaireth it, and a greater wound doth quite deform it; a days sickness doth much abate it, or if it be but of a weeks continuance it doth quite deface it; yea, so fading is it, that a little Sunshine robbeth us of it; or if it be preserved from the violence of extraordinary accidents, yet time will by little and little steal it away: When old age cometh, it ploughs deep furrows in the most beautiful visage, it changeth the colour, and when death comes, the most amiable countenance will be so deformed, that they who most admire it, will then loath it. Oh that thou wouldst turn the edge of thy affections from this earthly trall, to spiritual and heavenly beauty! Oh that thou wouldst mind the beauty of the mind, which consists in virtue and the sanctifying graces of Gods spirit! Old age shall never make any wrinkles in the face of this, sickness shall never hurt this, violence shall not deface this, grief and sorrow shall not impair this, death it self shall not blemish or disgrace this, but rather it shall Crown this beauty of grace with the beauty of glory.

2. For strength consider, this is common to men and beasts: How vain is it therefore that any should be proud of such base vanities? Art thou strong (saith Chrysostome) and art thou therefore proud? why the Lion is hardier then thou, and the Boar is stronger then thou; yea, robbers, thieves, ruffians, and thy own Servants excel thee herein, and dost thou think this is a thing praise worthy? Thou art strong, but can this deliver thee from those innumerable dangers unto which this frail life is daily subject? The King is not saved by the multitude of an host, neither is the mighty man delivered by his great strength; it can neither defend thee from the Judgments of God, nor from the assaults of the Devil; it can neither deliver thee from sickness nor death. Oh that thou wouldst be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might! Oh that thou wouldst put on the whole Armour of God, that thou mightst be able to stand against the wiles of the devil! why, this is strength to purpose, hereby thou mightst be able to do all things through Christ that strengtheneth thee: Hereby thou mightst stand manfully in the day of battel against all the assaults of thy spiritual enemies; bodily strength without this is little worth: oh! what will become of thee in the day of tryal?

3. For riches, consider thy riches will not avail in the day of the Lords fierce wrath; what is a fat portion to a lean soul? outward things never mend us, but often worsen us, for a man to be proud of riches, it is as if an horse should be proud of his trappings; thy riches are but thorns, which unless a man hold warily he is sure to be pricked? Hence are so many Epithets of riches in Scripture, that they may wean our affections from priding in them, as the Mammon of unrighteousness, the riches of the world, the deceitfulness of riches.

Augustine

Augustine adds, that they are an evil master, a treacherous servant, fathers of flattery, sons of grief, a cause of fear to those that have them, and a cause of sorrow to those that want them. Oh that men, Christians, Professors of Religion should ever be choaked with these thorns, or intangled with these snares, or especially overtaken with pride, of such sordid, carnal, worldly things!

4. For apparel; consider, that this was the effect of sin; had our first parents continued in their state of innocency, they had remained glorious in themselves, but sin brought shame, and this shame they would cover by the help of garments: What then is our apparel, but a daily Monitor to call our sin and shame to remembrance? Oh that men should vaunt themselves in this vanity! As if a thief being adjudged to wear an halter for his Crimes, should make him one of silk, or golden twist, and because it glitters should presently grow proud of that, which indeed should humble him: Why, our apparel is the very sign of our sin, and shall we convert that which is given us to hide our sin into sin it self? before Adam sinned the most glorious garment would have been to him but as a Cloud to the Sun; and after Adam sinned (to put him in mind of his sin and shame) God cloathed him not with silks or velvets, curiously imbroider'd with gold and silver, but with beasts-skins; surely this was to humble him, and not to puff him up with pride; this was to mind him of his brutish condition, yea of his frailty and mortality, seeing the creatures, for his sake, were already subject to death and vanity: Oh that thou

1 Tim. 2. 9. would'st mind the Word, which bids thee ar-
1 Pet. 3. 3. ray thy self with shamefastness and modesty, not with broider'd hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly apparel! Oh that thou would'st consider thy self a pilgrim upon earth, and therefore thou shouldst not go as a Citizen, or Courtier of this world! Oh! that as a Noble-man would be ashamed to borrow cloaths of a beggar, so thou would'st rather be ashamed, than glory in the ornaments which thou borrowest from inferiour creatures, as from one his fleece, and from another his skin, and from another his feathers, and from another his bones, and from another his entrails, excrements, what not? why alas, beasts, and birds, and filly worms, have the first title, and not natural interest to all thou wearest, and thou comest to it only by conquest, violence, and force of arms? Oh that thou would'st remember, that thy gay apparel doth not make thee more religious, humble, just and temperate; it doth not abate thy pride, but rather increaseth it; it doth not extinguish the heat of lust, but rather inflames it; it doth not warm thy heart with charity nor expel the force of Satans darts, but rather causeth thy love to freeze, and lays open thy soul to Satans blows! A vicious man adorned with glorious garments, is like a dead corps stuck with flowers, or like the stately Temples of Egypt, which had the outward Courts, Porches, Walls, and Roofs richly adorned with Gold, and Silver, and curious carving and engraving, but if a man went into the inmost parts, to see the Idol which was there worshipped, instead of some stately Image set out according to the rest of the bravery and pomp, he could find nothing but the base picture, or resemblance of some Cat, or Crocodile, or ugly Serpent: These men who load themselves with costly apparel, if this outward glory were but removed, and they more narrowly search'd into the inmost Temple of their hearts, instead of Gods Image shining in his Spiritual Graces, we should find perhaps Crocodiles, and Serpents, lusts, and pride, and wantonness, and immodesty, and such like sins. O that men professing mortification, should ever be thus vain!

2. For the other objects of pride, as they are more spiritual, so it concerns Christians to be more heedful: A meer natural man is proud of his beauty, strength, riches, apparel, or the like; but a Christian is chiefly prone to be puffed up with higher and more raised perfections as being more suitable to his Christian calling. Now as these objects are several, so in respect of them severally consider thus—

1. For gifts; consider, these gifts are not thy own, but Gods, and not for thy self, but for others edifying, and one day thou must make a reckoning for them all: And what, art thou proud of anothers bounty given on these terms? Suppose a man should leave a Chest of money in thy hands, to be distributed to others, what folly were it to put it into thy own Inventory? Bernard was much troubled with this temptation, when even in preaching, pride would be whispering in his ear, Bene fecisti Bernarde; O well done Bernard. But he was humbled for this in the midst of his Sermon, being interrupted by Satan, he turned to him, and spake these words, Non propter te hoc opus captum est, non propter te, nec in te finitur: This Sermon was not begun for thee, nor shall it end in thee. Pride is a worm bred in the Rose, and the more parts men have, the more doth this disease increase: But oh consider that of the Apostle's. What hast 1 Cor. 4. 7. thou that thou hast not received? Now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory as if thou hadst not received it? Matthew Paris relates of a great Scholar, much admired for his learning, that in his Lectures once in the Schools, proving the divine and humane nature of Christ with great applause, he most arrogantly said, That Christ was beholden to him for that dispute, and that he owed (as it were) his Divine Nature to his Learning; upon which blasphemy he was immediately stricken with ignorance, and such sottishness, that he was afterward taught the Lords Prayer by a little child: Oh that men should ever pride themselves about notions and apprehensions? Oh that men should forget the account they must give and make of every talent! It may be thou hast a great measure of gifts, Oh take heed! for if thou dost unprofitably bury them, or abuse them unto sin, the greater and more fearful shall thy condemnation be: The Servant that knoweth his Masters Luke 12. will, and doth it not shall be beaten with many stripes.

2. For graces; consider, they will not justify, they cannot save, why then art thou proud of thy own righteousness? those who have had had more to shew than thy felt, have thrown away all, and gone a begging to Jesus Christ. Phil. 3. 4. 5, 6, 7, 8. Read Paul's Inventory, though I might have confidence in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more. Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the Tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews: as touching the Law, a Pharisee: concerning zeal, persecuting the Church: touching the righteousness which is in the Law, blameless; and what of all this? Why, all this was nothing, what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ; yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss, for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them as dung that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having my own righteousness, which is of the Law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith. I am not against graces, and gracious actings, but I am against pride in them, or trusting to them: Certainly grace will never thrive this way. verse 9. One observes, that some have a long time been professors, and yet come but to a little growth in love to God, humility, heavenly-mindedness, mortification; and 'tis worth the digging, to see what lies at the root of their profession, whether there be not a legal principle that hath too much acted them; did they not think to carry all with God from their duties, services, graces, or gracious actings? Alas this is as so much dead earth, which must be thrown out, and Gospel principles be laid in the room thereof. Methinks I am in this taken with the Author, and therefore hearken to his advice, try but this course, and see whether the Spring of thy grace will not come on apace. David gives an account how he came to stand and flourish, when some that were rich and mighty, on a sudden withered, and came to nothing; Psal. 5. 2. 7. 8. Lo this is the man that made not God his strength, but trusted in the abundance of his riches; but I am like a green Olive tree in the house of God, I trust in the mercy of God for ever and ever. Whilst others trust in the riches of their righteousness, and services, and make not Christ their strength, do thou renounce all, and trust only in the mercy of God in Christ, and then shalt thou be like a green Olive tree in the House of God.

3. For priviledges, such as spiritual comforts, sense of pardon, manifestations of Gods love, &c. consider, these were given (if ever they were given) to humble thee and not to make thee proud. It is true that in the best of Saints, there remains such dregs of corruption unpurged, that the Devil often makes these priviledges an occasion of pride; and indeed the Lord lets us see our proneness to this sin, by the short stay he usually makes when he comes in with any such discoveries: A short interview of Heaven now and then cheers up a Christian, who had he but a constant shine, he would forget himself, and grow too wanton: Was not Paul in danger of pride from his short rapture? but therefore it was but short, and God gave him a prick in the flesh to keep him down: if ever comfort abounds, and God dandles thee on the knee of his love, take heed then of this sin of pride, it is God's meaning by this to cheer thee a little, but then to humble thee, and not to puff thee up: As when he gave Manna to Israel in the Wilderness, it was not to swell them, but to humble them, who fed thee in the wilderness with Manna which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee: So when God gives out his spiritual comforts, his end is, and his meaning is to humble thee; how can that be? why, if not in the gift, yet in the manner of his giving it, thou may'st see it: If the Israelites could not see any thing in the Manna to humble them, for it was not mean food, but delicious food, called Angels food, yet in the manner of dispensing it from hand to mouth, in giving them every day their portion, and no more, in keeping the key of their Cup-board (as one speaks) and making them to stand to his immediate allowance, in this they might know that his purpose was to humble them; thy priviledges are precious and rare things; it may be thou art weak in grace, or thou art in the beginning of a new and Christian course, and lest thou faint in the way, the Lord is pleased sometimes to take thee up in his arms, and to give thee the kisses of his mouth, but presently he lets thee down again, and makes thee feel thy feet in the ordinary way of duties, and his very cherishing thee is to humble thee: Dost thou not see thy weakness by his carrying of thee in his arms? Weak children are oftner in the mothers lap, than those that are strong, and it is but a while, a very little while, that he thus deals with thee. Oh then take heed of pride, lest he send thee a prick in the flesh to let thee blood, or a Devil out of hell to buffet thee soundly for thy pride; if he thus dealt with Paul, how much more may he thus deal with thee? Oh consider of this.

SECT. XII.

Of our wrestling with Satan in general, to overcome this sin.

BUT as thus I have dealt with some particulars, so I would propound some general rules, which may indifferently serve for every latitude, meridian, or elevation of pride As—

1. Press into Gods presence; consider of Gods greatness, purity, holiness, perfection, Majesty: A sight of his glory were enough to humble thee, and cast thee down into a depth of Dragons. To this purpose we are called on, to humble our selves in the sight of God. A Lam. 4. 10. A sight of God is it that makes the creature shrink into nothing: Now mine eyes see thee (saith Job) wherefore I abhor my self; and repent in dust and ashes: This made Elisha to wrap his face in a mantle; this made the Angels cover their faces and feet; this made the twenty four Elders to cast their Crowns before the Throne of the Lamb. Revel. 4. 10. Nothing will more pluck thy plumes of pride, than a serious view of the glory of God: as the Stars vanish when the Sun appeareth, so will our poor candle when the glory of God ariseth in burs thoughts: Come then look on him, and be humbled; that

Isai. 6. 5. a creature so vile (as thou wilt then appear) should ever be proud; Then said I, woe is me, for I am undone, because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips, for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts.

2. Note that sin especially, which all thy life long hath been of most infamy, and dwell upon it: David once fell foully into adultery, and therefore he cried, My sin is ever before me; it kept him very low, Lord, my heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty, neither do I exercise my self in great matters, or in things too high for me: I am even as a child that is weaned of his mother, my soul is even as a weaned child.

1 Tim. 1. Paul was once a persecutor, and injurious, and therefore he cries, O I am the least of Saints, and the greatest of sinners: This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners of whom I am chief. Men are proud, because they know not themselves; when Agur had but studied himself, he cries Surely I am more brutish than any man, I have not the understanding of man. If we would but examine our selves, and call to mind our foulest sins, and most irregular practises, these would be as the Peacocks feet to pull down our plumes. O who could be proud whilst he were raking in the filth of his most noisome lusts?

3. Observe Gods Judgments on pride, either on thy self or others. Nebuchadnezzar's pride made his heart like the beasts, so that his dwelling was with the wild asses, they fed him with grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven. And as on him, so Gods Judgments fell on his Son, for so it follows, And thou his Son, O Belshazzar, hast not humbled thine heart though thou knowest all this, but hast lifted up thy self against the Lord of heaven, and therefore God sent the writing, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN: Are not these terrible examples? With God is terrible Majesty, saith Job: He shall cut off the spirit of Princes, saith David; he is terrible to the Kings of the earth; he cuts off their spirits that are proud, in Hebrew he slips them off, as one would slip off a flower between his fingers: And thus he dealt with Pharaoh, Antiochus, Herod, and other proud Tyrants. Antioch King of the Syrians proudly gave out, that the Stars fell before him, and the Earth trembled at his presence, and he would be the scourge of all Nations, but shortly after he died by a Flux of Blood, breaking out at his mouth, which choked him on his wedding day.

4. Looking unto Jesus, and conform to him, yea, by faith draw out the spiritual virtue of an humble Christ: Christs example, is not only directive, but full of virtue; the very hem of his Garment, believingly touched, would cure this bloody issue: Was not this Christs own lesson? Learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls, q. d. Learn of me, for I am lowly: I am sent by God the Father into the world, and this is one special end that I am sent into the world for, even to hold out unto the world a pattern of humility, I am appointed as a great Ordinance of God the Father to hold forth this, and therefore look on me, and be ye lowly, as I am lowly: Surely good reason we should be as he was, lowly, as he was lowly, and humble, as he was humble. When Rebecca came to Isaac, and she saw him walking in the field, and asked the servant who it was, and he said it was his Master's Son, presently Rebecca lighted down, and goes on her feet, she would be as he was; he walked, and Rebecca would walk too: It is good reason that the Spouse of Christ should be lowly as Christ; and therefore saith Christ, Learn of me, look on me, write after me, let the same mind be in you, which was in me; Every Christian is united to Jesus Christ, and should be acted by the same Spirit that Christ is: Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who being in the form of God, thought it no robbery to be equal with God, but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men, and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself. Now let this mind be in you. As pride is the resemblance of the Devil, which brought him to ruine, so is humility the resemblance of Jesus Christ, which brought him to honour. O then let this mind be in you, which was in Christ! look at him in all the particular acts of his humility, and by faith draw virtue out of all those acts.

5. Let every act of pride be accompanied with a subsequent act of humiliation: If thou canst not prevent this sin of pride, yet check it so soon as ever it riseth. This was Hezekiah's course, after he was sick, and restored to health, he forgot himself, and render'd not again according to the benefit done unto him, for his heart was lifted up, therefore there was wrath upon him, and upon Judah and Jerusalem; notwithstanding Hezekiah humbled himself, for the pride of his heart (both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem) so that the wrath of the Lord came not upon them in the days of Hezekiah. It is high time to be humbled, and lye low, when thou hast committed such a sin, as to provoke God to wrath. Hear ye, and give ear, be not proud, for the Lord hath spoken. — But if ye will not hear, my soul shall weep in secret places for your pride. If pride go before, humiliation must follow after: Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep, let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your joy to heaviness; humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up.

6. Treasure up some holy principles, and keep them fresh and ready in thy thoughts to quell this sin: when we would suppress weeds, we usually sow the contrary seed; so have thou at hand, and in mind, some contrary seed, some holy Principles. I shall instance in these two.

1. Pride is the fore-runner of ruine; it is a Proverb as true, as commonly spoken, that pride goes before a fall. Indeed Solomon in his Proverbs gives that for one, pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall; and therefore he portrayed the proud man to the life, that pictured him snatching at at a Crown, and falling, with this Motto, Sic mea fata sequor.

Luke 14. 11. 18. 14. 2. Humility is the way to glory; this is often inculcated by our Saviour, He that humbleth himself shall be exalted: We are all by nature proud (as we have heard) we should all be exalted; how is it then that we forget this principle? The way to rise, is to fall; God gave us a pattern of it in Jesus Christ: First, he emptied himself, and humbled himself to the death of the Cross, wherefore God hath highly exalted him, and given him a Name above all Names. I know not any good, but humility is a means to obtain it; am I in trouble? and would I have deliverance? The Lord heareth the desires of the humble: Am I in a place of honour? and do I fear a fall? A mans pride shall bring him low, but honour shall uphold the humble in spirit. Though places of advancement be slippery, yet the humble shall be upheld: Am I disconsolate? and would I see more of God, and of his favour and love? he that is in the lowest pits, sees Stars in the day time, the Lord will revive the spirits of the humble: Would I be advanced not only on earth, but in heaven? whoever shall humble himself as a little child, the same shall be greatest in the Kingdom of heaven.

O think of these principles? pride leads to hell, but humility to heaven: It was an answer that a Philosopher gave to one that asked him, what God did in heaven? Why, said he, He is beating down the proud, and lifting up the humble.

SECT. XIII.

Of Satans Temptations to Passion, or Anger.

Others are of cholerick dispositions, and so prone to passion or anger, that they break all Rules, both of Reason and Religion; now Satan that observes their temper, puts on, to make them more raging, fierce, and furious; Satan still hath a great hand and stroak in every sin, he can easily make use of our bodies, by commotion of the humours, he can stir us up to uncleanness, passion, revenge, and all other sensual lusts: Hence carnal desires are called his lusts, Job. 8. 44. and giving place to anger, is in the Apostles language, a giving place to the devil, Ephes. 4. 26, 27. Indeed the Heathen, who understood not the operation of the Devil, thought all our conflicts were against internal passions, but my Text is clear, We wrestle not only against them, but against Principalities, and Powers, and Rulers of the darkness of this world, and spiritual wickednesses in heavenlies. I shall not deny, but sometimes we begin the temptation, and sometimes Satan; as Zanard speaking of the outward power of the Devil over tempests, Sometimes, said he, he may raise the matter, at other times the matter being prepared, Satan may adjoin himself and make the tempest more impetuous. And yet for all this, it must be granted, there is a just, and harmless and holy anger. Be ye angry, and sin not, saith the Apostle. Thus Jacob was angry, Gen. 30. 2. and Moses was angry, Numbers 16. 15. and Nehemiah was angry, Neh. 5. 6. and Jeremiah was angry, Jer. 6. 11. and Christ himself was angry, Mark 3. 5. But this passion of anger I speak of, it is that which is unjust and sinful, it is anger which gives place to the Devil, it is an anger which misses in object, time, measure, end, and other circumstances. Give me leave but a while to insist on these, and then you will know what anger is sinful, and what anger I mean—

1. It is such an anger as misses in respect of the object, holy anger hath a right object, as matters of Reason, Religion, the honour and glory of God, and of Jesus Christ; but sinful anger is either exercised about nothing: Thus many are angry, and they know not wherefore; there's a great deal of cry (as they say) and but little wooll; or it is exercised about every thing. Thus every trifle, every toy, any thing in the world, that falls out in the least manner against their minds, puts many into anger; or it is exercised against some excellency that God hath bestowed upon others more than themselves: So Saul was angry with David, and Cain was angry with Abel: When Tygers smell the fragrantcy of spices, they are put into a rage or fury (as sometimes you have heard) so many were angry at the graces of Gods Spirit which they observe in others: These, and such like are the objects about which sinful anger is conversant.

2. It is such an anger as misses in respect of time: holy anger is deliberate, seasonable, and short, but the anger which the Devil sets on, it is. 1. Sudden and indeliberate: Thus many men and women have tender spirits, or Gun-powder spirits, as soon as ever the fire comes to them, they are all in a flame: Against this, saith Solomon, be that is soon angry Pro. 4. 17. dealeth foolishly; and be not hasty in thy spirit to be angry, for anger resteth in the bosome of fools, Eccles. 7. 9. From this hasty anger, we call the passion of anger hastiness; such a man is an hasty man, or such a woman is an hasty woman. Now this is folly, saith the wise man; He that is slow to wrath is of great understanding, but he that is hasty of spirit exalteth folly: Wherefore my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath. Holy anger is slow wherein it imitates God, but sinful anger is sudden. 2. It is unseasonable; thus many are angry in the presence of others, who should not see it, or they are angry when they see others angry before them. This minds me of the counsel that one gave to a young married couple, who were both of passionate and cholerick spirits, that they should be sure not to be angry together, it cannot be good to add heat to fire; or they are angry when they are about to perform a duty, this is the Devils season; many are angry, either before Sermon, or after Sermon, or, it may be, immediately before or after prayer; to these, saith Christ, first be reconciled to thy Brother, and then come and offer thy gift. And of these saith the Apostle, I will therefore that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands without wrath. This wrath, at such a time, is an impoysoning and heavy hindrance derance, which clogs and clips the Wings of a Prayer, that it can never be able to ascend up into Heaven; and therefore this anger is very unseasonable. 3. Sinful anger is constant, it abides too long, the Sun goes down upon it: when the Apostle said, Be angry, and sin not, he adds, let not the Sun go down upon your wrath, neither give place to the Devil. A man that retains his anger longer then evening, gives place to the Devil: many can say, Shall I give way to mine Enemy? shall I yield to him who hath done me such and such wrong? but they little consider, that in retaining their anger, they give way to the Devil, they yield to the Devil: What? is it not better to yield to your Brother, though your inferiour, then to yield to the Devil? Shall men live as if they drank no other Waters but of Massa and Meriba, of the Waters of Strife? as the Church said concerning God, Will he reserve his anger for ever? so may I say of such, will they reserve their anger for ever? surely this anger is sinful, in respect of time.

Jer. 3. 1.

3. It is such an anger as misses in respect of measure; holy anger keeps within compass, but so doth not this; nor do I wonder, for amongst all the affections or passions of the mind there is none more like to abound in measure, than the passion of anger, it is a fiery Passion, and fire we know is apt to exceed: How great a Fire will one Sparkle kindle?

4. It is such an anger as misses in respect of the end; Holy Anger hath right aims and ends, as the glory of God and good of Souls: but what is the end of this anger? what is it a passionate man aims at? If I may answer for him, either he aims at this, that he may satisfy a peevish spirit; or he aims at this, that he may bring others under him; or he aims at this, that he may be esteemed of others as somebody in the World; or he aims at this, that he may have his will another time: These are the chief ends of a passionate Spirit: But oh it is otherwise with a gracious spirit! such a one may be angry sometimes, but it is not to satisfy himself, but to bring things into order; it is not to subject others under him, but to bring all under God; it is not to appear some-body in the World, but that the Glory of God may more appear; it is not to have his will more at another time, but that Gods Will may be done on Earth as it is in Heaven; it is not that he may avenge himself, but that he may do good to others, never aiming more at the parties good that he is angry withal, than at that very time when he is most angry. Now you may see what anger I inveigh against, and what anger it is which gives place to the Devil.

SECT. XIV.

Of our wrestling with Satan to overcome this sin.

IN resisting Satan, and this sin do you wrestle thus. —

1. Be you humbled for what hath been past; were you but humbled for sin in general, it would much meeken your Spirits; but were you humbled for this particular sin, in that your lives formerly have been so peevish, and pettish, and passionate; oh the good you might get by this humiliation! is not this the way to mortifie sin at the Heart-root? as when Weeds are moistned at the Root, then is the time to get them up, and not when all is dry: So when the heart is humbled for this sin at the root, when the Heart is bedewed with tears of Repentance, and becomes soft and fleshy, which before was stony and hard, then will this sin up, or be mortified with far more ease. I lay this humiliation as the foundation of all other helps, many being convinc'd that such or such a thing ought not to be done, they resolve presently they will do so no more, but they bottom not their resolution upon humiliation, and so all comes to nothing, but as the morning Dew it quickly vanisheth. O begin here, repent of sins past, of former pettishness and peevishness of Spirit, and upon this foundation we may comfortably hope the building may stand, notwithstanding the Rain, and Floods, and Winds that may beat upon it.

2. Resolve and renew your Resolutions and Covenants with God from day to day: it may be you find that naturally you are overcome with Passion, and therefore each morning think but thus with your selves, I may meet with occasions this day to disquiet my heart. I have had experience, that though the day hath been fair in the morning, yet it hath been foul before night; I see I am weak, I have sometimes promised and covenanted with God against this sin, but I have been overcome again and again, I will now therefore in the strength of Christ, resolve that this day whatsoever falls out, I will bear it quietly, and if I be wronged, I will implead it the next day, or the next opportunity, only this day I will retain my quiet of spirit. Why thus would you resolve, and renew your resolutions from day to day, who knows but it might gain upon your Hearts to overcome passion? and if a little were but done for the present, yet would it not be to hard as now it is to overcome it afterwards.

3. Set an high price upon the quietness of your spirit: Better is a dry morsel and quietness therewith, then an house full of sacrifices with strife. There is as much difference betwixt quietness and strife, as betwixt a stormy, dark, tempestuous night, and a calm, sweet, Sun-shiny, Summers day: When the Apostle speaks of the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, he adds, that in the sight of God it is of great price; other Graces are precious with God, but a meek and quiet Spirit is in the sight of God of great price, it is worth a great deal, it is a Jewel of great worth; Kings and Princes, and Nobles wear Jewels sometimes worth thousands of Pounds, but every meek man and woman that goes up and down; though never so poor, yet they wear a Pearl worth a World; thus God esteems it, and so should we also. Tell me you that bear crosses with a quiet and meek Spirit, do you not find a great

a great deal of comfort in this quiet and meek frame? why then say, It shall cost me dear, but I will keep this frame: If a man should throw Dirt at you, and you had a Golden Ball in your hand, would you throw that away, because he throws Dirt at you? What if others cast upon you Reproaches and forward Words? they have no other Weapons for themselves, they scarce ever knew in all their lives what the sweetness of a quiet Spirit meant; Oh but you that fear God, and whom God hath adorned with the Graces of his own Spirit, do you prize a quiet Spirit at an high rate, do you suffer for it, for there is much good in it.

4. Remove the occasions of anger; as Cotys King of Thrace, when one brought him curious Vessels, but brittle, (I suppose of Glass, or the like) he commended their rare workmanship, yet presently brake them, lest (being of an hasty nature) when his Servants by any accident had broken them, he should have been excessively angry. When Saul cast a Javelin at Jonathan to smite him, then Jonathan arose from the Table, and would eat no meat in Saul's presence: It is our wisdom to get out of the company of such as have offended us: as Jonathan did, rather than sinful anger should break out. Or.—

5. If the occasion cannot well be removed, then give reason leave to interpose, and divert. It was good counsel which Arbenodorus gave to Augustus, that when the object and occasions of choler were in his Eye, he should not be moved before he had pronounced over the Letters of the Alphabet: When the mind is diverted, there may be some room to deliberate, and therefore in this case, divert to some other Business, Company, pleasant Employment, thoughts of content; these are notable coolers, and very convenient to shake this passionate fire. As Physicians observe in bleeding, when a man or woman bleeds very violently at the Nose, the way to stanch the blood is to let them bleed in another Vein: So those that are passionate, they should labour to turn the channel of their Affections another way. For instance, what? do I feel my anger stir? let me stir up fears, Oh! let me have the fear of the Great God before mine Eyes; or doth my anger stir? let me stir up sorrow: Oh! let me grieve for their sin, whereby they have provoked God more than me: or doth my anger stir? let me stir up love: I am called on to love mine Enemies, and will not the heat of love take out the heat of anger? the shining of the Sun upon a Fire, deadens the Fire, and surely the Beams of love in my Heart towards God, and towards his Saints, and towards my Enemies, should deaden or weaken this fire of passion that is so strong in me. Thus by a wile (as it were) may'st thou subdue thy anger, if thou canst but turn thy Affection another way.

6. If Diversions will not do it, then stand at the Staves end, and resist this sin at its first breaking out. A little thing will quench a great fire when it is new kindled, but if you stay a while, then Buckets of water will not do it: The beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water, (I may say as when one letteth out fire) therefore leave off contention before it be meddled withal. You are to take as great care of the beginning of anger, as you would be careful to quench a little spark of fire that is in the midst of many Barrels of Gunpowder; and great reason, for the fire of contention which begins at a little (if not prevented) riseth to a great deal. Camerarius tells a Story of two Brothers, who walking out in the Evening, and seeing the Element full of bright spangling Stars; one of them being a Glazier, wished, that he had as many Oxen as there were Stars in the Firmament; then said the other Brother, and if I had a Pasture as big as the World, where would you keep the Oxen; he answered, in your Pasture; What, said the other when I would or no? Yes, said his Brother; the matter was very light, but it fell out very heavy, for they presently fell to words, drew one upon another, and killed one another. Do we not see many Neighbours fall out about very small matters? and if some wise man in the beginning did but mediate between them, how easily might they be reconciled? otherwise the fire kindles to such a flame, that few or none know how to extinguish it, or to make them friends.

7. Be convinc'd it is much better to bear wrong, than to be sinfully angry for wrong: in bearing wrong there is no danger of Satans hurt, but for the Devil to come and tempt thee by this or that wrong to be in a pet or angry fit, there lies the danger: It is Augustines expression, when the Fowler hath set a Net to catch Fowls, then he comes and throws Stones in the Hedges to fright the Birds out: So when the Devil hath set his Nets and Temptations to catch poor Souls in, then he sets others on to do them wrong, that so he may take them in his Net: Oh take heed now of anger! take heed now of the Net that the Devil hath on the other side of the Hedge; it is better to suffer wrong from another than to suffer sin in thy own Soul.—But how must I do if I be injured? I answer: 1. Look on God, and consider all thy wrongs and unworthy usages are ordered by God, for thy everlasting good, this very one thought, that God is the principal Agent, kept fresh and on foot in thy mind, will be of Sovereign power to cool and beat back any intemperate anger, yea, and make thee say to God with David, I was dumb and opened not my mouth, because thou didst it. Thus Joseph looked beyond his Brethren's barbarous dealing with him, and said, The Lord sent me before you. Thus Job looked beyond the Caldeans lawless outrages, and said, The Lord hath taken away. Thus David looked beyond Shimei's dogged rancour, and said, The Lord hath bidden him to curse. Thus Jesus Christ himself, blessed for ever, looked beyond the Pharisees, Priests, Jews, Judas and the Souldiers, to his Fathers Cup: This Cup which my Father hath given to me to drink, shall I not drink it? In case of injuries, say thus in thy self, This is from God for my good, as sometimes old Eli said, It is the Lord, let him do what seemeth him good. 2. Look on on man, and make the best construction thou canst of any wrong done by him; if the party that hath wronged thee be a young man, impute it to his rashness, and want of experience; if he be an old man, impute it to his weakness, senes bis pueri, old men are twice Children; he might do thee wrong, and yet mean thee no harm; if he be a good man, impute it to some mistake, for certainly he would not purposely do thee an evil; if he be a wicked man impute it to the enmity betwixt the Seed of the Woman, and the Seed of the Serpent; if he do thee harm, say, it is no more than thou expectedst from him. If thus thou wouldst make the best construction of every thing, how mightest thou overcome passion, and procure to thy self a great deal of peace and patience all thy life long.

Eph. 6. 17. 8. Take unto you the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God: Satan provokes men that they may be provoked, he would have them yield to anger, and then they yield to him: but that you may wrestle and prevail, take up your Weapons, have your Sword (which is the Word of God) in your Hands and Heart: It is the Sword that slays corruptions, and satanical temptations, as David said of Goliath's Sword, There is none to that, so may we say of the Sword of the Spirit, there is none to it. If you ask how may I furnish my self with this weapon? or how may I cut asunder by this sword this temptation of anger? I answer—

1. Observe the Temptation: Satan usually comes in with many motions or objections, and so puts on to wrath, or makes Apologies for wrath. Now these in the first place we must observe.

2. Seek out a suitable Word, and with that answer him as Christ answered, saying, Avoid Satan, for thus it is written. I shall instance in these two, for they are two main points.

Obj. 1. Satan in thee objects, Yea, hath God said, that whosoever is angry with his Brother without a cause, shall be in danger of Judgment: Why, alas! is it but one sin, and is it not a little one? it may be thou art passionate, but thou failest only in this; hark but what others say of thee, such a man is a very good man, only he is of an hasty spirit; or such a woman is a very gracious woman, only she is of an hasty spirit: So they say, and so I say, thou may'st be angry, and godly, hasty, and holy; and therefore sin on.

Ans. Answer. How? Angry and Godly? Hasty and Holy? Surely if this anger be ordinary, constant and reigning they are not consistent. Oh what need have I to look to my evidence! the word saith, They that are Christs, have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts: And what are those affections and lusts, but amongst the rest Hatred, Variance, Emulation, Wrath, Strife? Now if these be not crucified, if these be not in some good measure mortified, how should I be good, or gracious, godly, or holy? This is certain when grace comes into the heart, it works a change, and a new frame of spirit; the Word saith, The Wolf shall dwell with the Lamb, and the Leopard shall lie down with the Kid, and the Calf, and the young Lion, and the Fatling together, and a little Child shall lead them: The meaning is, that furious spirits shall then become meek, and hasty spirits shall then become gentle; grace will tame men; those that were in disposition like wild beasts, and harmless creatures, shall by this powerful work be metamorphosed and become meek and harmless. And doth Satan tell me, I may be gracious and peevish? would he flatter me that a constant, ordinary, reigning, passionate spirit, may consist with truth of Grace? Avoid Satan, for it is written, this lust must be mortified, my Lion-like nature must become Lamb-like, or I cannot be saved.

But Satan puts into thee another plea, and tells thee, that if thou art angry thou art there-to provoked; thou couldst live quietly enough in thy Family, and amongst thy Neighbours, if thou wer't not provoked, it is their fault that provokes thee, and not thine, that thou art thus angry with them.

Ans. Answer. How? am I angry? and may be angry, because I am provoked? what a reason is this? I would rather say, that God now calls on me for meekness, and not for anger: any one can be meek, when they are not provoked (as we say, the Devil is good when he is well pleased) but if I am provoked, then is the season if ever, to exercise meekness: The Word saith, that a godly man is like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season: It is the excellency of Grace to work in due season, for then is every thing beautiful; and when is the due season of meekness, but only when I am provoked? or if this be a plea, why might it not be Moses plea as well as mine? The Word saith, They angered him at the waters of strife, they provoked his spirit, so that he spake unadvisedly with his lips. Meek Moses is now angry, and he was provoked unto it, but that will not excuse him before God; for the Word saith, It went ill with Moses for their sakes: God would never be intreated to let him go into the Land of Canaan for this very sin; and therefore avoid Satan, for it is written, if I am provoked, then is the season of meekness: or if I am provoked to anger, it will go ill with me as it went ill with Moses, and no provocation will be my excuse.

But Satan hath thousands of pleas, and ten thousands of ways, either to put thee into passion, or to justify thee in it: it is impossible for me to instance in all, but against them all I would have thee lay up, and to make use of several Scriptures, turn them down in thy Book, or learn them by heart (as we say) that thou may'st still have them in readiness, they are such as these: Pride, and Arrogancy, Pro. 8. 13. and the evil way, and the froward mouth do I hate—They that are of a froward heart are abomination to the Lord, but such as are upright in their way are his delight.—Cease from anger, and forsake wrath, fret not thy self in any wise to do evil.—Ye have heard it was said by them of old time, thou shalt not kill, and whosoever shall kill, shall be in danger of the Judgment, but I say unto you, that whosoever is angry with his Brother without a cause, shall be in danger

Danger of the Judgment, — and whosoever shall say thou fool, shall be in danger of Hell fire.
 Eph. 4.31. — Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice; and be ye kind one to another tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christs sake hath forgiven you. Are not these Scriptures as so many Swords? why, then wield them, and in the use of them cut asunder all temptations of Satan.

9. Set before thee the example of Christ, till thou find it to work upon, and to change thy spirit. Christ's example (if rightly eyed and improved) doth not only work morally, but efficaciously, by way of efficiency. It is reported of a Noble Earl Elstarius, that he had such a quiet spirit, that all wondred; his Wife and others asked him, how he came to that meek, humble and quiet frame? To whom he answered thus, When any one wrongs me (said he) I presently turn my thoughts to the injuries that Jesus Christ suffered, and I never leave off ruminating and remembering the injuries of Christ, until I find my heart wholly quiet. Learn of me (said Christ) for I am meek. Christians according to the example of Jesus Christ, ought to be meek ones; indeed, meekness is that Evangelical Grace that Christians ought to imitate Jesus Christ in; and therefore, Learn of me, saith Christ; set me before you, learn and never cease learning, till of that fulness that is in me, you receive Grace for Grace, even Meekness for Meekness.

10. Pray constantly in this, as in other like cases; pray down the sin of anger, pray for a Spirit of meekness, entreat the Lord to quiet and sweeten thy froward nature, pray also for heavenly-mindedness, and thou wilt not be disquieted with worldly troubles: As the upper Region of the air is not molested with Wind, Rain, Hail, &c. so neither is an heavenly-minded Christian, who is lifted up far above these sublunary things, afflicted with them, or perish for them: Pray also for faith that thou may'st roll thy self upon him and his promises, who hath said, that all things shall work together for their good who love God, and are called according to his purpose: Why then shouldst thou be angry, seeing God will turn the Injuries of men into Blessings and Mercies? Let him alone, and let him curse, it may be the Lord will look on thine affliction, and that the Lord will requite good for his cursing this day. Pray also for love, which is of more force to restrain thee from revenge, than any injury to provoke thee to anger, for love suffers long; yea, love suffers all things: It will make thee to look upon him with whom thou art angry as a Brother, and therefore to forgive him, as thou wouldst have God to forgive thee; it will make thee to meditate on the unbounded mercy of God, whose virtues thou must imitate if thou art his Child; he forgives thee, and he forgives thy Enemies their many sins, and canst thou not forgive them? thou standest in need of infinite mercy for washing away thy many foul offences, and wilt thou not let one drop of mercy fall upon thy Bro- ther to forgive him in some trifling wrongs? O pray for love and pray for patience, and pray for the assistance of Gods Spirit to mortifie thy anger, and to sanctifie thy nature, that thou may'st be serviceable to Gods Glory, the good of thy Brethren, and the furtherance of thy own Salvation in Jesus Christ.

SECT. XV.

Of Temptations, in respect of our outward Conditions.

Hitherto of Temptations, in respect of our natural dispositions; the next have a respect to our outward conditions. Now thus we are either in prosperity, or adversity; if we are in prosperity, then Satan tempts us to those sins whereto that state is most subject, as to forgetfulness of God, contempts of our poor Brethren, love of the World, Pride, &c. If we are in adversity, then he tempts us to the use of unlawful means, for the repairing of our Estates, or to distrusting in God, or to stealing, defrauding, murmuring, repining, what not? I cannot insist on all these particulars, for I intend brevity, only I shall mention one assault in reference to prosperity, and another as to adversity, and then have done with this Head.

SECT. XVI.

Of Satan's assaults of contemning our Brethren.

IF we are in prosperity, it is one assault of Satan, and it is our common sin, to contemn our brethren; the very cause of the Corinthians, who in their Love-feasts carried it so unequally, that one was hungry, to wit the poor, and another was drunken, to wit the rich; this made the Apostle to ask them, What? have ye not houses to eat and drink in? or despise ye the Church of God, and shame them that have not? in the original, them that are poor. The very case also of the Christian Jews in general, and therefore saith James in his general Epistle to them, My brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ with respect of persons; for if there come unto your assembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile rayment, ye have respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and ye say to him, sit thou here in a good place, but ye say to the poor, stand thou there or sit under my footstool: Are ye not partial in your selves, and Judges of evil thoughts? I shall not deny, but that there is an holy and warrantable respect of persons in respect of their age, calling, gifts, greatness, in the world; but when great reverence is shewed to the rich, and our poor brethren are under contempt, as if they were unworthy our company and converse, when we go so far as to esteem the wicked rich, above the godly poor,

V v v v v whence whence when we so debase the godly poor, that we consider them not at all according to their eminency in grace and high station in Christianity; but we pass by the appearance of God in them, without any mark or notice, surely this is a sin, and this is a temptation of Satan; can it be of any thing that's ought, that a respect should be had to a worldly lustre rather than to a spiritual grace? that a Gold-ring should be preferred before a rich faith, doth this favour of Christianity? or rather doth it not favour of the order of these

Jam. 2. 5. Principalities, and powers, and rulers, and spiritual wickednesses, here in my text? I believe Devils do thus in opposition to God, and his ways; they despise the poor, and prefer the rich: but hearken my beloved Brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith and heirs of the Kingdom? God and the Devil are as contrary as may be; God hath respect to the lowliness of his hand-maiden, he exalteth them of low degree, he filleth the hungry with good things, and the rich he sends empty away. But Satan prefers wicked worldlings, and accordingly tempts others to exalt, advance, and honour them, whilst the godly poor must be neglected, contemned, depressed, and it may be persecuted, because of their outward despicableness; to this sin are they most prone, that are great and rich and prosper in this world, what care they for the Image of God shining in mean Christians? if they be not of their rank, they will scarce look on them as men, much less as godly, and as David calls them, The excellent of the earth.

Luke 1.

Psal. 163.

SECT. XVII.

Of our wrestling with Satan in this respect.

IF this be one of Satans stratagems for the up-setting and upholding of his own Kingdom, then you whom God hath blessed with outward estates, it concerns you to arm yourselves against this temptation, and to wrestle thus.

1. Own them that fear God, be they never so poor: Are they not the Glory of God? the Treasure of God? the Portion of God? the peculiar people of God? and what? are you ashamed of them who are gracious, because they are outwardly mean? what is this but to be ashamed of Christ himself? He was poor in the world and he preached the Gospel to the poor, and he accounts of the poor as his Members, and at the last day he will acknowledge that what is done to the poor, it is all one as if done to himself. O then be not ashamed of them, as you would not have Christ to be ashamed of you at the last day; men are willing enough to own their treasure. I must tell you, that the godly poor are the Churches treasure, and upon that account who would not own them? I remember when Lawrence was to suffer Martyrdom, the Tyrant that persecuted him, understanding him to be a Deacon of the Church, and a distributor of the Churches riches, he promised to himself a double prey, by the apprehension of one silly soul; thereupon he demanded of Lawrence where was the substance of the Church; Lawrence craving three days respite, he promised to declare to him where the treasure might be had: In the mean time he caused a number of poor Christians to be gathered together, when the day of his answer was come, the persecutor strictly charged him to stand to his promise; then valiant Lawrence stretching out his arms over the poor, said, These are the precious treasure of the Church, these are the treasure indeed, in whom the faith of Christ reigneth, in whom Jesus Christ hath his Mansion place: What more precious Jewels can Christ have, than these in whom he hath promised to dwell, for so it is written, I was hungry, and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me to drink, &c. And look what ye have done to one of these, the same ye have done to me. Indeed, this answer vexed the Tyrant, but the poor Martyr stood to it, though he died for it a most cruel death: O do ye own them who are godly poor, now for shame be not you ashamed of them.

2. Close with them, vouchsafe to be much in their society: this was the Apostles rule, Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate. Jerome in his Epistle to Pamachius, 16.

bad him to equal himself with the poor, and now and then to go into the Cells of the needy. I can easily observe how the rich associate themselves with the rich, and many times with the poor or inferiour sorts of men, but they are with the most vile, prophane, and debauched, of all the poor in the Country. In the mean time, the godly poor are strangers to them, and strange they must be, unless they will drink, swear, ramble, and applaud them for their kindness and hospitality to all the rabble with whom they converse and live. A- Mr. H. of las this is not the life of Christians, but of D.

Heathens. I shall never forget the common saying of a grave, ancient and godly divine in this Country, who is now with God, A leg of a Lark (said he) is more worth than the whole body of a Kite. One poor soul, be it never so poor, if it have but the breathing of Gods Spirit in it, he is of more value than a village, or a whole Town full of wicked, debauch'd, atheistical boon companions, as we usually call them: Gods people (whether poor or no) are the glory of the world, yea the glory of God himself; but as for others, God speaks of them as dirt and dross: Thou puttest away all the wicked of the earth like dross. Gods people are usually in Scripture called his portion, The Lords portion is his people, Dent. 32. 9. his pleasant portion, They have made my pleasant portion a desolate wilderness, Jer. 12. 10. his treasure, his peculiar treasure, Ye shall be a peculiar treasure to me above all people, for all the earth is mine, Exod. 19. 5. His glory the Crown of his glory, Thou shalt also be a Crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal Diadem in the hand of thy God, Isai. 62. 3. What is it thus? are poor Saints in such esteem with God, and he looks upon them as his portion, his pleasant portion, his treasure, his peculiar treasure, his glory, the Crown of his glory?

Psal. 119.

O then how should you bend your selves to close with them, and to be much in their society, whose very society is indeed the communion of Saints.

3. Delight in men, as those in whom God himself delights. David, though a King could stoop thus far: I believe he was upon the point of charity, when he spake thus of them, but whom did his charity benefit? not God, but his poor Saints: O my Soul, thou hast said unto the Lord, thou art my Lord, my goodness extendeth not unto thee, but to the Saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all my delight. It seems the poor Saints were a Kings delight; Kings have their delights, and this was all the delights King David had, In them is all my delight. And no wonder, for herein he conformed to God, the poor Saints are Gods delight; it is Gods judgment of men, that the righteous is more excellent then his neighbour. Hence some observe, that the Lion and Eagle were not offered in sacrifice to God, but the poor Lamb and Dove were, great and brave spirits of the world, high as the Eagle and lofty as the Lyon, God regards them not, but poor humble spirits, that are contemptible in the eyes of the world, those are precious to God, he delights in them as in his own darlings: Why thus, do you delight in them, as those in whom God himself delights.

4. Do them good, as the best and chief objects of charity; it is the Apostles advice, As we have opportunity, let us do good unto all men, but especially unto them who are of the household of Faith. You see there is an especially put upon them: Let me tell you of a deal of mistaken charity amongst you; you think to do offices of love, or of kindness, or of alms, promiscuously to all, is brave, and gets a good report of the Country, and the praise of men; and you shall never have the Praise of God for this: If you will do any office of love, kindness, alms, or the like, be sure to set an especially upon the household of Faith: These are they that represent Christ, and indeed are the Members of Christ, and stand in Christ's stead; so he will tell you at the last day, For I was an hungry, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; sick, and ye visited me; in prison, and ye came unto me.— In as much as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Mark, those who are Christs Brethren, (which the wicked are not) yea, those who are the least of Christs Brethren (which the proud high lofty ones are not) why, these are they whom Christ reckons on his own account, so that whatsoever you do to them, you do it unto him: Oh that this plea of Christ were writ on your doors, that you might better know whom to welcome in, and whom to entertain and do good unto, as you would bid welcome, and give entertainment to Christ Jesus himself.

S E C T. XVIII.

Of the Assaults of Satan to the use of unlawful means.

IF we are in adversity, Satan usually tempts us to the use of unlawful means. Thus when Christ had no ordinary means of getting bread, Satan tempts him to provide for himself by extraordinary: When Esau came out of the field weary and hungry and almost dead for want of meat, then sell thy birth-right (said Satan) and so he did: When Peter was in great danger in the High-Priests Hall, then deny thy Master (said Satan) for swear him, and curse thy self: When we are in adversity, and in want, then saith Satan, Thou must live, thou must not put forth thy family to beg, thou must utter thy wares, though by lying, swearing, exacting, deceiving. Want and necessity is the Devils opportunity to set upon us; Fowlers usually set their snares for birds in the winter time, when there is want of food; and therefore prayed Agur, Give me neither poverty nor riches: And why not poverty? Left I be poor, and steal, and take the Name of God in vain: In poverty, temptations are strong to distrust, to steal, lye, swear, or to use shifts, and unlawful means. Many a time have I seen a poor professor put to shift, and whilst others censured I have thought with my self, Oh poor Soul, why should I, or any other censure this poor man? Little know we the temptations to which he is subject: But to such let me give some counsel.

S E C T. XIX.

Of wrestling with Satan in this respect.

1. CONSIDER, that all good things are then beautiful, when they are compassed by good means. Hence the godly man consults ever what is just, not what is gainful, or what may be compassed by honest courses, not what may be gained by fraud, deceit, cozenage, or the like carnal dealings: Better is a little with righteousness, than great Revenues without right.

2. Consider, that there is no necessity, if ordinary and lawful means fail, to use unlawful; when men say, I must live, I must maintain my family: Know, it is not absolutely necessary that thou shouldst live, but so long as God pleaseth; nay, it is absolutely necessary that thou shouldst rather perish, and not live then break Gods Commandments; if thou diest for want of means, thou mayst go to heaven as Lazarus, and exchange a miserable life with an happy; but if to keep thee from dying, thou losest thy soul, this is to leap out of the frying-pan into the fire: Thou hadst better starve, then through distrust to use unlawful means, and so offend God: Who would wilfully, upon any pretence, run himself into an hot burning oven? O take heed!

O for shame never plead a need or a necessity for hell.

3. Consider, that whatsoever is got with ill means, is got with Gods anger, and the splitting shipwreck of a good conscience; an hard bargain! This made Solomon say, There is Gold, and a multitude of Rubies, which happily may be got in selling or buying by a false oath, or lye; but the lips of truth are a precious Jewel. The meaning is, that truth and a good conscience are far more precious than Gold or Rubies. Oh it is pitiful exchange, when with the loss of our best Jewels, we gain nothing, but dung and dross: What is a man profited, if he gain the whole world and lose his Soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his Soul? O the folly, to save the nail of thy finger, with the loss of thy eyes! to get a little wealth, and to lose thy God, thy Soul, and a good conscience; more worth than worlds. Mr. Perkins relates a story of a good man, who being ready to starve, stole a Lamb, and being about to eat of it, with his poor Children, and (as his manner was) to crave a blessing, he durst not do it, but fell into a great perplexity of Conscience, acknowledged his fault to the owner, and promised restitution, if ever God enabled him. In this case, if ever thou repentest, thus will thy conscience smite thee, and if thou never repentest, thy conscience will be as a worm gnawing on thee in hell.

4. Labour to live the life of faith; if lawful means fail, as bread in famine, yet mayst thou feed thy self with faith; Is not this the Psalmists cure? Trust in the Lord, and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the Land, and verily thou shalt be fed: Mark that verily, it is all one with in truth, and stableness thou shalt be fed: A promise well improved, is instead of meat and drink to an hungry Soul; the Just, in troublsome times, shall live by faith: Did not Abraham thus, when he told his Son Isaac, as they were going up the Mount, My son, God will provide himself a Lamb for a burnt offering? Come, it may be thou art low, and hast scarce bread enough to put into thy mouth, remember, that if God speak the word to weak means, they shall work as well as the strong; an hard and dry crust of bread, and a very little, shall be nourishment, both competent and comfortable, never use shifts, if in any of thy wants thou hast not lawful means at hand; He that believeth, will not make haste, faith the Prophet: Christ in his greatest necessity would not turn stones into bread to save his life, and wilt thou in far less necessity, not to save thy life, but to increase thy wealth, turn stones into bread, yea into blood, the blood of poor Saints, as poor as thy self, by thy oppression and extortion? rather call to mind Gods promise, Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. By every word, that is by every thing which God appoints, and gives power unto to be our nourishment; the Lord would have us live by faith, and to depend on him in the greatest straits, for he is God all-sufficient.

SECT. XX.

Of Temptations, in respect of our spiritual estates.

THE next kind of temptations, is in reference to our spiritual estates: And herein Satan considers men either as weak Christians, or as strong; for the former he tempts them to errors, despairs, diffidence, blind zeal, &c. for the latter, he tempts them to privy pride, secret hypocrisie, solitary musings on the temptations of Satan, misinterpreting of the Lords doings, turning the grace of God into wantonness, distractions, and wandrings of heart in holy things, to boasting, and exalting their strength of grace already received, &c. I cannot enumerate all, much less can I enlarge upon all, only I shall speak to one assault of a weak Christian, and to another of a strong Christian, and pass by all the rest.

SECT. XXI.

Of Satans Assaults to bring weak Christians to Errors.

IF Christians are but weak in knowledge, then Satan presents them with dangerous error, as if it were some precious glorious truth of God. This Satan doth for these ends; As 1. To seduce the godly, and to draw them into error: Indeed he cannot seduce them to damnable, yet he may seduce them to dangerous Errors, and if he can but prevail in that, he counts it worth the while: Or 2. If he cannot seduce, yet he will endeavour to unsettle weak Christians in the truth already received, q. d. If this be not truth, then mayest thou question every thing for truth, which already thou believest, and where art thou then? Or 3. If he cannot unsettle, yet will he labour to shake them in the truth received; all have not attained to the same measure of steadfastness, some are but weak, and babes in knowledge, though others are as grown men: Now variety of errors, opinions, and disputes, are a shaking of weak minds, which made the Apostle say, Him that is weak in faith receive ye, but not unto doubtful disputations. Or 4. If he cannot shake them, yet if he can but perplex them and trouble them, he hath his end.

This hath been Satans great design in all ages of the Church of God, to raise up some Impostors, or notable Seducers to perplex and to trouble the Church of God; he hath no comfort himself, and he envies comfort wherever he sees it: hence he labours, if he cannot seduce us out of the way, yet to hedge up our way with thorns, to cast blocks in our way, to disturb us in our course towards heaven. Or 5. He may yet have a farther end, he presents error, that if he can do no more, yet he may prejudice the entertainment of further truth. Satan knows full well, that towards the end of the world there will be a bundance bundance of truth revealed and made known? The knowledge of the Lord shall be as the waters that cover the sea: God hath spoken glorious things of the latter days, every Child shall be as David; and the knowledge of the Lord shall be increased. Now at this time Satan will vent his Errors, he will set on foot many dangerous errors to prejudice the hearts of the people of God in the receiving and entertaining of truths to be revealed: When God is sowing Wheat, then is Satan busie to sow his Tares: when God is discovering truths then he is busie to communicate his errors; the devil is never more busie, than when Gods work goes best on: he hopes in the heat of the Market to vent his own wares, he hopes in the throng to put off one with another, and that men will not so carefully observe it: at least if men be shy to entertain the one, he hopes by this to lessen the authority, and to prejudice the entertaining of the other. These are Satans ends, and no wonder if he prevail with weak Christians, that as yet are babes in knowledge, and know not how to resist.

SECT. XXII.

Of wrestling with Satan as to this Assault.

BUt that you may be armed, and able to overcome Satan in this respect, observe these particulars—

1. Be sure of a right knowledge in the principles, and fundamental truths; these are the essentials of Christianity, without which no heaven, no salvation: nor need the ripest Christians condemn this lesson; for principles are of daily use for them, yea they must continually live upon them, as on their bread and drink: the want of this knowledge is the cause of much Heresie and Apostasie in these dismal times; and the not digesting and improving of this knowledge is the cause of much of the hypocrisie, and self-deceiving kind of religiousness that in these times have so prevailed. Come then, and be well grounded in these fundamentals, you have them in every Catechism opened to you, and laid before you; and thus you are likest to stand in a time of trial, and to resist Satan in his fiery darts, and to hold fast, and to grow up in the knowledge of the superstructure. Its our misery, and Satans advantage, that Christians are so earnest about circumstantialia and neglect the great fundamentals, upon which the eternal being of their precious souls depends.

2. Take heed of spending, or rather mispending your precious time and thoughts in needless Controversies, in doubtful disputations. Satan hath not prevailed in any thing like to this. This causeth siding, and vain names: which administers much fuel to the fire of contention, so much blown up by evil spirits. Oh what strange and strong contests have you usually met with, about Church-governments? what breaches have been among brethren about matters of Discipline? Have they not (like foolish children) thrown dirt into one anothers faces, whiles the common enemy hath weakened and insulted over them all? I am exceedingly taken with those Divines, who decline (as much as they may) these needless Controversies. It is said of Zachary Ursine, that his enemies troubling him and crying out against him that he was a Sacramentarian; he so naturally abhorred brawls, and in his Judgment so disliked Ecclesiastical contentions, that he chose rather to leave Uratistave his native place, and to wander whither the Lord should direct him, that he might live in quiet, and preach necessary, practical, saving truths. None are more apt to fall into errors, than they that busie themselves most with unnecessary, curious, circumstantial points. In the differences that have been amongst us about Discipline and Ecclesiastical Government, it was Mr. Palmers saying, This is the satisfying stay of my soul, that if Discipline had been as necessary as Doctrine, the All-wise, the All-merciful God would not have left the one in the dark, and revealed the other so clear: and hence he advised all to avoid doubtful disputations, he lookt on them as the design of Satan upon the Saints, which he desired to impart unto them, and of which he bad them to beware. Of all the Books I ever read about this, I commend that Irenicum lately composed by Mr. Stillingfleet.

3. Get an humble heart, and a meek spirit: God is said to reveal his secrets to babes (i.e.) Matth. 12. to the humble and meek; The meek will be guided in judgment, and the meek will be teach his way. God will break his mind to the broken in heart; that is the way to find out any truth in general, and this and that particular truth in controversie: You see this in Ezek. 43. 10, 11. Thou son of man, shew the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities, and let them measure the pattern; and if they be ashamed of all that they have done, then shew them the form of the house and the fashion thereof, and the goings out thereof, and the comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the Ordinances thereof, and all the Laws thereof. Oh what contentions have we about the form of Government in the house of God? what firing as enemies upon one another, who are all Soldiers under the same Captain, Christ. This makes some sadly think that in most disputes and contendings for the truth, men are rather Satans, than Saints to one another; rather tempters to sin, than helpers of the graces of each other. O that God would give us humble and meek spirits. O that we would serve one another, bear one with another, and build up one another in holy faith and love. O that we were once ashamed of our doings, and of our iniquities. Certainly this were the way to find out the truth of God in every Controversie.

4. Walk answerable to those manifestations you have, walk in conformity to that measure of truth you have received; and when God sees you faithful in a little, then will he reveal more to you; when he sees you walk up to the light which he hath made known, then will

In this I highly commend Mr. Stillingfleet's spirit: his Weapon salve for the Churches wounds, discovers it clearly.

O for shame never plead a need or a necessity for hell.

3. Consider, that whatsoever is got with ill means, is got with Gods anger, and the splitting shipwrack of a good conscience; an hard bargain! This made Solomon say, There is Gold, and a multitude of Rubies, which happily may be got in selling or buying by a false oath, or lye; but the lips of truth are a precious Jewel. The meaning is, that truth and a good conscience are far more precious than Gold or Rubies. Oh it is pitiful exchange, when with the loss of our best Jewels, we gain nothing, but dung and dross:

26.

What is a man profited, if he gain the whole world and lose his Soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his Soul? O the folly, to save the nail of thy finger, with the loss of thy eyes! to get a little wealth, and to lose thy God, thy Soul, and a good conscience, more worth than worlds. Mr. Perkins relates a story of a good man, who being ready to starve, stole a Lamb, and being about to eat of it, with his poor Children, and (as his manner was) to crave a blessing, he durst not do it, but fell into a great perplexity of Conscience, acknowledged his fault to the owner, and promised restitution, if ever God enabled him. In this case, if ever thou repentest, thus will thy conscience smite thee, and if thou never repentest, thy conscience will be as a worm gnawing on thee in hell.

Psal. 37. 3.

4. Labour to live the life of faith; if lawful means fail, as bread in famine, yet mayst thou feed thy self with faith; Is not this the Psalmists cure? Trust in the Lord, and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the Land, and verily thou shalt be fed: Mark that verily, it is all one with in truth, and stableness thou shalt be fed: A promise well improved, is instead of meat and drink to an hungry Soul; the Just, in troublsome times, shall live by faith: Did not Abraham thus, when he told his Son

Gen. 22. 8.

Isaac, as they were going up the Mount, My son, God will provide himself a Lamb for a burnt offering? Come, it may be thou art low, and hast scarce bread enough to put into thy mouth, remember, that if God speak the word to weak means, they shall work as well as the strong; an hard and dry crust of bread, and a very little, shall be nourishment, both competent and comfortable, never use shifts, if in any of thy wants thou hast not lawful means at hand; He that believeth, will not make haste, faith the Prophet: Christ in his greatest necessity would not turn stones into bread to save his life, and wilt thou in far less necessity, not to save thy life, but to increase thy wealth, turn stones into bread, yea into blood, the blood of poor Saints, as poor as thy self, by thy oppression and extortion? rather call to mind Gods promise, Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. By every word, that is by every thing which God appoints, and gives power unto to be our nourishment; the Lord would have us live by faith, and to depend on him in the greatest straits, for he is God all-sufficient.

Isa. 28. 16.

SECT. XX.

Of Temptations, in respect of our spiritual estates.

THE next kind of temptations, is in reference to our spiritual estates: And here in Satan considers men either as weak Christians, or as strong; for the former he tempts them to errors, despairs, diffidence, blind zeal, &c. for the latter, he tempts them to privy pride, secret hypocrisie, solitary musings on the temptations of Satan, misinterpreting of the Lords doings, turning the grace of God into wantonness, distractions, and wanderings of heart in holy things, to boasting, and exalting their strength of grace already received, &c. I cannot enumerate all, much less can I enlarge upon all, only I shall speak to one assault of a weak Christian, and to another of a strong Christian, and pass by all the rest.

SECT. XXI.

Of Satans Assaults to bring weak Christians to Errors.

IF Christians are but weak in knowledge, Isa. 11. 9. then Satan presents them with dangerous error, as if it were some precious glorious truth of God. This Satan doth for these ends; As 1. To seduce the godly, and to draw them into error: Indeed he cannot seduce them to damnable, yet he may seduce them to dangerous Errors, and if he can but prevail in that, he counts it worth the while: Or 2. If he cannot seduce, yet he will endeavour to unsettle weak Christians in the truth already received, q. d. If this be not truth, then mayest thou question every thing for truth, which already thou believest, and where art thou then? Or 3. If he cannot unsettle, yet will he labour to shake them in the truth received; all have not attained to the same measure of steadfastness, some are but weak, and babes in knowledge, though others are as grown men: Now variety of errors, opinions, and disputes, are a shaking of weak minds, which made the Apostle say, Him that is weak in faith receive ye, but not unto doubtful disputations. Or 4. If he cannot shake them, yet if he can but perplex them and trouble them, he hath his end.

This hath been Satans great design in all ages of the Church of God, to raise up some Impostors, or notable Seducers to perplex and to trouble the Church of God; he hath no comfort himself, and he envies comfort wherever he sees it: hence he labours, if he cannot seduce us out of the way, yet to hedge up our way with thorns, to cast blocks in our way, to disturb us in our course towards heaven. will he reveal his whole mind to you, so far as is necessary for your salvation. You have a plain Scripture for this, Let us therefore as many as be perfect be thus minded; and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you. As many as be perfect, (i.e.) as many as are upright or sincere; or as many as are perfect, as many as are fully instructed in the essentials of Christianity, and truly strive for Christian perfection; he sets them who have well profited in the knowledge of Christ, against the ruder and more ignorant sort, and they may yet come to more knowledge, only with this Caution, Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing. Let us walk by the same rule. (i.e.) Let us walk by the word of God, which is the rule of faith and life, not crossing one another in our ways of teaching, or course of life.

5. Be much conversant in reading and hearing the good Word of God. This is the way that Jesus Christ directed the quarrelling Jew in, to have satisfaction of him and his mind, Search the Scriptures (saith he) for they are they which testify of me. There is enough in the Sacred Scriptures to set us all straight, and to keep us from Errours, especially in all things necessary to Salvation.

Object. But here's an Objection; the Scriptures are capable of divers senses, and one holds forth this to be the sense of Scripture, another holds that which is the clean contrary, and therefore how should we know which is the right sense and the very meaning of the Holy Ghost?

Answer. I answer: God hath not left us without some helps, whereby we may come to the knowledge of the right sense of Scriptures: I shall instance in these—

1. Look upon the scope, the end, the matter, the circumstances, viz. of persons, place, time, together with the antecedents and consequents, and by this means it will neither be difficult to refute many Errours: nor to clear many truths.

2. Compare one place with another: it may be in one place the sense is dark, and we do not understand it; but if we'll compare that place more dark, with another place more clear, we shall then find the sense of both. Thus James 2. 21. seems dark, but compare this with Rom. 4. 2. and it is cleared. James speaks of a declarative Justification before men, and Paul of a Justification in the sight of God.

3. Be sure that our Expositions, agree with the analogy of faith. This analogy is the constant and perpetual sense of Scripture in the clearest places of it; of which sort are Articles of faith, the Lords Prayer, the ten Commandments; whatever is repugnant to these, is a false Exposition.

4. Consult with others, especially with the Comments and Expositions of the best and most Orthodox. But in this take heed of tying your faith to men; be content to take in the light of others, but do not shut your own eyes. As there is a publick and authoritative judgment of concord and agreement in Synods, Councils, Assemblies; I may call it a Ministerial judgment, for Councils are not for government, but for unity and communion, and therefore their judgment is a judgment of concord; and as there is a publick and authoritative judgment of direction in the Pastors and Doctors of the Church, which may be accompanied with a commanding, as an Herald or Pursivant may command in the Princes Name, only this is limited to the superiour direction of the Word of God; so there is a judgment of discerning what is sound doctrine, and this belongs to every Christian singly by himself, and for himself; I may call this a private, rational, self directive judgment, in the court of every mans Conscience; of which the Apostles speak, Prove all things, and hold fast to that which is good. And, Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they be of God, yea or no: And, Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. Certainly every private Christian is to search the Scripture, to examine, prove, try, and judge the mind of God revealed in his word, so far as concerns his own faith and practice. So then part not with this, and yet as a means consult with others and borrow all the light they can afford you, to guide you and lead you into truth.

5. Mark if your own inward experience will not prove the best Commentary unto you. What? do you doubt of the sense of such or such Scriptures? as are indeed practical, and contain in them necessary truths? surely they that are sanctified and illuminated by the spirit of grace, will find something within, answerable to that word without, which will clear up the meaning. Hence we say that the Book of Canticles, which treats of that spiritual and heavenly fellowship, which the sanctified soul hath with Christ, cannot be thoroughly understood in the true life of it, but by those that are sanctified: Put a carnal man to it, to tell you the sense of such Texts as hold forth Regeneration, the power of saving faith, the nature of godly sorrow, the sense of Gods sweetest mercies in the remission of sins, in his favourable countenance, in communion with Christ, in the testimony of his spirit, as to our adoption, in the whole art of our spiritual warfare, containing the wiles and subtil methods of Satan in tempting, with the admirable power of grace and spiritual wisdom in making resistance and overcoming: Alas these things are riddles unto him; experience and evidence of them in his own heart he hath none, and therefore it is no wonder if he know not the sense of any such Scriptures. But be that is spiritual discerneth all things, he hath the mind of Christ writ on his heart, and that work within is his best Commentary.

6. Pray over all: Thus David did, Open mine eyes (said he) that I may understand the wonderful things of thy Law. You read and understand not, because you do not pray; if you would profit more you must pray more; go therefore to him who hath the keys of David, and desire him to open, and reveal his mind mind to you; desire him (who is the Lamb) to unclasp the Book, beg of him to take the Veil from off your Hearts, and the Scales from off your Eyes, that you may understand the wonders of the Law, and Mysteries of the Gospel; you have a promise that you shall be all taught of God; O turn this Promise into a Prayer, and desire him who only can teach, that he will teach you: This was David's way (Lead me in thy truth and teach me, shew me thy waies, O Lord teach me thy paths.)

It may be you will say, we have been in the use of all these means, and yet we find the Scripture is not easily understood.—I confess it is not in many places, and yet in things necessary it is every where plain enough; and where it is not plain enough, if we only use our diligence in the use of means, though we do miss the truth, there is no danger; How? no danger? No (saith Chillingworth) because nothing is necessary to be believed, but what is plainly revealed: For to say, that when a place of Scripture by reason of ambiguous terms, lies indifferent between divers senses, whereof one true; and this other is false, that God obliges men under pain of damnation not to mistake through error and humane frailty, is to make God a Tyrant, and to say that he requires us certainly to attain that end, for the attaining whereof we have no certain means; which is to say, that like Pharaoh, he gives no Straw, and requires Brick, that he reaps where he sows not, that he gathers where he sows not, that he will not be pleased with our utmost endeavours to please him, without full, and exact, and never failing performance; that his will is we should do, what he knows we cannot do; that he will not accept of us according to that which we have, but requireth of us what we have not; which whether it can consist with his Goodness, Wisdom, Word, I leave it to honest men to judge. Much more might be said to this assault of Satan but through the blessing of God this may suffice.

SECT. XXIII.

Of Satan's Assaults to bring strong Christians to boast and pride themselves in their own strength.

IF Christians are strong in Grace, then Satan tempts them to boast and pride themselves in their strength of grace already received. Thus he dealt with Peter when he made that Bravado, Though all should forsake thee, yet would not I. And (as if this were the great design of the Devil in these times) thus he hath dealt with thousands: Not that strong Christians do professedly, ordinarily, or in right mood either boast or pride themselves in their mighty strength; this were not compatible with true Grace, in any measure; but in the hour of temptation Satan goes far in prevailing with them; and Peter may be an instance how far the Saints may yield to the Devil in this very sin; and indeed it is rare to find a strong Christian that is not at some time or other puffed up with an over-weening conceit of his own abilities. But this assault of Pride I have already spoke to: And the general rules of wrestling with it, may well serve to keep down our Spirits from boasting or priding our selves in the strength of Grace already received: Only I shall add these few Directions more.

SECT. XXIV.

Of our wrestling with Satan as to this Assault.

1. Consider, if thou art conceited of thy strength of Grace, it is the ready way to make thee grow loose and negligent in thy duty; nay its well if it bring thee not further, even to the despising of Holy Ordinances, except thou hast some more courtly fare than ordinary: Such a pass were the Corinthians 1 Cor. 4.8. come to, Now ye are full, now ye are rich, ye reign like Kings without us. One observes well, how the Apostle lays the accent of these words on the Particle Now: Now ye are full q. d. I know the time, when if Paul had but come to Town, and if news had been spread abroad in the City that Paul was to preach, you would have flocked to have heard him, and you would have blessed God for the season, but then you were poor and empty; but Now ye are full, now ye are rich, now ye reign like Kings without us: Now ye have got to an higher attainment, Paul is a plain fellow now; he may now carry his cheer to an hungry people if he will; but as for your parts you are well apaid. Thus the Apostle speaks by way of an Ironical reproof, to make way for his following exhortation to humility, exemplified by himself and his mean condition, and oh that we had not the like occasion to speak to some, who persuade themselves they want nothing more of our help who extol themselves above all others as a King in his Kingdom: the worst we wish you, is this, I would to God ye did reign in deed and truth, but alas, if once thou art conceited of thy strength, it is to be feared the next news we hear of thee will be sad, either thou wilt be above Ordinances, or thou wilt grow loose and negligent in them; we have had woful experience of this.

2. Consider an over-weening conceit of thy own strength of Grace, will make thee too bold and presumptuous. Mr. Gurnal tells us, The humble Christian is the wary Christian, he knows his weakness, and this makes him afraid. I have a weak Head (saith he) I may soon be disputed into an Error and Heretic, and therefore I dare not come where such stuff is broached, lest my weak head should be intoxicated: On the other side, the confident man he'll sip of every Cup, he fears no poison, he is so establish'd in the truth, that the whole team of Hereticks shall not draw him aside. I have a vain light heart, saith the humble Soul, I dare not come among wicked de-

bauch'd company, lest I should at last bring the naughty man home with me: but one conceited of the strength of his Grace, dares venture into the Devils Quarters; as Peter into the rout of Christs Enemies, and how he came off you know, there his faith had been slain on the place had not Christ founded a retreat by the seasonable look of love he gave him. It was a bold speech of Mr. Clapham and yet a good man (as my Author saith) If Clapham die of the Plague, say Clapham had no Faith; and this made him boldly go among the infected.

Gal. 6. 1. 3. Consider, a conceit of thy strength of Grace will make thee cruel to thy weak Brethren in their infirmities; and surely this sin least becomes a Saint; it is the Apostles counsel, If a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness: But how shall a Soul get such a meek Spirit? it follows, Considering thy self, lest thou also be tempted. Why are men so sharp in their Censures, but because they trust too much to their Grace, as if they could never fall? it was otherwise with Bernard, how when he heard of any scandalous sin of a Professor, hodie illi, cras mihi, would he say, be fell to day, and I may stumble to morrow.

4. Turn the Eye from the fruitless and dangerous speculation of thy own worthiness and fasten it a while upon thy corruption and infirmities, upon thy many deficiencies in Religious Duties, wants and weaknesses in Prayer, omissions of occasions for the enlarging of the Kingdom of Christ, fear of the vain and wretched imputations of Worldlings, and out of this consideration thou wilt be so far from self-conceitedness of thy own Gifts and Graces, that thou wilt find much matter, and just cause, to renew thy repentance, to continue thy humiliation, and to stand upon the guard against this Spiritual Pride.

Gal. 2. 22. 5. Consider the strongest Christian hath not his strength in himself, but only in Christ; I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. As all the Myrrh, and Odours, and instruments of Hester's Purification, and all her rich and costly Apparel, were given her out of the Kings House, and the Royal Crown was put upon her head by the Kings own hand: So all the purity and perfection, all the Righteousness and Holiness, all the dignity and excellency of an holy gracious Soul is drawn from Christ, he, and only he is the root by whom the Christian is sustained, the spring, by whom the Christian is replenished, the Sun, by whom the Christian is enlightned, the Garment, by whom the Christian is clad and covered; whatsoever Goodness, Grace, or Excellency is in a Christian, it is Christs, and not his own; and this Paul was willing to acknowledge: He was not ashamed (saith one wittily) to let the World know, that Christ carried his Purse for him, Not that we are sufficient of our selves to think any thing as of our selves, but our sufficiency is of God: Yea, after many years trading, this holy man sees nothing he had got, I count not my self to have apprehended; he is still pressing forward, I press towards the mark, for the price of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ. How then is it, that the strongest Christian, be he never so strong should have high thoughts, and an arrogant opinion of himself? What is this but to rob God of his Glory, and Christ of his Grace? May'st thou not say of every dram of Grace, as the young man of his Hatchet, Alas Master, it was but borrowed? Oh! Why should'st thou be lifted up on this account? shall the Dunghil boast because the Sun shines on it? Shall the Christian admire himself, because the Son of Righteousness hath shined on him? Oh God forbid!

6. Consider, the stronger thou art in Grace, the more humbly and submissively should'st thou carry thy self; the old rule of quanto doctior may well here take place, quanto sanctior es, tanto te geras submissius? By how much the more Holy, by so much the more lowly. Was not Christ, the fairest of all the Children of men, (Grace being eminently poured into him) an humbled Christ? and may we not thence learn, that the highest excellency, and the greatest humility, may consist together? Many think, that to be lowly and humble, would argue too mean and abject a Spirit for a strong Christian; but was ever Spirit so truly heroical, and so eminently gracious as Christs Spirit? and yet never was such an humble lowly Spirit in this World; men are mistaken in this thing, for a proud Spirit, is the base Spirit, and an humble Spirit, is the raised Spirit, Humility is the Grace that puts a Varnish Lustre, Beauty, Glory, on all other Graces; and therefore saith the Apostle to strong Christians, Be clothed with humility; 1 Pet. 5. 5. the propriety of the word signifies a cloathing or dressing with Ribbons, with fine beautiful Ornaments: It is the beautiful Ornament of a Christian, and of all the Graces of a Christian, it puts off Grace, and every action with a Grace, it graceth all Graces whatsoever, and therefore by how much the more holy, by so much the more humbly should'st thou carry thy self.

7. Consider the strength of the strongest Christian grows suitable to his strength in humility; if he be humbled, this makes him profitable under afflictions as the Vine under the hand of the Pruner dressing it: this makes him capable of the Word of God, as the broken ground is of Seed, and the empty Vessel is of Water; this makes Christ very welcome and aimable in the eye of the Soul the fairest of ten thousands; this disposeth man to every Duty, makes the yoke of Christ very easie, the Soul never thrives more, than when it is humble under the strength which God hath given it; he fills the hungry with good things; but on the other side, if thy heart begin to swell, it is time for God to hold his hand, and turn the Cock, for all that is poured on such a Soul, runs over into self-applauding, and is good for nothing: A proud Heart, and a lofty Mountain, are never fruitful; such a one goes backward, and not forward, he spends on the old stock, and drives no trade at present to bring in more: O the difference betwixt a Christian humble and and once grown proud and insolent ! when humble, he prayed in the sense of his own weakness to get strength, but when proud, he prays to shew his strength, that others may admire him. And O the Justice, if Hezekiah-like, he once calls in Spectators to see his Treasure, that God takes away his Treasure. Indeed if God love him, he may well take that away from him, which takes away his Heart from God, and so make him humble, that he may become more strong.

SECT. XXV.

Of Satan's injections by himself.

Satans next assaults we call injections, which are only and immediately by himself: These usually are Satans reserves; when his other assaults prove unsuccessful, then he opens this Quiver, and sends a shower of these Arrows to set the Soul on flame, if not of sin, yet of terrour and horror: These injections are terribilia de fide, horribilia de Divinitate; terrible things of Faith, and horrible things concerning God. We may call them Blasphemies, blasphemous thoughts, which the Devil throws into the fantasie, infinitely against our wills, and by which he sets all within on fire; they are shot in like thunderbolts, as thick and quick as can be imagined, and they cause a trembling, even to Flesh as well as the Spirit, seeing there is neither pleasure nor profit in them, but a fearful expectation of speedy vengeance. But you may wonder, are ever Christians, Professors, Saints, troubled with such assaults as these? I answer, yes, the most holy Hearts are many times most haunted with these horrors: it was blessed Bolton's saying, That strangers to the ways of God, are not much troubled in this kind, or ordinarily vexed with such horrors; Satan makes as much of his in this world as he can possibly, knowing that he hath time enough, even Eternity it self, to torment them in the world to come; and therefore he is not wont to wield this terrifying weapon against them, save only at some dead lift or upon some special advantage, as under some extraordinary misery, or in excess of melancholly, to drive them thereby to distraction, or despair, or to hinder conversion, by a diversion into by-ways: But sure I am (saith he) the ordinary object, and special aim of Satan's malice in this point, are only those who happily escaped out of his clutches, already have, and are fully, and for ever freed from his damning fury and all deadly hurt. And I know not whether there be any of these, which do not less or more, at one time or other, suffer under this horror; and yet every one of them thinks himself singular in this suffering, and that it is not usual for Gods Children to have such prodigiously foul and fearful thoughts put into their heads which they dare not mention for their abhorred monstrousness, neither think of at any time without trembling. I remember I was sometimes told, that in a Lecture set up at London against the Jewish Religion, and for the conversion of that people, holy Mr. Vines preaching his turn, he argued strongly against the Jews in their horrid Blasphemies of Jesus Christ. In conclusion of his Sermon, he seemed to recollect himself, saying, but to whom preach I? to Jews, or Christians? If none be here but Christians, to what purpose shall I refel these Jewish Blasphemies? Ah (said he) have Christians no need of such Sermons? are not Christians sometimes troubled with Satans injections of this nature against the Divinity of Jesus Christ? Alas! for my own part, I know not how to clear my self, but that I tell you, I would kiss the feet of him that would bring me these glad tidings that I should never more be troubled with these injections, that Jesus Christ is not the Messiah, or that Jesus Christ is not God. The Congregation being very throng, and hearing this they gave out a groan, as if it had run through the Congregation, and had been the groan only of one man; the Relator being present, and affected with it, he told me, he supposed the meaning of that groan was this. q. d. If thou that speakest, a knowing godly Divine, art afraid of these Blasphemies, how much more may we?

SECT. XXVI.

Of our wrestling with Satan as to this Assault.

IN this case that we may prevail against Satan, let us learn these Lessons As—

1. Let us learn (or at least endeavour it) that we may distinguish Satans injections, and those temptations bubling up from our own Heart: Certainly there is a difference, if we could but know, betwixt those fire-balls which are thrown in at our Windows by Satan, and those sparks of corruption which fly (as it were) from our own Heart, and take fire at our own sinful Hearts. These differences are not agreed on by all, and yet some inward, powerful, spiritual men, lay them down thus. —

1. They may be differenc'd by the time when they begin to stir. All the while a man is a stranger to God, and Christ, he is not troubled with such Blasphemies, or at least he is not ordinarily assaulted in this manner; but when once the work of Conversion hath newly passed, or is now passing upon the man, when he is coming out of Nature to Grace, and declares for Jesus Christ against Sin and Satan, then is the time, when ordinarily these blasphemous Suggestions begin to make their apparition, and these Vermine are seen to crawl in the Christians Bosom, a strong probability, that they do not breed there, but are sent by Satan, in a way of revenge, for the Souls revolt from him.

2. They may be differenc'd by the manner how these Blasphemies arise in Christians thoughts; Satans injections are usually violent and sudden, they come like lightning flashing into the Christians thoughts, before he hath time to deliberate with himself, what he is doing; whereas that lust, which is the ebullition of our own hearts, is ordinarily gradual in its motion, it moves in a way more still and suitable to nature, it inticeth the Soul, and by degrees slightly inveigles it into a consent.

3. They may be differenc'd by the effects; for Satans injections usually have a dismal horror and consternation on the Christians spirit, which reacheth often to the discomposure of the body; whereas that lust which is our own, useth to please us better: We naturally like the conceptions of our own mind, as we naturally love the Children of our own Loins.

I know some others approve not of these differences, for neither the time, nor their violence, nor their suddenness, nor their independency (which some also make a difference) nor their horror, nor their unnatural consternation, or terrour, are so proper to Satans injections, as that our lusts may not partake of all these accidents: To say that our lusts may not push out on a sudden, or be independent, or that they may not be unnatural or terrible, is hard, saith Mr. Capel. These differences therefore we lay down but as topical and not as demonstrative: It were happy, if we could be absolutely resolved, that all our blasphemous thoughts were injections of Satan, and not from our lusts; for then we might say, they were Satans sins not ours, so long as we are passive, and not active in them: And therefore I see no reason but we may study the point, though it be a work too hard for most men to find out.

2. Let us beat them back so well as we may, let us never consent, or approve of them, and we are safe: This may comfort us, whether they come from Satan, or our selves; and upon this ground some would not have us perplex our selves too much with needless Queries, which thoughts be Satans, and which be ours; for if we reject them, whether they come from him or us, they are not at all imputed to us. The rule runs thus; That only is ours which we accept and assent unto; When I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, saith Paul; therefore no more is imputed by God, than is seen and allowed by us; if it come from Satan it is no sin of ours at all; if it come from our lusts, sin it is materially, but not formally, for the guilt is done away in that we do not allow it, but abhor it. John Climachus tells a story of one, who being assaulted with a spirit of Blasphemy for twenty years, he writ a Letter to a good old man of his sad condition; the matter being sifted, and found out that the poor Monk had been long assaulted, but during that time, had prayed and fasted, was sensible of it, but never consented to it; the old Saint fell a laughing, and coming to the tempted person, whom he found groveling on the ground, Come (said he) stand up, and lay thine hand upon my head, which when he had done, thy sin (said the old Soldier of Christ) be upon me, for the time past, and time to come; which no sooner said, but the sickly tempted man grew healthy and strong, his disease both chronick and acute, immediately vanished, his mind was settled, and Satan avoided: It is the concurrent Judgment of our best Divines, that blasphemous thoughts resisted, and not consented unto, are not our sins but our crosses: or suppose there be any tainture on our parts, yet condemning them in our judgments, and abhorring them with our Hearts, Christs precious blood takes away the venom of all. It was good Divinity, though but ill Poetry, Tentans non ledit, nisi cum tentatus obedit.

3. Let us not dispute or reason the case with Satan, but at the very first approach bid Satan avoid: Thus Christ did, when Satan tempted him to fall down and worship him, Avoid Satan, saith Christ: The Devil is an old Sophister, of above five thousand years standing, in the School of hideous temptations, and hellish policies; and we are but Novices of yesterday, and but a little acquainted with his methods, devices, and depths; and therefore if we will debate this matter with the Devil, we may be more and more confounded; surely it is better to bid Satan avaunt; instead of disputing, there should be loathing, our Hearts within us should rise at the injection, and throw it away with detestation, as Christ Jesus did, and then will Satan depart, at least for a season, as he did from Christ.

4. During the hour and power of darkness, avoid solitariness and desert places, there Satan hath the greatest advantage for all his assaults. Is not this the meaning of the Preacher? Two are better then one, and wo be to him that is alone, if he fall, he hath none to help him up. Eccl. 4. 9. When Christ was to be tempted of the Devil, the spirit led him into the Wilderness: And Mat. 4. 1. why into the Wilderness, but that Satan might have all the advantage against him, in respect of the place? Indeed, no place is free from Satans temptations, Lot was caught in a Cave, David on his House, Adam in Paradise: We see how busie Satan is with us in our publick Assemblies, yet of all places, none so fit for the Devil as solitary places; when he is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry (or solitary) places; Mat. 12. 43. Luk. 8. 29. and while he is in a man, by way of possession, he carries him into the Wilderness, or solitary places: When did Satan assault Eve, but when she was alone? When did he assault David, but being alone on his Gallery? When Lot's Daughters, but when they were alone in the Cave? He is a Prince of darkness, and therefore passeth all his exploits in as much darkness, secrecy, and silence as he can. I might instance in * others; but give me * Tactica leave to speak a little of my own experiences Sacra page in this kind, much of my time I have spent 8. in eminently famous and publick places, but at last weary of those hurries, jars, envies, pride, discord, and policies of men in Streets and Towns, I resolved to spend the remainder of my time, for the most part, in the silent Gardens, Fields, and Woods; there sometimes I was taken with the various tunes of melodious Birds, and occasionally they have lifted up my Heart in spiritual Songs, and Psalms, and Hymns: But alas, I find these places are not free from temptations, then they that are more publick; Satan hath his temptations of another sort, and especially his most hideous and horrible injecti-

injections in such places more than publick. And this more resolves me than all the Arguments that ever I read, of the errour of those Eremites and Votaries of old, who, to free themselves from Satan's malice, and for more holiness, voluntarily forsook the societies of men, and lived by themselves in woods and wildernesses; And yet is there no mean betwixt these two extremes? is not society good? and is not solitariness good in their times and seasons? I dare not for a world deny either, and I think he is no Christian that makes not use of both: Hence I say, that in the very time of the assaults, or of Satans injections, it is good to avoid solitariness, as of choice; yet if God, by virtue of our calling, shall draw or lead us into solitary places at

Mat. 4. 1. such a time, we need not fear, Jesus Christ was led of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the Devil. If we are led into a wilderness by Divine Providence, and in our calling, and that we run not our selves rashly into a temptation, we may confidently expect a comfortable issue out of it. But herein we had need of caution and direction. 1. For caution, beware that in solitary places we yield not to roving, ranging thoughts, the time there spent must not be unprofitably spent: Indeed, the heart is a wandring thing, like a Mill ever grinding, ever in a motion, take heed then, watch over it, give it not leave to muse unprofitably. 2. For direction, carry we our selves so in solitary places, that we may say with Scipio, we are never less alone, than when we are alone; or rather with Christ, I am not alone, for the Father is with me. There is a sweet liberty (when we are solitary) of conversing with God, there may we make our addresses to him, and sharpen our prayers, and meditate on him, and on his word and works: And thus in a wilderness we may have safety, for as the hills compass Jerusalem, so doth the Lord compass his people, whiles they are in his service.

5. We must have a care to avoid idleness, holy exercises, and the duties of our lawful callings should then be our work: For holy exercises, I commend conferences with others, to ask counsel, to acquiesce in counsel well given, is a present Cure: Prayer also is a duty taught us by Christ, Lord suffer us not to be led into temptation, q. d. Lord rebuke Satan, and restrain his malice, that either he may not cast his hellish wild-fire of blasphemous thoughts into their own minds, or at least that they may be quenched at their first entrance, and not inflame our concupiscence with the least liking of them. And for our particular callings, follow them with all diligence; by this means we shall have no leisure to hearken to Satan, and in them seasonably we serve God our Father, as well as in our general callings.

6. If for all this we cannot be rid of these sad injections, be we not therefore over-much grieved, but seeing they are Satans sins, and not ours, let them pass as they come, without any great trouble. Some of bold spirits tell us, that in this case we may deride Satan, not haughtily, but holily, as if we should say, Sir Satan, thou unclean spirit, if thou couldst do me any greater mischief, I know thou wouldst do it, but I regard thee not, for I call on God as my helper against all thy assaults. The proud Devil cannot endure himself to be contemned, and this holy contempt of Satan, hath proved the cure of some poor tempted souls, as * Gerson affirms.

CHAP. V. SECT. I.

Of the Devils furious Assaults in the End and Period of our Life.

THe fourth and last period wherein Satan assaults or combats with us, it is in the end and period of our life; and in prosecution of this, first we learn some of those depths or wiles of Satan against us, and then practise we those duties that concern us in our wrestling with him at such a time.

His assaults are usually sharpest then, thus * one tells us, Amidst the variety of Satans methods, he is for the most part constant in one piece of policy, and that is this, he conceals his greatest fury, his most desperate assault unto the last; he reserves his fiercest dart, his deadliest poyson, his sharpest sting, until he meet us on our Deaths-bed. Another of our Worthies, agrees with him, As evil spirits are ever busie and restless in their assaults, so their last conflicts use to be most vehement, whether it be for that now the Soul is passing out of their reach, or whether it be for that the painful agonies of death yield them more hopes of advantage, since the Soul, whiles it is struggling with those last pangs, must needs have her powers distracted in her resistances: Cruelty, where it would prevail, will be sure to lay most load upon the weaker. I have often wondred, why all the Saints are not then most troubled; some we see pass out of the world without any molestation, but it is not for want of Satans Will, God hath him in a Chain, and rebukes Satan, and the holy Angels guard the Saints and keep off Devils, otherwise I believe not one should pass out of this world, but Satan would assault him with all his fiery darts; yet as he tempts all in life, so it is the Lords pleasure that in death he should have a liberty to fall on some, and then he assaults with his fiercest dart, his deadliest poyson, his sharpest sting indeed; and of some of these I shall speak.

SECT. II.

Of the several Assaults of Satan at our death.

BUt what are those deadly machinations which the Devil useth at this time? Here we are at a stand: Alas, we know not the secret projects of silly men like our selves, much less can we attain unto the understanding of all the internal plots of subtil Devils; such knowledg is too wonderful for us, our clew hath not line enough to fathom these depths of Satan, yet (as golden mouth'd Hall) vil Angels.

Though we be not able to descry those infinite and hidden particularities of diabolical arts, yet our woful experience and observation hath taught us some general heads of these mischievous practices. I cannot say I can tell you any of their assaults at such a time by my own experience, for I have not yet passed those pikes and pangs of death, yet may I bring in the experiences of others, and so guess at the variety of Satans assaults at the point of death. For instance, some he moves to an ungrounded confidence in God, others to a distrust, where they have sure grounds of true belief; some he works to a spiritual pride, and over-weaning opinion, others to a defectdness of spirit, so that they cry; Why art thou cast down, O my Soul? Into some he throws many needless scruples, affrighting them even from lawful actions; into others he darts presumptuous thoughts, that nothing startles them, be it never so wicked; some he smooths up in the good opinion of their graces, or gracious disposition; others he beats down with a disparagement of the true graces planted in them by Gods own Spirit; some he feeds with a sweet contentment of their own righteousness and gracious actings, others he endeavours to freeze up with a dulness and deadness in all their duties; some he flatters with an unfallable assurance of their happy condition, and of their Election unto glory; others he tempts to a careless indifference, and stupid neglect of their future estate; some he objects against, in that the measure of their sorrow and contrition is insufficient; others he perswades, that the least velleity of penitent sorrow, without straining it to any further afflictive degrees of sorrow for sin, is sorrow enough; into some he throws flashes of hell-fire, and presents death to them as the King of terrors: others he turns into stocks and stones, so that they mind neither Death, nor Judgment, nor Heaven, nor Hell, nor any thing of that Eternity that is before them. But because I speak only of Believers, and their assaults, this I observe, that most what he either tempts to presumption or despair, either he puffs up poor souls with some ungrounded presumptions of present safety, and future glory, or he casts undue and unjust fears into the consciences of them that are most tender and weak; and therefore passing by all the rest, I shall take notice only of these two assaults, and give directions how to wrestle against them.

SECT. III.

Of the Assaults of Presumption.

1. IF Satan takes this course to tempt us to Presumption, it is usually on this principle, that our lives have been holy, that we have walked before God in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in his sight. I will not deny but this may be done: Hezekiah is not condemned, but commended in this very saying; our duties, and graces, and gracious actings, as to the matter of sanctification, are precious metal, and as they have the Image of Christ upon them, and for them we may bless the Name of God; but as to the matter of Justification, we are to renounce all; and as to the matter of Sanctification, we are to attribute the strength, the power, and the glory of all unto Jesus Christ, and nothing to our selves. If either we trust to them, or rest on them, or expect salvation in them, or by them, or pride our selves in the exercise of them on our dying beds, it is Satans temptation, and we had need to look to it, and avoid it.

SECT. IV.

Of our wrestling with Satan in this respect.

WHich that we may, let us observe these Rules.

1. Consider, whatsoever good we have done, or howsoever holy we have been, it was not of our selves, but of the free gift and grace of God in Christ: What have we that we have not received? and if we have received it, why do we glory, as if we had not received it? It is storied of Mr. Knox, that the night before his death, he slept some hours with great unquietness, often sighing and groaning, whereupon when he awaked, the standers by asked him how he did, and what it was that made him mourn so heavily? to whom he answered, "In my life time I have been assaulted with temptations from Satan, and he hath oft cast my sins into my teeth to drive me to despair, yet God gave me strength to overcome all his temptations: But now the subtil Serpent takes another course and seeks to perswade me, that all my labours in the ministry and the fidelity that I have shewed in that service, hath merited heaven and immortality; but blessed be God that brought to my mind these Scriptures: What hast thou that thou hast not received? and not I, but the grace of God in me, &c. With which he is gone away ashamed; and shall no more return. And now I am sure that my battle is at an end, and that without pain of body, or trouble of spirit, I shall shortly change this mortal and miserable life, with that happy and immortal life that shall never have an end. Oh that thus it may be with us, that Gods grace may be all, and we may be nothing: We are not sufficient of our selves to think any thing as of our selves, but all our sufficiency is of God." 1 Cor. 4. 7.

2. Rest not on any thing on this side Jesus Christ; neither grace, nor duties, nor holiness, are to be trusted upon: It is true, we must hold them fast, in point of practise and obedience, but it is our sin and danger to hold them fast in reliance and confidence; do them we must, but glory in them we must not; we may remember on our death beds what we have done, and how holy we have been in obedience to God, and by the grace of Christ; yea, we may go further and desire God, to remember us concerning them: Remember me, Neh. 13. O my God, concerning this also; and spare me 21. according according to the greatness of thy mercy: Nebemiah had done many good offices to the Church of God, and he desires of God to remember him in respect of them; Think upon me, my God, for good, according to all I have done for this people: yet we are not to boast of them, to trust in them, or to expect a reward for them, it is not propter, but secundum, not for all I have done, but according to all I have done: As Christ will reward his Saints according to their works, so Nebemiah prays, Lord, think upon me according to all I have done, as being the best witnesses of my inward righteousness, but not for what I have done, as if I should merit heaven by my just deservings.

 Our Saviour tell us, When we have done all we can do, that still we must say, we are but unprofitable servants: How? unprofitable; this title is given to evil servants, Cast ye the unprofitable servant into utter darkness; and they are all unprofitable, there is none that doth good, no not one. Certainly this shews what our merits are, if God should be severe: Can a man be profitable unto God? If thou be righteous, what givest thou him? or what receiveth he of thy hands? Take heed than of resting on, or trusting to any righteousness or works of thy own, they are no cause of heaven, and therefore not to be confided in.

3. Roll we our selves on Christ, and Christ alone for life and for salvation. Bellarmine could say, after all his disputes for relying on works, on Saints, and Angels, tutius est, &c.
the safest way is to rely on Jesus Christ, Works, Saints, and Angels, may be some comfort in their way, and at time of death. I would have an especial eye to Angel-protection, of which afterwards; yet I must needs say, that Faith is not content with the presence and assistance of an Angel, except the Lord Jesus Christ be there himself. When God promised to send an Angel with his people to drive out the Canaanites, the Israelites mourned, and no man put on his ornaments; they put on blacks, like a loving Wife that would have her Husband: What do you tell her of sending a trusty servant with her? nothing will content her but her husband: So when our Faith is set on work, it makes us but sick to tell us of an Angel, except we may have Christ Jesus also, him or none, he is our righteousness, and he will be sure to be our strength: At what time
I am afraid (saith David) I will trust in thee.
 Indeed all the Saints are taught the same Lesson, to renounce their own righteousness, and to expect all from the pure mercy of God in Christ, which act of faith is so pleasing to God, that such a soul shall never be ashamed.
 A heathen could say, when a Bird scared by a Hawk flew into his bosom, I will not betray thee unto thy enemy, seeing thou comest for sanctuary unto me: How much less will God yield up a soul unto its enemy, when it takes sanctuary in his Name, saying, Lord, I am troubled with such and such a temptation, but I trust in thee, I rest upon thee for life and for salvation: O take me into the bosom of thy love for Christ's sake! O cast me into the arms of thy everlasting strength! I have no confidence in my self, or any other, into thy hands

I commit my cause, my life, my soul, or whether I live or die, here will I stick, and here will I abide for ever. Oh blessed Soul, that thus avoids Satan, and rolls it self on Christ, and Christ alone for its eternal happiness.

S E C T. V.

Of the Assaults of despair.

BUT Satan (it may be) takes another course, if men will not presume, he endeavours with might and main to drive them to despair: this is the Gulph that swallows up Souls, and therefore Satan makes sure, if he can but prevail in this assault; and to that end, he sets before their eyes all the gross sins which ever they committed, and all the judgments which those sins have deserved; These he writes (as it were) on the Curtains of their Beds, and endeavours as much as he can to keep their eyes upon them q. d. Read here the Rev. 21 bloody characters of thy scarlet sin, peruse the 27.
greatness, the multitude, the heinousness of thy transgressions; the word is, that no unclean thing shall enter into the Kingdom of God; and canst thou hope with all thy sins to pass through those golden gates? there shall in no wise enter into them any thing that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lye; and standest not thou guilty of all these sins? What hope then to enter through those gates into the City? Come, despair and dye, expect nothing but the wrath of the Judge, and the wages of sin, viz. death eternal, both of body and soul.

Thus Satan tempts, he knows that he must now or never prevail, for if their soul once go to heaven, he shall never vex nor trouble them any more.

S E C T. VI.

Of our wrestling with Satan as to this last Assault.

TO this last assault of despair, I have spoken before in Chap. 3. Sect. 5. which in this case may be reviewed, yet a few considerations I shall add here, and then I have done.

1. Consider, it is as easie with God, upon true repentance, to forgive the greatest sin as the least, and he is as willing to forgive many, as to pardon one, and his mercy shineth more in pardoning great sinners, than small offenders; as appears in the examples of Ma-nasses, Magdalen, Peter, Paul, &c. Moreover, the Law entred, that the offence might abound, but where sin abounded, grace did much more abound.
 O blessed Word.

2. Consider, that Christ is the remedy appointed by God the Father to save sinful souls;
 if then Satan tell us we are miserable sinners, and must despair, we may answer, Christ came into the world to save sinners, Mat. 9. 13. Isa.
53. 5. 2 Cor. 5. 21. This blessed Mrs. Katherine Stubbs wrestled with Satan, as appears in that Dialogue: How now Satan, what makest thou here? art thou come to tempt the Lords servant?

vant? I tell thee (thou hell-hound) thou hast no part nor portion in me, nor by the grace of God ever shall have; I was, now am, and shall be the Lords for ever; yea Satan, I was chosen an Elect of Christ unto everlasting Salvation, before the foundation of the world was laid; and therefore thou must get thee packing; thou damned dog. But what dost thou lay to my charge, thou foul Fiend? Ab that I am a sinner, and therefore shall be damned: I confess indeed that I am a sinner, and grievous sinner, both by original sin and by actual sin, and that I may thank thee for, and therefore Satan, I bequeath my sin to thee, from whence it first came, and I appeal to the mercy of God in Christ Jesus: Christ came to save sinners (as he himself saith) and not the righteous: Behold the Lamb of God (saith John) that taketh away the sins of the world; the Blood of Jesus Christ doth cleanse us from all sins. And therefore I constantly believe my sins are washed away in the precious Blood of Jesus Christ, and shall never be imputed to me any more. But what sayst thou now Satan? dost thou ask me, how I dare come for mercy? I tell thee Satan, I am bold to come unto him through Christ, being assured and certain of pardon and remission of all my sins for his Name sake: For doth not the Lord bid all heavy laden with the burthen of sin, to come unto him, and he will ease them? Christs arms were spread wide open upon the Cross to embrace me, and all penitent sinners, and therefore I will not fear to present my self before his foot-stool, in full assurance of his mercy for Christ his sake; what more Satan? dost thou say, It is written, that God will reward every one according to his deserts? So it is written again, thou deceitful devil, that Christs righteousness is my righteousness, his works my works, his merits my merits, and his precious blood a full satisfaction for my sins: O but God is a just God (thou sayst) and therefore in Justice must needs condemn me: I grant Satan, that he is a just God, and therefore he cannot in Justice punish me for my sins, which he hath already punished in his own Son: It is against the Law of Justice, to punish one fault twice; I was, and am a great debtor unto God the Father, but Jesus Christ hath paid the debt for me, and therefore it stands not with the justice of God to require it again; and therefore avoid Satan, avoid thou fire-brand of hell, and tempt me no more, for he that is with me is mightier than thou, even the mighty and victorious Lion of the Tribe of Juda; who hath bruised thy head, and hath promised to be with his children to the end of the world; avoid therefore thou dastard, remove thy siege, and yield the field won, and get thee packing, or I will call upon my grand Captain Jesus Christ, the valiant Michael, who beat thee in heaven, and threw thee down to hell, with all thy hellish Train and devillish crew.—She had scarcely pronounced these last words but she fell suddenly into a sweet smiling laughter, saying, Now he is gone, now he is gone, do you not see him fly like a coward and run away like a beaten Cock; he hath lost the field, and I have won the victory, even the garland and crown of Everlasting life; not by my own power, and strength, but by the power and might of Jesus Christ.

3. Peruse the evidences which in former times we have gathered and kept for such a time as this: Have not many Saints avoided Satan thus, and got the victory? I shall instance in that one, recorded in Mr. Callamy's ark, who reports of her thus: "I knew (saith he) a very godly woman, who in her life time had taken a great deal of pains to compose and write down her evidences for heaven, and who also kept a diary of her life, and wrote down how she spent every day; it pleased God to withdraw himself from her for a while, and to let the Devil loose, who tempted her to despair, told her she was an hypocrite, and formalist, and had no true grace in her; she sent for me, made her bitter complaint to me, and sadly bewailed her condition; then she told me (which before I knew not) how she had spent her life, how careful she had been in searching her ways, in observing how she spent every day; and how exact in collecting evidences for heaven: The book was sent for, I read a great part of it to her, and took much delight and content in what I read, and it pleased God to come to her with comfort in the reading of it: She shewed her staff, and her bracelets, and thereby quenched the fiery darts of the Devil.

4. Improve the comforts and precious promises which are more suitable to our conditions, I shall instance in these,— Behold Satan Luke 22. bath desired to have you, that he might sift you as wheat, but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not.—For I am persuaded, that Rom. 8. 38, neither Death, nor Life, nor Angels, nor Principalities, nor Powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.— Having spoiled Principalities and Powers, he Heb. 2. 14, made a shew of them openly, triumphing over 15. them upon the Cross, and so through death hath destroyed him that had the power of death, that is the devil, that he might deliver all them which for fear of death were all their life subject to bondage.—And the God of Peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly.—The devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time. His rage is greatest when his time is shortest, even as the darkness is greatest a little before day, but this is a sign that a calm is at hand; the Devil's grand temptations, are messengers of his retiring, as when the strength of an enemy is wasted, he will make one or two furious assaults against the Castle, and then he raiseth the siege: And is not this the voice of Christ, Come unto me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest? Sooner must God Matth. 11. 28. deny himself, or disrobe himself of the brightest beam of his glory, and of the fairest flower in his Garland of Majesty, which is his mercy, before he deny pardon of sin to the truly penitent: Thou sayst thy sins are as black as hell, as red as blood, as foul as Sodom, yet saith Christ, Christ, Come and welcome. But above all others, methinks there is one promise which is able to put life and fresh vigour in the most despairing soul: Let the wicked forsake his ways, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God for he will abundantly pardon; for my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord: For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. Thus the Lord draws his people to the Fountains of graces, and drives them from despair, by a consideration of his transcendent and unlimited mercies: It seems they had reasoned thus, We have been so wretched by rebellions, that there is no returning unto him, there is no hope of pardon: What, saith God, will you measure my mercy by your mercy? why, there is great odds between my ways and your ways, my thoughts and your thoughts, i. e. between my mercy and your conceits of my mercy, as there is distance between heaven and earth. O golden promises!

5. Pray earnestly that now the Lord may step in, and help us by the power of his might. This was the way of the Saints of old, the holy Sister of Basil, and Melania, whom Hierome magnifies for their sanctity, besought God with great fervency, that those envious spirits might not hinder them in their last passage: And devout Bernard to the same purpose, when he drew near his end, he sued to his friend for his earnest prayers, that the heel of his life might be kept safe from the Serpent, so as he might not find where to fix his sting: Arm me for my last brunt (prayed divine Hall) O my God, stand by me in my last combat, make me faithful to the death, that thou mayst give me a Crown of life. Why thus let us pray in this case of despair: Remember me, O God, according to the multitude of thy tender compassions, and blot my iniquities out of thy remembrance for thy Names sake, impute not unto me those hellish thoughts suggested by Satan, which through thy grace I detest unfeignedly, under which I desire to be humbled, and from which I beg to be delivered: Return, O Lord, cause the light of thy countenance to shine upon me, refresh my parched soul with the sense of thy mercy, dispel the mists of this black temptation, rebuke Satan and restrain his malice: Thou art the God of peace, tread Satan I beseech thee under my feet shortly, that with a quiet and cheerful spirit I may finish my course: Oh plead my cause against the enemy of my Soul, and of thy glory! Lord how long wilt thou look on; rescue my soul from these fiery assaults of the wicked one, I am sore troubled, I am bowed down greatly, I walk in heaviness all the day long, my heart panteth, my soul is exceedingly disquieted with temptations; this thou hast seen, O Lord, keep not silence; O be not far off from me, stir up thy self, and awake to my judgment, curb and chain up Satan, that he may molest me no longer, and strengthen thy poor servant, that through thy might I may conquer and triumph over him:

And my soul shall rejoyce in the Lord, it shall re-joyce in his Salvation; all my bones shall say, Lord, who is like unto thee, which deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him, yea the poor and needy from him that spoileth him? Psal. 55. 9. 10.

6. Above all, take the shield of Faith in Jesus Christ, wherewith we shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked: Our Faith will do wonders, if thereby we take Christ Jesus and set him against the Tempter: we are not so weak in the hands of Satan, as Satan is in the hands of Jesus Christ; turn him then over to Jesus Christ, and let Christ alone with him: Thus did the aforefaid Mrs. Bretergh, after a great conflict with Satan; Satan (said she) reason not with me, I am but a weak woman, if thou hast any thing to say, say it to my Christ, he is my Advocate, my Strength, and my Redeemer, and he shall plead for me. It was the speech of Tulerus, one that Luther prized above all, Though (said he) the Mariners make use of their Oars in the time of calm, yet when a storm comes down, the Mariners leave all and fly to their Anchor: So though at other times we may make use of resolutions, vows, &c. yet when the storm of temptation comes down, nothing then so good as to fly to the Anchor of Faith, or to cast the Anchor of Faith into the vail; then Christ, and none but Christ, Lord though thou slayest me, yet will I trust in thee: And Satan though thou slayest me, yet will I keep to Jesus Christ.

* I remember a story of one Christopher Hafs, a Senator of Halens in Swevia, who lying on his deaths-bed, one like a Scribe, or Scrivener, appeared to him, who bringing paper, pen and ink, sat down at the Table, and in this manner spake to the sick man, O Christopher, number all thy sins in their order, which ever thou committedst, for I am sent of God that I may write them down, and carry them to the tribunal, where thou must shortly give an account. At these words, the dying man lifting himself up in his bed as well as he could, knowing that now he had to deal with Satan, he answered boldly, If I must number my sins, first then write over them the title, and let this be it, The Seed of the Woman shall bruise the Serpents Head; and to this title, (said he) do thou under-write all my sins: The Devil in his feigned habit, no sooner heard this answer, but presently he vanished. What, is Satan busie to work our souls into despair? let us then stir up our selves to believe, and rowl our souls upon Jesus Christ for life and salvation, and Satan will avoid.

7. Mind the witness of the spirit, either in former times, or at this time. Sometimes when Satan is most busie, the Lords steps in with his own testimony, and stops the Lions mouth, that he can say no more: Surely this should be minded. And this minds me of those horrid temptations which my dear and Reverend Brother Mr. Edward Gee, had on his deaths-bed: At that time of his last sickness I went to visit him, and I found him as full of spiritual ravishings and heavenly joys as (I thought) his heart could hold, he expressed them so largely, in a continued Speech for a long time, that I could do nothing all the while but admire, and give God the glory: But about two hours after I had left him, and was gone, Satan began his assaults of diffidence and despair, thrice he assaulted him, and nothing was seen or heard by the witnesses waiting on; but that at the first time Master Gee said, Away with thee, away with thee, thou Accuser of the Brethren, God confound thee. And when Satan assaulted him the second time, he said, Who is he that condemns? it is God that justifies: And I know that God will tread Satan under my feet; he that is in me, is stronger then he that is against me. And when Satan assaulted him the third time, he said, *Now have we beaten him, I am nothing; but what I am, I am by the grace of God: Whether at this time, or at another, was a very remarkable temptation, and I shall declare it (as it is given in to me) in Mr. Gee's own words: A Minister, and some others being with him, he told them thus. — I was praying (said he) to God my merciful Father in Christ Jesus for the main thing, viz. that he would strengthen and perfect, and give me life everlasting: To which purpose I used that Scripture in Psal. 138. 8. The Lord will perfect that which concerneth me, thy mercy, O Lord, endureth for ever, forsake not the works of thine own hands. — And then (said he) the devil came to me, and suggested thus: *Is true, thou prayest, and usest Scripture as an argument in prayer, and thou sayest, thou believest, but God will give mercy only to them that are true believers: And now what proof or evidence canst thou give me, that thou art a true believer? Upon this, said Mr. Gee, I was in a most woful condition, and it was far worse with my soul than any pangs of death, I was full of horror, and terror, so that I was ready to tumble off my bed into the grave, yea, into the pit of hell, and I was ready to cry out, Oh damned

wretch that I am! And I was the more full of horror, because I had said so much of my assurance and joy to them that were about me before: But this temptation lasted but a while: For 1. God, my most merciful Father in Christ Jesus, came in to my Soul with his testimony. And 2. Christ, my most blessed Redeemer, came into my Soul with his testimony. And 3. The spirit my Sanctifier, came into my soul with his testimony, and they writ their testimony in my heart, as if I should write upon paper with a pen and ink, and God, my most merciful Father, enabled me to say to Satan, thou implacable and irreconcilable enemy of my soul, away with thee, away with thee, its true what thou sayest that none but true believers can receive any comfort and strength from God: But see thou here, I have, a threefold testimony, that I am a true believer; God my most merciful and heavenly Father, Christ my most blessed and dear Saviour, and the Holy Spirit; I have these three witnesses, and therefore away with thee. And now (said he) the Devils mouth was stopped, and my soul triumphed: so that I had a fuller testimony of the Spirit after this conflict, and more joy than ever I had in all my life, as I remember; nay I had more joy than I can conceive, or an Angel can express. I tell this (said he) for Gods glory, and for your good; and I pray you tell it to others, that so they may know what malice and spight the Devil bears to their Souls, and likewise that they may be comforted as I was. And if the Lord deals thus with any of us, if he come with this seal, Oh let us mind it, and make the same use of it as he did, in repelling Satan, and then we may expect the same he had, both victory, and joy, and triumph.

SECT. I.

Of the occasions of them.

Ministration of Angels is a point both Scriptural and Practical: that such a thing is, no Christian doubts that ever I yet heard of; only the manner of Ministration may seem strange to them who are not thoroughly acquainted with the subject. I perceive by what hath been told me by a precious Friend, that such as have lately discusst of Angels, have met with the censure of more curious conjecture, than of evidence in their discourse, reason not reaching to the Subject, and Scripture not speaking distinctly of it. I deny not but some may have met with that censure in respect of some Controversies about the deputation of Angels; yet in other things not controverted, I verily believe (notwithstanding all censures) they have brought truth a-bed. It is in my

*Pet. Mart. enquire of the Angels accurately and subtilly is, magis ad curiositatem nostram, quam ad salutem, and he wisheth that Schoolmen in their knotty, thorny, and unprofitable discourses had observed this; and yet he confesseth, it is profitable for us to know how the Angels are destined to our ministry, for thereby we understand God's goodness towards us; And therefore of this (saith he) the Scripture is not silent. Yea of "this

*Musculus (saith Musculus) the Scripture is very full. in *Psal. "Yea the Scripture (saith Calvin) standeth most 34. v. 7. "bounty towards us, and therefore the Scripture reciteb, that they watch for our safety, Psal. 91. 11. Psal. 34. 7. Gen. 16. 9, &c. Howsoever I approve well of the caution, and it was therefore my resolution to have altered my method, and every Section, where the difficulty lay, first to have delivered my own Tenets; Secondly, to have backed them with such Authors as are most Orthodox; Thirdly, to have proved them by Scriptures; Fourthly, to have given in Experiences: But the Press having received my Papers, went on too fast for me, and I was prevented, before I was aware. And yet I see not but the thing is done, though not so distinctly in the method as I had purposed: if any thing be wanting, it is only the Citation of such Authors as I most build upon, and of those Texts of Scripture which they so numerously cite. I shall now therefore lay the foundation, on which I make it my work to superstruct; and this (sith I cannot do it otherwise) I shall pin upon the Front or Porch, of the following Fabrick, that all the work that follows may seem less strange, and become more edifying to the intelligent Reader.

SECT. II.

Of the Sayings and Proofs of Dr. Usher, Bishop of Armagh.

Lest any thing I write may be thought Novel, I appeal unto others both Godly and Orthodox Divines. And first let us hear what one of our Worthies (if not most worthy) B. Usher hath said of the several kind of Angels Body of Divinity. Ministration. The Offices which Angels perform towards man, are either in this life, or in the life to come. In this life the good Offices which the Angels perform towards the Godly, are either as instruments to bestow on them good things, or to keep them from evil things; the good things partly concern the body, and partly the Soul; for the body, 1. They are used as instruments to bestow things for the preservation of it, and to bring necessary helps to men in their distress, as to Elias, and Hagar. 2. They are appointed of God to be as a Guard and Garrison unto his Children to comfort and defend them walking in their lawful callings, Psal. 34. 7. and 91. 11. 3. They give an happy success to them in the good things they go about, Gen. 24. 7. 40. v. 4. They are appointed as Watchmen over the Saints, that by their presence they might keep their bodies in shamefacedness, holiness, and purity, 1 Cor. 11. 10. And for the Soul, they are, 1. To reveal the the will of God to the Saints, and inform them in things which he would have done, Acts 10. 5. 2. To stir up good motions in their Hearts. 3. To comfort them in sorrow, as Christ was comforted, being distressed in Soul, Luke 22. 43, 44. and as Paul as was comforted, Acts 27. 23, 24. 4. To rejoice at the conversion of Saints, Luke 15. 10. Again, the evil thing from which the good Angels do keep the Godly do partly concern the body, and partly the Soul: the Evils of the body, are either without us, or within us, the evils without us from which we are preserved by the Ministry of Angels, are, 1. From those dangers that one man bringeth upon another. 2. From those they are subject unto by reason of wild Beasts. 3. From those they are subject unto by reason of other creatures without life. 4. They do not only preserve the bodies of the Saints, but all things are theirs, as their Goods, Wife, Children, and Families: the Evils within us, from which also the Angels keep the bodies of Saints are 1. Sicknefs. 2. Famine. 3. Death. And as thus for the body, so the Evils of the Soul from which the Angels keep us, are the Evils of sin, and that two ways. 1. By their continual presence. 2. By their power. Lastly, The Offices which the good Angels are to perform towards man after this life. 1. They carry the Souls of the Godly, being separated from the body, with comfort into Heaven, Luke 16. 22. 2. They wait upon Christ at the day of Judgment to gather all the faithful unto him and to separate the wicked from among them. Matth. 24. 31, 51. and to rejoice at the sentence which he shall give. This Analysis we have from the eminently able, and worthy Divine, the Glory of this, and our Neighbour Nation: his character is Antiquitatis primæ peritissimus, orthodoxæ religionis vindex ἀντιστήτης, errorum malleus, in concionando frequens, facundus, præpotens, vitæ inculpata exemplar spectabile. And for his Catechism, out of which it is taken, it is the sum and substance of Christian Religion upon which as a more sure Foundation we build our Faith, and ground all our hopes.

Y y y y 2 29

SECT. III.

Of the Sayings and Proofs of Mr. Edward Leigh.

*A Scheme, or body of Divinity, by Ed. Leigh Esq; and M. A. of Mag. Hall, Oxon.

A Nother of our Worthies gives us another Scheme, both of the Ministration of Angels, and our Communion with Angels: as thus; Their Ministration, or service in respect of the Church and People of God, is—1. They are glad for the good which befalls the Elect, Luke 2. 14. Luke 15. 10. 2. They reveal unto them the will of God, Dan. 8. 9. Rev. 1. 11. 3. They keep the Elect from dangers both of Soul and Body, so far as is expedient, Gen. 19. 16. and 28. 12. and 25. 7. and 32. 1, 2. Psal. 34. 7. and 91. 11. Numb. 22. 1 Kings 19. 7. 2 Kings 6. 16. and 8. 9, 10. 4. They comfort them in distrests, heaviness, and distraction, Gen. 20. 17, 18. and 32. 1, 2. Isa. 6. 6. Luke 1. 30. and 2. 10. Matth. 28. 5. Acts 10. 4. and 27. 23, 24. Judg. 6. 12. and 13. 10. Dan. 10. 12. Matth. 1. 20. and 2. 12, 13. 5. They suggest holy thoughts into their hearts, as the Devil doth evil and unclean thoughts. 6. They carry the Souls of the Elect into Heaven at the end of this life, Luke 16. 22. and at the day of Judgment they shall gather the Elect from the four Winds, and separate between the Elect and Reprobate, Mat. 24. 31. and 13. 27. — And as for our Communion with them, 1. We honour them, and judge them more noble creatures than man; they have greater Wisdom, Holiness, and Power, than man hath. 2. We love them because they love us and delight in our good, being ready to help us every where. 3. We should be careful of our carriage because of their presence, we should not sin because of the Angels. 4. We should desire to make them examples of our lives, that we may do Gods Will as they do. 5. If Angels should appear visibly to us, we should honour them as more excellent creatures, but still keep within the bounds of civil, or fraternal honour, as to our fellow-servants, though above us; and not honour them with Religious Worship. The Papists say, a Religious Worship is due unto them, not primary, such as is due unto God, but secondary: but we reply, Religious Worship is only due to the Creator as being the command of the First Table; and Civil Worship is only due to the Creature as being the command of the Second Table. By consent of all, Religious Worship is that whereby we do acknowledge God to be the primum principium, the ultimum finem, & summum bonum, now is this but one, and we may well say, there is a summum bonum secundario; as there is a secundarious Religious Worship. Again, there is the same reason of a Religious Worship, as there is of a Divine act of Faith, but we cannot say that we may with a Divine Faith believe in God primarily: and in Angels secondarily, for this were ridiculous.

Confectaries from Angels. 1. We should imitate the Angels. 2. It shews us how much we are beholding to God and Christ; no Angels could love us, if it were not for him. Gods Angels are our Angels to defend and keep us, God hath committed the care of us to these ministring Spirits. This is the Doctrine of Angels, laid down by the Authors, as one of the Fundamentals, and main Grounds of Christian Religion; So then to deny this, it were to deny a Fundamental, which (saith the same Author) must of necessity destroy Religion.

SECT. IV.

Of the Sayings and Proofs of Mr. Samuel Clark.

A Nother of our Divines, whose Works praise him in the Gates, is yet more full. The Ministration of Angels is either in this life, or hereafter: in this life it relates to mens Bodies and Souls; for Bodies in general, they are said to attend on the Saints, and to minister to them, Heb. 1. 14. Matth. 18. 10. in particular, 1. They are as Stewards to provide for them in their need, 1 Kings 19. 5. 2. As Physicians to cure their Maladies, John 5. 4. 3. As Nurses to bear up, and keep them from hurt, Psal. 91. 11, 12. 4. As Guides to direct and keep them from wandrings, Gen. 24. 7. 32. 1. 5. As Soldiers to guard them, Psal. 34. 7. 2 King. 6. 17. 6. As rescuers and deliverers to pull them out of dangers, Acts 5. 19. and 12. 7, 8. Dan. 6. 22. — In reference to their Souls in this life, 1. They are as Prophets or Teachers to instruct them, Dan. 8. 16, 17. and 9. 22, 23, 24. Luke 1. 15, 34, 35. Acts 1. 11. 2. They are comforters to them in their fears and perplexities, Gen. 21. 17. Isa. 6. 6, 7. Luke 22. 23. 3. Coadjutors, to stand with them against Satan, Zach. 3. 1, 2. Judg. 9. 4. Fellow-members to rejoice with them them at the conversion of sinners, Luke 50. 10.

5. Tutors to encourage them in Duties, 2 King.
1. 15. and to punish them for their offences, that they may be brought to repentance, 2 Sam.
24. 16. Hereafter in the life to come they are, 1. Watchers, to carry their Souls at the separation of them from their Bodies into Heaven, Luke 16. 22. 2. As keepers at the last day to gather all the Elect together Mat. 24. 31. 3. Fanners, or Filthers, to separate the evil from the good, Mat. 13. 49.
4. Companions in Heaven, to join with them in praising God, Rev. 7. 9, 10, 11. See Dr.
Gouge on Heb.

One Objection is raised, that Gods Children oft fall into inconveniences, how then are they attended by the Angels?

Ans. 1. They are preserved by the Angels from many inconveniences that they know not of; as we have Devils about us continually, so certainly there is a conflict between the good Angels and them about us continually. 2. If at any time we fall into inconveniences, its because we are out of our way, and then they have no charge over us, Psal. 91. 11.
3. If we suffer in the custody of Angels any inconveniency, it is that we may be tryed, exercised, and made better by it; for if they keep us not from ill, they keep us in ill, and deliver us out of it at length, so that there is nothing in the World befalls Gods Children, but they are gainers by it at last, whatsoever
it is, Rom. 8. 28.

This may teach us. 1. Not to grieve these good Spirits: if we commit sins in secret where no eye of man sees us, yet God and the blessed Angels see us, and grieve when we fall into sin. 2. To bless that God that hath thus honoured us, not only by taking our nature on him, but by giving us his own guard of Angels to attend us. 3. To take an holy state upon us; and to think our selves too good to abase our selves to sin, to be slaves to men, seeing we have Angels to attend upon us; we are Kings, and have a mighty guard therefore we should carry our selves answerable. 4. Not to despise the meanest Christian, seeing Angels despise not to attend upon them. 5. To imitate the Angels, 1. In rejoicing at the conversion of sinners as they do, Luke 15. 10. 2. In reverencing the Majesty of God as they do, by covering their Faces, Isa. 6. 2, 25.
3. In standing ready prest to execute the Will of the Lord as they do, Psal. 103.
20, 21. 4. In executing for manner as they do, viz. with chearfulness, sincerity, and without wearisomness. This is a piece of that Marrow of Divinity, collected out of the Works of our most judicious, experienced, and orthodox English Divines, with some additionals of his own as the Author confesseth.

and piety. This tutelage of Saints is from their first conception in the Womb; till the translation of Body and Soul into Glory: Survey all the passages of life from the Womb to the Grave, nay after death, till the Resurrection, the Ministry of Angels doth not wholly cease: their care beginneth as soon as the Child is quickned in the Womb, for then they have another distinct charge to look after; and as they are servants of Providence, by their help they are born and brought into the World; Gods Providence taketh date thence, Gal. 1. 15. and they, I say, are instruments of Providence; they watch over us in infancy and childhood; little ones are committed to their custody, and Babes and Sucklings have their Angels, Mat.
18. 10. Jesus Christ was provided for in his Cradle by an Angel, Matth. 2. 13. The Devil rampeth about the Elect, whilst they are yet in their swadling cloaths; that expression Revel. 12. of the Dragons seeking to devour the man-child as soon as he was born, is figurative, but it alludeth to what is true.
Again, as we grow up, they rejoice at our conversion, Luke 15. 10. We read of Joy in Heaven over a sinner that repenteth; you cannot gratifie the Angels more than in your conversion to God; the Devil seeks to hinder it as much as he can, but they rejoice when a brand is pluckt out of the burning, Zach. 3. Again, after conversion, they watch over us in duty, and danger, and temptations, in Duties where Satan is most busied to hinder, Zach. 3. 1. they are most helpful: the Angels are in the assemblies of the faithful, 1 Cor. 11. 10. so in dangers, when Peter was in Prison, God sendeth him an Angel to bring him out, Acts 12. 7. Ruffinus speaketh of a young man, a Martyr on the Rack, that had his face wiped by an Angel, and refreshed by him in the midst of his pains:
nay in casual dangers, which we cannot foresee and prevent, Psal. 91. 12. He shall give his Angels charge over thee, that thou dash not thy foot against a stone; so in temptations, Matth.
4. 11. they ministered to Christ, when he was tempted by the Devil; they came, to shew how God will deal with his people in like cases. Once more, they are with us to comfort us in death; in the midst of his agonies the Lord Jesus was comforted, and refreshed by an Angel, Luke 22. 43. So they are with the faithful, helping and easing them in their sicknesses. After death they carry our Souls to Heaven, as Lazarus was carried into Abraham's bosom, Luke 16. 22. though the body had not the honour of a pompous burial, yet the Soul is solemnly conveyed by Angels, and gathered up into the communion of the Souls of just men made perfect, as Christ himself also ascended into Heaven in the company of Angels, Acts 1. 10. Once more, after death they guard our bodies in the grave, as the Angels guarded Christ's Sepulchre, Matth. 28. 2, 3, 4. God did set his guards, as well as the High Priests: their last ministry and service about the faithful, is to gather up their bodies at the last day, They shall gather up the Elect from the four winds, Matth. 24. 31. and then their Office and charge ceaseth; Thus far this Author.
the

SECT. VI.

Of the sayings and proofs of Bishop Hall.

IN this Doctrine I have the consent of many others: and to this purpose in the Treatise itself I have cited Dyke, Dingley, Laurence, in whose Book of Communion, and War with Angels (saith Mr. Baxter in his Saints Everlasting Rest, Part 2. Chap. 7.) is taught the true and spiritual use of this Doctrine. But I leave him and Mr. Dingley in their Controversies; My meaning is only to hold forth positive, presupposed, and on both sides granted, and decided truths. And in that respect I shall appeal but to one more of our native Practical Divines. * Bishop Hall speaking of the employments, and operations of Angels, saith thus; What variety is here of your assistance? one while ye lead us in our way, as ye did Israel, Exod. 33. 2. another while ye instruct us, as ye did Daniel, Dan. 8. 16, 17. one while ye fight for us, as ye did for Joshua, Josh. 5. 13. another while ye purvey for us, as for Elias, 1 Kings 19. 5. one while ye fit us to our holy vocation, as ye did to Isaiah, Isai. 6. 6, 7. another while ye dispose of the opportunities of our calling for good, as ye did of Philip's to the Eunuch, Acts 8. 26. one while ye foretel our danger, as to Lot, Gen. 19. 12, 13. another while ye comfort our affliction, as to Hagar, Gen. 21. 17. one while ye oppose evil projects against us, as to Balaam, Num. 22. 32. another while ye will be striven with for blessing, as with Jacob, Hos. 12. 4. one while ye resist our offensive courses, as to Moses, Exod. 4. 24, 25, 26. another while ye encourage us in our devotions, as ye did Paul, and Silas, and Cornelius, Acts 16. 25. and Acts 10. 3, 4. one while ye deliver from durance, as Peter, Acts 12. 7, 8, 9. another while ye preserve from danger and death, as the three children, Dan. 3. 25: one while ye are ready to restrain our presumption, as the Cherub before the gate of Paradise, Gen. 3. 24. another while to excite our courage, as to Elia, 2 Kings 1. 15. one while to refresh, and cheer us in our sufferings, as to the Apostles, Acts 5. 19, 20, 21. another while to prevent our sufferings, as to Jacob in the pursuit of Laban and Esau, Gen. 31. 34. and Gen. 32. 1. one while ye cure our bodies, as at the Pool of Bethesda, Joh. 5. 4. another while ye carry up our souls to glory, as ye did to Lazarus, Luke 16. 22. it were endless to instance in all the gracious offices which ye perform.

I shall need to repeat no more out of him, whom I have so often cited in the discourse that follows. But if any be offended, that I have so highly esteemed of this Bishop, is there any communion with such in name or thing? I shall answer, 1. I never was offended with the name of Bishop, nor will any wise man, that finds the name so frequently used in Scriptures, be offended with it. 2. Nor am I offended with the thing, if moderation were used, and such an Episcopacy erected as Bishop Hall, and Bishop Usher did propound as satisfactory; and such men to manage it as were peaceable, godly, and eminent for grace and gifts; nor do I believe that any Oath taken by me was against such an Episcopacy.

Thus some affirm; * it is not against moderate Episcopacy, but only against the exorbitant species; introducing unavoidably the many mischiefs which we have seen and felt. If all exorbitancies of power were retrenched by the Bishop, and if those Presbyteries, which no Law hitherto hath forbidden, were restored to their primitive rights, I know no reason but I might submit both to the name and thing: But from the dominion of absolute Prelacy, and from the rigorous imposition of Ceremonies by it, and from the extirpation of dissenting brethren, who will not, or dare not conscientiously submit, subscribe, or swear unto it, the Lord deliver us. 3. I ever looked upon Bishop Hall as peaceable and moderate.

* Mr. Baxter cites him on that score. I shall prove (saith he) from the example of reverend Bishop Hall, that moderate men will agree on the foregoing terms,—Blessed be God (saith the Bishop) there is no difference in any essential matter betwixt the Church of England and her Sisters of the Reformation; we accord in every point of Christian Doctrine without the least variation,—the only difference is in the form of outward administration, wherein we also are so far agreed, as that we all profess this form not to be essential to the being of a Church, though much importing the well or better being of it, according to our several apprehensions thereof: and that we do all retain a reverend and loving opinion of each other in our own several ways not seeing any reason why so poor a diversity should work any alienation of affection in us one towards another. But with all nothing hinders but that we may come yet closer to one another, if both may resolve to meet in that Primitive Government (whereby it is meet we should both be regulated) universally agreed on by all Antiquity, wherein all things were order'd and transacted by the consent of the Presbytery, moderated by one constant President thereof.—And if in this point (wherein the distance is so narrow) we could condescend to each other, all other circumstances and appendances of various practices or opinions, might without any difficulty be accorded. But if there must be a difference of Judgment in these matters of outward Policy, why should not our hearts be still one? why should such a diversity be of power to endanger the dissolving of the bond of brotherhood? may we have the grace but to follow the the truth in love; we shall in these several tracts overtake her happily in the end, and find her embracing of peace, and crowning us with blessedness. So far Bishop Hall. 4. Nor was he only peaceable and moderate, but golden-mouth'd and of godly life. Mr. Baxter reckons him amongst some others, that have been excellent instruments of the Churches good, and so eminent for Gods graces and gifts, that their names will be precious whilst Christ hath in England a Reformed Church; were there in all England but one such man dissenting from us (saith he) as Hooper, Farrar, Latimer, Cranmer, Ridley, Jewel, Abbot, Davenant, Usher, Hall, &c. "What sober godly man would not be exceeding solicitous for a reconciliation? for the last of these, the World well knows he had a double portion of the gifts of the tongue above his brethren; when he lived his lips dropped myrrh, and his pen the oyl of Calamus, and Cinnamon, the smell whereof hath filled the house of God with such a perfume, as this age will never wear out. His works all praise him, and amongst them all, those of the mystery of Godliness, and of the invisible World, he left as a legacy, and special valediction to the Saints. I cannot but give much to these last works of his, and especially to that part of the invisible World, viz. "of God" and his Angels. Some have observed that many holy men in their last works as they drew nearer to Heaven so they became more Spiritual and Heavenly in their work; thus Dr. Preston ended his works with a treatise of the knowledge of the divine Essence and Attributes: and Mr. Bolton ended his works with a Treatise of the four last things, Death, Judgment, Hell and Heaven; and this Author ended his works with a Treatise of the invisible world; and not without reason, when our bodily eyes are gluttied with the view of the things that are seen (a prospect which can afford us nothing but vanity and vexation) what can be more meet (saith he) than to feed our spiritual eyes with the light of invisible glories? It was his aim in that Work, that the Reader should aspire with him towards that happiness which is laid up above, for all those that love the appearance of our Lord Jesus, and therein I conspire with him, and Oh that such might be the issue of all that make use of his excellent piece, or of this slender Work of mine.

And seeing Heb. 12. 1. now we are thus compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us in Gods fear begin, and go on in the discovery of this duty, viz. of the Ministration of and Communion with Angels.

Ministration

MINISTRATION OF AND COMMUNION WITH ANGELS.

The First Book.

CHAP. I. SECT. I.

HEB. 1. 14.

Are they not all Ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister for them, who shall be heirs of salvation.

The coherence and division of the words.

THE Apostle is here making a comparison betwixt Christ and the Angels: as the world is wonderfully inclined to superstition, so it is wont many times to darken the glory of Christ, by too much exalting of Angels; good reason it is therefore that they should be put into their place; the Angels are excellent, but Christ more excellent: the Angels are glorious, but Christ more glorious: now the Prelation of Christ before the Angels, the Apostle proves by several arguments: as 1. From the name of Christ, he is called God's Son; so are not the Angels: 2. From the rule and dominion of Christ, he is the head and prince, so are not the Angels: 3. From the Office and Place of Christ, he sits at Gods right hand (i. e.) he hath the second place given him after the Father, he is the Fathers Lieutenant, or his chief Ambassador to exercise all power; so are not the Angels; and therefore it follows that Christ is more excellent and glorious than them all; indeed they are Spirits, and therein they have a title of great excellency given them; but they are ministering Spirits, and that takes off, and holds them within the compass of their degree; if they but minister, they must needs be inferior to Christ, who is Lord over all; and though it may be objected, that Christ is sometimes called a minister and that he came to minister, yet that is not in regard of need, but of good will, the Angels do it of necessity, but Christ voluntarily: it is natural in the Angels, but only by accident in Jesus Christ; and therefore in all things Christ hath the preheminence, yet let not this doctrine pass without some consolation to the Saints and People of God; be it known to you, that as Angels are ministering Spirits, so they are sent forth to minister for you; are they not all ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister for them, who shall be heirs of Salvation!

You see I had need to be careful what I say of the Angels, lest that honour which should be given to God and Christ, may in any sort redound to them. This hath been the error of former ages, and of all errors there is almost none more ancient than this, Paul himself had much to do with some, who so advanced the Angels, that in a manner they would have brought Christ under subjection, Let no man beguile you of your reward (saith he) in a voluntary humility, and worshipping of Angels. Indeed there shines in them such a brightness of the Majesty of God, that there is nothing whereunto we are more easily drawn, than with a certain admiration to fall down in worshipping of them; this very thing John in the Revelation confesseth of himself, but he addeth withal, that he received this answer, see thou do it not, for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren, that have the testimony of Jesus, worship God, there is no worshipping of Angels: and yet we must not throw away the comfortable doctrine of Angels: I hope before I have done to convince you of a wonderful pledge of Christs love to your persons in the administration of Angels, Are they not all ministering Spirits? &c.

In this Text, is a description of Angels, wherein 1. Of their nature, Are they not Spirits? 2. Of their Office, Are they not ministering Spirits? 3. Of their Conjunction in this Office, Are they not all ministering Spirits? 4. Of their Commission and execution of this Office so undertaken, Are they not all ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister? 5. Of the object about which the execution of their Office is most conversant, Are they not all ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister for them, who shall be Heirs of Salvation?

SECT. II.

Of the several doctrines deduced from the Words.

FROM every part I may deduce a several doctrine; as 1. That the Angels are spirits. 2. That the office of the Angels is to minister and serve. 3. That the highest Angel is not exempted from this office. 4. That they have their Commission from God and Christ, to execute their office of ministration. 5. That the ministering office of the Angels is not for all, but only for heavens Heirs. On the four first I shall only give a touch, but on the last I shall insist, and (if the Lord help) enlarge my discourse to the full of my design.

CHAP. II. SECT. I.

Of the first doctrine.

THE Angels are Spirits: And so is God, and so are the Souls of men, but with this difference, God is a Spirit most simple, without any composition at all; the Souls of men are spirits conjoined with flesh and blood; thus the Philosopher describes the Soul to be the act of the body: Now betwixt these two spirits are the Angels, who are neither without all composition, as God is, nor are they covered with flesh and blood, as the soul of man is, I know it is a question, whether the Angels have bodies? 1. The Peripateticks and Schoolmen are for the negative; The Angels (say they) are altogether incorporeal: And for this opinion are brought in by others these very Texts, || Who maketh his Angels spirits,—And are they not all ministering spirits.

2. The Platonicks and many of the ancients are on the other side: The Angels have their proper bodies (saith * Tertullian) and although invisible to us, yet visible to God. † Augustine is of the same mind: And herein (saith * Lombard) he followed many famous Authors, as all the Platonicks, Orgien, Lactantius, Ba-fil, with all the witters almost of his time: And some more modern agree with them herein; all spirits have their bodies (saith † Bernard) as need is, excepting only God himself; and the need that the Angels have, he proves from this Text, Are they not all ministering spi- ^{† Bernard} ^{in Cantic.} ^{Serm. 5.} rits? For how can they execute their Ministry (saith he) without a body, especially amongst them that are in the body? besides they could not discourse, nor move from place to place, without a body. Nor speaks he of bodies assumed, but of bodies proper and peculiar to themselves.

Metinks a middle betwixt both these comes nearest truth, * That in comparison of God they are bodies, but in comparison of us they are pure and mighty spirits. Certainly the Angels are not simply Spirits as God is, who is a spirit most simple, without any composition at all; nor are they infinite or immense, as God is, but are terminated in their dimensions, and move from place to place as bodies do. Hence † Zanchy approves rather of the ancients, than of the Schoolmen, That Angels are not simply and altogether incorporeal, only their bodies (saith

he) are not earthly, nor airy, nor heavenly, as the Stoicks would have them, for all such bodies were created of that Chaos, Gen. 1. 1. but rather as the Imperial heaven is a corporeal substance far different from these nether heavens visible to us, so the Angels made together with that heaven, are corporeal substances far purer, and more subtil than either earth or ayr, or fire, or the matter of these visible heavens. I will not say they are of the same body, but they may have like bodies to that glorious body of the highest heaven, or seat of the blessed; and so in respect of us * or of our crass bodies they may be called pure and mighty spirits.

CHAP. III.

Of the second Doctrine.

2. THE office of the Angels is to minister and serve: It is true, they are called Principalities, Powers, Might, Thrones, Dominions; so the Apostle speaks of Christ, That he was set at Gods right hand in heavenly places, far above all Principalities, and Powers, and Might, and Dominion. And by him were all things created in heaven, whether Thrones, or Dominions, or Principalities, or Powers: by all which, though we understand not divers dignities of Angels, whereby in nature they excel one another, yet we must needs understand the dignity, excellency, authority, and power, of every one of the Angels.

And yet this hinders not, but that these mighty powers are ministering spirits; and therefore in other places of Scripture we find other titles given to them; as sometimes they are called Watchers, I saw in the Visions of my head, and behold a Watcher and an Holy One came down from heaven: And sometimes they are called Soldiers, And suddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of heavenly Soldiers (or of the Heavenly Host) praising God. Most frequently frequently they are called Angels, which is not a name of their nature, but of their office; the word signifies a Messenger, as if they were ever running errands betwixt heaven and earth: So Jacob dreamed of a Ladder set on earth, whose top reached to heaven, and behold the Angels of God ascending, and descending on it. Now this is clear, that Watchers, Soldiers, and Messengers, are but Ministers and servants. If it be demanded what is their ministry, or service? it is either to God, or to men; in respect of God, they are said to do his Commandments, to hearken to the voice of his Word, to behold the face of God, to celebrate the praises of God, and of Jesus Christ; and in respect of men, they do them many offices of love and service, which we shall discover in the last point, for are they not ministering spirits sent forth to minister unto them, I say unto them, Who shall be heirs of Salvation?

of the Throne stood a Lamb, as it had been slain, having seven horns, and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God, sent forth into all the earth. And I saw the seven Angels which stood before God. And the Archangel Gabriel, speaks of himself to Zacharias in the very same language, I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God. Rev. 8. 2. Luke 1. 19.

That there is order amongst the Angels, I do not doubt, God is the God of Order, and as he orders all things below, so no question he observeth a most exact order in the court of Heaven: amongst us some are superior, and some inferior, some greater, and others lesser; equality hath no place either on earth, or in hell, and in this visible heaven, one star (saith the Apostle) differs from another in glory, how then should we imagine any taxye or confusion to be in heaven? Certainly there is a most beautiful distinction and order amongst the blessed Angels, yet I am apt to think and do believe, that the difference of those glorious spirits in heaven, is not in their nature, but in their offices; for as among men there is a parity and equality in respect of nature, and the excellency of one above another is but by accident, so it is with Angels, they are equally spiritual substances, all equally created good, and pure and perfect, and their imparity is because of the divers kinds of their offices, wherein they are employed: Hence

 Some are simply called Angels, some Archangels, some Principalities, some Dominions, &c.* Ex hac officiorum diversitate quorum alii aliis sunt nobiliora, fieri omnino persuasum habeo, ut alii vocentur simplices angeli alii prater hoc Archangeli, alii virtutes alii dominationes. Zach de operibus Dei part. 1. l. 2. c. 3.

CHAP. IV.

Of the third Doctrine.

3. THe highest Angel is not exempted from this office. Are they not all ministering Spirits? It is not one, nor ten, nor an hundred, nor a thousand, but all Angels and Archangels, Principalities and Powers, Thrones and Dominions, are all ministering spirits. A question there is 1. Of the order of Angels; and if that be admitted, 2. Whether the chief of that order may be considered as ministering spirits?

For the first, Dionysius (I will not say the Arcopagite) tells of nine orders because of nine words in Scripture relating to the Angels, as Seraphims, Cherubims, Thrones, Powers, Hosts, Dominions, Principalities, Archangels, and Angels; and at large he describes their several natures, distinctions, properties; as that the first three orders are for immediate attendance of the Almighty, and the next three orders, for the general government of the creatures; and the last three orders, for the particular good of Gods Elect; that the Archangels surpass the beauty of Angels ten times, Principalities surpass the Archangels twenty times, Powers surpass the Principalities forty times, &c. How he, or any other, came to this learning, is yet unknown, yet hath this Hierarchy, in these several orders, passed for current through many ages of the Church.

Learned Mede in his Diatriba of the Angels, tells of seven principal Angels, which minister before the Throne of God, and therefore are called Archangels, some of whose names we have in Scriptures, as Michael, Gabriel, Raphael; to this purpose he cites several texts: As I am Raphael, one of the seven holy Angels, which stand and minister before the glory of the Holy One. And these seven are the eyes of the Lord, which run too and fro through the whole earth. And I saw (saith John) seven Lamps before the Throne, which are the seven Spirits of God; and I beheld, and loe in the midst

But 2. admitting this order and distinction of Angels, Whether are not the highest Angels ministering spirits? the Platonicks that first divided them into three orders, as some above heaven, called Supercelestes, others in heaven called Celestes, and others under heaven called Subcelestes, do suitably give them several offices: As 1. They above heaven (I mean this visible heaven) continually stand before God (as they say) praising, and lauding, and magnifying his Name. 2. They in heaven are there seated, to move, and rule, and govern the stars. 3. They under heaven, are some to rule Kingdoms, others Provinces, others Cities, others particular men. Many Christians that write of the Hierarchy of the Angels, follow these opinions. Now by this surmise, the highest Angels do not minister to the Saints, but only and immediately to God himself. But on the contrary, did not Michael (one of the seven) contend with Satan about the body of Moses? And was not Gabriel, who stands before the presence of God, sent to speak to Zacharias, and to Mary, and to shew the glad tidings of the Gospel? And were not those seven Archangels, called seven eyes, and the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the Earth? Surely then neither Seraphims, nor Cherubims, nor Thrones, nor Powers, are exempted from this office, they are all ministering Spirits. Jude 9. Luke 1. 19. Zach. 4. 10. Rev. 5. 6.

CHAP. V. SECT. I.

Of the fourth Doctrine

4. They have their commission from God and Christ to execute their office of Ministration; they will not go, unless sent forth: as Christ would not do the office of Mediator until he was called, Heb. 5.4, 5. so neither will the Angels execute their office without a Call: In this respect the Angels are said to wait on Christ, they stand behind him, and receive deputations to their several offices: I

Zach. 1. 10. answered and said, These are they whom the Lord hath sent to walk to and fro through the earth: The Lord first sends them, and then as Agents and Spies, they give intelligence of all things done in the World; they will not stir without a Commission, but if he send them, they run, they fly. I saw the Lord sitting on his

And he said, I will go forth, and I will be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his Prophets; and he said, Thou shalt persuade him, and prevail also, go forth, and do so.* All this discourse is by way of resemblance, as it is with Kings and Princes, so it is said of God, all his Host (good and bad Angels) stand about him, and receive their Commissions from him: No sooner is any design agreed on, but he gives out the word of command, Go forth, and do so. See here the Commission, Go forth, saith God: Are not they all ministring spirits, sent forth, saith the Apostle.

SECT. II.

A transition to the last Point.

ON these four several Doctrines I have no mind to insist, and the rather, because they are so very speculative, and so full of controversy: For my part I shall never forget what Graſerus said he had found in his visiting the sick, and in his own preparations for well dying; That most of the Controversies in Divinity were utterly useless, and did intangle the Consciences of the simple, just as the humane inventions in Popery formerly did; and therefore he began with full bent of mind to shun or abhor them, and in his publick preaching to propound only those things which tended to the hindling of true faith in Christ, and to the exercise of true Godliness ac- cording to the Word of God, and to the procuring of true consolation both in life and death: Nor shall I forget what is writ of Abraham Buchaltzer, whose care in his publick Ministry was to avoid those questions that do but gender unto strife, and to instruct his Auditors how to live well and die well. Some indeed blamed him of cowardize, for that being endowed by God with such excellent abilities, yet he would never enter into the lists with the Fanatick Adversaries of those times; but the reason was, because he always affected peace, having no delight in wrangling, which caused him to say to a Friend, Desii disputare, cepi supputare, quoniam illud dissipationem, hoc collectionem significat. Besides, he saw that the greatest Antagonists to the Churches peace had not so much as one spark of Grace in them, and that there came no profit, but much hurt to the Church of Christ by those continual quarrels amongst Divines. I will not deny, nay I dare not but acknowledge, that in our Pulpets we may, and must (as occasion is) propound such a subject as this of the Angels, and no question but out of it we may draw matter for faith, and life, and comfort; but as to these particulars of the Angels, that they are Spirits Ministers of several Orders, and all delegated (as the Lord pleaseth) to this or that office, they are very abstruse points wherein we may wrangle, and do as Boys in sport, who strive to strike most sparks out of their Flints, but never intend to kindle thereby for use: So we may dispute and jangle about Words, or strive to strike out the most subtil and finest spun Notions that we can invent, but alas they will not profit our Souls, nor tend much to Practice, which is the life and spirit of Religion: upon this I verily believe it is, that we have far less written in Gods Word of the nature of Angels than of God himself; because the knowledge of God is far more practical, and less controversial, and more necessary to Salvation, than the knowledge of Angels or Archangels; only if there be any thing of Angels revealed in Scripture, and most worthy of our knowledge (as certainly there is) I take that to be it, which the Schoolmen in all their learning took least notice of, and that is of the ministration of Angels, in reference to Gods people: With this one use (saith * Zanchius) could the Apostle content himself, as knowing that in the Doctrine of Angels, this was the most principal, and indeed most practical, and therefore on this point I mean to enlarge, and the other points I shall leave to others; in the Margent you may see to whom. † Are they not all ministring Spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be Heirs of Salvation?

Spiritus in ministerium missi propter eos qui hereditatem capiunt salutis? Zanch. ibid.

CHAP. VI. SECT. I.

Of the last Doctrine.

THE chief point yet remains, viz, that this ministering office of the Angels is not for all, but only for Heavens Heirs: On this I mean to insist, and to enlarge my discourse, wherein I shall 1. Confirm. 2. Apply. 1. For Confirmation, we have Scripture and Reason.

SECT. II.

Scriptures for Angels ministrations.

HE shall give his Angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways; they shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.

In this Scripture we may observe these particulars.

1. That the Elect are so precious with God, that for their sakes he gives out Commands.

2. That he commands the Angels (his choice and chief servants) for the good of his Chosen: He shall give his Angels charge over thee. It is the usual way of his Providence, to command the strong in behalf of the weak and to commend the weak to those that are more strong: Thus it is betwixt Children and Parents, Wives and Husbands, the Sick and Sound, the Saints and Angels; he commands the Angels over Saints, or he commends the Saints unto his Angels.

3. That the end or meaning of the Command, is for the Elects custody, to keep thee: They must not exercise a power or dominion over them, they must not exact Adoration or Worship from them, as the evil spirits do from all their followers: but the command is to preserve them, defend them and deliver them, keep them.

4. That the keeping of Saints is limited to their ways; they shall keep thee in all thy ways: i. e. in all thy necessary lawful ways, not in thy sinful devious wanderings.

5. That the obedience of the Angels to this command, is precise, exact, and diligent, they shall bear thee up in their hands, i. e. they shall accompany thee, go before thee, wait upon thee, follow thee, as the shadow follows the body, compass thee round, lead thee, observe thee, and in all straits or necessities lend thee an hand.

6. That the issue of this obedience is safety and security; lest thou dash thy foot against a stone. By this one danger we understand by a Synecdoche all other dangers, q. d. not any hurt, be it never so little, shall befall the Elect: So far shall they be from harm in the head, that it shall not reach the foot; indeed neither foot nor head, nor any part of their head shall perish to their prejudice, Luke 21. 18.

The sum of all is this. As Nurses and Mothers deal with their Children, so must the Angels deal with the Children of God; that this, they must keep them in their ways, they must bear them up in their hands: Children often stumble and fall, unless they be led and carried in hands and arms; and therefore God hath given his Angels a charge over his Children, to keep them, and carry them as in arms, lest they dash their feet against the stones.

The Angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them: They that sometimes are compared to Nurses and Mothers, are other whiles compared to Souldiers that incamp themselves about the Saints: Thus when the young man had his eyes opened at Elisha's prayer, he saw, and beheld the Mountain was full of Horses, and Chariots of fire round about Elisha. Many military services are they ever and anon performing for the Saints; they are watchful Centinels, giving a timely alarm to prevent the Enemy: Arise, and take the Babe and his Mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there until I bring thee word, for Herod will seek the Babe to destroy him. They are faithful Life-guards, preserving the Saints in the midst of dangers: There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling, for he shall give his Angels charge over thee. They are safe Convoys, bringing the Saints through their Wilderness to their heavenly Canaan: Jacob had experience hereof, And Jacob went on his way, and the Angels of God met him; and when Jacob saw them, he said, this is Gods Host, and he called the name of that place Mahanaim, i. e. two Hosts or Camps, the one before, and the other behind, or the one on one side, and the other on the other side; or they placed themselves in such sort, as to give Jacob assurance of safety every way.

SECT. III.

Reasons for Angels ministrations.

BUT why should they minister for the Saints? the reasons are: 1. In respect of God, 2. In respect of them. 3. In respect of us.

1. There are some reasons in respect of God: As—

1. It is his will and pleasure that they should so minister. Thus Nebuchadnezzar could acknowledge, He doeth according to his will in the Army of Heaven. The Lords Will is the rule of all Justice, and a most perfect Law, whereby he governs the Army of heaven, that is, the Angels: Hence they are described to be Gods ministers that do his pleasure, they enquire no further what is to be done, or why it should be done, but acquiesce in the discovery of his will and pleasure. Indeed all things and actions are resolved into this first Principle, the good pleasure of his will: He worketh all things after the counsel of his will. This is the Supreme reason.

2. It is his command that they should so minister; every thing that God wills, he doth not command, he wills sin to be in the world, but he doth not command it, for then he would be the Author of sin; but as for Angel-ministration, he wills and commands them to it: Bless the Lord ye his Angels, that excel in strength, that do his his Commandments, hearkning to the voice of his Word: Upon this ground is the Lord very often called, the Lord of Hosts, i. e. the Lord of Angels for so Jacob called the two Armies of Angels, Gods Host, and the multitude of Angels that praised God at Christs Nativity, are called a multitude of the heavenly Hosts. Look as Commanders say to their Souldiers, Go, and they go; so saith God to his Angels, Go, and they go; go and minister to my Saints, and presently they minister.

Psa. 103. 20. Bless the Lord ye his Angels, that excel in strength, that do his his Commandments, hearkning to the voice of his Word: Upon this ground is the Lord very often called, the Lord of Hosts, i. e. the Lord of Angels for so Jacob called the two Armies of Angels, Gods Host, and the multitude of Angels that praised God at Christs Nativity, are called a multitude of the heavenly Hosts.

Gen. 32. 2. Hosts, i. e. the Lord of Angels for so Jacob called the two Armies of Angels, Gods Host, and the multitude of Angels that praised God at Christs Nativity, are called a multitude of the heavenly Hosts.

Luk. 2. 13. Look as Commanders say to their Souldiers, Go, and they go; so saith God to his Angels, Go, and they go; go and minister to my Saints, and presently they minister.

3. It is his goodness that they should so minister. Alas if the Lord should deal with us according to our demerits, rather Tygers and Dragons should wait upon us, than the Angels: It is more than we can challenge, that any creature after the fall should be serviceable unto us, but that all the Host of Heaven should be abased to so low a work, as to be sent forth to minister for the meanest Saint, even for us poor sinful wretches, dust and ashes; Oh! what goodness is this? upon this account, of the love, mercy, and goodness of God, we read so often of the Lords sending his Angels to attend his Saints: Thus Abraham told his servant, The Lord before whom I walk, will send his Angel with thee: And thus God told Moses, I will send an Angel before thee: And thus Daniel told the King, My God hath sent his Angel, and hath shut the Lyons mouths, that they have not hurt me. So gracious is that King of Heaven, that he will spare his own Courtiers out of Heaven, and send them on errands to his Saints for their preservation; whence David reasons, Oh taste and see that the Lord is good! Oh the goodness of God!

Gen. 24. 40. Abraham told his servant, The Lord before whom I walk, will send his Angel with thee: And thus God told Moses, I will send an Angel before thee: And thus Daniel told the King, My God hath sent his Angel, and hath shut the Lyons mouths, that they have not hurt me.

Exod. 32. 2. And thus God told Moses, I will send an Angel before thee: And thus Daniel told the King, My God hath sent his Angel, and hath shut the Lyons mouths, that they have not hurt me.

Psa. 34. 7, 8. So gracious is that King of Heaven, that he will spare his own Courtiers out of Heaven, and send them on errands to his Saints for their preservation; whence David reasons, Oh taste and see that the Lord is good! Oh the goodness of God!

2. There are other reasons in respect of the Angels. As—

1. It is their duty; not the brightest Angel, but is subordinate unto God, and therefore must act and move as the Lord appoints. This is the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel, and I knew that they were the Cherubims. The Cherubims are glorious Angels, of great wisdom, strength and agility, and yet they are subservient to the Lord, and therefore are said to be under the God of Israel: Surely that word of the Psalmist (They do his pleasure) is the very image of true obedience, q. d. they minister not at their own pleasure, but at Gods: now what is Gods pleasure but the Saints welfare? He hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servants. The Angels that know this, stand not upon terms with God, all they do is but to hearken to the voice of his word, and then they flie? Then did the Cherubims lift up their wings and the wheels besides them: It is a note of a Divine upon these words; All things are under the God of Israel, he hath the prebeminence, he is above wheels, and Angels are under him, at his dispose; if he give out the word, the Cherubims move, lift up their wings and order the wheels; If he say, go and minister beyond Saints, presently they go, as it is their duty.

2. It is their delight to attend the Saints, they know that one day they shall live together, and sing together, and rejoice together; they know that the Saints shall supply the room of the fallen Angels, and when they meet, O the joy that will be betwixt them. In the mean time, it is their desire and delight to attend their Partners in Heavens joy, for they are acquainted with Gods design and purpose to save them; they know what Christ hath done and suffered for them, The Mystery of Godliness is seen of Angels; it is so seen, that they take great delight to behold it, yea, they are ravished in the very beholding of it, as at some new and strange object Embousson, they look into it, saith Peter, their whole spirits are taken up with it, as if it were the blessedst sight that ever they could behold, and they that are so ravished at the work of our Redemption, how should they but with delight attend the Redeemed Ones of Jesus Christ.

3. It is their Honour to wait on the Saints. It is true, in some respects they are of an higher form, they come nearest to God of all the creatures in the World, and they have kept their Cloath of Gold unstained six thousand years: O the purity, agility, beauty, glory, sanctity, and excellency of the Angels! Man in his greatest honour, advanced to the highest pinnacle of happiness, is yet in many things below the Angels; Thou hast made him a little lower than the Angels, and yet it is no indignity for them to attend the Saints, for herein they are but fellow-workers with God and Christ, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. My Father is beneficent in preserving Saints: and I work by the same power, saith Christ. At first I created, and still I preserve. Now if God and Christ thus work and wait, well may the Angels co-work with them. It was Pauls honour that he wrought together with God; We then as workers together with him, beseech you also. Servants of God (such as men and Angels) cannot but look on it as their glory, to put to their hands in the same work with their Sovereign Lord, the King of Glory: If Christ himself came not to be ministred unto, but to minister, the Angels may well think it an honour to imitate him, and to minister also.

3. There are other reasons in respect of Saints. As,

1. It is for their consolation, a mighty comfort it is, that other creatures should do them service, that heaven, and earth, and all therein should be made for them, and be continued and preserved for their sakes, and yet as if all this were not enough, except the Angels also were subservient: That Creatures of the highest order, of the finest make, of the noblest spirits, who behold the face of God himself, and are taken up with the immediate enjoyments of his subiects, that they, even they should be destined by Christ the King of Saints,

1 Pet. 1. 12.

Psal. 8.

Joh. 5. 17.

2 Cor. 6. 1.

Mat. 20. 28.

Rom. 15. 4. Saints, to minister to his Saints : Oh what a comfort is this! If whatsoever things were written afore-time, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope : Surely this that is written of the Angels, as concerning their office and ministration, must be full of comfort : Indeed Reprobates and Unbelievers have none of this comfort, alas they are not within the verge of this blessed Text, they have nothing to do with this Scripture of Heavens Heirs, it is for them, and only for them, who shall be heirs of Salvation.

2. It is for their benefit, both of body and soul : Some observe, that were it not for the Angels, the Devils that are ever seeking to devour, would quickly tear all the bodies of the Saints into Atoms. We read, how afore Christs death, the bodies of many were possessed of Devils, and when they had torn them, Mar. 1. 26. by the Command of Christ they were dispossessed : But after the great work of our Redemption, the Devils were more restrained of their Power, Joh. 12. 31. Now shall the Prince of this world be cast out Christ so bound him in Chains by his holy Angels since that time, that now he hath not his liberty as before to hurt the Saints : It is true, that he is still in the World, and rules in the Air, but the good Angels so defend our bodies against the evil Angels, that they cannot touch an hair to our hurt, and as for our Souls, they are in their special care ; it is not to tell how many are the benefits they administer that way, they teach us Truths, they open Gods Will, they reveal the secrets and mysteries of Grace, and by these means they promote the salvation of our Souls : Thus they did sometimes by dreams in the night, and sometimes by conference in the day, when they assumed bodies ; but now still they admonish our minds, and in a secret unperceivable way, they perswade us to the reading, hearing, and obeying of Gods Word. But of these, and the like Soul-services of the Angels we shall inlarge another time.

SECT. IV.

Use of Terrour.

Use 1. Well then ; Is the ministring office of the Angels not for all, but only for Heavens Heirs ? What terrour is this to the wicked ? Alas they have no Angels to them, or take care of them, they are devoid of the presence and ministry of the heavenly Angels ; or if they have any inspection of them, it is but a general inspection, such as Hagar and Ishmael had, who are set out in Scripture as the types of those that are rejected of the Lord : And this I take it is the reason why Reprobates live, and are not all suddenly struck dead, to wit, because the Angels have some general charge and care of them, that they may be preserved to their condition, but they are not properly Guardians of any such men : O woe, woe, woe to the wicked World, when Rev. 9. 12. one woe is past, behold there come two more woes af- ter. As it was with Saul, when God was gone from him, then the Philistines made war against him, and he was sore wounded of the Archers, and at last he fell on his own Sword and died : So where the Angels of God stand aloof of, and will not rescue, one woe follows after another, there the evil spirits keep their rendezvous, the Devil works in them mightily, they are hood-winkt and befotted and blinded by the God of this World, having no power so much as to groan, or to wish for deliverance ; we may say of all Reprobates as it was said of Saul, An evil spirit is upon them, 2 Tim. 2. and God is not with them : They are already taken in the Snare of the Devil, he hath them in a string and leads them captive at his will : and no wonder, for they have not those aids, those contrary whisperings, they have not the good Angels to conflict with the bad, they have not the Spirit, a new nature, much less the external helps and guards of holy and blessed Angels ; ah woe to these men !

SECT. V.

Use of encouragement.

Use 2. What encouragement is this to the Godly ? though the wicked have not such guards, yet the godly are the proper objects of the Angels ministry. — Are they not ministring spirits, sent forth to minister for them ? It is a question that puts all out of question : The wicked indeed are left to the wide world, but God is at charge of giving the Saints Tutors, and Governours, and Guardians ; here is a mighty encouragement to the people of God : I know not the condition that any Saint in the world may be in, wherein we cannot find in Scripture some encouragement or other drawn from an Angel : Art thou in a journey ? so was Abrahams servant when Abraham told him, He shall send his Angel before thee, and prosper thy way : Art thou in Battle, or ready to march against the Enemy ? so was Israel, when the Lord told Moses, For mine Angel shall go before thee, and bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, &c. and I will cut them off : Art thou in oppression, under the tyranny of wicked men ? so Moses told Edom the Israelites were, Thou knowest of all the travel that hath befallen us, how our Fathers went down into Egypt, and the Egyptians vexed us, and our Fathers, and when we cried unto the Lord, he heard our voice, and sent an Angel, and hath brought us forth out of Egypt : Art thou in persecution for Religion, and forc'd to fly for thy life ? so was Elijah when he requested for himself that he might die, and said it is enough now, O Lord, take away my life for I am no better than my Fathers ; and as he lay and slept under a Juniper tree, behold an Angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise, and eat. Art thou traduced, maligned, censured, imprisoned, and condemned to death for Righteousness sake, or for the truth ? so was Daniel, whom God yet delivered by an Angel : My God hath sent sent his Angel, and hath shut the Lyons mouths, that they have not hurt me, for as much as before him innocency was found in me: And so it was

 Acts 12. 7. with Peter, For behold the Angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison, — and when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety that the Lord hath sent his Angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod: Art thou amidst a People, whom God for sin hath decreed to destruction? so was Lot, whom the Angels hastened out of Sodom lest he should be consumed in the iniquity of the City. But I am saved this labour of searching any further into Scripture; * a worthy Author hath framed us the variety of their assistance in this same Scheme: One while they lead us in our way, as they did Israel, another while they instruct us, as they did Daniel; one while they fight for us, as they did for Joshua, another while they purvey for us, as they did for Elijah; one while they fit us to our holy vocation, as they did Isaiah, another while they dispose of the opportunities of our calling for good, as they did of Philip's to the Eunuch; one while they fortel our danger, as to Joseph and Mary; another while they comfort us in our afflictions, as they did Christ and his Apostles; one while they resist our offensive courses, as they did Moses, another while they encourage us in our devotions, as they did Paul; one while they deliver us from durance, as they did Peter; another while they preserve us from death, as the three Children; one while they restrain our presumption, as the Cherub before the gate of Paradise; another while they excite our courage, as to Joshua, Gideon, and the other Judges; one while they cure our bodies, as at the pool of Bethesda; another while they carry up our souls to heaven, as they did to Lazarus. It were endless to instance in all the gracious offices which the Angels perform. And is not here great encouragement to all the Saints? the Children of Princes are not without their guard, no more are Gods children; as they have an heavenly Father, so they have an heavenly guard to wait upon them, and to minister unto them. O mighty encouragement.

SECT. VI.

Use of admiration.

Use 3.

HOW may this Angel-administration cause the Saints to admire at the kindness of the Lord towards them? You darlings of the Almighty, if others regard not, you have cause to wonder at this, that the Angels, those created Citizens of glory, should receive you in your straights, march after you in your ways, counsel you in your doubts, defend you in your dangers; in a word, that God should charge all his Elect Angels to shew love and respect unto you, yea, to serve and to minister unto you: Stand amazed at this, O ye Saints! The Angels are the most glorious creatures in the world, they are the glittering Courtiers of heaven, the beautiful companions of Jesus Christ, Job calls them morning stars, in that being newly created they gave glory to the Creator, even as the birds in spring begin their notes, and sing at break of day: and he calls them Sons of God, in that he doth use them as children, they are very near to him, they do always attend him, and continually see his face, they have the privilege of sons: The Morning stars sing together, Job 38. 7. and the Sons of God shout for joy. Now that such creatures should wait on sinful wretches, dust and ashes, worms and not men, it is enough to cast any man in the world into an amazement or astonishment. A wonder it is, that any creature, though inferiour, should be serviceable to man, that by sin hath lost his dominion over the creatures; a wonder it was that the Ravens should minister unto Elijah, but that all the Host of Heaven should be abased (if we may speak after the manner of men) to so low a work, that Angels should perform offices of respect to the meanest Creatures; that an Angel clothed with light and glory should come to Zachary, to Mary, and to the Shepherds? What, Angels of God to wait upon those who are the most despised and rejected of men? Stand and wonder at this! When I consider the heavens (saith David) Psal. 8. 3, the work of thy fingers, the Moon and the Stars 4, 5. which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man, that thou visitest him? for thou hast made him a little lower than the Angels. This indeed is applied to Christ, Heb. 2. 6, 7, 9, 11. Who was made Heb. 2. 6, a little lower than the Angels, by the suffering of 7, 9. 11. death, but now is crowned with glory and honour. Yet (saith the Apostle) He that sanctifieth, and they who are sanctified are all one, for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren. Christ and we are of the same nature, which though in some respect it be lower, yet it is but a little lower than the Angels; nay, in some respects are we higher than the Angels, for the Angels wait on the Saints, and the Angels are not so married to Jesus Christ in a mystical union, as the Saints and People of God restored to his Image are. Admire at this all ye Saints! verily there is somewhat in holiness more than the world seeth or knoweth, there is some worth, or excellency, or consanguinity in the Saints to Christ, or I cannot think that Christ would set such a guard upon them as his own Courtiers. The Angels are indeed near in alliance to Christ, but the Saints are nearer: The Angels are Gods Progeny, the Sons of God, and so Christ is their Brother, but man is allied nearer to Christ than so, in that man is of Gods Lineage, and Christ is of mans Lineage: And hence it is, that the Angels must now stoop, and bow, and wait, and serve, and minister to the Saints. Are they not nearer allied than all the Angels? unto which of the Angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, my Kinsmen, Brethren, Mother, Sister, Spouse? An Angel is constantly called a ministering Spirit, but is no where read a friend of God, the Son of the Father, the delight of the Son of man, the Temple of the Holy Spirit, wherein the thrice glorious Trinity takes up his Mansion. Christians admire, here is enough to cast you into an extatic: Come view

SECT. VII.

Use of Magnanimity.

Use 4.

DO Angels wait on Heavens Heirs? Come then ye holy ones, and take an holy state upon you, think your selves too good to abase your selves to the world, or to sin, or to be slaves of men: Why you are Kings, and have a mighty guard, and therefore you should carry your selves answerable. Little do the men of this world think of this, or believe this truth; if they see a man to have at his heels a long train of earthly followers, in silks, fattins, golden chains, and such like braveries, Oh how are such sights gazed on? and how are such men usually stiled, Your Greatness, Highness, Excellency? Alas, alas! all is but beggery to the glory of the least of the Saints of God, and of their attendants. I see indeed a great deal of glister in some of these earthly State solemnities, yet in all their pomps they had need of a fair day, and clear Sun-shine, or else half their Shew will be lost: But Angels (the Saints attendants) enlighten the greatest darkness, Luke 2. 9. Acts 12. 7. Is not their countenance as lightning, and their rayment white as Snow? Matth. 28. 3. Mat. 28. 3. Oh then! how should this greaten the Spirits of Gods people? Why, think of it you whom it most concerns; it was an high favour for Mordicai, a poor porter, to have Haman, the great pompous Peer of the Empire, to be his Attendant, his Lacquey, or his Footman for an hour: How much more honour is it for you poor worms, to have those mighty Peers of heaven, little Royes, Demigods, to wait upon you continually? King Solomon in all his Royalty in the midst of his two hundred Targets, and three hundred Shields of beaten Gold, was not like one of the Lillies of the field, much less like a Saint invironed, and incompassed with a wall of Angels: Hence was that saying of Christ, Despise not one of these little ones: and why so? Because in Heaven their Angels do always behold the face of my Father. The brightest Angels that look in the face of God, despise not to attend upon the meanest Saints, and how then should any despise them whom the Angels honour? How should any think them unworthy of their Company, or Countenance, whom the great Angels think most worthy of their Service and Attendance? But especially, how should any presume to wrong the Saints, or to rush into Gods Paradise, such as every true Christian is, where stands the Angels of God with a flaming Sword which turns every way? It's enough (one would think) to affright all the men in the world from offering any violence to any of Gods people; But howsoever they carry, let Christians carry as Heavens Heirs, let them walk worthy of God, who hath called them to his Kingdom and Glory: Let them consider what Servitors and Ministers God hath appointed to wait on them, and in the Name of God let them carry themselves answerably, and be holily magnanimous. Plutarch tells of Themistocles, that he accounted it not to stand with his state to stoop down to take up the Spoils of the Enemy, whom he had scattered in flight, but says to one of his Followers, You may, for you are not Themistocles. If others mind the earth and earthly things, as the Swine that follow the Trough, and can look no higher, yet let the Saints, (whom the Angels wait on) walk above the World, and above all things that are here below. Citizens of Rome might not accept of any other freedom in any other City; they accounted it a dishonour to the Freedom of Rome, to take Freedom any where in the World besides: You that are free of the Kingdom of Heaven, and that have the created Citizens of Heaven to be your Life-Guards, Oh do not entangle your selves with the things of earth, seek not to be free here, as if you had no better portion: Surely if you understand your own Priviledges, you are Spiritual Kings and Queens of an otherwise Kingdom than this World: You have the Priviledges of a Council, to wit, Gods Testimonies, Psal. 119. 24. and the Priviledges of a Guard full of state and strength, to wit, Gods Angels: Oh how should this greaten your Spirits: Let the Saints be joyful in Glory, let them sing aloud upon their Beds, let the high Praises of God be in their mouths, and a

Use of Exhortation.

IS the ministring Office of the Angels for Heavens Heirs? Then to your Duties of Communion with them. Oh improve this Ordinance! Why, here is an Ordinance of Jesus Christ scarce thought on; the Angels minister to Saints, and the Saints almost, if not altogether, forget their Duties which they owe to God and Christ in that respect. What (my Brethren) are you ignorant of such an Ordinance? Or do you know it, and yet are you negligent? If you are simple ignorant, and that your ignorance is of pure negation, and not of evil disposition, it is then high time to discover this mystery of Godliness to you, that you may be in the exercise of such Duties yet unknown, or if you know them, and are negligent of them, it is then high time to rouse up your Spirits, and to stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance, that you may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the Holy Prophets, and of the Commandments of the Apostle, of our Lord and Saviour. Howsoever the case stands with you, I beseech you hear, learn, practise, and make use of this present Book and Work; it is another message that I have from God, another Ordinance that I would discover; therefore

The Motives I use, shall be only these,—

1. Angel-ministration, and our Communion with them, is an Ordinance of Jesus Christ; it is an institution of Christ, which hath connexed to it some kind of Spiritual efficacy to work on Souls. Amongst other intervening Mediums (saith one) there is one great Ordinance, which we have not so much considered of, viz. That the good Angels (the Cherubs and Horses) should relieve us, as they did Elisha; nor is their relief only as to outwards, but in relation to our religious walking, and to our inward Man. Were it not sad to lose an Ordinance of Jesus Christ? Or if it be not lost in respect of the living Instruments on their parts, yet is it not sad that we should make no use of them? Ministers are an Ordinance of Christ, they are Messengers, Interpreters, (even as the Angels, and therefore are called Angels, Rev. 1. 20.) their office is to declare unto man his Righteousness; to pray men in Christs stead to be reconciled unto God; to gather together the Saints, to be Christs Paranympbs, to deal about the getting of a Wife for the Lamb, to Cater for Heaven, to bring in custom for the Kingdom of God. Ministers and Angels are in the very same employment. Now were it not sad, that the Ministers of Christ should be neglected or despised? What if you have Ministers? Is there no use to be made of such an Ordinance? The Apostle tells you, you cannot have saving Knowledge, Regeneration, or Faith, without their use: I do not speak what God may do extraordinarily, but this is Gods ordinary way: How can they believe on him off whom they have not heard? And how can they hear without a Preacher? I may say the same of Angels in their way, for they are rational and living Instruments, they are Ministers of God, and they administer to us saving Truths: An Angel told that first news of the Gospel, Behold I bring you good tydings of great joy, which shall be to all people. And shall this Ordinance of Christ be without any consideration how we may receive good from it? God forbid.

Rom. 19. 4.

Luk. 2. 10.

2. The Angels are an Ordinance ever present; some other Ordinances may be taken from us: Men may take from us our Bibles, Teachers, Pastors, or they may Imprison us where we cannot enjoy them, but they cannot take from us the Holy Angels: When the High-Priest, and all that were with him, laid hands on the Apostles, and put them in the Common Prison, then the Angel of the Lord by night opened the Prison Doors, and brought them forth, and said, Go stand and speak in the Temple to the People all the words of this Life. And when Peter was in Prison, sleeping between two Soldiers bound with two Chains, and the Keepers before the door kept the Prison, behold the Angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the Prison, and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. No Prison is so close, no Keepers are so vigilant as to keep out Angels: Though we want and may want other Ordinances, yet we have the Angels as an Ordinance to walk up and down with us, wheresoever we are, or whithersoever we go. I cannot but remember that Speech of a great Divine, which at first reading exceedingly stuck with me: The good Lord forgive me, for that amongst my other Offences, I have suffered my self so much to forget, as his Divine presence, so the presence of his Holy Angels: It is I confess my great sin that I have filled my eyes with other Objects, and have been slack in returning praises to my God for the continual assistance of those blessed and beneficent Spirits, which have ever graciously attended me without intermission, from the first hour of my Conception to this present moment, neither shall ever, I hope, absent themselves from my tutelage and protection till they shall have presented my poor Soul to her Final Glory. If a good Man of an Holy gracious Spirit was so forgetful of them, that he was fain to cry Peccavi, I confess my great sin, and the good Lord forgive me. Methinks it should be a prevailing motive to work on us, so to converse with them, and to perform our respective Duties to them, as being ever present, without intermission they wait on us, how is it that days without number we should forget them, and their Ministration?

3. The Angels are an Ordinance improving other Ordinances of Jesus Christ: In this respect there is no Fear of clashing with other Ordinances: It is true that the Lord never calls any Assembly to two divers Employments at one and the same time, unless they be subservient the one to the other. Hence it is, we blame blame them, who coming into our Congregations when some publick Ordinances are in hand, they betake themselves to their private Devotions, and will not reverently (without more a-do) compose themselves to join with the Assembly in that Ordinance of God which is in hand: We would not have Ordinances clash, only Angel-ministration in Religious Affairs will not hinder, but further our Religious Services; and Angel-ministration in Civil Affairs will not hinder, but further our civil business.

1. In Religious Services the Angels are assistant; it is said, that they suggest suitable, seasonable, and pious thoughts at such a time:

Act. 10. 4, 5. When Cornelius was praying, he saw an Angel, saying unto him, thy Prayers and thy Alms are come up for a Memorial before God: And while Luke 1. 8, 9, 10. Zacharias was Executing the Priests Office before God, there appeared unto him an Angel of the Psal. 9. Lord on the right side of the Altar of Incense, saying, thy Prayer is heard.

2. In Civil Affairs the Angels are assistant; They shall keep thee in all thy ways, in thy Vocation, or particular Calling. Now herein is the excellency of such an Ordinance, that it is an Addition and Improvement to all other Ordinances, an argument sufficient to bind us to our duties in reference to it.

4. Angel-ministration, and our communion with them, is an Ordinance in opposition to Satans Temptations, and our communion with them, it were enough to amaze poor Souls to consider the Powers and Principalities that are against them; were they but weak, they were less considerable; but we wrestle not against flesh and blood (saith the Apostle) but against Spirits, yea, against spiritual wickednesses in heavenly places. And yet as great as the Power and Policy of Devils are, they are less in Power than the Holy Angels: There was War in heaven, Michael and his Angels fought against the Dragon, and the Dragon fought and his Angels, and prevailed not.— And I saw an Angel come down from Heaven, having the Key of the Bottomless Pit, and a great Chain in his hand, and he laid hold on the Dragon, that old Serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years. Now here is the encouragement to our Duties; not only God and Christ, who is the Author and Finisher of our Faith, but even spiritual substances of good Angels, proportionable to the other of bad Angels, contend with them, and stand most valiantly on our side.

But what are those Duties of Communion

we owe the Angels in this respect? I answer,
 1. In general. 2. In special.

1. In general: As is their ministration, so is our duty of Communion with them. Now in several ways do they administer to us, and so in several respects do we owe duties to God and them. There is a proportion (if we can find it out) betwixt their Ministration and our duty, and they answer one another as in the Glass, face answers face: If they serve us, certainly there is something of service that we owe God and them: As the Lord could say, If I be a Father where is mine Honour? And if I be a Master, where is my Fear? So if the Angels stand in any such relation towards us, it cannot be, but proportionable or suitable duties are to be performed by us.

2. In special: As the kinds of their Ministration differ at several times, so are we to observe their Ministration at these times, and to return suitable duties. At the first they minister in one kind, and anon they ministered in another kind; as our several needs are at several times, so are their several ministrations in those times. Ex. gr. When I was in my Mothers Womb they ministered thus; and when I was born, and yet an Infant, they ministered thus; and when I was grown, and come to riper years, they ministered thus; and when I die, and go out of the World, they will minister thus; and when I shall rise again, and come to Judgment, they will minister thus. Now here is my Duty: 1. To consider their several Ministrations at those several times. 2. To return suitable duties at times seasonable, as I am, in their season to perform all other duties.

SECT. IX.

Use of Direction.

And this is that special use which I aimed at, and which I had first in my Eye, when I begun this Work; it is an use of direction, wherein I shall first lay down the Office of Angels, and then our Office. First, what they do in their times, and then what we must do in our times, in answer to them and their Ministrations. And O that the Lord would bless this work to thee that readest! Oh that he, on whose Errand I come, would speak himself to thy Soul, for he is able to instruct, yea, when he teacheth, all are Scholars.

Ministration

MINISTRATION OF, AND COMMUNION WITH ANGELS.

The Second Book.

CHAP. I. SECT. I.

Of the time when the Angels first begin their Ministration.

THE first Period wherein the Angels minister to Heavens Heirs, it is from their quickning in the Womb, till their Birth.

Come then, and first, see the Ministration of Angels at this time; and secondly, learn, and practise we those several Duties that especially concern the Saints in that respect.

1. For the Ministration of Angels in that Period, most probable it is, that then they begin their Ministration. The exact beginning is indeed questionable; some would have it to begin at the first hour of Conception. They have ever graciously attended me (saith one) without intermission from the first hour of my Conception to this present moment. Others at the first infusion of the Soul. Their care begins (say they) as soon as the Child is quickned in the Womb, for that they have then another distinct charge to look after. Others at the Birth of the Elect; God revealing to the Angels who are such, by requiring their attendance on them then: *From their Birth to the end of their Life (saith * Zanchius) Angels are assigned of God to wait on the Elect.* Others at the Baptism of Infants: † Origen recounting many Opinions, doth mention this; which is very improbable, for then it is in the power of Parents, who set the time of Baptism, to say, when the Angels shall begin their office over their Children, but the Elect are precious and dear to God before, as after the Ordinance of Baptism. Others at the time of Conversion. Of which two Reasons are given.

1. Because the Angels know not the Decrees before that Election be declared in Conversion: But this we deny.

2. Because in the state of Nature a man is under the wrath of God, and is vexed with evil Spirits that hurry him to sin, and rule in the Children of Disobedience; but although this cannot be denied, yet God is resolved that all his Elect shall have invisible supports against Satan, to preserve them charily, as chosen Vessels, against the time that he shall manifest himself unto them; and it is sufficient to Angels, that God wills their attendance, and that hereafter they shall discern some fruit of their attendance. For my part amidst all these differences, I close only with them, who say, that the Angels begin the execution of their Charge when the Soul is infused: and the Reasons are solid —

1. Because the Child hath then a distinct being of his own.

2. Because then it is a person consisting of Soul and Body.

3. Because Gods Providence over Soul and Body (of which the Angels are Servants) taketh date thence: Thou hast covered me (saith David) in my Mothers Womb: The Lord in framing our Bodies and creating our Souls in our Mothers Womb, did then cover his tender work with his mighty power from all inconveniences, as with a Shield; and therefore then did the Angels begin their Ministration.

SECT. II.

Of the manner of Angel-ministration at that time.

BUT how do the Angels minister at such a time? I answer, they keep, preserve, defend, deliver, sustain and strengthen Babes, even in the Womb. I cannot think that they have only one Office at such a time, but that sometimes they attend them for good, and sometimes they deliver them from evil. The case stands thus; in the creation or infusion of the Soul, (which is all one, for creando infunditur, & infundendo creatur) the Angels receive their Commission, as if the Lord should say, Come Blessed Angels, here is a Creature that shall at last fill up the room of some fallen Angel, and then it shall be like to your selves, and you shall love it as you love your selves, but in the mean time, it is my pleasure that you should minister unto it, and keep it safe: Which is no sooner said, but they are prompt and ready to do Gods will.

We may wonder at this, that the Angels should thus minister to man after his Fall, which they never did before. In that Collation betwixt Innocent Adam, Second Adam, Renewed Adam, and Old Adam, it is said, that the Angels did neither minister unto, nor keep the first Adam, before the Fall, because he was in no danger, only they loved him: The Angels indeed ministered to Christ, the Second Adam, and loved him, but did not keep him, for he was Comprehensor as well as Viator: Christ is the Head of Angels, and therefore he is not kept by them: The Angels now minister to the renewed Adam, yea, they love him, and keep him, and yet this argues not any Pre-rogative that the Saints have above Christ, but rather their weakness and wants, that they have need of the Angels to preserve them, as young Children stand in need of Nurses to wait upon them: But as for Old Adam or wicked Reprobates, the Angels neither minister to them, nor love them, nor keep them, in respect of any special and particular keeping: It may be the Angels are sometimes Ministers of outward things even to the wicked, as the Angels brought down Manna in the Wilderness to the bad Israelites, as well as good; but they have not that particular care of the wicked, as they have of the Elect of God; they come not up and down upon the Ladder, Christ, to minister to them, as they do to the Elect. Now this keeping of the Elect, is not only in this life, but all the while that they are in the Mothers Womb.

Therefore is Manna called Angels food; Quia Angelorum ministerio fuerit productum. Vossius.

SECT. III.

Experiences of this Truth.

OF this, as of all the rest, I would give in some Experiences for further clearing.

1. An ancient Matron having many Children, and having left bearing for the space of about 12 years, the Lord then unexpectedly gave her to conceive; she wondered, and apprehending nothing but ill health, purposed on such a day to take Physick; but the night before (if I mistake not) she felt the Child stir in her Womb, and then she brake out, as Sarah did; What! After I am waxed old, shall I bear a Child, my Lord being old also? Hereupon the Physick was removed, the Child preserved, and rightly called Isaac in imitation of old Abraham and Sarah, who laughed at the News of the Angel, that they should have a Son in their old age, Gen. 17. 17.—18. 12.

2. Three Godly Women in the Isle of Garnsey, were condemned to be burnt for their Religion, and though one of them was great with Child, yet found she no favour: As they were all three in the fire, the Belly of the Woman breaking with the vehemency of the flame, the Infant (being a fair Man-child) fell into the fire; which being caught, and carried to the Bailiff, he commanded it to be had back, and thrown into the fire; whereby after it was born, and preserved by the Angels it died a Martyr. Clarke.

SECT. IV.

Of the Duties that concern us in this respect.

2. THE Duties that concern us in this respect, are either Parents Duties, or Childrens —

1. For the Parents.

1. Parents may rejoice at this, that the Holy Angels attend them, and those little Pieces and Pictures of themselves. You that are Mothers great with Child, are you not sometimes in trouble, fear, and peril? Be not discouraged, for the Angels attend your motions, and all occurrences for the safety and preservation both of you and yours. It is observed, that when Mary saluted Elizabeth, the Babe sprang in her womb for joy, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost. Some think that this springing of the Babe was by the presence of an Angel with John, otherwise that little Embryo had been incapable of such effections and motions, according to the course of nature; and immediately it follows, Elizabeth was filled with the holy Ghost. A serious consideration of the Angels ministering to such Embryos, may be a blessed means to fill you with the comforts of Gods Spirit. O rejoice in this! Nor is that all: For —

2. Parents ought to pray, not to the Angels, but to the God of Angels, for the favour, assistance and protection of the Angels to their Infants. I know such Prayers are not usual, but is not that a neglect of duty to our Babes?

Pfal. 35. 5, 6. When David prayed against his Enemies, he could say, Let the Angel of the Lord chase them; and let the Angel of the Lord persecute them.

How much more may we say for our tender Infants in the Womb, Let the Angel of the Lord guard them, and let the Angel of the Lord keep them. Manoah and his wife were very careful what to do for the Babe which must be born to deliver Israel out of the Philistines hands; and therefore after the Angel had appeared to the woman, and told her, Then Manoah entreated the Lord, and said, O my Lord, let the man of God (or the Angel of God) which thou didst send, come again unto us, and teach us what we shall do unto the Child that shall be born: and God hearkened to the voice of Manoah, and the Angel of God came again: Indeed when he came, he would have burnt Offering offered unto him, but gave direction, If thou wilt offer a burnt offering, thou must offer it unto the Lord.

Judg. 13. 8, 9.

Angels would not be prayed unto, nor worshipped, Rev. 19. 10. — 22. 9. But yet in reference to the Angels, we find here Manoah praying and offering unto the Lord, and if he prayed for Angel-direction, how much more may we turn the Promises into Prayers for Angel-protection, and ministration to these poor Infants yet unborn!

Ver. 16.

2. For the Children or Parties themselves, when grown. —

1. Let them know and be acquainted with their Angel-keepers. When David considered how he was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth, and covered in his mothers womb, he cried out, Marvellous are thy works, and that my soul knows right well. It is not enough to have Angel-keepers, before we are born, but in time we should endeavour to know them: It is sad to be ignorant still of such a glorious truth; Surely God would have us acquainted with his works, and to bear witness of what we know for his Glory.

Psa. 139. 14.

2. Let them praise God for the Angels ministring to them in the Womb. Thou art he (said David) that took me out of the womb; and thou art he that preserves me in the Womb. The Lord doth many things for us, which at that time when he doth them, we cannot observe; it is our duty therefore to look upon them afterwards, that they may furnish us with matter of Praise to God? But why is not Praise rendered to the Angels, as well as to God? Because God will not give his Glory to another: Angels must have their due, but they must not rob God of his Praise; whatsoever instruments and means the Lord makes use of, the spiritual eye pierceth through them, and looks on God, and gives him all the Glory. You that hear of this Angel-ministration in the Womb, O praise the Lord! It is if you rightly apprehend it) a smothered wonder, and so glorious a work of God, that he deserves perpetual praise from you for that one work. Thou art he that preserved me in, and took me out of my Mothers Bowels; my praise shall be continually of thee.

Pfal. 71. 6.

3. Let them act their Faith, and trust in God, even because of this: to this end are all the experiences of Gods love to his Saints, that they might store up their Faith, and trust God more. O then among other experiences of Gods dealings, make use of this, for strengthening of your Faith! Thou art my hope O Lord God, thou art my trust from my youth; by thee have I been holden up from the womb.

Pfal. 71. 5, 6.

As Satan makes assault after assault against Faith, so should we raise Bulwark after Bulwark, for defence thereof: after we have looked upon other mens Experiences, we should recount our own Experiences, of Gods care towards us, and make use of all Gods dealings for our strengthening. Thus Lord thou didst for me in my youth, and Childhood and Infancy. Thou didst make me hope when I was upon my Mothers Breast, I was cast upon thee from the womb, thou art my God from my Mothers Belly, yea in the womb, before I was born, thou didst cover me, and guard me by the Angels, and therefore how should I but believe? How am I forced to acknowledge that the Lord never leaves me, even when I least perceive his presence? Here is mighty encouragement for Faith.

Pfal. 22. 9, 10.

4. Let them love God and his Angels, for this early ministration of the Angels. Ancient Love is a Load-stone of Love; were it but a little Love, yet long Love might beget Love again. Why, God hath loved us from everlasting, and the Angels have loved us from our first beginning, and therefore how should we but love them again? David's consideration of Gods mercy towards us in the Womb, took up his heart and ravished his spirit; yea, he was so exceedingly taken with it, that he could not off it. Thine eye did see my substance, yet being imperfect, and in thy Book all my members were written, which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them; how precious are thy thoughts unto me, O God, How great is the sum of them? If I should count them, they are more in number than sand: when I awake I am still with thee. Oh that our souls were awaked, and oh that our spiritual senses were renewed, that upon a serious consideration of Gods love, and of the Angels love to us in the Womb, we might love again, and in a holy pang cry out, How precious are thy thoughts unto me, O God? and how precious are your thoughts unto me, O ye Angels of God?

CHAP. II. SECT. I.

Of the Ministration of Angels in our Infancy and Childhood.

THE Second Period, wherein the Angels minister to Heavens Heirs, it is from their birth to their youth, or riper years; this takes up the time of Infancy and Child-hood. And in prosecution of this, first, set we the object before us at this time, and Secondly, learn and practise we those several Duties that will naturally flow from such an object.

1. For the Object, viz. The Ministration of Angels in our Infancy and Childhood. The Scriptures are exprels: Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones, for I say unto you, that in Heaven their Angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven. By little ones, I do not exclude the Adult, who resemble little Children in some imitable qualities; nor would I exclude little Children, whom our Saviour propounds as a pattern for the imitations of the Adult, v. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. But I would rather take all in, and say, that by little ones is meant either those who are little in stature, as the Child set in the midst of them: or, little in Grace, Parts, Esteem, as some of the Disciples were; or little in their own eyes, as all the Elect are or must be: All these have their Angels, and therefore none of these must be despised. When Christ was but a Babe, The Angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying, arise, and take the young Child and his Mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there, until I bring thee word. And when Herod was dead, the Angel appeared again unto Joseph, in Egypt, saying, arise, and take the young Child with his Mother and go into the Land of Israel. Thus was Christ provided for in his Cradle by an Angel. When Hagar had not wherewithal to feed her Child, she cast the child under a shrub, and she went and sate her down over against him a good way off, saying, let me not see the death of the Child; and she sate over against him, and lift up her voice and wept, and God heard the voice of the Lad, and when the Angel of the Lord called to Hagar out of Heaven and said unto her, What aileth thee Hagar? fear not, for God hath heard the voice of the Lad where he is, Arise, lift up the Lad, and hold him in thine hand, for I will make him a great Nation; and God opened her eyes, she saw a Well of water, and she went and filled her bottle with water, and gave the Lad drink. Here was an Angel calling, comforting, and directing Hagar in her Childs behalf: Or if Hagar and Ishmael were not Elect: when Jacob blessed the two Sons of Joseph, he said, The Angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless (or keep) the Lads. Many think this was the great Angel of the Covenant to whom Jacob prayed for a blessing on Josephs Sons, and the rather because he is said to redeem him from all evil, which is properly peculiar to Jesus Christ; but others say, that this form of prayer was only an interpretative kind of imploration, that God would bless, or keep Josephs Sons by his Angels: And for that of Redeeming if this was spoken of Eternal Redemption, it were indeed peculiar to Christ, but Jacob (saith a late Writer) speaks here of redemption, and deliverances from temporal evils, which is confessed to be a main office of Angels. And Chrysostom, Basil, Rivius, Mercerus (as he cites them) quote this very place for the deputation of Angels.

Dingly of Angels.

SECT. II.

Of the manner of Angel-ministration at that time.

BUT how do the Angels minister to us in our Childhood? I answer.—

1. They keep us from evil: were it not so, into how many dangers should we fall? Indeed, a wonder it is, that most Children are not disfigured, and lamed with bruises and fearful miscarriages, with cutting and burning themselves, as hundreds and thousands of opportunities are offered, but that Angels are very diligent to keep them out of harms way: When Father and Mother forsake me (saith David) then will the Lord take me up: When Parents are without natural affection, when Nurses are careless, and Children of restless, stirring, and climbing dispositions, then doth the Guardianship of Angels especially appear. To this purpose is Chemnitius cited by the aforesaid Author, saying, That Infants are obnoxious to such and so many dangers, that no anxiety of Parents, or diligence of Servants can secure them without the tuition of Angels. And Gerson observes the like, whence is it (saith he) that little Children are conserved from so many perils of their infancy, as fire, water, falls, suffocation, but by the agency of Angels?

Psal. 7. 10.

Chemnit. in harm. Evang. Gers. Serm. de Angelis.

2. They keep us in health: Some say, that much Physick should not be administred to infants, it is not safe to be too much tampering with such tender things, and I suppose there is less need, in that Angels themselves are instead of Physicians to such weak Patients. It is Mr. Diker saying, Angels help to remove diseases and evils, as the Devil helps to bring them on us: And to that purpose they may have an hand in the use of such means as are for our bodily health. Angels are the Rockers (saith the same Author) of Babes and Sucklings, their invisible hands are doing for them, when we little think of any such matter. It may be some are sick, and yet recover, and we attribute it to this or that means, when indeed the instrument was an heavenly Angel. 'Certainly (saith our divine Seneca) there are many thousand events wherein common eyes see nothing but nature, which yet are effected by the ministration of Angels: As when sudden cures were wrought at the Pool of Bethesda, it might perhaps be attributed by many to some beneficial constellation, but we know out of the Evangelist, that an Angel descended and moved the water, and made it sensitive : Where we find a probability of second causes in nature, we are apt to confine our thoughts from looking higher, yet even then there are many times unseen hands : How much more when the work is above the power of any secondary cause ? this carries its own evidence without dispute, that if it be not of nature, it must needs be of an higher efficiency, Ex. g. Have we seen a poor weak Child raised up from deadly sickness, when all natural helps have given him up, then have the Angels of God been his secret Physicians.

2. They teach and tutor us : Some think, that Angels do help little Infants to speak and go, but howsoever they are as Tutors and Schoolmasters to them. Zanchy compares them first to Nurses, and then to Schoolmasters, that they may instruct them, admonish them, correct them, comfort them, defend them from all evil, and provoke them to all good. Amidst all their offices (which are almost infinite) this I believe is the Angels care of little Children, that they be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Heaven is the place, whence many good Angels are fallen, and the good Angels would have these places filled up again with Saints. Hence they take care especially of their souls, tacitely revealing to them the mysteries of Grace, not so as if the Angels office were to preach the word, that ministry is not committed to them, but to the Apostles, and others called to it ; but 'tis at least the Angels care, that both Children and Adult should be taught in the Church by men appointed and prepared by the Angels : Thus the Angel spake to Philip, when he was to preach the Gospel to the Eunuch, saying, Arise, and go towards the South : And another Angel spake to Cornelius, saying, send to Joppa, and call for one Simon Peter, who shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do. If the Angels are not our ordinary Preachers, lest they dazzle us (their brightness being unsuitable to our weak conditions) yet are they Gods Instruments to provide Preachers for us, that by them we may be instructed in the Law of God, and Mysteries of the Gospel. And something more the Angels do, in that they suggest to Infants Pious Thoughts, and tacitely provoke them to a Pious Life, and draw out of them such gracious holy Words, that the Psalmist saying is verified, Out of the mouth of Babes and Sucklings hast thou ordained strength. Thus when the Children cried in the Temple, Hosanna to the Son of David, and therefore the Priests and Scribes were fore displeased, Jesus made their Apology, saying, have ye never read, out of the mouth of Babes and Sucklings hast thou perfected praise ? Certainly those Hosanna's of the Children were above nature, or acquired parts, or Parents Education, and therefore they were taught them by the Angels.

SECT. III.

Experiences of this Truth.

Experiences —

1. For keeping us from evil. An Infant being laid in his Bed with some Servants, he was near morning found out of the Bed among Wooden and Iron Tools, enough to have killed him, he was taken up cold, yet without any harm, and being laid in the warm bed he revived, and so was graciously preserved.

A Child fell into a River of Water, and being carried down the Stream, was at last taken up for dead, but after some time he revived, and the next day I saw him, and telling him that God had given him a new life, the Child wept, I desired him to remember it, improve it, and to thank God for that mercy all his days.

A Child playing by the side of a Pond, fell into it, where it was like to perish : Near the Pond was an House, where only was one man reading in a Book, but it pleased God that he was suddenly so troubled, though he knew not for what, that he could read no longer ; whereupon he walked up and down the room, but could not be quiet ; then he walked forth and espied a Straw Hat swimming upon the Water, and looking earnestly, he saw the Child rise to the top of the Water, and so catching hold of it, drew it out, and saved its life. White.

There was a Maid, who lived with her Mother in Bargamus, and was in one and the same Night by a strange wonder brought into the City of Venice ; they in the Family where she arrived, were near allied to her, and coming in the Morning into the Chamber where she was, and finding her unexpectedly stark naked, without any Linnen, not so much as a rag to cover her, gently demanded of her, how she came thither ? Where her cloaths were ? And what was the cause of her coming ? The poor Girl being much ashamed, and mixing her Blushes with many Tears, made answer to this purpose : " This very night (said she) when I lay betwixt sleep and awake in bed, I perceived my Mother, steal softly from my side, thinking I had not seen her, and stripping her self from all her Linnen, she took from her Closet a Box of Oynment, which opening, she anointed her self there with under the Arm-pits, and some other parts of the Body, which done, she took a Staff, which stood ready in a Corner, which she had no sooner bestrid, but in the instant she hid (or rather flew) out of the Window, and I saw her no more ; at which being much amazed, and the Candle still burning by me, I thought in my self to try a Childish Conclusion, and rising from my Bed, took down the same Box, and anointing my self, as I had before observed her, and making use of a Bed-staff in the like manner, I was suddenly brought hither in a moment, where I was no sooner entered, but I espied my Mother

"Mother in the Chamber with a Knife in her hand, with purpose (as I thought) to kill this my young Nephew (pointing to a Child in the Cradle) but she was hindered by finding me here, who no sooner saw me, but she began grievously to threaten me, and came near to strike me, in which fear I began to call upon God to help me, whose name I had no sooner uttered, but she instantly vanished, and I am left here, even as you found me. Whereupon her Kinsman, the master of the House, writ down, and keeping the Maid still with him, sent to the Inquisitor of the place, where the Mother of the Girl, his Kinswoman, lived in good Reputation, and no way suspected: Before whom she was called and questioned, and (as the manner of that Country is, upon the like probability and suspicion) put to the mercy of the Tormentor, and at length she confessed every particular before mentioned; to which she added, that she had no less than fifty sundry times been transported by the Devil, only with a malicious intent to kill that young Child; but she found him always at her arrival so guarded (by Angels, and) by the Blessings and Prayers of his Devout and Religious Parents, that she had no power over him. Barthol. Spineus.

2. For preserving of Health and Life.

A Child being begotten and born of Ancient, Sickly and Diseased Parents, was hereditarily infirm, and so oppressed with Childrens Maladies, that the Physician concluded he could not be long-lived; whence the Father drawing nigh to his Death, and making his Will, gave him such a Portion, in case he should live to the age of fourteen years: weak he was, and many Sickneses he had, and yet still the Lord raised him up: and unexpectedly restored him to health and strength, that he passed over those fourteen years, and yet lives, Oh that it may be to Gods Glory, and the Churches Edifying.

At the taking of Bolton by Prince Rupert, amongst others then slain, there was one William Ibbeswood, and his Wife, and Felice their Daughter, being then but eleven weeks old, lay pitifully crying at the Breast of her dead Mother, but it so pleased God, that an old Woman, the Wife of one Ralph Helne, of the same Town, aged above seventy years, who had not given suck above twenty Years before, seeing and hearing the Child, compassionated, and took it up, and having neither Food for her self, nor for the Infant in that common Calamity, to still the Child, she laid it to her Breast; and behold the goodness of God, who provides for the young Ravens that cry! the Child sucking, Milk came into her Breast, wherewith she nourished it, to the admiration and astonishment of all Beholders.

Isenbard an Earl in Swevia, had to Wife one Fermentrudis, who grievously accused one of her Neighbours for Adultery, because she had been delivered of six Children at a Birth; but it so fell out afterward, that her self, (her Husband being abroad in the Fields) was delivered of twelve Children, all Males: She fearing the like infamous punishment, that by her intigitation had been inflicted on the former Woman, commanded the Nurse to kill eleven of them: The Nurse going to execute the will of her Lady, was met by her Lord, then returning homewards; he demanded what she carried in her Lap? she answered Puppies; He would needs see them, and opening her Apron, found the Infants: Whereupon he examined the matter, found out the truth, enjoined the Nurse to be secret, and to put the Children to some Nurse abroad; and when they were six years old, he made a Feast, apparelled the young Boys alike, and presented them to their Mother, she misdoubting the truth, confessed her fault, obtained pardon, and own'd her Children. Heylin.

A Minister in the late Rebellion of Ireland, flying for his Life to Dublin, his Wife and Children followed after him; in their Journey, being very weary, they all agreed when night came, to sit down together under the Lee of an Irish Mountain, for it was Frost and Snow: The Ministers Wife had a young Child called John Teate, hanging upon her Breasts, which were become dry through her manifold Grievs, and want of sleep three nights together; the Child cryed and groaned, and for want of nourishment, was ready to die: in such sort, that the sad Mother, not being able any longer to endure the Groans and Cries of her Babe, arose up from the Company (who sat all together as close as they could, with Children in their Laps, to keep one another warm) purposing to leave the Child by himself, that she might be freed from those Heart-piercing Sobs and Wailings. And here behold the Lord who hath promised to be seen of his Servants in time of need, appeared even literally in this Mount; for as she stooped down with a bleeding Heart, and Eyes full of Tears, there to leave her little One upon the ground, she spied, or rather felt upon the Rock (it being then something dark, only the Snow cast some little light) a Sucking-bottle, which she opening, tasted of what was within it, and found it to be full of good Milk, which the Irish call Bonny Clabbo; she put it to her Childs Mouth, with fear lest he, never having sucked before out of any Bottle besides the Breast, would not draw it; but he readily sucked his Belly full, and fell asleep: The Mother hereat astonished, returned unto the Company, and shewed them what she had found; who much admired at it, how or whence that Bottle could come thither, considering that the place was far remote from any Habitation at all, and the Vessel lay upon the top of the Snow lately fallen; but some of them called to mind Hagar's Story, and related it to the rest, how that when she was wandering in the Wilderness of Beersheba, the water was spent in the Bottle, and she cast her Child under one of the shrubs, and went, and sat her down a good way off; for she said, let me not see the death of the Child, and she lift up her voice and wept; and then God heard the voice of the Lad, and the Angel of God called to Hagar out of Heaven, and God opened her eyes, and she saw a Well of Water whereat she filled the Bottle, and gave the Laid drink. These things compared and laid together, afforded them matter of thankfulness to God, for his Providence, and of more comfort than any Feast could have done: From thence they concluded, (as if the Angel had spoke to them as well as Hagar) that they should not fear, and that God who had so wonderfully preserved the Infant, would in like manner preserve them all: which accordingly came to pass; for the next day they came to Virginia, where they all found free, unexpected and plentiful refreshing, even a Table in the Wilderness; and within two or three days after, they came safe to Dublin, their desired Harbour. Dr. Feare.

Gen. 21. 15, 16, 17.

3. For teaching or tutoring of Infants.

A Child being very young, much affected his Ancient and Reverend Father with his reading of the Bible, and with his Questions and Answers; which drew from the Father these very words, that if the Child but lived, he verily believed he would suck in Learning, as a Child doth Milk. This minds me of what was said of Origen (in whom was certainly much of the Angels tutoring) that his Father brought him up from his Childhood most studiously, in all good literature, but especially in the reading and exercise of Holy Scripture, wherein he had such inward and mystical speculation, that many times he would move questions to his Father of the meaning of this place or that place in Scripture; in so much, that his Father divers times would uncover his Breast, being asleep, and kiss it, giving thanks to God, who had made him so happy a Father of such an happy Child. This Origen being but yet a Child, would needs have suffered Martyrdom with his Father Leonides, had not his Mother privily in the night season conveyed away his Cloaths and his Shirt; whereupon, more for shame to be seen, than for fear to die, he was constrained to remain at home; yet then he wrote a Letter to his Father with these very words, Cave tibi, ne quid propter nos aliud quam Martyrii constanter faciendi propositum cogiter, Eusebius, L. 6. c. 3.

In the primitive Persecutions, we read of one Romanus, who first being scourged with Whips, with knaps of Lead at the end, instead of Tears, Sighs, and Groans he sung Psalms all the time of his whipping, and after, his face being buffeted, his Eye-lids torn with Nails, his Cheeks cut with Knives, and his Teeth struck out, that his Pronunciation, at least, might be impaired, whilst he preached Christ, he only said, I thank thee O Persecutor, that thou hast opened to me many mouths, whereby I may preach my Lord and Saviour: Look how many wounds I have, so many mouths I have to praise my God. But being reviled, that Christ his God was but of yesterday, and that the Gods of the Gentiles were of great Antiquity; he made a long Oration of the Eternity of Christ; which done, he said, Give me a Child but of seven years old, which age is free from Malice and other Vices, whereby it per age is commonly infected, and you shall hear what he will say: His Request was granted, a pretty Boy was called out of the Multitude, and set before him: Tell me, my Babe (quoth the Martyr) whether thou thinkest it reason, that we worship one Christ, and in Christ one Father, or else that we worship infinite Gods? unto whom the Babe answered, that certainly whatsoever it be that men affirm to be God, he must needs be one, which with one is one and the same; and in as much as this one is Christ, of necessity Christ must be the true God; for that there be many Gods, we Children cannot believe: And after this, was the Babe Martyred. Fox Martyrolog.

SECT. IV.

Of the Duties that concern us in this respect.

2. FOR the several Duties that concern us in this respect, they are such as these.

1. Let us know our Priviledges which God in Christ gives us from our Birth: The Angels were appointed our Guardians in the Womb, and they have guarded, preserved and tutored us in our Infancy and Childhood: Many a time were we in great danger of Fire, and Water, and Falls, and Suffocations: Many a time have we been in the extremity of sickness, and very near to death: Many a Lesson have we had taught us, and many a motion and holy thought hath been suggested to us, and is not all this worthy our notice, knowledge and understanding? Did we but see little Children of poor men waited on by a Guard of rich, noble, strong and valiant men, would not all admire? But if we knew this to be our own condition, that when we were Babes and Sucklings, and could not discern between our right hand and left, that we had then a guard full of state and strength, even of Angels themselves, would not this fill us, with the sense of the goodness of God? Certainly it concerns us to know thus much, that we may better know the goodness of our God in thus providing for us: The Angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, saith David; and then, O come, and taste, and see that the Lord is good. God would not have his Favours unregarded; for if we know them not, never shall we attain to conceive of God himself, especially in his goodness, love and mercy towards us. But of these more particularly in another Section.

2. Pause a while, and to every particular Ministration in our Infancy, set we a Selab: This was the manner of David in his Psalms; when some especial thing worthy attention or observation was delivered, he added Selab; that by a little stop or pause of the breath, the matter, worth or excellency of the thing might be considered. Methinks it is sad, that the Angels should do such excellent Offices for us, as Mothers, Nurses, Physicians, Tutors, and that either we should forget them, or not seriously consider and pause upon them; in

Psal. 34. 7.

In other things of lesser consequence, we can speak with delight olim meminisse juvabit; but are not these Passages of Gods Providence, whereof the Angels are especial Instruments (as to keep us from evil, to preserve us in health, to teach us Gods will in our Infancy or Childhood) of far more excellency profit and delight? O then let us set a Star at the Margin of such Notes, and whilst we either read or sing them let us stop a while, that we may dwell upon them, and see the want of them on all sides; Let us say with Jacob, when he saw the Ladder on which Angels ascended and descended, Surely the Lord (or the Angel of the Lord) was in this place, (or in this passage) and I knew it not.

3. Bless we God for this free Love to us in our first and ignorant times: Whilst we were Infants, we could neither deserve nor desire such a Glorious Guard, and yet even then had the Angels a charge to keep us from evil, to keep us in health, and to be our Tutors: O adore we this free Grace! Say we as the sweet Singer of Israel, O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy Name in all the Earth! who hast set thy Glory above the Heavens: Out of the Mouths of Babes and Sucklings hast thou founded Praise. Very Children themselves could sing Hosanna to Christ, by the help of Angels which occasioned him to cite this Text, Out of the Mouths of Babes and Sucklings hast thou perfected Praise: Most rightly is it said, Out of the Mouths, because they spake not from their understanding; but by his vertue, and ministration of the Angels, their tender Tongues were led to speak those words: How much more should we, that are adult, and of capacity to understand our duty; I say, how much more should we praise him by the help of Angels for the help and ministration of his Angels? Come, and sing we an Hosanna to him, set we the Crown upon the head of free Love, free Grace: Let us join with Angels to bless God for his Angels, and for their Ministration in our Infancy and tender years. Is there not cause in regard of the freeness of his Love? It was bestowed on man unmerited, undesired, and placed on him in the Infancy, yea, even in the dark Womb.

Psal. 8. 1,

Matth. 12.

4. Live we up to the Mercies we received when we discerned little or nothing of them. If any Friend do me a kindness unknown to me, I shall take it kindly and exceeding kindly, when I know it; and if before, I was unable to requite, yet when I am able, I should think my self strongly engaged to retaliate: Surely thus it is with the People of God; our Friends, the heavenly Angels waited on us, in our Infancy and Childhood, but we neither saw them, nor had them in our thoughts; notwithstanding they went on in the discharge of their Office, and sometimes they were as Nurses; otherwhiles as Physicians, and otherwhiles as Tutors and Schoolmasters to us: And now that we know this, now that the light of the knowledge of the Glory of God, and of his Angels shines in our hearts, oh how should we live up to these mercies? how should we gratifie the Angels, who have been thus to us, and have done all this for us? The Angel that appeared to Gideon under an Oak, was for the present unknown, but when he had caused fire to rise up out of the Rock, and to consume the flesh, and the unclean Cakes, then Gideon perceived that he was an Angel, and said, Alas, O Lord God, for because I have seen an Angel of the Lord face to face: Upon this, God was pleased to encourage him, saying peace be unto thee, fear not, thou shalt not die: And then Gideon built an Altar there unto the Lord, and threw down the Altar of Baal, and cut down the Grove by it; and afterwards became a Judge of Israel till he died. Angels Presence and Encouragements once discovered and made known, are enough through the Blessing of God, to work in us a fear of God, and obedience to his Laws.

CHAP. III. SECT. I.

Of the Ministration of Angels in our Riper years.

THe next Period wherein the Angels minister to Heavens Heirs, it is from their riper years unto their death. And in order to this, we shall first observe their Ministration, and secondly, our Duties.

1. For their Ministration, I shall follow the same Method as before.

1. That it is so, the Scriptures abundantly prove, Psal. 34. 8. Psal. 91. 11, 12. Gen. 19. 15, 16. 2 Kings 6. 16, 17. If I may give instances, Lot was led out of Sodom by an Angel; Daniel was taught by an Angel; Cornelius was answered by an Angel; an Angel appeared to Joseph, Mary, Zachary, Peter, Paul, on several Errands. Scarce any remarkable thing befel the people of God, but it was accomplished by the Ministry of Angels. But what needs more? Are they not all ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of Salvation?

SECT. II.

Of the kinds of Angel-Ministration at that time, as to our Bodies.

2. FOR the kinds of their Ministration, it runs in several streams; as first, to our Bodies: Secondly, to our Souls.

1. For our Bodies.

1. They keep us from evil: So they did in our Infancy, but now they do it with this limitation, they keep us in all our ways; (i. e.) in all those courses appointed us by God. The Devil left out that Clause in the Psal. when he set Jesus Christ on a Pinacle of the Temple, and tempted him to cast himself down; he told him the Promise, that the Angels should keep him, but he omitted the main point, in all his ways. Certainly there is some special Treasure inclosed in this, or the Devil would never have concealed it from our Saviour; then we may expect Angel-protection, when we are in the ways God hath appointed us: It was no way for

But do not many external evils befall Gods People, even walking in their ways and Courses appointed them by God? I answer,—
It cannot be denied, but that sometimes such things do befall the godly: Mephibosheth, a child of five years old, son to a good father, and afterwards a good man himself, was lamed by a fall from his flying Nurse. Satan was permitted by God, to destroy the goods, children, and health of Job, though by the Spirit of God he was styled a perfect and an upright man, and one that feared God, and eschewed evil, and that there was none like him in the earth. 'The Lord

'(say some) can countermand Angelical protection, and give instruction to those powers (in some cases) to suspend their attendance and care of us, yet the promise is not null, and of none effect: For—

1. Angelical attendance doth mitigate the evil, so that Gods people do not utterly miscarry; they may be troubled on every side, yet not distressed; perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed. Angels are not always to keep us from, but sometimes in troubles; Christ could have prayed that many Legions of Angels should have kept him from suffering, this he did not, yet the Angels ministered unto him in the wilderness, and in the garden, where he sweat drops of blood.

2. 'The promise of Angel-protection (as all temporal promises) runs with this tacite reservation and condition, always provided, that God in his infinite wisdom, for reasons, best known to himself, do not judge the contrary more conducing to his glory, and our inward good: we know Job was afflicted, that he might be tryed; and the Lord doth sometimes suspend the protection of his Angels, that we may the more depend upon himself: As the Nurse gets behind the Skreen, that the Infant may go into the Mothers arms without crying; if the Angels do not help us, it is that we may call upon God for aid.

3. They keep us in health; so they did in our infancy, but the promise runs without limitation to every age in our life. Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the Fowler, and from the noisom pestilence;—A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand, but it shall not come nigh thee: And the reason follows, For he shall give his Angels charge over thee: And the Conclusion is this, With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my Salvation. It is the opinion of good Divines, that good Angels help to remove diseases, and to conserve bodily health; and on the contrary, evil Angels are Gods instruments of inflicting sore and grievous maladies. As in the midst of his agonies the Lord Jesus, (saith one) was comforted and refreshed by an Angel, Luke 22. 43. So are the Angels with the faithful, helping and easing them in their sickness.—

For my own part (saith † another) I believe that † Baxter's are his instruments in conveying his mercies both to soul and body, and that evil Angels are instruments of inflicting his judgments both corporal and spiritual. Hence God is said to send his evil Angels among the Israelites, Psal. 78. 49. Hence Satan did execution on the Children, cattel, and body of Job: so then I judge that Satan is the instrument in our ordinary diseases, &c. And I may add on the same grounds, that the Angels are instruments in continuing or restoring our bodily health. The Ministry of Angels (saith * a third) is for the promoting of our * Zanch.de health, I mean not only of the health of the operibus Soul, but of our bodily health: No question but Dei, l. 3.

the devils, who are our Enemies, and continually c. 14.
stand about us, would quickly rush upon our bodies, and either tear them, or affect them with divers maladies, but that the good Angels do defend us by divine command. I cannot deny, but that sometimes God afflicts men by the Ministry of his holy and blessed Angels, for Sodom was destroyed by the Angels, and Senacharib's Host was slain by the Angels; and David saw the Angel of the Lord, having a drawn sword in his hand, and stretched out over Jerusalem; and an Angel of the Lord smote Herod, and he was eaten of worms; but this is not Gods ordinary dispensation towards his Saints. Surely their ordinary imployments, and wherein they delight, is according to the promise, He shall give his Angels charge over thee.

3. They carefully furnish us with all other necessities for this life. Thus when the Israelites were in the Wilderness, they were provided for by the Angels: Man did eat of Angels food, he sent them meat to the full: or as others translate, Man did eat the bread of the Mighties, he sent them meat to satiety: It is all one, for what is the bread of the Mighties; but the bread of the Angels which are mighty strength? And Manna is called their bread, either because it came from Heaven, the habitations of the Angels, or because it was excellent, so as the Angels (if they needed any food) might eat it, or especially (as I think) because God sent it by the Ministry of Angels, they were the purveyors of it for the Israelites. Thus when Elijah went into the Wilderness, and lay and slept under a Juniper tree, Behold an Angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise and eat; and he looked and behold there was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water on his head, and he did eat, and drink, and laid him down again. And the Angel of the Lord came again the second time, and touched him, and said, Arise, and eat. The same God that provided for him in the time of drought by the Ministry of Ravens, now again fed him by the Ministry of Angels. I know these provisions were miraculous, but where no miracles are, the Angels have an hand even in ordinary provisions. The Angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him: And what then? O fear the Lord ye his Saints, for there is no want to them that fear him; the young Lyons do lack and suffer hunger, but they that seek

SECT. III.

Of the kinds of Angels-Ministration at that time, as to our Souls.

2. For our Souls.—

1. THe Angels declare to us what is the will and mind of God. Thus Daniel being troubled with the Visions of his head, he went near unto one of the Angels which stood by, and asked him the truth and meaning of them, So he told me (saith Daniel) and Dan. 7. 16. made me know the interpretation of the things.
 And in another Vision, when Daniel sought Dan. 8. 15, the meaning: Behold there stood before me (said 16, 17. he) as the appearance of a man, and I heard a mans voice between the banks of Ulai, which called and said, Gabriel, Make this man to understand the Vision.— And he said unto me, understand O Son of Man. And at another time, the man Gabriel, whom he had seen in the Vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched him about the time of the evening Oblation, and informed him, and talked with him, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding:
 Nothing is more usual in Gods Word, than for Angels to inform the Saints what is the will and mind of God; the Conception of Christ, and the Birth of Christ, and the Death of Christ, and the Resurrection of Christ, and the Ascension of Christ, and his return to Judgment, were all told by the Angels, only you may look upon these as extraordinaries, and apparitions of Angels, and such teachings, or enlightnings of our understanding in these days you cannot expect. All this I grant, and yet withal I add, that if visibly they do not teach us, they may do it invisibly; yea, and I verily believe they do in ordinary, though invisibly, teach and instruct all the people of God.

But how can that be, when they do nei- Quest.
 ther speak to us, nor reason with us after the manner of men?

I answer: They have other ways of speak- Answ.
 ing, or of reasoning with us. A—

1. They understand us, though we neither speak to them, nor reason with them: One of our light, in his child of light walking in Dr. Good- darkness, tells us, that evil Angels know much winibid.
 within us, and to that purpose they have more Chap. 8.
 advantages than we men have to know one another by. For—

1. Those spirits can discern all corporeal actions, and though the species, in them, and their manner of knowing corporeal things differs from ours, yet they are Analogical with ours.

2. They make it their business to study men, it is their trade to go up and down, and consider men; Hast thou not considered (says Job 1. 8.
 God to Satan) my servant Job?

3. They are, and can be present at all our more retired actions; they are with us at bed and board, in all companies, and in all solitary places.

4. By what they see outwardly of our actions, they may guess at our inwards, which are as the principles of them.

5. They have an insight into the infancy, and the images therein, which follow and imitate the inward thoughts of the mind, as the shadow doth the body: In this respect they go into a room further than we can go, yea, into a room next to the Privy Chamber, which yet remains fast lockt up unto them. This last goes beyond all the former; and yet (saith my Author) all Divines grant, that the Devils may know and discern our phantasms intuitive, as we do things which are present before us.

6. As they may see into the fancy, so if God permit, evil Angels may go into the head, and see those very images and species in the fancy, that are for present in direct conjunction with the understanding, and which is then thinking and musing of. Indeed, the immediate knowledge of our thoughts, and hearts and understandings, is proper only to God; I the Jer. 17. 10.
 Lord search the heart, I try the reins; yet argui-tive, and as they do transire, and appear in the images of the fancy, and so quasi in aliis, and mediately, they may be very far discerned, and lookt into by evil Angels, and so by discerning those very phantasms, which the understanding actually at present vieweth, and maketh use of, they may then judge what it is,

Idem ibidem.

is, that the mind for the present is musing on,
*All this is discuss'd at large concerning the evil
Angels.*

And if the evil Angels may know thus much of what is within us, do not the good Angels know thus much? The evil Angels have by their sin lost much of their knowledge, and therefore are called darkness, and the power of darkness, because they are exceeding dark in themselves; and in comparison of the holy Angels, but the good Angels never sinned, and therefore never were deprived of the least measure of knowledge conferred on them. I must therefore conclude, that without speaking to them, or reasoning with them after the manner of men, they understand as well, or wherein they do not, God is pleased often to discover it to them by an especial dispensation, of favour and grace: As to the Angel in Daniel, was revealed the mystery of the seventy weeks.

2. We may understand them, though they never speak to us, or reason with us, and so we are capable of their teaching: You will say, how may we do that? I answer—

1. Observe we their work upon our fancies, there they are busie day and night, to set together the images for our understanding of them: Look, as a Compositor in printing, takes his letters that lie confused afore him, and orders, and sets them in words and sentences, to represent to the Readers eye what he would have read by him: so do the Angels set and compose the images in our fancies to represent to our understanding such things as they would have us know; it is good therefore to observe their work day and night, for they may work on our fancies in our dreams.

2. Set we our selves to think or muse upon those images set together by them. Thus when the Angel Gabriel saluted Mary, it is said, that she cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be. And after the Angels had appeared to Shepherds, and that all wonder'd at those things which the Shepherds told them, it is said, that Mary kept all those things, and pondered them in her heart. Certainly it is our duty, when Angels have been communicating their minds to us, to ponder, and muse, and meditate, and to cast in our mind, what manner of communication this should be.

3. Try we their work upon our fancies, whether it be agreeable to the Word of God: It were sad, if we should take that for the speaking of Angels, which is the very voice of Devils: Now though evil spirits can transform themselves into Angels of Light, yet they may be discerned, if we'll try their work by the word. The good Angels are distinguished from the bad, ether by their apparitions, or by their actions; the former I omit, for the latter Poet gives them in thus.

Tho. Heywood of Angels.

Who so will sift their actions, he shall find
By their success, if well or ill inclin'd,
The one from other; for the blessed still Square all their actions to th' Almighty's will,
And to mans profit:—

The Cacodæmons labour all they can Against Gods honour, and the good of man.

Indeed, this is the sure and indubitable character; the good Angels never speak any thing contrary to the Word, or which is all one, the good Angels are Employed in nothing save the Honour of God, and the profit and preservation of good men; but evil Spirits aim all their interprizes and endeavours to derogate from Gods Worship, and to assume it to themselves, and by their flattering deceptions, and oily insinuations with man, to work the utter subversion both of body and soul: It is good therefore to try their works upon our fancies, and if we find it agreeable to Gods Word, or if it aim at God's honour and mans profit, we may conclude, This was the speaking of an Angel of God.

But methinks I hear some object, You tell us of a work of Angels upon our fancies day and night; and indeed in the night we can more easily observe some such like impressions, or work upon us in our dreams: But are not these things spoken against? Was not this the way of false Prophets, to observe their dreams, and by them to delude the People; saying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed, Jer. Jer. 23. 25. 23. 25.

I answer, such dreams as tend to the leading of men from the holy Word of God, to wicked Doctrines or Opinions, which are painted over with the pretence or colour of Revelations and Divine Visions, when they are indeed the meer delusions of Satan, transforming himself into an Angel of Light, are not to be heeded, but rejected; and such were the dreams of the false Prophets tending to Idolatry, against whom God spake; If there Deut. 13. arise among you a Prophet, or a dreamer of 1, 2, 3. dreams, and giveth thee a sign or a wonder, and the sign or wonder come to pass, whereof he spake unto thee saying, Let us go after other Gods (which thou hast not known) and let us serve them; thou shalt not hearken to the words of that Prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, for the Lord your God proveth you, to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul.

Yet this hinders not, but such dreams as come into us by God's special, and sometimes extraordinary work of providence, which must needs be directed unto some weighty and good end: As we must conclude, if we either consider the first mover, which is God, or the instruments, which are his holy Angels, such dreams will challenge our very serious consideration, and diligent care to take notice of what they offer unto us, and the neglect or contempt thereof cannot be committed without great impiety; and therefore we have not only a warrant, but an unavoidable and inviolable obligation in point of duty, to take notice of such dreams, and to make use of them, according to their importance and purpose. In a dream, in a Vision of the Job 33. night, when deep sleep falleth upon men, in slum- 15, 16. brings upon the bed, then he openeth the ears of men, and sealeth their instructions.

But

But because dreams are of several sorts, some proceeding only from the constitution of the Heavens, or from the disposition of the air, or from precious cogitations, or from the temper of the Body, or from the affection of the mind, or from the procuration of the Devil, and only some few from the operation of good Angels; it is therefore worthy our pains to know some such marks or characters, whereby we may distinguish these last, from all others of the former dreams.

Dr. Warm-stre.

A learned Writer, in his Book of the Baptized Turk, hath laid down these marks of those Dreams procured by Angels.

1. When they move unto that which is truly and eminently good, or from the contrary evil, and have nothing in them that stands opposite to the truth or holiness of the Word of God, or sound reason, nor that addeth any thing to God's Word, as a new way of Righteousness or Salvation.

2. When they are of a wise, sober, just, and orderly frame and composition, without any tincture of lightness, glingling, or vanity in them.

3. When they come unto us, being in an holy temper and disposition of spirit.

4. When they leave both an holy, and humble, and also a strong and certain impression upon the mind, moving it not upon carnal, but spiritual principles and motives; to which we may add, an holy clearness and consolation in the spirit, an increase of vigor and readiness to godly obedience and holiness.

5. When they agree with some work that God hath in hand, and have something in them that seems to be above humane inventions, and have an excellent agreement in the several parts thereof, presenting the same or several things.

6. When they come unsought and unexpected; for if any man doth purposely seek divination by dreams, composing himself thereunto by superstitious rites or ceremonies, this were expressly against the Word: For thus saith the Lord of Hosts, the God of Israel, let not your Prophets and your Diviners that be in the midst of you, deceive you, neither hearken to your dreams which ye cause to be dreamed — But enough of this matter.

2. The Angels persuade us to that which is good, they do not only declare to us what is God's will, but they advise us to it. This is the ordinary office of blessed Angels, to instil good motions, to suggest good thoughts, to admonish and persuade us on all occasions to that which is good. As Satan is ever compassing the earth, seeking whom he may devour, here and there laying his snares to catch poor souls in, tempting and enticing them to all sorts of sin, as he espies occasion and opportunity for it; so are the good Angels ever and anon suggesting good and pious thoughts; they tacitly admonish our minds, and provoke us to good duties of holiness and obedience: This makes some affirm, that whatsoever the evil Angels can do in evil, the Elect Angels can do in good: If the Devils can suggest sin, surely the Angels of God are stronger and wiser than Devils.

But how do the good Angels suggest good?

I answer: 1. They inspire, inject, or cast into our minds some holy motions: seldom passes the day over our heads, but we may feel these injections: Come, this is the way, walk in it, strive to enter in at the strait gate, &c.

2. They provoke and stir us up with much importunity to this or that duty; Ho every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, &c. They know well enough our sluggish, dull, and heavy dispositions, our spiritual laziness, and therefore they add stirring, quickning, Soul enlivening expressions, or exclamations, Ho, come ye to the waters; yea, they double it, or treble it, come ye to the waters; and come ye, buy and eat; and come ye, buy wine and milk without money, and without price: They are not willing to give over, till they have made us willing to yield to their motions for our own Salvation.

You may object, Surely this is the genuine work of the Holy Ghost, thus to inspire and provoke us to good: Very true, and yet that hinders not but that the good Angels may be instruments, or agents: We say, the Holy Ghost is the prime Spirit, and yet the Angels are as ministring Spirits; the Holy Ghost is the Fountain, or head of Water, but the Angels are as Cisterns and Channels of Water; it is the will of the Holy Ghost to imploy the Angels, and to communicate himself to us by the Ministry of Angels, and therefore the Holy Ghost and Angels need not clash. Indeed motions, inspirations, and holy suggestions are ever originally and primarily from the Spirit of Christ; and hence it is, that commonly we put them all on that score, we give them all to Christ's Spirit; yet I cannot forget the Authors Opinion I cited before, That God's Works in the World are usually by instruments, and not immediate; and that good Angels are his instruments, in conveying his mercies both to soul and body. Another speaks as confidently every whit; For my part (with the good leave of my Learned and Religious Brethren, be it spoken) I doubt not but good Angels suggest good Counsels, tender holy motions, offer pious thoughts, yea, refresh the often parched spirits of gracious men with inward joy. — Shall the Devil work in the Children of disobedience? Ephes. 2. 2. Enormously disquiet the affections, 1 Sam. 16. 15. Yea, inject wicked thoughts into godly men with success, 1 Chro. 21. 1. And shall the good Angels be excluded from all actions and operations upon the inward senses of man — I can never believe it.

3. The Angels repel temptations, or prevent occasions of sin. This was the meaning of Michaels contending with the Devil about the body of Moses: It was the Devils design to discover Moses his grave, and the Archangel was ready to resist him: But why would the Angel resist him? To what end was the dispute about the body of Moses? Why might not the body and burial-place of Moses have been discovered to all? Surely the Angel would not have it known, lest the people should have idolized and worshipped it in after-times.

Jude 5. 9.

The Devil loves Idolatry, and of all kinds of Idolatry, the Devil abuseth the World most with Idolatrous respects to the Bodies and Relicks of dead Saints. Now the Archangel knew his design, and therefore he would by no means have those burial places known. Thus Aynsworth paraphraseth on that Text of Deuteronomy, He was buried in a valley of Moab over against Beth Peor, but no man knoweth of his Sepulchre unto this day. The Angel would have no occasion of Superstition or Idolatry thereby: Oh what blessed helps have we for preventing of sin? How bulie are the Angels in our behalf (when we little think of it) to repel temptations, and to prevent occasions of evil? As our good endeavours are often hindred by Satan, I would have come to you, even I Paul, once and again, but Satan hindred us: So are our evil actions hindred by the heavenly Angels, else were not our protection equal to our danger: A good Angel opposed Balaam in an evil way; and if an heavenly spirit obstruct the course of the evil, and stand in the way of a Sorcerers sin, how much more ready are those spiritual powers to stop the spiritual miscarriages of Gods dearest Children?

4. The Angels quicken our dulness, encourage our weakness, and comfort us in our sorrows: All these we may read together in one Chapter, I was in a dead sleep (saith Daniel) on my face, and my face toward the ground, and behold an hand touched me, which set me upon my knees, and upon the palms of my hands; and he said unto me, O Daniel, a man greatly beloved, understand the words that I speak unto thee, and stand upright, for unto thee am I now sent; and when he had spoken this word unto me, I stood trembling, then said he unto me fear not Daniel.

— And there came again and touched me, one like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me, and said, O man greatly beloved, fear not, peace be unto thee, be strong, yea be strong; and when he had spoken unto me I was strengthened, and said, Let my Lord speak, for thou hast strengthened me.

In like manner we find an Angel quickning, encouraging and strengthening Elijah to his work, 2 Kings 1. 3, 15. and Isaiah to his work, Isa. 6. 6, 7. and Paul to his work, Acts 27. 23, 24. But especially in the Sufferings of his Saints, how usual was it with God to send down his Angels for their Comforters?

When Christ was in his agony, there appeared an Angel to him from Heaven, strengthening him: When Peter was in Prison, Behold the Angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the Prison: When Paul was in his dangerous

Voyage, There stood by him that night the Angel of God, whose he was, and whom he served, saying, Fear not Paul, Acts 27. 23. In the succeeding times of the Church, how frequently did the Angels appear to blessed Martyrs for their comfort and encouragement? Thus Theodorus saw and felt the refreshing hand of an Angel: Thus Theophilus, Agnes, Lucia, Cecilia, and others, saw the good Angels as their Comforters, and Protectors of their Chastity. And although they do not appear to us now in bodily shapes, as in those times, yet the same Offices are performed by them in their spiritual and mysterious ways; now they quicken our dulness, encourage our weakness, and comfort us in heaviness.

S E C T. IV.

Whether the Angels contribute any thing to our Conversion.

BEfore I pass this, I would propound a Question or two: As—

1. Whether the Angels contribute anything to our Conversion? We have heard at large, that Devils do what they can to hinder our Conversion: and are the Angels less active to good than they are to evil, I cannot think it? We may be sure, that as the bad Angels do bad offices, so the good Angels are in their way prompt and ready to do all the good offices they can, as to our good; and my reason is, their will is conformed to the Will of God, They do his Commandments, they hearken to the voice of his Words: Whatsoever God wills they will: Now God wills the Conversion of Sinners; As I live, I desire not the death of a sinner, but rather that he should repent and live; and therefore they will it, and as they will it, so they reduce that will into several acts, or else it were in vain. But what those acts are, may be another question.

S E C T. V.

Wherein do the Angels contribute, as to our Conversion?

THE several acts of Angels as to our Conversion, are such as these.—

1. They inform our Judgments: we have heard before, how they invisibly teach us, instruct us, enlighten us, and herein do they contribute to our Conversion: For what is the first work of Conversion, but Illumination? As in the first Creation, the First born of Gods Works was light; God said, let there be light, and there was light; so in new Creation, the first work is light; God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined into our Hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the Glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. Hence the state of Nature is called darkness, and the state of Grace is called light; Ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: And he hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light. Now if in this work the Angels are assistant, they must needs contribute to our Conversion in the first work of it, which is illumination.

2. They move our will: This is that we said before, that the good Angels persuade us to that which is good, they instill good motions, they suggest good thoughts, they provoke us to duties of holiness and obedience, and especially to this main work of Conversion and Regeneration, well they know, that without this, all is nothing; Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God; and their desires are strong, that the places made void void in heaven by the fallen Angels, should be supplied by men and women, and therefore they do what they can to move and persuade us to a change: I know they cannot efficiently move, or turn the will; we leave to Christ and his Spirit the efficacy and blessing of all, they only move, and persuade, and make use of arguments to do this or that, but the Holy Spirit makes effectual, and gives the issue to what they move. If you say, what needs this ministration, for Christ can move or persuade without them? I may as well ask what need Ministers, Preaching, Sacraments? It is enough to silence and stop our mouths, when we hear these are God's ways of Administration, these are God's Ordinances, of which the Angels are a great part, and according to the good pleasure of God, they act, and stir, and move, and persuade us to Conversion.

3. They work on our affections, endeavouring to settle them, and keep them on right objects: It is true, they cannot turn the stream and current of our affections back (God only can turn this Jordan back) but they can drive them faster, and cause them to swell above their natural Channels; it is the spirit of bondage which worketh fear, but when fear is wrought, they can blow it up, and intend it more, as the Spirits instruments: Sometimes you have heard how evil Angels could work further and deeper fears than the Holy Ghost by himself intended, and cannot the good Angels do regularly, what the evil Angels can do irregularly? If the evil Angels cannot only propound such objects as shall move us to fear, but also can stir up such humours in the body, which such a passion doth act and stir in, Ex. gr. If they can electively work upon Melancholly, so as to put a man into a timorous and trembling disposition; how much more can the good Angels propound objects, and stir up humours, and so work on the affections, whether of fear or hope, or sorrow, or joy, or love, or hatred?

4. They repel temptations. You have heard abundantly how the Soul is haunted with several temptations: when the work of Conversion is passing upon it, then is Satan busie, by way of revenge, for the Souls revolt from him: But are not the good Angels as busie as Satan? and if they resist him, what can all the troops of Hell hurt us? We know the good Angels have as much advantage of their strength over Satan, as they have of their station; how then should that evil one stand in the encounter? Or what need we fear in so mighty and sure hands? He that passeth with a strong Convoy through a wild and perillous Desert, scorns the danger of wild Beasts, or Robbers, no less than if he were in a strong Tower at home; so may we the onsets of the Powers of darkness, whilst we are guarded by the Angels who both defend us, and resist Satan in all his fiery Darts.

5. They joy in the Conversion of sinners, Lukas. 10. so that Heaven rings with the joy: Likewise I say unto you (saith Christ) there is joy in the presence of the Angels of God over one sinner that repenteth: What manner of joy this is, is unknown to us, and so shall be until that time, that Time shall be no more; only this we believe for the present, that the Conversion of sinners, is the Jubilation of Angels, and this, I take it, is the plain sense or meaning of Christ's words, that when they see the ranks and files of lapsed Angels filled up with new recruits, men and women, penitent for their sins, this is matter of joy, of extatical joy to the holy Angels of God.

SECT. VI.

Experiences of this Truth, as to our outward man.

FOR some experiences of this blessed truth, in respect of our bodies. —

1. They keep us from evil.

One going seasonably to bed, about midnight he awoke, and could not sleep; thereupon he awaked his Wife, and talking with her, suddenly he espied a light in his Chamber, which came through a Box hole; he demanding of her what that light was, she opened her eyes but could not tell: Anon she arose out of Bed, and looking through the Box hole (which by a gracious Providence was that night open, though usually shut) she espied a fire kindled on some Wood in the House, which quickly would have set all on a flame, that no way they could have escaped with Life, but they both hastened out of their Chamber, and coming into the House, they timously quenched the fire, and admiring at Gods Providence, in each circumstance, they returned in safety to bed, and found that rest and sleep after, which before they could not obtain.

The same Person riding over a deep Water, his Horse in the midst of the Stream laid him down under him: Thus Man and Horse both plunged in; the man with much ado having recovered himself and getting through, he rode home wet and cold, which cast him into a Fever, yet in time he recovered, and blessed that God, who by the Ministry of his Angels, delivered him from the danger both of fire and Water.

The same Person being at home, a Daughter came to visit him, who one Evening was very importunate to go more early than ordinarily they used to bed; her importunity so far prevailed, that presently they went to Prayers, and commending themselves to God for his custody, all in the Family made up the Stairs to several Lodgings; no sooner were they dropped asleep, but presently a noise, like Thunder, awaked them all, he wondred, and asked his Wife if she heard the thunder; who answered, that she being last in bed, was scarcely asleep, but could not tell whether it was a clap of Thunder, or a fall of some part of the House; and rising out of bed to go to the Chamber where their Daughter and a Servant Maid lay in two Beds; at the entrance into the Chamber, the Daughter cryed, Stay Mother, or you endanger your life, for I believe the Cham- ber floor, and Chamber adjoining is fallen down. By that caution she trembling stayed her foot, and drew back to tell her Husband the news; he desired her to go down stairs into the house, light a Candle, and to see the matter; but endeavouring to open the door below into the house, the passage was stopped, with the Floor of the Chambers fallen down; their Daughter, that lay in one of the two Chambers, seated over the house, cryed, that her Bed crackt, and she was afraid to lye in it; thereupon they advised her to hasten out of it, and with the Maid to creep into a corner of the Chamber, which was most secure. In the mean time, a Cry or Call was made through a Casement for some Neighbours help; by this means a Candle was brought, but no passage being possible through the doors, the Stranction of a Casement was cut, and one came in at the Window with his light, then it was seen how two Chambers over the house were suddenly fallen, with all the weight of Wood, and Clay, and furniture above, and that nothing remained unfallen, but a little Room of one Chamber, where the two Beds stood, wherein the two Women lay. At first view they all stood amazed, but recollecting themselves, the two Women were by a Ladder safely brought down from the corner of the fallen Chamber, and being brought into another Chamber, they took their rest till the Morning. At day light they saw their wonderful Preservations, and viewing the Circumstances, it appeared: 1. If that Night all had not gone to Bed before their ordinary time, they had been all sitting in the house, which then would have fallen upon them, and have slain them all. 2. If his Wife had not then stayed her step, when the Daughter cryed, Stay Mother, she had fallen down into the nether room amongst rubbish, and probably had lost her life. 3. If those two Beds had not stood wherein the two Women lay when all besides fell with one crash, they had both perished, especially the Daughter with a Child in her Belly, being yet but an Embrio. In every Circumstance appeared the Finger of God, and the Promise was minded, He shall give his Angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways, they shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.

Simon Grineus, a learned and holy man, coming from Heidelberg to Spire, was desirous to hear a certain Preacher in that City, who in his Sermon did then let fall some erroneous Propositions of Popish Doctrine, where-with Grineus, not being a little offended, craved speedy Conference with the Preacher, and laying before him the falshood and danger of his Doctrines, exhorted him to an abandoning and retraction of those misopinions; the Preacher gave good words and fair semblances to Grineus, desiring farther and more particular conference with him, each imparted to other their Names and Lodgings, yet inwardly, as being stung with that just reproof, he resolved a revenge, by procuring the imprisonment, and (if he might) the Death of so sharp a Confuter. Grineus misdoubting nothing, upon his return to his Lodging, reports the Passages of the late Conference to those who sat at the Table with him, amongst whom Melancthon being one, he was called out of the room to speak with a stranger, newly come into the house; going forth accordingly, he finds a grave old man, of a goodly countenance, seemly, and richly attired, who in a friendly and grave manner tells him that within one hour there would come to their Inn certain Officers, as from the King of the Romans to attach Grineus, and to carry him to Prison, willing him to charge Grineus, with all possible speed, to flee out of Spire, and requiring Melancthon to see that this advantage were not neglected; which said, the old man vanished out of his sight: Instantly Melancthon returning to his Companions, recounted unto them the words of this strange Monitor, and hastened the departure of Grineus accordingly, who had no sooner boated himself on the Rhine, then he was eagerly sought for at his said Lodging. Of this Melancthon, in his Commentary on Daniel writes, and acknowledges Gods fatherly providence in sending this Angel of his for the rescue of his Faithful servant.

John Spangenberg, Pastor of Northense, was no sooner stept out of his house, with his Family to go to the Bains, but the house fell right down in the place.—Our own experience at home is able to furnish us with divers such Instances, If a man by some strong instinct be warned to change that lodging, which he constantly held for some years, and finds his wonted sleeping place that night crushed with the unexpected fall of an unsuspected conignation, to what cause can we attribute this, but to our attending Angels?—Or have we been preserved from mortal dangers which we could not tell how by our providence to have evaded? Our invisible Guardians have done it.

In the true pourtraicture of his Sacred Majesty Charles the Second, it appears, that by God this King Reigns, in that he hath exercised those providences over him that are hardly exercised over ten thousands of us: That Star in the East, at his Highness Birth, speaks much this way: the Powers in heaven, that so watchfully guarded him through those sad days, wherein thousands fell at his right hand, and ten thousands at his left, aimed at some great prize; his Royal life (the care of Angels) must not go out privately, and be lost unprofitably in a corner.—Oh how the Angels forbid those millions of prophane hands, that would rudely have touched the Lords Anointed! His escape at Worcester was almost miraculous: He sought his way all along five miles from Worcester, then he turned to the less frequented ways that could be, until he came to the Borders of Staffordshire, then he removed to an adjoining Wood, where he, and one only with him, walked securely a while, until they found an Oak for Majesty, in the hollow of which he lodged himself for three days and nights, until my Lord Walnot providing for his Majesty a safe Lodging, and then seeking him in the Wood, with much ado found his Sacred Person guarded, and (as I may say) fed by Angels.

A new Star was discovered over St. James's at mid-day, seeming from heaven to gratulate the Royal Birth, displaying its modest Beams in spite of Sunshine, in the middle of the Air.

2. They keep us in, or restore us to health.

One going to London, inned and lodged all night at the Maiden-head in Cat-Eaten street, where the same night died a young Wife of the Pestilence; as another had died before, the sickness and death of the Parties being concealed, he arose in the Morning, took some repast, and went about his occasions; but at his return in the Afternoon, as he was going into the Inn, a friend called him back and told him the truth; in the midst of the discourse, he saw the Gates shut before his eyes, and presently was written upon them, Lord have mercy upon us. This hath minded him of Gods Providence and Promise, Surely he shall deliver thee from the noysom Pestilence, for he shall give his Angels charge over thee.

John Trelille, a poor Cripple in Cornwall, that for sixteen years together was fain to walk upon his hands, by reason of the close contraction of the sinews of his legs (upon three monitions in his Dream to wash in a Well, called Madernes) was suddenly so restored to his Limbs, that I saw him (saith my Author) able both to walk, and to get his own maintenance.—Marcus Aurelius Antonius, in his Dream, received the prescript of a Remedy of his Disease, which the Physicians could not cure; whence came this, but by the suggestion of Angels? Have we been raised up from deadly sicknesses when all natural helps have given us up? Gods Angels have been our secret Physicians. Bishop Hall.

3. They furnish us with all necessaries for this life.

Mr. Samuel, a godly Minister in Queen Maries days, was convented before Bishop Bonner, who committed him to Prison, and there chained him up to a Post, in such sort, that standing on tip-toes he was fain to bear up all the weight of his body in that manner, to his intolerable pain; besides he allowed him but three morsels of bread, and three spoonfuls of water a day, so that he was extremely tormented with hunger and thirst, and had his Body so miserably dried up, that he would fain have drunk his own water, but could not make one drop: But after he had continued in this miserable case three days, he fell asleep, and one clad all in white seemed to stand before him, telling him, that from henceforth he should neither hunger, nor thirst any more; which also came to pass, though he was not burnt till many days after, White's Power of Godliness.

A Doctor of Divinity, of singular learning and piety, sent his Maid to the Market, to get Provision for the following week: But all the money he and his Wife could make, was but five shillings; his Wife fell a weeping, and told her Husband, that there was little likelihood they could live together, and that therefore she would take one or two of her Children with her, and live among her friends, if he could provide for himself and the rest of his Children? Nay dear Wife, said he, we have lived thus long together, let not us now part, let us rely on Gods Providence: She in her grief and hast answered, Well, send Providence to Market, and see what it will bring home. It was so that day, a Noble man, who knew this Doctor very well, dining with divers Gentlemen at an Inn, looking out of the Window, saw the Doctors Maid, whom being an ancient servant, he knew, and sent for her up, asking her how her Master did; she answered, very well; and fell a weeping; he inquiring the cause, she told him what straights they were brought to; he wondring, and being troubled at it, called the Inn-keeper, and wished him to give that Maid ten pound, and every one of the Gentlemen gave twenty shillings a piece: So the Doctor sending Providence (of which the Angels are Servants and Instruments) to Market, it brought him home fifteen pounds: Doubtless it is because we do not trust, not because God either cannot, or will not give, that makes us so often want Mercies; and such Providences would be usual, if our confidence in God were but so. Idem ibidem.

There was a certain poor Family, who being in great want, and having little or nothing for the Children in it; when Dinner came, they put them off with play-things, and told them they would see if they could get them something for Supper; and when Supper came, they would give some small piece of bread, and so get them to bed; and thus they used them so long, while at last the Children would not go to bed, but cried for Bread: That night it was so, the Lord Faulkland waking before midnight, could not sleep, and then it came into his mind that this Family was in great want, insomuch that he called up some of his Servants, and sent them with a great Loaf and a Cheese to the house; when they came, they found the Children crying for bread, and the Parents weeping by them, who with a great deal of joy and eagerness receiv'd that unexpected Provision. Thus the Lord order'd it by his Providence, that they were not only then relieved, but their necessities being related to the Lord Faulkland, he took care of them for the future. Idem ibidem.

Luther hath this Story: A certain Woman, in the time of Famine, having nothing at all for her Children, and her self to eat, being brought to very great extremity, she resolved upon this course; she made her self and all her Children ready, and with a great deal of comfort and confidence she walked to a Spring, not far from her house; as she was going, one met her, who asked her whither she was going with her Children: she told him, that all her Provision was quite spent, and she was going with her Children to such a Fountain close by, being confident, that God that had provided drink for her and her Children, would there provide food for them also; and he that heard the young Ravens, and provided for them, would much more take care of her, and her little ones: He that met her wished her to return home, for she should meet with Provision that was ready for her there; she returned, and found a considerable quantity of meal, which was food for her, and her Children, but whence this Provision came she knew not, nor knew the man who told her of it.

SECT. VII.

Experiences of this truth, as to our inward man.

3. FOR some Experiences of this blessed truth, in respect of our Souls.

1. They declare to us Gods will; of old they did so to Abraham, Lot, Moses, Jacob, Manoah, Gideon, David, Elijah, Elisha, Isaiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, Zachary: And in the New Testament they did so to Joseph, Mary, Zachariah, the Shepherds, Mary Magdalen, Peter, Philip, Cornelius, Paul, John the Evangelist, and to all the Apostles. At this time they do not invisibly declare Gods will, nor must we trust to Visions, or Revelations; yet many times they teach us by Dreams, and many times they coyn Impressions on our fancy and imagination whiles we are waking: They can make rare and wonderful compositions of what they find in us; so that to me, here is the difference between the Converse of Men and Angels; Men can speak to the understanding by the meditation of our external senses, but the Angels go a nearer way to work, and speak first of all to the internal senses, making such compositions there as the understanding presently takes off, and reads what is written: Do we not, waking and sleeping, see impressions in our fancy, of things that we thought we had forgotten? This is done by the Angels.

Dingly of Angels.

One being a long while trained up in Ceremonies, Notionals, Fables, unprofitable matter, rather than sound and saving knowledge, which is in Faith; at last conversing with some godly men, and with practical books, he found some impressions in his fancy of another kind of Divinity, and so inclined, that Divinity was rather practical, than speculative; and that such kind of Preaching as was usually delivered in an affected spruceness of language, and vain-glorious trimmings of the windy and dead Letter, would never save Souls. These impressions were more and more fixed in him, and at last he was satisfied, that many poor illiterate Souls that felt the power of Godliness on their own hearts, had more true knowledge of Divinity, than many learned Doctors and Rabbies, that had nothing but Orthodoxy, or a swimming knowledge of truth; and that many unlearned snatched Heaven, and took it by violence, whiles many learned with their learning perished, and went down to Hell: The efficacy of this light be giver to the spirit, but the instrumentality of it, as working upon the fancy or imagination, be ascribes to the Angels.

A godly Woman, falling into great dissensions, at last the Lord in secret Prayer came in with abundance of light and comfort; but within a month after, she being to receive the Lords Supper, all her former tears and troubles returned upon her, inasmuch, as a little before the bread was administered to her, though she could not say that the Devil appeared to her in a bodily shape, yet he seemed to her as if he did, and told her, that she should not eat; but then the Lord was pleased to bring into her mind that passage in the Canticles, Eat O my friends: Notwithstanding, Satan still continued terrifying of her, and when she had eaten, told her, she should not drink; but the Lord brought that second clause of the verse into her mind, Drink, yea drink abundantly my beloved; and so she drank also, and presently was filled with such unspeakable Joys, that she knew not how she got home; which Soul-ravishing Joys continued for a Fortnight after, and filled her mouth with Songs of praise, so that she could neither sleep, nor eat, more than she forced her self to do out of conscience of duty. White.

2. They advise us to that which is good.

The light presented to one as before, many blessed motions came in to begin with the beginning of saving practical truths; and this he understood was the Doctrine of Regeneration; and therefore if ever he would be happy, he must have some feeling of that; Many Objections were raised, That the wind bloweth where it listeth; and we are not sufficient of our selves to think; and it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, &c. The Objections are not formally now remembered: But notwithstanding them, the motions to fall on the work continued afresh, and finding them daily upon his spirit, at last he submitted willingly to those inspirations, and every day set some time apart to be in the duty; it proved tedious and difficult at first, but afterwards sin appeared very sinful, and the Spirit set it home on his Soul, and by degrees successively, he was led from a sense of misery, to some hope of mercy in Christ: and before he had done (though many a day it continued) the holy Spirit infused Faith, whereby he closed with Jesus Christ, as Saviour, and as Lord, and King, and Husband. This work begun by the Angels, by instilling good motions, was the joy of Angels, when it was perfected: There is joy in the presence of the Angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

One, about the time of Reformation of Religion, desired much of God the guidance and assistance of an Angel; and from the thirty seventh year of his age he had sensible manifestations of a spirit that assisted him, and followed him till his Death. In his Dreams or Visions, he was sometimes admonished of this or that Vice, and sometimes advertised of this or that Danger, and sometimes resolved of this or that Doubt, or sometimes perswaded to this or that duty: Once I heard a Voice from Heaven, saying, I will save thy Soul. Usually in the Morning, about the fourth hour, the Angel would have beat at his door to have awaked him, and if he had done any good or evil, he would have manifested the approval, or disapproval of it by some sign: If in company he had spoke any unwary words, he was sure to be advertised and reproved for it by a dream in the night following:

lowing: if he had read any book that was not good, the Angel would have struck upon the book, to have caused him to have left it, and laid it aside: Often would the Angel have provoked him to prayer, and alms-deeds, and other duties. Bodinus asking him, whether ever he had seen the form of this Angel? He answered, that he never saw any thing, but only a bright and shining light in a round Orb; and once after prayer upon his Bed, that he saw a sweet Boy, in white apparel, of admirable Beauty. Bodinus de Magorum demonomania.

3. They repeal temptations, or prevent occasions of sin.

One having many temptations offered him, especially in his dreams in the night, he observed, that at the same times such thoughts have come in, that in those very dreams he confidently cried, Avoid Satan, and again, Avoid Satan, for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve; which he believes were put in by the Angels.

One Natalius, that had formerly suffered great persecution for the Cause of Christ, was seduced by Asclepiodotus, and Theodorus, two Sectaries, to be the Bishop of their Sect, promising to pay him an hundred and fifty Crowns of silver every month, and so he joyned himself to them; but the Lord in mercy not intending to lose him that had suffered so much for his sake, admonished him by a Vision, to adjoyn himself to the true Church again, which the good man for the present, blinded with lucre and honour, did not regard as he ought to have done. The night after he was scourged by Angels, whereupon, in the morning, putting on Sackcloth, with much weeping and lamentation, he went to the Christian Congregation, praying them, for the tender mercies of Christ, that he might be received into their Communion again; which request was accordingly granted unto him. Clarke's general Martyrology.

Cyprian relates a story of one of his Fellow Ministers, who in the midst of his torments began to faint, being greatly afraid of death, and desired to be released; at which time there appeared to him a young man of admirable beauty, and so bright, that mans mortal eye could scarce endure to behold him; who angrily said to him, Pati timetis, exire non vultis, quid faciam vobis? To suffer you dare not, to go out you will not, what shall I do with you? Idem ibid.

4. They quicken, encourage, and comfort us.

A certain Godly Woman riding behind her Husband, who was a Persecutor of Mr. Bolton, as they were riding, it thundred and lightened extraordinarily, so that he trembled exceedingly; his Wife with a cheerful voice said, Husband, what ails you? why do you tremble thus? He answered, Do you not hear how terribly it thunders? She answered, Yes, I hear it: And said he, Do you not tremble also? She answered, No, she was not at all afraid, for she knew it was but the voice of her Fa- ther. He was amazed at her cheerfulness and answer, and began to think with himself. Surely these Puritans have something within them, that they are able to bear up in such storms, and that they have peace, and are cheerful, while I tremble. And being not far off, immediately he did ride to Master Bolton, beseeching pardon that he had persecuted him, and desired that he would tell him what he should do to be saved.

Thomas Ward of Tiso in Warwickshire, was all his younger days very loose and dissolute, an Enemy to goodness, and an hater of good men; but it pleased God at last to convert him, after a strange and wonderful manner, which was thus: In a morning, as he lay in his Bed, plotting and contriving how to molest and persecute some of his godly Neighbours, there appeared a Vision to him of a City, wherein there were many poor ragged Lambs in the Streets, and a man driving of them, and he heard a Voice saying to him, What are these? To which he answered, Sheep: Then said the Voice again, These are my Sheep whom thou persecutest. Presently after he saw another Vision of a pile of Faggots, and heard the Voice saying, What are these? He answered, Faggots: Then said the Voice, As these are bound up for the fire, so thou deservest to be bound hand and foot, and cast into everlasting fire. He answered, Truth Lord; yet withal, he cried earnestly to the Lord for mercy: and presently after he saw in another Vision a Pillar of Brass, but so bright and glorious, that he was not able to look upon it; then said the Voice, Be of good comfort, for thou art a chosen Vessel, which shall suffer many things for my names sake. To which he said, Lord if it be thy will, let it be now: And presently he had a blow given him on his side, as with a Dagger, the mark whereof he carried with him to his grave. After this, it pleased God to raise him up with comfort, and he became an eminent Professor, and was very zealous for the truth. White.

A little before the eighth Persecution began, God by a Vision revealed it to Cyprian, saying to him, Be quiet, and of good comfort, for peace will come, albeit a little stay there is for a while, for that some remain yet to be proved, and tryed. Clark.

Theodorus, for singing a Psalm at the removing of the body of Babylas, being apprehended, was examined with exquisite torments, and so cruelly excruciated from morning till almost noon, that hardly he escaped with life, and being afterwards asked by his friends, how he could endure such extream torments, said, That at first he felt some pain, but afterwards there stood by him a young man, who as he was sweating with the pain, wiped away his sweat, and oft-times so refreshed him with cold water, wherewith he was so delighted, that when he was let down from the Engine, it grieved him more than before. Clark.

Whilst Augustine was yet a Manichee, his Mother Monica had a dream, that she was standing upon a wooden rule, and being very sad, saw a glorious young man very joyful, and of a cheerful countenance coming unto unto her, and that he asked her the cause of her sadness, and when she had declared that it was by reason of sorrow that she had for her Son, who was then in the way of destruction, he bid her be of good cheer, and wished her to mark and observe, and that she should see her Son to be with her where she was, and so she saw her Son, standing with her upon the same rule. August. Confess. l. 3.

SECT. VIII.

Experiences of this Truth, as to Conversion.

FOR some experiences of the Angels contributing to our Conversion. On a time, Augustine being in great heaviness, and deep contrition of heart, cried out, Oh! what is this? what suffer I under the tyranny of sin? unlearned men take Heaven by violence, and we, with all our Learning, lye groveling in flesh and blood. After this he had a great conflict, for all his past pleasures represented themselves before his eyes, saying, What wilt thou depart from us? and shall we be no more with thee for ever? And then a marvelous tempest of weeping came upon him, so that he cast himself on the ground under a fig-tree, and gave full scope to his eyes, which brought forth presently whole floods of tears; and then, behold he heard a voice, as if it had been of a Boy or Maid singing, and saying, tolle & lege, tolle & lege; Take up and read, Take up and read: Wherefore repressing the force of his tears, interpreting, that this Voice came from Heaven, and was spoken by Angels, he took up the book of Pauls Epistles which he had with him, with a purpose to read the first Chapter that he should find, and opening it, his eyes fixed on these words, The night is spent, the day is at hand, let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the Armour of light; let us walk honestly, as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envy-in, but put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, &c. And by this means he was converted. Aug. l. 8. Confess. c. 12.

Rom. 13. 12,
13, 14.

A woman telling me of her great trouble and grief, and of her long continuance in the pangs of the New Birth, she said, that she heard at last a voice: plainly and distinctly saying to her as she was bewailing her sins, If thou'lt forget, I'll forget; If thou'lt forget, I'll forget.

A Man labouring in the pangs of his New Birth, began to despair of Salvation, and at last concluded he should be damned; whereupon, plotting and contriving what was best to do, he resolved to make away himself, and not to live any longer: For these reasons: 1. Because he conceived, the longer he lived, the more and greater would be his sin. And 2. The more would God by his sin be dishonoured. And 3. The more and greater would his torment proportionably to his sin be in the fire of hell: And even now going to the place where he had appointed the execution and self-murder, there suddenly came into his mind (as if a dart of light had been injected) this very word, Who knows? on which, pondering and ruminating, he asked himself, Who knows what? and presently was thrown in (as he conceived) the end of the Sentence, Who knows what is Gods Decree, or mind concerning me, neither Angels, Devils, nor Men. On which words pausing and considering a while he reasoned thus with himself, If I know not Gods mind, it may be I shall be saved. Upon this he staid his purpose, put on by Satan, and probably prevented by an Angel, and so went to prayer, and within three days after he received comfort.

SECT. IX.

Of the Duties that concern us in this respect.

1. IN all dangers let us stir up Faith, and exercise it on the promises of Angel-protection: Art thou a Souldier? do violence to no man, neither accuse any falsely, and be content with thy Wages, march, charge, retreat, do duty according to command, God shall cover thy head in the day of battle, for thou art in thy ways; but if thou invadest the Ministerial Office, presuming to preach, who never was sent, look to thy self, thou canst not without usurpation pretend to Gods keeping, for thou art out of all thy ways: Nor do I fear the frowns of any if offended hereat, and reproving me for giving this just reproof: I am sure I am in my calling, in my ways; and therefore with comfort and confidence may rely on God, and his Angels protection, only that we abuse not the promise as the Devil did; let us keep in our ways, that we may be kept safe by the Angels, then only is Angel-protection to be expected, when we are in the ways God hath appointed; that is to say, within the compass of our general and particular Callings: they shall keep thee in all thy ways, or in all thy bounds, or in all thy courses appointed thee by God. Surely we have need to look to our selves in all our actions, as in eating, drinking, riding, sporting, for even in these God hath set us our ways: We hear of many sad disasters of Gods dearest servants, and we need not wonder, if we but consider their wandrings: Alas they keep not within compass, they are out of their ways, or otherwise they might walk safely without any danger. If Jacob keep but in his ways, he may safely meet with his Brother Esau coming against him with four hundred men. Mr. Dod would say, he cared not where he was, if he could but answer these two questions well: Who am I? and what do I here? am I Child of God? and am I in my way? If we were careful of these things, we might free our selves from all other cares: Oh let us look to our ways!

2. In

2. In our sicknesses, sores, dangers of Plague or Pestilence, let us eye the promise of Angel-ministration; Surely he shall deliver thee, from the noysom Pestilence; — Thou shalt not be afraid for the Terror by night, nor for the Arrow that flieth by day, nor for the Pestilence that walketh in darkness, nor for the Destruction that wasteth at noon-day; a thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand, but it shall not come nigh thee: — There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any Plague come nigh thy dwelling, for he shall give his Angels charge over thee. Many other Promises we have, both to prevent and qualifie, and to remove sicknesses, as Exod. 15. 26. Deut. 7. 15. Psal. 41. 3. Heb. 12. 6, 7, 8. Isa. 40. 31. And well may we live by Faith on such promises as these: But why should the Promises of Angel-ministration be out of use? To what end are these Promises, if we may not rest or roll our selves upon them as well as others? Should God say in our sicknesses, Send to such a Physician, and make use of him, and you shall be cured, we should submit: And are not these Heavenly Physicians of more value? And have we not an expresse Promise, that in their Ministration we shall have health? Oh let us eye these Promises!

3. In our outward wants let us have some thoughts of Angel-ministration, as to supplies. It is a wonder how all the Creation is serviceable to man, the very Plants and Herbs administer to his Food, the Beasts of the Field, and Fowls of the Air, are for his sustenance; the Sun and Stars contribute to his being and preservation; if any piece of the Creation should escape his Ministry, one would think it should be the mighty and blessed Angels; and yet behold an Angel provides Bread for Elijah, and water for Ishmael, and all other necessities for Gods Children: The world is yours, saith the Apostle; God would never have made this Field (the World) were it not for the Corn (the Godly) growing in it; and as of this Corn the Angels are the Reapers, so they have care of it for its nourishment and preservation: Art thou a Saint, and in want? Surely it concerns thee to shake off idleness, to take the opportunity, and to observe Gods Providence in all affairs, and amidst those several providences of his ordering, forget not the Ministration of the Angels: For my part, if together with the Word, my own experiences may be any encouragement; I do verily think, that rather than thou shouldst die for thirst, an Angel will open thy eyes to see a fountain, out of which thou mayst fill thy Bottle with Water, and take and drink.

4. In learning the whole Counsel, Will, and Mind of God, let us turn over those leaves which speak of Angels; these are the invisible attenders of the blessed Deity, and without some knowledge and apprehension of them, we shall never attain to conceive of their God and ours, as we ought to do: but in this knowledge let us mind especially their ministration to our inward man; herein are many depths, yet are they sweet, delightful, and most profitable truths: They come to our Phantasms (the species of sounds, of shapes, or whatsoever else, as they are kept and preserved by the inward senses) and they move them at pleasure, and put together such conceptions or apprehensions as are most accomodate and fitted for the knowledge of that truth, which they would suggest to our minds: Is not this worthy our knowledge? Shall the Angels take pains to speak to us, and to acquaint us with the knowledge of saving truths, and shall not we willingly hearken to them? O let us listen to what they say; and that they may have matter to work upon, and to speak to us about, let us be ever ready and prompt to receive good Images and impressions of things into our fancy: It is said, that the Angels cannot put into our fancies what never was there before, as they cannot make a man born blind to dream of colours, and their differences; but they can make many compositions and deductions of the Images they find there, to the saying of what they will; and therefore let us hear all the good we can, and take heed of receiving ill impressions by our ears, or eyes, or any other way: If any one tell us an ill story once, the Devil will tell it us a thousand times; it is a great happiness to this purpose not to know ill: And on the other side, if we see or hear good objects, and that our memories (which are as treasures of all we see or hear) be stuffed and filled with many such good things, then may we comfortably hope, that the Angels will make use of all those Images to converse with us, and tell us over and over what is the will and mind of God.

5. In the many motions, inspirations, and holy suggestions to this or that good, let us stop a while, and seriously consider whence these come, certainly if they are of good, and tend to good, they come either from the Spirit of God, or from his holy and blessed Angels. I confess the efficacious power on the heart, belongs only to the Spirit of God; It is the Holy Ghost that over-rules, and melts, and new moulds us, that so perswades us to charm, and turn, and captivate our Souls; yet the Angels are Ordinances, means and helps of Gods own appointment; they are ministring Spirits sent from God to counsel and perswade us to this and that duty: And whether the good motions instilled proceed from the holy Spirit, or from these ministring Spirits, it is good for us to listen, and hearken to these movings, workings, hints, intimations. Methinks we should hearken to the advice of a friend, how much more to God and his Angels? Oh how sad is it for any Soul by sin to counter-work the workings of Angels, and breathings of the Spirit! that the Angels should knock at our hearts, and that the Spirit should put in the hand by the hole of the Door, and yet that neither should be yielded unto, but both resisted; this must needs grieve the Holy Ghost, and grieve the Holy Angels that would perswade us, and seal us up unto the day of Redemption.

6. In the occasions of evil, or temptations to this or that sin, observe we the stops and lets which often are made by the holy and blessed Angels: we little think how busie the Angels are for our good; the Devil, we know, is like a roaring Lyon, and the day passeth not over our Heads, wherein he offers not this or that temptation to insnare our Souls: And are not the good Angels at counter-work? Do not they as often pull us back? Or do not they at least very often hedge and block up our ways, by withstanding the occasions of many a sin? O then say as Jacob did, Surely the Angels of the Lord were in the preventing of this temptation, and I knew it not. It were enough to strike us into a dread, and to break forth into praises of God, if in the overcoming of any temptation, we had some thoughts of the protection and ministration of Angels: Surely, should we say, the Lord and his Angels have helped and relieved us, or Satan had prevailed, and we had been quite foiled.

7. In our deadness, fears sorrows, afflictions, let us remember the words of Elisha to his Servant, Fear not, for they that be with us, are more than they that are against us. Seldom did the Angels appear to any, but this was their language, Fear not; As Fear not, Daniel; and, Fear not, Zacharias; and, Fear not, Mary; and, Fear not, Shepherds; and, Fear not Paul; it is one of their prime offices, to strengthen the weak hands, to confirm the feeble knees, and to say to them that are of a fearful heart, be strong, fear not: Behold your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence, he will come and save you. When David said to Abiathar, that may we imagine the Angels say to us, Fear not ye Sons and Daughters of the Almighty, we are your Protectors, Strengtheners, Comforters; and with us, and by us, you shall be in safeguard. O the many quicknings, encouragings, comfortings, that the Saints have by the ministration of Angels! Next to my God, and my Saviour (saith one) I shall ever place my greatest comfort and confidence in the Angels of God, neither hath earth nor heaven any creature comforters like unto these; there is none like them, or to be compared with them.

8. At all times and seasons, let us think and carry our selves, as in the presence of God, and sight of his Angels. If I may instance in some times: As 1. In time of temptation, let us think of it then. Seneca gave Lucilius this counsel, Whatever he was doing, that he should imagine some of the Roman Worthies did behold him, and then he would do nothing dishonourable. Surely, if the eye of God, and of his Angels were ever in our eye, this would be a Superfedeas, and counter-poyson against all sin: Tell me, how dare you sin in their presence, or do that in their view, which you would not dare to do in the sight and presence of some earthly man? I charge you before God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Elect Angels, saith Paul, q. d. Consider Gods Presence, and Christs Presence; or if they work but little with you, Consider the Presence of the Elect Angels: Surely, the nearer things come to the manner of our presence, the more they will affect us; and therefore consider, that the Angels are present with us, in the very room where we are acting our very wickedness, I blush to think (saith the Author above cited) how often I have done that whereof the Angels were ashamed for me; I abhor my self to recount their just dislikes, and do willingly profess how unworthy I am of such friends, if I be not hereafter jealous of their just offence. 2. In time of publick service, and publick duty, think on it then: For this cause (saith the Apostle) ought the woman to have power over her head (that is to say, to be modestly veiled) because of the Angels. Elect Angels are exact and careful observers, and eye-witnesses of our behaviour and deportment in the publick Ordinances. To this end were the Curtains of the Tabernacle pictured full of Cherubims, to signifie, that about our solemn meetings, whole Troops of Angels take notice of our carriage: Surely, if this were considered, we should be very serious in Gods Worship; yea, how spiritual and heavenly should we be, if our hearts were but fixed on these glorious Angels? O ye blessed Spirits (saith a Saint) ye are ever by me, ever with me, ever about me, but especially in Gods house I do as good as see you, for I know you to be there, I reverence your glorious persons, I bless God for you, I walk awfully, because I am ever in your eyes; I walk confidently, because I am ever in your hands. My Brethren, we are even now at this time of publick meeting, amidst watchful and waking Overseers; we are lookt and lookt through in all our ways, as if Heaven were all eyes roundabout us: Oh then with what fear and trembling, with what Reverence and Devotion should we stand, or wait here before God, and his holy Angels?

9. In reference both to others and our selves, let us learn to imitate Angels.—

1. For others, let us imitate thus, they are as our Guardians, Physicians, Purveyors, Tutors, Instructors, Souldiers, Quickners, Incouragers, Comforters; so let us in our several stations and places aspire to Angelical work; if the Angels guard us, let us be as Guardians of one another; if they study our health, let us with health, and endeavour it as we may one for another; if they purvey for us, let us relieve the necessity of the Saints; if they tutor us, let us acquaint one another with the mysteries of Grace; if they instruct us, and perswade us to our duties, let us consider one another, to provoke unto love, and to good works: Exhort one another daily, while it is called day: If they fight for us, and take part with us against the evil Angels, let us take part with the Saints against the oppressions and violence of all wicked men; if they quicken, incourage and comfort us, let us quicken the slothful, confirm the weak, and comfort the feeble minded. Surely the way to have Angels reward, or to see the face of God, is to do the work of Angels. Oh let us improve this piece of the Creation to our use, as well as all the rest!

2. For our selves, let us imitate thus: 1. Reverence the Majesty of God as they do, Isa. 6. 2. 2. Stand ready prest to execute the will of God, as they do, Psal. 103. 20. 3. Let us study holiness, as they do; they are are of a most holy nature, and therefore are they called holy Angels. So be we holy, even as they are holy. It is but equal, that we who expect to be like the Angels in glory, should be like them in grace. Many would strive to be like them for gifts and parts, but not for holiness, which yet is the special thing propounded to our imitation. When we say, Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven, no question, this principally is intended, that we should lead here Angelical lives; that is, in Heaven they are ever doing Gods will, there is no sin there, so we should keep harmony with the Angels of Heaven, and do his will here.

To conclude, in all our duties, as in reference to the Angels, let us look unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our Faith. They are as the means and instruments of our good, but he is the Author and Finisher, and all the efficacy flows from him. Hence it is that we must chiefly apply our selves to him, Trust not in Man, no, nor in Princes, saith the Psalmist. So may I go on, trust not in Princes, no, nor in Angels, nor Archangels absolutely, but still in subordination unto Jesus Christ. This use the Psalmist teacheth us of Angel-protection; the Angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him: And what then? O taste, and see that the Lord is good; blessed is the man that trusteth in him; not in them, but in him: our chief confidence must be in none that is on this side God. When God promised Moses that an Angel should go before Israel, and yet withal threatened the subduction of his own presence (I will send an Angel before thee, but I will not go up in the midst of thee.) No marvel if Moses were no less troubled, than if they had been left destitute and without a guard; and that he ceased not his importunity, till he had won the gracious ingagement of the Almighty for his presence in that whole expedition: If thy presence go not with us, carry us not up hence. For what is the greatest Angel in Heaven without his Maker? O then let us eye God, and eye Jesus Christ in all, above all, and beyond all Angel-ministration. It was a sweet saying of one we mentioned before, Blessed be God for the Angels, as the Author of them and their protection; and blessed be the Angels under God, as the means used by him, for our protection, and other blessings: Let the Angels have their due, but let God in Christ, be our All in All; for as by him the Angels were created, so were they created for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist.

CHAP. IV. SECT. I.

Of the Ministration of Angels at our Death.

Thus far have we observed the Angels Ministration, even until death; And yet they have not done, for no sooner Death seizeth on the Elect, but they minister to them, and in some respects continue their Ministration till the Resurrection-day. In order to this, we shall first observe their Ministration, and secondly, our Duties.

1. For their Ministration, that known place is most obvious: And it came to pass, that the Beggar died, and was carried by the Angels into Abraham's bosom. And we read of Michael the Archangel, contending with the Devil about the body of Moses. Whence some observe, that Angels have a care not only of the Souls, but of the Bodies; yea, even of the dead bodies of the Saints.

SECT. II.
Of the manner of Angel-Ministration at that time.

FOR the manner of their Ministration, it relates both to bodies and souls.

1. For the bodies of the Faithful—

1. In the very Agony of Death they help and ease them. Thus was Christ refreshed in the midst of his Agony by an Angel. In like manner are they serviceable to the Saints; for if ordinary Physicians have their Electuaries, how much more can the Angels minister Cordials in their way.

2. After Death they guard the bodies of the Saints: The Devil would have abused the dead body of Moses, but Michael the Archangel contended with him, and rescued the body out of his hands: Satans malice is without end, and therefore hath he stirred his instruments to abuse the dead bodies of many Martyrs; he loves not that dust wherein the Holy Spirit dwelleth, but the Angels take care of every dust, so that not one shall be lost at the general day: Suppose them scattered up and down the world, yet are they but thrown and sown in the earth, that they may spring out again to a glorious incorruption; and in the mean time the Angels are a Guard, and have a regard to them in their sleep, till the morning of their Resurrection day.

2. For the Souls of the Faithful.—

1. The Angels, in the very Article and point of death, are vigilant over them, and oft-times inspire the parting Souls with a spirit of Divination, or Consolation, surpassing all humane knowledge. Thus Gregory could say, that sometimes Souls before their departure, came to the knowledge of things by Revelation, and sometimes by heavenly inspiration they penetrate with their spiritual eyes the very secrets of Heaven itself. Do we not see by experience, that when the Soul is drawing into a separate condition, it is in a great part delivered from bodily operations, and from the business of the outward senses, and from the commerce with external and worldly matters which puts it, as it were, into a kind of Sabbath, or state of rest? Now the more quiet the Soul is, and the more sequestered from earthly and outward things, the more apt it is to enjoy the benefit of internal light, and the better fitted for Spiritual Commerce with God himself, or with his Angels, which (saith one) may also lead us to understand something towards a reason, why men drawing near their departure, are observed to be disposed to Presage and Prophecy, to be full of comfort, as if heaven entered into them, before they could enter into Heaven.

2. The Angels stand ready to receive Souls separate from their bodies, into their imbraces. Macarius, a Learned Monk, could say, that immediately after death, the Quires of Angels received the Souls of Saints into their own side, into the pure world, and so brought them unto the Lord: Wicked men, when they die, shall have a black guard of Angels to receive them, and to hale them down to hell; but the Godly shall have a white guard, the same Angels that were said before, to bear them up in their hands, will then receive them into their Arms, and fall upon them with hugs, and kisses and imbraces.

3. Angels convey Souls in their hands, or on their wings, through the Air and middle Region, up into Heaven: We cannot go from earth to heaven, but we must needs pass through the Devils Territories, or through the air (for so is Satan called, The Prince of the power of the Air; that is to say, of the Airy Dominion, or Principedom) thither were Devils, with Satan their Prince, exil'd from heaven: whence the Jews have a Tradition, That all the space betwixt the Earth and the Firmament, is full of Troops of evil spirits: And it is the opinion of all Doctors (saith Hierome) that Devils have their mansions and residence in that space between the heaven and earth. And although some against this alledge those Texts,

2 Pet. 2. 4. For if God spared not the Angels which sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto Judgment.—

*Jude 6. And the Angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, be hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness, unto the judgment of the great day: Yet Learned Mede hath expounded the first Text thus, That he cast them down to bellward, or to this lower Orb, there to be reserved for chains of darkness at the day of Judgment: And the latter Text thus, That the evil Spirits which fell into this lower Region, were there to be reserved, as in a Prison, for everlasting chains of darkness at the judgment day. This is the Valley of the shadow of death, through which the Souls of Saints are to go to heaven; and because of the dangerous voyage, the Angels scour and clear the passage for them; they go with them, and fight for them, and with speed and triumph at last convey them to their Fathers house. Oh in what pomp and triumph did Lazarus's Soul ride on the wings of Angels! Never was Dives so honour'd in his life, as was Lazarus at his death; he might ride in some Chariot drawn with Horses, but Lazarus was, and the Souls of all believers shall be drawn at their deaths in Fiery Chariots; they shall be carried and conveyed to heaven by the Angels of God.*

4. The Angels welcome the Souls of Saints, in this Heavenly Progress, to their Heavenly Canaan: They are not only Porters to carry Souls, but they are Porters also to receive Souls, they stand ready at Heavens Gates, to set open the doors, and to bid them enter into their Masters Joy. In that Vision which John had of the great City, the holy Jerusalem, he saw twelve Gates, and at the Gates twelve Angels: Our English Annotations say, ^{12.} that these Angels are as Porters to receive men into Heaven: Howsoever Adam was kept out of Paradise by the Cherubims, yet Cherubims, and Seraphims, and all the Host of Heaven, are ready to receive the Saints into this glorious City: Oh what a joy will be in Heaven at the first admission of these Souls! what clasping, closing, kissing, imbracing, will be at this entrance betwixt Saints and Angels? Welcome, say the Angels; and welcome, say Arch-Angels; yea, the Principalities triumph, and Powers rejoyce, and Virtues shine, and Thrones glitter, and Cherubims give light, and Seraphims burn in love at the Souls arrival; what Congratulations are those amongst the Angels, that now the worst of their service is past, that now the poor Souls they had in charge, are by their good help escaped, and freed from all the miseries of the World, and snares of the Devil, and pains of Hell, and are now entered through the Gates into the City, where they and their charge shall live together, and love together, and sing together Jehovahs praise? Never had the Saints such welcome in this world, as at this day they have, or shall have by the Angels of God into the Kingdom of God.

5. The Angels present the Souls of Saints before Christ in his Throne, and there immediately they received their sentence. This must needs follow, the Angels cannot leave their charge, till they bring them to him, who gave them the charge of them; away therefore they fly to the Lamb in his Throne, and covering their faces with their wings, there they present with cheerfulness of spirit his redeemed ones, q. d. 'Glorious King of Saints, ^{Ecclef. 12.} hither we bring these Souls which thou gavest us in charge to keep, their dusts are indeed returned to earth as they were, but their Spirits must needs return to God who gave them; come, take them into thy bosom, and glory, they are spirits, yea spirits sublimated (as being born again of water, and of the spirit) and therefore assimilated to thy self; they are pure sparks, now freed and severed from their dust and ashes, and therefore they fly up, or they come up hither on our wings, unto thee the great Spirit, that element of Spirits; Oh that they may find union and coalition with thee! Oh that they may be with thee where thou art, and that they may for ever behold the glory which thou hast given them! To whom answer is given, as from the Throne, welcome, dear Souls, into this glorious Kingdom of mine, this is that inheritance I prepared for you before the foundation of the World: Why, you are they whom I created in my own Image, after my own Likeness; you are my Off-spring, created immediately by my hand, and in my Image, as to your very substance. It is true, I made all the World, and something I made out of nothing, as the Chaos was made, but my Image other Creatures did not bear; you only are spiritual substances; and vital-lights; you only have those luminous substances, or substantial stantial lights, from the gift of your Creation, which is a degree above the Angels, for they have not any light genial and inherent to their Essence, but are only Mirrours of the increated light: And though a taint came upon you by reason of sin, so that this Image wherein you were created, was exceedingly marred, yet by a work of Grace I renewed this Image; and thereupon, that original affinity to me, the God of Spirits, is not only restored, but endeared. And now this is my sentence, Well done good and faithful servants, you have been faithful over a few things, I will make you Ruler over many things, enter you into the joy of your Lord.

6. The Angels now begin to joyn in Comfort with the Souls of Saints, and to sing those Hallelujahs that never shall have end.

Revel. 4. 8, 9, 10, 11. And round about the Throne were four Beasts, full of eyes before and behind—and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come: And when these Beasts give glory and honour, and thanks to him that sits on the Throne, who liveth for ever and ever, the four and twenty Elders fall down before him that sits on the Throne, and worship him that liveth for ever and ever, and cast their Crowns before the Throne, saying, Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive Glory, and Honour, and Power, for thou hast created all things, and for thy sake they are, and were created.— And I heard the voice of many Angels round about the Throne; and the Beasts, and the Elders, and the number of the Angels was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice, Worshy is the Lamb that was slain to receive Power, and Riches, and Wisdom, and Strength, and Honour, and Glory, and Blessing.— After this I beheld, and lo a great multitude, which no man could number, of all Nations, and Kindreds, and People, and Tongues, stood before the Throne, and before the Lamb clothed with white Robes, and Palms in their hands, and cryed with a loud voice, saying, salvation to our God which sitteth upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb; and all the Angels stood round about the Throne, and about the Elders, and the four Beasts, and fell before the Throne on their faces, and worshipped God, saying, Amen; Blessing, and Glory, and Wisdom, and Thanksgiving, and Honour, and Power, and Might be unto our God, for ever and ever, Amen. Lo here, all Gods Saints of the Old and New Testament, called twenty four Elders, comprehended under the twelve Patriarchs, and twelve Apostles, and all the Ministers of Christ called four Beasts, or living weights, comprehended under the four Evangelists; and all the Angels of heaven, an innumerable company of Angels, all joyning in one consort; Oh what joys are here? what harmonies are these? what warbling of Saints and Angels; If Francis (as Bonaventure stories it) hearing but one Angel play upon an Harp, was so transported with the melody, that he thought himself in another world; how are the Souls of Saints transported, who no sooner arrive into glory, but they hear more than twelve Legions of Angels, accompanied with a numberless number of glorious Saints, all singing at once, Hallelujah;

Heb. 12. 21.

Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, praise, and honour, and glory, and power be unto God, and Christ, and the Spirit of Christ, for ever and ever?

SECT. III.

Of the Experiences of this truth.

I shall add some experiences of this blessed truth.

1. They help us and ease us in the pangs of death.

Mr. Hawks being intreated of his friends, that in the midst of the flame, wherein he must die, he would shew them some token, if he could, that the fire was not so intolerable, but a man might therein keep his mind quiet and patient; this he assented to and promised, that if the rage of the pain were tolerable, he would lift up his hands above his head, before he gave up the Ghost; At the stake, he mildly and patiently addressed himself to the fire, and after his fervent prayers made to God, fire was put to him; in it he continued long, and when his speech was taken away by the flame, his skin drawn altogether, and his fingers consumed with the fire, so that all men thought he had been dead; he being mindful of his promise, suddenly lift up his hands burning of a light fire, and with great joy clapped them three times together, whereupon there was such shouting amongst the people, especially by those that knew the meaning of it, as the like had scarce been heard; and so the blessed Martyr, presently sinking down into the fire, gave up his spirit unto God. Fox Martyr.

Mr. James Bainham, being at stake to be burnt, in the midst of the flames which had half consumed his arms and his legs, he spake these words: O ye Papists, behold ye look for miracles, and here now you may see a miracle, for in this fire I feel no more pain, then if I were in a bed of Down; yea, it is to me as a bed of Roses. Idem ibid.

There was in Mecklin one Andrew Thissen, who had three sons, whom he carefully brought up in the knowledge of the truth, two of them were condemned to the fire, and one of them feeling the violence of the flame, said, O what a small pain is this, compared with the glory to come! and so committing their spirits into the hands of God, they finished their Race.

Henry Voes and John Esch, being brought to the stake, for their testimony to the Protestant Religion, when the fire was kindled at their feet, one of them said, Metbinks you do strow Roses under my feet; and presently after they quietly slept in the Lord.

William Cowper, being ready to die, said; Now my Soul be glad, for at all parts of this Prison the Lord hath set to his Pioneers to loose thee; head, feet, milt, and liver, are fast, failing, yea, the middle strength of the whole body, the stomach is weakened long ago, arise, make ready, shake off thy fetters, mount up from the body, and go thy way.

2. They inspire our souls with divination, or comfort.

A child of a Christian Gentlewoman was so given to prayer from its infancy, that before it could well speak, it would use to get alone, and go to prayer; and as it grew, it was more frequent in prayer; at last, when the child was but five years old, and whipping of his top, on a sudden he flung away his scourge, stick, and top, and ran to his Mother, and with great joy said unto her: Mother, I go to God, will you go with me? She answered, My dear Child, how dost thou know thou shalt go to God? He answered, God hath told me so, for I love God, and God loves me: Mother will you go with me? She answered, Dear Child, I must go when God pleaseth; but why wilt thou not stay with me? The Child answered, I will not stay, I must go to God: And the Child did live about a month after, but never cared for play more, and then fell sick, always speaking, that he must go to God, and died in that sickness. White.

Charles Bridgeman prophesied his departure, and how strange a prophesie! not only that he must die, but fore-telling the very day: On the Lords day (said he) look to me; neither was that a word of course, which appeared by his often repetition, every day asking, till the day came indeed, What is Sunday come? At last the lookt-for day came on, and no sooner had the sun beautif'd that morning, but he fell into a trance: What (think you) meant his blessed soul, whilst the body it self used such an action? his eyes were fixed, his face chearful, his lips smiling, his hands and arms clasping in a bow, as if he would have received some blessed Angel, that there was at hand to receive his soul; but he comes to himself, and tells them about him; how he saw the sweetest boy that ever eyes beheld, and bids them be of good cheer, for he must presently go with him: One standing near, as now suspecting the time of his dissolution, bids him say, Lord into thy hands I commend my spirit: Yes, said he, Lord into thy hands I commend my spirit, which is thy due, for why thou hast redeemed it, O Lord my God most true. And presently after he died.

If a man, without all observation of physical Criticisms shall receive and give intelligence, many days before, what day or hour shall be his last, to what cause can we attribute these but to our attending Angels.

A gentlewoman, lying on her death-bed, Mr. Dod was sent for to her, who spake of heaven, and to fit her for that glory, she told him, that she felt the comforts of God, and that she could as hardly at that time forbear singing, as formerly in child-bearing she could forbear crying, and shortly after she died. Clark Mart.

Mr. Holland, the day before his death, calling for a Bible, continued his meditations and expositions on the eighth to the Romans, for the space of two hours, but on the sudden he said; O stay your reading, what brightness is this I see? and they said, it is the Sunshine: Nay, (saith he) it is my Saviours shine, now farewell world, welcome heaven, the day-star from on high hath visited my heart: I doubt not but you all see that light, but I feel a light within me, that none of you all can know: And then turning himself to the Minister who preached his Funeral Sermon, he said; Sir, I desire you would preach my Funeral Sermon, for this night I die, and speak this from me, that God deals familiarly with man; I feel his mercy, I see his Majesty, whether in the body or out of the body, I cannot tell, God he knoweth, but I see things that are unutterable. And being thus ravished in his spirit, he roamed towards heaven with a chearful look, and soft sweet voice, but what he said was not understood; at last raising himself on his bed, as Jacob did upon his staff, he ended his blessed life with these blessed words: O thou fiery Chariot, that camest down to fetch up Elijah, carry me to my happy hold; and all you blessed Angels that attend the soul of Lazarus, to bring it to heaven, bear me, O bear me into the bosom of my best beloved, Amen. Amen. Come Lord Jesus come quickly; and so he fell a sleep. Leigh.

Mistress Drake, a woman of great temptations, and desertions, at last growing sickly, and free from her desertions, she became incessant in her discourses of heaven and of the things of God. The Lords day before her death, she called all her children together, and with many admonitions and zealous instructions, and heavenly discourses, she spent much time that day with them; the Tuesday following Mr. Dod came, and spent some time in heavenly discourses, and then went to prayer; and suddenly as prayer was done, she brake forth in a wonderful manner in these expressions: *Oh, ho, ho, what's this? what's this? what's this? I am undone, undone, undone, I cannot endure it: O, O, O, let me be gone, let me be gone, I must be gone, I cannot tarry; Oh what shall I do? Loe, loe, the Angels are come, they wait, and stay for me: O dear Mother, why hold you me? I must be gone; O be it come, be it come, be it come; now you have it, you have it, you have it, (meaning that now they had the issue and fruits of all their prayers) why hold you me? let me be gone, my work is done: O call, call, call! where is my Crown, fetch me my Crown, bring me my white robes, quickly, quickly, quickly; why run ye not? the Angels stay: O it overcomes, overcomes, overcomes me: what shall I do? what shall I do? what shall I do? with innumerable such swift expressions as could not be remembered; and withal she heaved up still all the time with fixed eyes towards the house-top, as though she had seen some Vision, and would have flown away from them all. *Idem.

Robert Milner, on his deaths-bed, was so filled with joy for many days together, that he could not hold, but proclaimed the sweetness and goodness of God from day to day, he profest his joys were unutterable; he carried, as if he had been in Heaven afore-hand, only once talking with some Christians about him, he cryed out, Oh I have lost it! But presently he added, Oh I have it again, it is come, it is come! At last, drawing near his end, he sent for the Relator as formerly, and desired his prayers; and whilst he was in duty, commending his Soul unto God, he suddenly denly roused and stirred up his body, crying and saying aloud with much vehemency, The Lord, the Lord, merciful and gracious, abundant in goodness and truth, forgiving iniquity, transgressions, and sins. And in the very act and heat of his proclaiming the Name and Goodness, and Sweetness, and Mercy of God, he bowed the head, and gave up the Ghost.

Lord Henry Otto, being sentenced to death for Religion, he told the minister waiting on him, I was troubled, but now I feel a wonderful refreshing in my heart; adding, with his hands lift up to heaven, I give thee thanks, O merciful Father, who hast been pleased to fill me with so much comfort; O now I fear death no longer, I will die with joy. As he was going to the Scaffold, he said to the Minister, I am sure that Christ Jesus will meet my Soul with his Angels, that he may bring it to an Everlasting Marriage, where I shall drink of a new Cup, a Cup of Joy for ever. Upon the Scaffold, lifting up his eyes to heaven, he said: Behold I see the heavens open, pointing with his hand to the place, where others also observed a certain brightness which dazzled their eyes.— And so he received the stroke of the Sword. Clark's Mart. in Bohemia.— In like manner, Bandicon being on the Scaffold with his Father, fixing his eyes upon heaven, said to his Father: Behold I see the heavens open and millions of Angels ready to receive us: Father let us rejoice and be glad, for the joys of heaven are opened to us. Idem in his persecution of the Church in the Low-Countries.

3. They stand ready to receive us into their embraces, and convey us through the Air into Heaven.

Romula being trained up by Redempta, fell into a Palsie, that she was fain to keep her bed; but the sickness of her body being sanctified, and tending to her Souls health, on a certain night she hastily called for Redempta, saying, Come Mother, Come Mother, who straitways, with her other Disciple, rose up; and as they were about midnight by her Beds-side, suddenly there came a light from heaven which filled all the Room, and then they heard a noise, as it were, of many that came in; the door being shaken, and thrust open, as though there had been a great press of People: straight after that light followed a wonderful pleasant smell, which did greatly comfort their trembling hearts. Romula perceiving that they could not endure that abundance of Light, with sweet words comforted Redempta, that stood trembling by her Beds-side, saying, Be not afraid Mother, for I shall not die at this time. And when she had often repeated those words, by little and little the light vanished away, but yet the sweet smell remained still: Upon the fourth night after she called again for Redempta, who coming in with her other Disciple, as formerly, suddenly they heard two Quires, singing before the Door without, the one as the voices of men, that began the Psalms, and the other of women that answered; and whilst those heavenly Funerals were in celebrating before the Door, the Holy Soul departed this life, and was carried in that manner up into Heaven;

and the higher these two Quires did ascend; the less did they hear that Celestial Musick, until at length they heard no more: And then also that sweet and odoriferous smell vanished away. Greg. Dialog. l. 4.

Fructuosus, Bishop of Tarracoma in Spain, with his two Deacons, Augurinus and Eulogius, suffered Martyrdom; the cause of their punishment, was for professing of Christs Name; their Judge and Condemner was Emilianus, their Death was by Fire, into which they were all cast, with their Arms bound behind them; but their Bands and Manacles being loosed by the Fire, they lifted up their hands to Heaven, praising the Living God, to the great admiration of them that stood by; praying also, that the Element which seemed to fly from them, might work his full force upon them, and speedily dispatch them, which was after their request obtained. In the mean space, as they were in the fire, there was a certain Soldier in the house of Emilianus, who did see the Heavens above to open, and these foresaid Martyrs to enter into the same; which Soldier likewise shewed the sight the same time unto the Daughter of Emilianus the President, who beholding the same sight with the Soldier, was a present witness of the blessedness of them whom her cruel Father had condemned. Fox Acts and Monuments. l. Vol.

Philip de Mornay, L. of Plessis Marly, lying on his Deaths bed, in the midst of his prayers was heard to say, I fly, I fly to Heaven; the Angels of Heaven are carrying me into the bosom of my Saviour. Clark's life of Philip de Mornay.

Mrs. Stubbs on her Deaths bed, speaking to them that were by, she said; 'Oh would God you saw but what I see; for behold I see infinite millions of most glorious Angels stand about me with fiery Chariots ready to defend me: These holy Angels, these ministering Spirits, are appointed of God to carry my Soul into the Kingdom of Heaven, where I shall behold the Lord face to face, and shall see him, not with other, but with these same eyes. Life and Death of Mrs. Kath. Stubbs.

4. They welcome us into Heaven, and present us before Christ in his Throne.

Helmont in his Vision of the Soul, tells, that in the year 1610. after a long weariness of Contemplation, that he might acquire some gradual knowledge of his own mind, fallen by chance into a calm sleep, and rapt beyond the limits of reason, he seemed to be in an Hall sufficiently obscure; on his left hand was a Table, and on it a fair large Viol, wherein was a small quantity of Liquor, and a Voice from that Liquor spake unto him, Wilt thou honour and riches? At this unwonted Voice he became surprized with extreme amazement; and by and by, on his right hand, appeared a chink in the Wall, through which a light invaded his eyes with unwonted splendor, which made him wholly forgetful of the Liquor, Voice, and former Counsel. Presently he awakened, but his ancient intense desire of knowing the nature of his Soul, in which he had had panted incessantly for thirteen years together, constantly remained with him. At length, amidst the anxious afflictions of various fortunes, when yet he hoped a Sabbath of tranquility, he had in a Vision the sight of his Soul: It was a transcendent light, in the figure of a man, whose whole was homogeneous, actively discerning a substance Spiritual, Crystalline, and lucent by its own native splendor. And then it was revealed to him, that this light was the same which he had a glimpse of before: If the demand be, what becomes of this Light after its separation from the body? Dr. Charleton, who translated that Book of Helmont, gave it in this Poësie; Lumen de Lumine; Light of Light, and Light to Light. The Angels of light take these luminous substances, or substantial lights, and present them before that uncreated Light, the Lord of Glory: What the estate of this life is, and what it will be, is sung by Mr. Moor, in his præ-existency of the Soul:

Like to a light, fast lockt in Lanthorn dark,
Whereby by night our weary steps we guide
In slabby streets, and dirty channels mark,
Some weaker Rays through the black top do glide,
And flusher streams perhaps from horny side:
But when we've past the peril of the way,
Arriv'd at home, and laid that case aside,
The naked light how clearly doth it ray,
And spread its joyful beams as bright as Summers day?

Even so the Soul in this contracted state,
Confin'd to these strait instruments of sense,
More dull and narrowly doth operate;
At this hole hears, the sight may ray from thence,
Here tastes, there smells; but when she's gone from thence,
Like naked Lamp she is one shining sphere,
And round about has perfect cognizance:
What e're in her Horizon doth appear,
She is one Orb of Sense, all eye, all airy ear.

So nothing now in death is to be dread
Of him that wakes to truth and righteousness,
The Corps lye here, the Soul aloft is fled,
Unto the fount of perfect happiness;
As earth returns to earth, this light no less Returns to him that gave it, where it is Presented by the Angels with excess
Of strange melodious musick, joy, and bliss,
Oh then how doth that Great Light this Light greet and kiss!

5. They joy in sweet harmony of praises that never shall have end.

A certain man, called Servulus, drawing near his end, called for all such strangers as lodged in his house, desiring them to sing Hymns with him; and as he was singing, all on a sudden he cryed out aloud, saying, Do you not hear the great and wonderful Musick which is in Heaven? and even in that instant his Soul departed this mortal life. All that were present felt a most pleasant and fragrant smell, whereby they argued the verity of his saying; and that he and Angels were then in consort singing Hallelujahs together in Heaven. Gregor. Dialog. l. 4.

Another called Gutlake, drawing near his end, told Berteline his Scholar, the time is come, my dear Son, wherein I must pass to Christ: and lifting up his hands and eyes to heaven, he yielded up his Soul; when at the very instant Berteline saw, as it were a Fiery Tower reaching from Heaven down to the Earth, the brightness whereof was so wonderful, that the pale Sun might envy so great a lustre, whilst the Angels themselves were heard to sing melodious Tunes of Joy. Felix.

SECT. IV.

Of the Duties that concern us in this respect.

2. FOR the several Duties that concern us in this respect. —

1. Weigh not the pains, or pangs of Death, as if they were intolerable; but rather pitch we the Anchor of our hope on the firm ground of the Word of God, who hath promised in our weakness to perfect his strength — and not to suffer us to be tempted above that we are able to bear, — and to give his Angels a charge to bear us up in their hands. If the Lord lay one hand upon us, he puts another hand under us; yea, he chargeth his Angels to bear us up in their hands, and to allay our pains; it proves so to many, that the very thoughts of death more pains than the pangs of death; howsoever it may comfort us that the Angels stand by us, who either will help us in, or help us through those pangs of Death, that we be not swallowed up by them.

2. Take we no care of our bodies after death, save only to commit them to the Earth. Methinks the Angels might take off that carking care which many have: what if thy body be used as the Irish Papists used the bodies of dead Protestants, who cast some into ditches, and left others to be devoured of ravenous Beasts; yea, and digged up others that had been formerly buried, and then left them as dung on the face of the earth; yet the Angels see and take care that every, part, and piece, and member of thy body shall be preserved and kept safe unto that day of our Lord; the Earth in her Womb, or the Sea in her Gulphs, or Beasts in their Bellies, or whatever is the Grave of the Bodies of Saints, they are but as Gods close Chests, to keep in them a part of the Lords own Treasure; and when these Chests shall be opened (as they shall be in that great day of the Resurrection of Saints) then shall those bodies be brought out again by the holy Angels; and then shall they be as good, nay, better than ever they were before; for our vile body shall be made like the glorious body of our Lord and Saviour, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.

God and his Angels.

3. The nearer we draw to our end, let us draw nearer to God and his holy Angels. This is done by having a special care of our Souls, and by doing those duties that we owe both to God and his Angels. I list not to enter into Controversies; I deny that any Worship is to be given them, or that we ought to pray to them; yet (as the Contemplative Bishop said) this devotion we do gladly profess to owe to good Angels, that though we do not pray unto them, yet we do pray to God for the favour of their assistance and protection, and we do praise God for the protection and ministration that we have from them. And yet further, we come short of our duties to these blessed spirits, if we entertain not in our hearts an high and venerable conceit of their wonderful Majesty, Glory, and Greatness, and an awful acknowledgment, and reverential awe of their glorious presence; an holy joy, and confident assurance of their vigilant care; and lastly, a fear to do ought that might cause them to turn away their faces in dislike from us. All these dispositions are copulative; for certainly, if we have conceived so high an Opinion of their Excellency as we ought, we cannot but be bold upon their mutual interest, and be afraid to displease them by our heinous and abominable sins. The man that is going out of the World, and within a step or two of death, should methinks be very fearful of neglecting the Angels, or of grieving the Angels: Why alas, if they watch not over him now, if now they inspire not the Soul with blessed motions, and pious thoughts; if now they fail of their office, when there is more need of it then ever was, or ever will be; oh what will a poor soul do? Come, think me of this ere it be too late; yea, the nearer we draw to our end, the more tender let us be of our care and to respect these blessed Spirits; and who can tell, but as in the very Agony Christ was comforted by an Angel, so these ministering Spirits may at such a time minister comfort and consolation to our Souls? We have seen an Heaven of Joy entering into some, before they entered into the Joy of Heaven.

4. Make to our selves friends of the Angels, that when we die, they may receive us into everlasting habitations. Thus Christ advised us in respect of riches, make use of them by your beneficence to the poor, that they may pray for you, and make your advantage of being rewarded by God: this is the meaning of, make to your selves friends of the Mammon of unrighteousness. And if worldly Riches, that either in getting, using, or keeping, do administer matter of sin, (and therefore are called unrighteous Mammon) may be so improved, how much more may we improve the Angels, and gain by the Angels, if we make them our friends? But how should we make them our friends? I answer: 1. Let us resemble them in their purity, piety, innocency. Suitsableness of spirit and life, will breed friendship: if we are but pure in our measure as they are pure, they will delight to befriend us here, and to lay a foundation for a far more familiar acquaintance in Heaven hereafter. 2. Let us apply our selves to them, as desirous and willing of their friendship: let us converse with them as friends, assenting to what they say, and making up holy conclusions with them, and replies, which they will find ways to understand. O the blessed motions that they make continually to our Souls! Is it not their joy to gain us, and to win upon us? and to that purpose are they not suggesting this and that good thought to save our Souls? O then let us answer them in their motions, and receive whatever they administer.

5. Though we go through the Valley of the shadow of death, let us fear no evil, for the Angels will be with us. It is natural for us to fear death; and indeed, as it is the destruction of the creature, and parts Body and Soul; as it leads the Body through a dark, dirty way, the Grave; and as it leads the Soul through the Devils Territories, the Air, it is no wonder if Nature startle, and be afraid of it. But the Christian hath many considerations to allay his fear, and to cheer up his spirit: As 1. Death is but the separation of Soul and Body; it is not the annihilation of Soul and Body, but a fair shaking hands between two parting friends: it is as if the Wife should take leave of her Husband to go see her Father: to whom the Husband says, that he will follow after her, and be with her in the morning: Farewell my dear, says the Soul, I must go to my Father; and farewell my Dear, says the Body, I will come after thee, and be with thee in the Morning of the Resurrection.

It is true, they cannot part without many a tear, and kiss; but what needs fear? the morning comes as well as the night. 2. The Bodies passage through the Grave, though dark and dismal, yet it is safe and secure, and fit for rest and sleep: He shall enter into peace, they shall rest in their Beds: When a righteous man dies, or his body is buried, he is but gone to bed; and therefore we call those places where the dead are laid up and buried, Dormitories, or sleeping places; they sleep for a time; but they shall awake, and rise up again at the last day. 3. The Souls passage through the Air, though full of Devils, yet it is accompanied with a safe Convoy: there is a white Regiment of glorious Angels that will bring the Souls of Saints through all perils to Mount Zion, to the City of the Living God, Heb. 12: to the Heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable 22, 23, 24. company of Angels, to the General Assembly and Church of the first-born which are written in Heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect and to Jesus the Mediator of the New Covenant. Now can the Wife fear an Enemy, when the Husband hath sent a puissant Army to convey her safely to himself? How then should we fear the way, or fear Death, or Devils, when the Angels (who are stronger than all Enemies) have a charge to conduct us to the Bridegroom of our Souls? and they will not, cannot fail of what they have in charge: they are the Army of Heaven, the Saints own Guard, the Officers and Souldiers of the Lord of Hosts; and therefore they will be sure to perform their trust, we need not fear it.

6. Let us prepare and make ready for that glorious welcome which the Angels will give us into Glory: would you know how to prepare?

Luk. 16.9.

1. Procure their joy by your Conversion. Luk. 15. 10. There is joy in the presence of the Angels of God, over one sinner that repenteth. The Conversion of a sinner is the Gratulation of Angels; and if they joy at your Repentance, how much more will they joy to see you in Heaven with them. 2. Procure their love by the strictness and holiness of your lives; live like Angels; bring Soul and Body as near as may be into a spiritual frame; this is the way of Friends to procure welcomes here on Earth, if they will but maintain a familiarity and sympathy; and nearness; and likeness to one another in mind and manners. O this do you; and then you may expect Angels welcome in to that City of Glory. 3. Wait upon God with encouragement; that one day the Angels will present us to Christ in his Throne without spot and blameless. It is now our complaints. O the sinners of the are guilty; and oh wretched men that we are, who shall deliver us from this body of death; but the day is coming when we shall be freed from these complaints. As Christ's Ministers have a charge, and when they have done their work they will present to us Jesus Christ, 2 Cor. 11. 2. and as Christ himself hath a charge, and when he hath done his work, he will present us to himself, Judge 24. and to his Father. Colos. 1. 22. So the holy Angels have a charge also, and when they have done their work, they will present us to Jesus Christ; how? even as Ministers do, that I may present you as a chaste Virgin to Christ; or as Christ himself doth, that he might present to himself a glorious Church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy, and without blemish. So will the Angels do, Even present us faultless before the presence of his Glory with exceeding joy. Let us press on to Perfection even upon these hopes; that howsoever it is with us now, surely we shall be faultless; we shall be equal unto the Angels, equal in grace, and equal in glory; for to that end will they present us to Christ in his Throne, and accordingly will Christ pronounce his sentence; Enter you into the joy of your Lord.

8. Praise we God for his Mercy of Angel-ministration from first to last. This we must do in Heaven, only begin we this Tune and Ditty while we are on earth; and if we cannot do it as we would, let us call in Angels to join with us in blessing, praising and admiring God: This was David's wont, Praise ye the Lord, praise ye the Lord from the Heavens, praise ye him in the heights; praise ye him all his Angels; praise ye him all his Hosts. The Angels desire no better employment than such as this; they love to sing the Tune of the Gospel most, and therefore stir we up them, and stir we up our selves with them to be much in praises of our God. Surely he deserves a thousand thousand Hallelujahs, and that we should bless him upon a thousand stringed Instruments. There is fewel enough, the Lord kindle a great fire in every one of our hearts, to inflame them with the love of such a God as this is. It was the last speech of dying Chrysostom, Glory be to God from all creatures.

And if I should die this hour, I could wish my Soul in no better temper. Bless the Lord O my Soul, and all that is within me bless his holy Name. Bless the Lord, ye his Angels that excel in strength, that do his Commandments, bearing unto the voice of his Word. Bless the Lord, all ye his Hosts, ye Ministers of his that do his pleasure. Bless the Lord all his works, in all places of his dominion. Bless the Lord O my Soul, and all that is within me, at all times, and in all places, and in all seasons, and in all manner of peace and quietness.

CHAP. V. SECT. I. Of the Ministration of Angels at our Resurrection.

THE last period wherein the Angels minister to Saints, it is from the Resurrection to the glorification of their Souls and Bodies in Heaven. In this last as in all the former, I shall observe. 1. Their Ministration. 2. Our Duties.

1. For their Ministration, we may consult these Texts. And he shall send his Angels with the great sound of a Trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other. The Lord himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God. The Son of man shall send forth his Angels, and they shall gather out of the Kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity. So shall it be at the end of the World, the Angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just. Also I say unto you, whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man also confess before the Angels of God. And I will not blot his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his Angels.

SECT. II. Of the kind of Angel-ministration at that time.

FOR the kinds of their ministration at this time. 1. The Angels will summon all the Saints to appear before Jesus Christ, in his Judgment Seat. This is done by the sound of a trumpet, And he shall send his Angels with the great sound of a trumpet. The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God. What this trumpet is, I have discoursed elsewhere; and I take it to be metaphorical, viz. a sound formed in the air like the sound of a trumpet; and for the Archangel, it is not so limited to one, but that all the Archangels, and all the Angels of God are thereby understood. O the day, when all the Angels shall be be sent of Christ to bid all the world to appear before him! This is that voice on which Jerome so often meditated, whether I eat, or drink, or whatsoever I do, methinks I always hear that voice of the trumpet sounding in mine ears, Arise ye dead, and come to judgment. This is that voice of which Chrysostom said, O the terrible trumpet, that all Elements shall obey! it shall shake the world, rend the rocks, break the mountains, dissolve the bonds of death, burst down the gates of hell, and unite all spirits to their own bodies. This voice shall take from death all her spoils, and cause her to restore again all that she hath taken away from the World. In this ministration the Saints may rejoice; be it never so terrible to the wicked, it is nothing to them but an awaking out of sleep; as if the Angels should shout and say, awake and sing ye that dwell in the dust; for lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone, the time of the singing of birds is come; arise, arise ye Saints, and come away.

2. The Angels will gather all the Saints together to the Judgment seat of Christ. In this are involved these particulars.

1. That the Angels will collect the dust of all the bodies of the Saints. This all the

* Aquin. Schoolmen hold,  the collection of the dusts of the blessed is by the ministry of the blessed Angels.* They can move, and remove bodies as they please. As crabs and inferiour bodies are in order govern'd by those that are superiour, and more subtil; so are all bodies ruled and disposed of by Spirits indowed with life. † Augustine goeth further, and says, that irrational spirits are governed by rational, and rational creatures that transgress, are governed by rational creatures that are just.

* Greg. Gregory joins with him saying, invisible creatures do give motion and sense to carnal bodies which are visible: and so nothing is disposed of in this visible world, but by another creature which is invisible. Hence Aquinas † concludes, that in all things which corporally are done of God, he is pleased to use the ministry of Angels, and that therefore the gathering of the dust and the reparation of the bodies of all the Saints is only by the ministry of the Angels at the Resurrection day. Come Christians! keep faith and a good Conscience; though men prevail over your bodies to kill them, and so scatter the ashes of them all the world over, let never any uncomfortable damp of slavish fear vex your blessed hearts, be not you afraid of evil tidings or of destruction when it cometh; for the Angels have a care of every piece, and part, and particularly of your bodies; not one hair of your heads, not one atome of the substance of those bodies you bear about you shall be left in the grave, or in any part of the world, but it shall be gathered by Angels and brought together into one heap or lump.

† Aquin. † Aquinas concludes, that in all things which corporally are done of God, he is pleased to use the ministry of Angels, and that therefore the gathering of the dust and the reparation of the bodies of all the Saints is only by the ministry of the Angels at the Resurrection day. Come Christians! keep faith and a good Conscience; though men prevail over your bodies to kill them, and so scatter the ashes of them all the world over, let never any uncomfortable damp of slavish fear vex your blessed hearts, be not you afraid of evil tidings or of destruction when it cometh; for the Angels have a care of every piece, and part, and particularly of your bodies; not one hair of your heads, not one atome of the substance of those bodies you bear about you shall be left in the grave, or in any part of the world, but it shall be gathered by Angels and brought together into one heap or lump.

2. That the Angels will form and fashion, and organize those dusts so brought together, into perfect, compleat and solid bodies; this also is affirmed by Schoolmen: whatsoever appertains to the transmutation of bodies as to the condensation of some parts, God is pleased therein to use the ministry of Angels. Indeed the animation or enlivening of the body by the infusion of the Soul, is (as they say) immediately of God, without any operation of Angels; for as the Soul was immediately created of God, so must the Soul be again united to the body by the immediate hand of God himself, yet the collection, preparation, and reparation of our bodies are done by Angels. O the power of Angels! This eye shall be put to this head, and this hand to this arm, and this arm to this body, and so every part to part, and member to member by the ministration of Angels: What need we care if all these be eaten of Worms, of Serpents, or other Creatures, yea of Canibals, or Savage men? Certainly they must all be restored again; I shall not want this eye, this hand, this finger, this joint, this nail on my fingers end at the Resurrection day. The hand of the Lord was upon me (said Ezekiel) and carried me out in the spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the Valley, which was full of bones, and he caused me to pass by them round about, and behold there were very many in the open Valley, and lo they were very dry. And he said unto me, son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord God thou knowest.—Then the Lord bad him prophesie, and as he prophesied there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone; and then the sinews of the flesh came upon them, and the skin covered them above, but there was no breath in them, and then the Lord bad him prophesie unto the Wind, Come from the four Winds, O breath, and breath upon these slain that they may live. Why thus will it be at the Resurrection-day; the Angels Ministry will be like the Prophets Prophecy; they will give a shout, and collect the Bones, and then put them together, bone to his bone, and then cover them with sinews, and flesh, and skin; only the breath or Soul must be infused immediately by God himself, and then shall the Saints live, and stand upon their feet, as an exceeding great Army.

3. That the Angels will bring the Saints thus raised, organized, and quickned to Christs Judgment Seat. The Apostle speaks home to this, The dead in Christ shall rise first, and then we which are alive, and remain shall be caught up together with them in the Clouds, to meet the Lord in the Air. A willing welcome-force is here upon the Saints to transfer them, or carry them into the Air, where Christ is in his Throne: Now how shall this be done? Why they shall be caught up, saith the Apostle: By whom? Some think by the Clouds as if the Clouds should first descend, and then enwrap the Saints, and so serve as Chariots to carry them up to Christ in the air; but I would rather think by Angels; as if the Apostle should say, all the Saints at the last day, both those raised, and those changed, shall be caught up by the holy Angels into the Clouds to meet the Lord in the Air: And is not this agreeable to the words of Christ, that Angels shall gather together his Elect? Whither together? blessedest blestest meeting that ever was; there shall Christ meet with his Saints, and never part again; indeed here sometimes we meet, and anon we part; now he comes, and gives us the kisses of his mouth, but ere while he is gone, and we cry after him, O where is he whom my Soul loveth, I charge you O Daughters of Jerusalem, if you find my beloved, that you tell him that I am sick of love; but when the Angels shall bring us together at this day, we shall never part more; for we shall meet the Lord in the Air, and so shall we be for ever with the Lord.

4. The Angels will separate the good and bad, the Sheep and Goats. They shall gather out of the Kingdom all things that offend, and them which do Iniquity—They shall sever the wicked from amongst the just. This separation is sometimes given to Christ, he shall separate them one from another, as a Shepherd divideth his Sheep from the Goats, and he shall set his Sheep on the right hand, but the Goats on the left. Christ shall do it originally, but the Angels ministerially, derivatively, and by way of execution; Christ commands it, and the Angels accomplish it. O the joy, and O the horror of this particular; I, horror to the wicked, but O what joy will it be to the Saints to meet together, and to see all the wicked in the World thrust out of their Society, they were before Thorns in their sides, and pricks in their eyes; many a tear did they cost the Saints to see their wickedness, Rivers of tears run down mine eyes, because they keep not thy Laws; many a heart-grieving, heart-vexing thought hath pierc'd the Saints to know their sinfulness; just Lot was vexed with the filthy Conversation of the wicked. Ah poor man, it was an Hell to him to dwell with Sodomites, for that righteous man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous Soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds. Well, but now they shall never grieve them, trouble them, vex them any more; the Angels will not only deliver just Lot out of his ill neighbourhood for a time, but they will free all the righteous from all the unrighteous in the World for ever and ever: Not one Sodomite, nor one impenitent sinner shall stand with Christ's Sheep on his blessed right-hand; never more shall the Saints cry out, and say, woe is us, that we are constrained to dwell with Mesek, and to have our Habitations amongst the Tents of Kedar; but rather shall they go on with the Psalmist, and say as in the next verse, our Souls have long dwelt with them that hate peace, and holiness, but now we shall never dwell with them any more. This will be the Angels work at the last day, they will gather out of the Kingdom all things that offend, all scandalous wretches, and vile persons, all froward hearts, and privy slanderers; all that have high looks, and proud hearts, all that David said, he would throw out of his house, and from the City of the Lord, will they also throw out of the Kingdom of God, and of Jesus Christ, that they molest not Christ's Sheep any longer.

4. The Angels will be spectators, admirers, witnesses, approvers of the mystery of godliness in the sentence of Christ on his Saints. This piece or part of Christ's Mediation in absolving Saints, is amongst the rest of those great Mysteries of godliness seen of Angels. 1 Tim. 3. 16. Seen? How seen? It is not a bare light, but such a sight as astonisheth the understanding, and takes up the heart of blessed Angels, which things the Angels desire to look into; their whole spirits are taken up with it, they cannot look off it, but stand, and view, and admire, and leap for joy to see the passages; they are rapt up above themselves, to hear the blessed sentence coming out of Christ his Mouth, Come ye blessed of my Father; not is that all, but as they see, so they witness, and approve the acts and passages of Christ in rewarding Saints, I will confess them (saith Christ) before the Angels of God; that is, at the last day I will take them for mine, I will confess them to belong to me, I will pronounce on them the sentence of Absolution, I will do to them as if a King should come in company, and choose out one, and salute him familiarly, and call him by his name, and take him by the hand, and confess him before all to be his friend; so will I confess the Saints to be my Friends, my Jewels, my peculiar Treasure, my Temple, and Tabernacle, where I place my name, the dearly beloved of my Soul, children of the Kingdom, yea the Kingdom of Heaven it self; or it more honour can be given them, I will confess them to be my Garden, my Vineyard, my Spouse, my second self, one with me, as I and my Father are one: And be ye witnesses of this my Sentence, O ye Angels! I would have you to take notice of it, to see it, behold it, hear it, admire at it, and to witness with what equity and proportion I deal with Saints, they confessed me before men, I confess them before Angels; they are not ashamed of me, nor of my name before Kings and Princes, and therefore now I am not ashamed of them, nor of their name; so far am I from blotting their name out of the Book of Life, that now I confess their name before my Father, and before his Angels! Witness it O ye Angels, yea and approve of it, consent to my sentence, acknowledge my goodness, justice, mercy in saving these Souls, by saying Amen, and bidding them welcome into Heaven, and then you have done with your Ministration.

At this last passage the Angels receive that augmentation of joy, of which some Divines have written. Hall and Andrews, Stars of great magnitude in this Orb of the English Church, have both supposed, that Angels themselves shall receive an augmentation of happiness at the day of the last Judgment, when they shall be freed from all their charge, and employments. As rest is the end of all motion, so the perfection of blessedness consists in rest, and therefore the Angels being now discharged of that charge which they took at the beginning, they have no more to do, but in one Quire to join with the Saints, and everlastingly to sing Hallelujah, and again Hallelujah, and Amen Hallelujah.

SECT. III.

Of the Duties that concern us in this respect.

1. FOR the Duties that concern us in this respect—

Rev. 4. 1. I. Meditate as if you heard the Angels founding their Trumpets, and saying, Come out of your Graves, and appear before Jesus Christ your Judge. Surely these ministering Spirits, these especial Messengers, these New-Covenant-officers that now wait on us, and as tender Nurses will ere long lay us asleep in the bed of the grave, will in the morning of the Resurrection awake us out of sleep, and say to us as the Angels to John, Come up hither. And is not this worthy our Morning thoughts, or Evening thoughts, or Mid-night thoughts? When we are awake in the night, and compass'd with darkness, and all is quiet, and still, suppose then we heard the sound of Angels, shouting in the Air; Now Souls come to your Sentence, either of eternal weal, or eternal woe: Methinks this meditation should work, and make every one of us say, Lord if it were thus, what would become of my Soul? in what case were I? in what condition were I, if the Angel now sounded? was my repentance such when I went to bed, as that now I dare look the Judge in the face? was my faith so active, or is it now so strong, that I can with confidence go to Christ, and say, speak Lord, speak out the doom, that thou intendest to pass upon my Soul, for I trust in thee; if so, it is well; the Lord keeps us continually in such a prepared frame; but if it be otherwise, O let us think of it, and prepare for it; let us not put off repentance from day to day, but, let the instant or present moment be the time of turning from all sin to God, and let us become now, even now, as we would wish to be then, when the Lord himself shall descend from Heaven, with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God. It were a blessed meditation that would work us into such a frame; now the Lord came in, and both set us at it, and appear to us in it.

1 Thess. 4. 16. 2. Cheer up ye Saints, arise, shine, for Isa. 60. 1. your light is coming and the glory of the Lord will rise upon you; who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves of their windows? No sooner are the summons given, but all the Saints shall be gathered together from the four winds, from the one end of Heaven to another. Oh what a sight will it be to see the Eastern Saints, and Western Saints, and Northern Saints, and Southern Saints, flying on the wings of Angels, to Christ on his Throne! Why here is matter of joy: If our evidences are but clear, if we are but assured that he that is our Judge, hath shed his blood for us, and given himself for us, I wonder that we are not more spiritually cheerful. Come, though the World scatter us, persecute us, drives us to holes and hills, yet we shall meet together at the great Marriage-supper of the Lamb, and there will be joy indeed; the very fore-thoughts of this should methinks fill our hearts with joys unspeakable, and full of glory; let us be glad, and rejoice, for the marriage of Revel. 19. the Lamb is come, and his Wife hath made her self ready.—Write, blessed are they which are called unto the Marriage-Supper of the Lamb, these are the true sayings of God. Blessed sayings! in which; if we open the eye of Faith, we may see matter of truest joy, and spiritual ravishment: we are all invited if we are but Saints, to the Marriage-Supper of the Lamb, Come and gather your selves together unto the Supper of the great God: if you say, how should we come, that must die, and lie buried in Graves, till we rot, and return to our first Principles? I answer, these Remora's will not, cannot hinder; for our very dusts shall be carefully gathered by the hands of Angels; and when they are gathered and brought together, they shall be put into form and fashion, far better, and perfecter than now they are, by the ministration of Angels; and when they are formed, and fashioned, and revived, and spiritualized, we shall be caught up by the Angels into the Cloud to meet the Lord in the Air, thus far will the Angels minister to us, and therefore, what should hinder but that we must all meet him, and feast with him? And if so, how merry should we be in the mean time, who are admitted, and envited to this gracious and glorious Feast? Away, away, all horrors of guiltiness, false fears, slavish terrours, damps, and droopings! Christians! we must part, and for a time lie and sleep in solitude and rottenness, but we shall meet again; there will be such a Congregation of Saints at the last day, as never was since the Worlds Creation, and as we hope to be a part of that general Assembly, and Church of the first-born which are written in Heaven, let us now rejoice in the Lord, and again rejoice.

3. Comply with the Angels in separating your selves from the society of the wicked. I know the command, let both grow together until the harvest; the Angels do not, nor must they separate the Wheat and Tares before the last day, but then will God say to his Reapers, gather ye together first the Tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them, but gather the Wheat into my Barn. Come then, and do you now on your part that which the Angels will do on their part at the last day. You will say, what would I have you Separatists? I answer, not in Opinions, or Heterodox Doctrines, but in Conversation; my meaning is, I would not have you to run with the World into the same excess of Riot; If any man that is called a Brother be a Fornicator, or Covetous, or an Idolater, or a Railer, or a Drunkard, or Extortioner, I would have you with such an one not to keep company, no, not to eat. And yet that I be not mistaken, some kind of Society, or Familiarity, I allow withal; there is a society, more common and cold, and general, as in trading, bargaining buying, selling, &c. And this Christians must needs exercise with the men of this World, except they will go out of the World: But there is a Society more special, dear, and intimate, and in this respect I have written to you (saith the Apostle) not to keep company with Fornicators; (i. e.) not to have any ordinary, voluntarily, friendly, dear, and intimate society with them. Alas! who in his right wits would run upon a man, whom he sees hath the Plague-fore running upon him? And what Christian in his right mind spiritually, having any fear of God in his heart, life in his Soul, or tenderness in his Conscience, would delightfully thrust himself into the company of wicked men? It was writ of Jesus Christ, that he was holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners. And such a separatist was David, I have not sate with vain persons, neither will I go in with dissemblers; I have hated the Congregation of evil doers, and will not sit with the wicked. And indeed to think of the Angels work at the last day, it were enough to make us comply, and to prepare for such a work all the days of our life. Oh what should we do with them in our hearts, and dearest thoughts, who shall have no better Companions hereafter than Devils and the damned!

Forni-

Heb. 7. 26.

Psal. 26.

4. 5.

4. Confess Christ before men, that he may confess you the last day before the Angels of God; you may think you are in prosperity, and flourish, you fear not Martyrdom, there is not the least occasion of the Confession of Christ, his Truth, and Gospel unto death, or danger, as the word imports: And therefore this last advice is not seasonable. But I answer. 1. We see the boldness of our common Adversaries: Error on all hands grows insolent, and proud, and daring; so that now God calls to us from Heaven Who is on my side? who? 2. We know not how soon occasion may be both for Confession and Martyrdom; * One observes, that usually before any great Persecution beset the Church, the holy men of those times observed, that there was some great decay of Zeal, and of the power of godliness, or some mutual Contentions and Quarrels amongst the People of God: Or some such sin or other that provoked God against them; and then as the Shepherd sets his Dog upon the Sheep, when they go atrain, to bring them in; so God lets loose wicked Persecutors upon his own Children, to bring them in unto himself. And he applies this to our selves. † It is true (saith † Epistle before Martyrdom of the Church of England) through Gods mercy, we yet enjoy the Gospel of Peace, and the Peace of the Gospel, but how short a time it may continue no man knows.—This we know, that Schisms, Heresies, and Blasphemies never abounded more in the Church of England than at this day, that the spirit of division never raged more, that prophaneity never more outshined the glorious Sunshine of the Gospel, than at this day, and surely these are the Forerunners of Judgment. O then let us learn this Lesson, as we would have comfort at the last day! Come what will come, let us confess him before men; let no Creature make us to deny the Lord Jesus Christ; if his truth call for it, let us stand it out against all his Enemies, yea even against the Gates of Hell, and Devil and all. And then we may comfortably hope, that when Christ shall come in the Clouds with his mighty Angels, he will confess us, and pronounce a blessed Sentence upon us before God, Angels and Men, Amen, even so be it. Amen, and Amen.

l. 3. c. 14.

IT is Zanchius's saying, * Doctrina de officiis angelorum, deque illorum ministerio ultissima est: Pity it is then that such a point of Religion should be buried in Oblivion, and be made no use of. I cannot say that in this whole Treatise there is not the least error, for we know but in part, and the prophecies but in part, yet this I can say, that I have not purposely, wilfully, or heartily erred, Errare possum, hereticus non ero. It may be, though I deliver nothing but truth, I cannot satisfy all, and therefore I have desired some of my Godly and learned Brethren to object what they can; and wherein they are not satisfied, to put in their exceptions against any part or piece in this Treatise. And one hath done me that honour to send me his Objections: It may please God that by this means truth may shine clearer, and therefore I shall here by way of Appendix lay down his Objections, and my Answers, and so refer both to the Reader, desiring Gods Blessing may be on all.

The Objection of a dear Friend answered.

Object.

IN Chap. 6. Sect. 3. 2^d Reason in respect of Angels, you cite 1 Tim. 3. 16. Seen of Angels (i. e.) in my eye Jesus Christ was seen of Angels, testified unto by their visible appearances, and services to him at his Nativity, in his Passion, at his Resurrection, and his Ascension; and not the mystery of Christ, and Godliness so properly referred to in this place.

Answer.

Aretius tells us on that Text (give me leave to bring in all the Authors in their own Language) * Id quidem verum est secundum historiam, non in naturae, ieiunio, passionis, resurrectionis, ascensionis semper adsunt angeli spectatores; sed mihi videtur de maiori quadam visione loqui, quae se contra angelorum opinionem, Christum mirabili ratione duas naturas unitis in una persona, quod nec homines, nec angeli satis explicare possunt. Et ob id summo stupore videmus, et viderunt id in nativitate, et in Christi historia, plenius tamen in ascensione stupendum mysterium Christi hominem ad dexteram Dei Patris ascendere, nec mysteria sunt. And is not this the Scope of the Text? Is not this a main part of the great mystery of Godliness, that he who is the true God, manifested in the flesh, was seen of Angels?

* Aret. in 1 Tim. 3. 16.

In the second Reason in respect of the Saints, upon Job. 12. 31. you say, Christ hath bound the Devil by his Angels: Bound the Devils are, but by what Chains we know not, it may be by the good Angels ministry, but can we say peremptorily it is so?

Learned Zanchius saith thus, * Per angelos bonos nunc detinentur demones, ne mala hominibus inferant, ut vere dixerit Christus, nunc princeps mundi ejicietur foras. — Et ubique in scripturis legimus eadē demones semper fuisse victos ab Angelis bonis, si quando narratur inter ipsos pugnatum fuisse; ut in Daniel, & in Apocalyp. legitur, & Thobi. 8. 3. dicitur Angelus Thobie demonem vinculis constrinxisse.

* Zanch. de Creatione,
l. 3. c. 14. &
c. 18.

In Sect. 4. you say, the good Angels by their general charge save wicked men alive; it may seem strange, unless it were any where said, that God used them to this purpose; who do they save from them? Not from Gods stroke; and is it from the Devils? They do him service; and however Gods restraint on the Devils from any such Cruelty may be sufficient.

Object.

How? Angels save the wicked from Gods stroke; No, but from the Devils; nor crosseth this Gods restraint, but rather subserves it that Devils would kill; see 1 Pet. 5. 8. ambulat ut leo, querens quem devoraret. Leo sanguine delectatur, ita diabolus non contentus est fortunis & honoribus hominem exuisse, sanguinem ipsum appetit: And thus God permitting it, he dealt with Job's Servants and Children. Hence Zanchy tells us * eum diaboli hostes nostri sint capitales, & nos circumstant, nisi Angeli boni ex mandato Dei, & pro suo erga nos amore, nos adversus illos tuerentur, diaboli irruerent in nos.

In Sect. 5. Nothing is said by you, but what you quote Bishop Hall to have said the same; yet all those instances are of what God did extraordinarily by his Angels: They were all Miracles, or next door to them. And though we may thus far take comfort from what God did by Angels to them of old, that he will do for his Servants what is good for them in the like cases; yet whether he will do it this way, viz. by an Angel, we cannot say, unless the Angel appear as sensible for us, as he did for them; whether had the Saints of God failed or no, if they had looked at their deliverances, to be wrought by the ministry of Angels, unless by special sensible manifestations it had been made known unto them.

Object.

This

Answ.

This Objection hath in it the substance of most that follows, and therefore give me leave to enlarge. 1. In that you grant I say nothing, but what Bishop Hall hath said before me, this clears me of the imputation of Novelty; all that knew him, could not but know that he was free from curiosity, or inordinate desires of novelty in matters of Religion. 2. But all his instances (you say) are of what God did extraordinarily by his Angels; they were all Miracles or next door to them: And another joins with you, saying, That several of the Texts brought for the proofs of particulars, are from the Apparitions of Angels to particular persons, which was extraordinary, and cannot prove that such a ministration of them is now ordinary. That the Angels can work Miracles, unless as Gods instruments, I deny, nor are any of the instances of that nature, as if any miracle were done by them of their own natural power: indeed they do miranda, but not miracula: They do such things as you call next door to Miracles, or wonderful things.

Bucan.
loc. com. de Angelis.

* Possunt naturali virtute in res corporeas quicquid corporibus à natura contingere potest, non tamen miracula efficere, nisi quatenus Deus illorum ministerio in edendis miraculis uti solet. But (say you) if they were not miracles, yet were they extraordinary. It is true, in respect of us we judge them so, because they are above our ordinary actions; but not in respect of them;

Zanchibid. l. 3. c. 18. Nam quicquid Angelus sua propria facit virtute, illud fit ex ordine, & non supra ordinem totius nature create; it is ordinary with them to work above our power, or the power of any other Creature; and hereby we may know, when such or such events run in our wonted natural course, and when the Angels, or Spirits are actors in them. The manner of their operations (saith a judicious one) and the occasions and effects of them shall soon descry them to a judicious eye. But those Scriptures speak (as it is objected) of the Apparition of Angels, which was extraordinary, and prove not that such a ministration of them is now ordinary.

B. Hall on Angels.

You may call (if you please) the Apparitions of Angels extraordinary, but not their workings; or if extraordinary in respect of us, and our power, yet not in respect of them and their power. I perceive throughout your Objections, you are much on their extraordinariness; and that such things as we affirm now they do, are not to be ascribed (as you say) ordinarily to their ministry; I shall therefore in a few words insist on their ordinary power.

In Scripture they are called mighty, & Their. 1. 7. strong. Rev. 5. 2. and so excel in strength, Psal. 103. 20. and this their power they exercise and put forth, either immediately by themselves, or mediately by natural agents, as they are moved by them; first for their immediate workings, they can ordinarily interfect, & loco movere; unus Angelus totum fere Sennacharibi exercitum interfecit, & reliquos in fugam verterit; & Petrum & reliquos Apostolos à carcere efluxit; & Philippum à loco in locum transtulerit. Immediate hec, & alia similia ab Angelis facta sunt, & fieri possunt. Secondly, for their mediate power, they can ordinarily generare hominem, aut aliud animal; non per se generatio enim fit à simili specie; at vero possunt in animali uno vim gignendi excitare, & in altero vim concipiendi, & ea simul ut coeant, efficere; atque ita per hæc animalia à se mota; & ad generationem preparata, animal aliud generare. But that which is more to our purpose; their ordinary power towards men, either refers to their bodies or to their senses external and internal: Or to their Soul. First their bodies, they have the same power on them, as on other Animals. Secondly, for their external senses they can easily affect them, Ut cum oculos Sodomitarum perstrinxerant, ut non potuerint ostium domus Loti cernere; ita oculos Syroorum; & excitavit strepitum in castris; & hujusmodi alia per multa extant exempla; and for the internal senses they can easily move them; Constat à scripturis, Angelos sæpe apparuisse patribus in somnis, & multa illis ostendisse & revelasse; sic Matth. 2. Apparuit Angelus in somnis ipsi Josepho, &c. Thirdly, for their Souls; suo modo in nostras tum mentes, tum voluntates agere dicantur; dicitur suo modo, quia non possunt angeli mentem ipsam illustrare, aut voluntatem efficaciter flectere, quod est Spiritus Sancti proprium, sed tanquam Spiritus Sancti instrumenta, excitare verbi auditi phantasmata, veritatem menti proponere, & eam commonefacere, ut ei assentiatur; & ad bonam aliquod voluntatem nostram, instar consiliatorum, suadendo, & interne quasi loquendo & agendo, modo spirituali instigare. Sic Heb. 1. 14. dicitur eos esse administratores Spiritus in ministerium missos, &c. Quibus obsecro actionibus salutem nobis administrant? Nam tantum externis, quæ corpora dumtaxat concernant? An non potius actionibus, quæ in ipsas quoque mentes nostras penetrent. Et David ait, Qui facit Angelos suos spiritus, & ministros suos flammam ignis: si sicut flamma ignis; flamma duplex est actio, una illuminare, altera calefacere, & accendere; annon igitur Prophetæ indicat Angelorum ergo nos actiones, & intellectu illuminando, & in voluntate ad amorem Dei accendenda versare? Neque enim ratione corporum nostrorum, sed animorum potius istis nominibus appellantur. Here is a Scheme of their ordinary power, given in by the Lord. And when we read of these, or of an such things in the Scripture, surely those Scriptures prove that such things were done then by Angels, ordinarily, as on their part: And that now they may be done in ordinary as well as then. Will you say, they were done then, but not now? Or what was done then, is not now to our purpose, or for our present learning? The Apostle saith otherwise, Now all these things happened unto them for Examples; and they are written for our Admonition, upon whom the ends of the World are come; for whatsoever things are written afore time, were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope. On this Text, saith Zanchibid. hec etiam omnia quæ de officiis Angelorum in scripturis traduntur, ad nostram maxime pertineant consolationem. It is worthily questioned by Mr. Mede, Are his instructions in the Gospel worthy of Angels? or is the nature of man above the Law? Or have the Angels, since the nature of man, Jesus Christ our Lord, became that best and

King gotten an exemption from this service? Surely not; to the same purpose saith the Author above cited, were the Rudiments of the Law worthy of an attendance of Angels, and are the Churches of the Gospel destitute of so glorious a retinue? Is the nature of man made worse, since the Incarnation of the Son of God, or have the Angels purchased an exemption from their ministry, since Christ became our Brother in the flesh? We have little reason to think so; my Text saith, are they not all ministering Spirits? Truly they are, as well as were; and so they will be to the end of the World. Indeed now are not such Apparitions, as formerly were. * In V. T.

pueri erant, ideo externis apparitionibus Angelorum egebant ad sui consolationem. Besides a greater measure of the Spirits being now given, God would have us now converse with the Spirit, and these Spirits in a more visible way; and besides we have Faith now enabling us to converse with the Angels in a way more spiritual: Which made Mr. Byfield say, * It is sure that the Angels are always in Garrison for the Elect, pitching their Tents round about them that fear God; that which Elisha and his man saw with bodily eyes, every believer may be assured of by Faith. Their Appearings are ceased? saith † Mr. Lawrence? but not their workings, though their Converse be not so sensible, yet it is as real. — This remains a sure truth, that they are of mighty use to us, and the things communicated to our inward man, is ordinarily the Administration of Angels.

3. You grant, that we may thus far take comfort what God did by Angels to them of old, that he will do for his Servants what is good for them in the like cases, yet whether he will do it in this way, viz. by an Angel, we cannot say, unless the Angel appears as sensibly for us as he did for them. And are you not in this too much led by sense? Faith is the evidence of things not seen, and not of things visible. If God do such, or the like things for his Servants good, either he doth it immediately or mediately; for my part (saith Mr. Baxter) I believe, that Gods works on the World, are usually by instruments, and not immediate; and that good Angels are his instruments in conveying his mercies, both to Soul and Body; but will you not believe, except you see the print of the Nails? Nimium profecto sumus Thomiste. Joh. 20. nisi videro, nisi digitum immisero, nisi obversetur sensibus, ut palpem, & amplexibus teneam; at quia non vides animam tuam, aut alterius, dubitabis te esse animatum? Aut quia turbantem non conspexerunt Angelum aquam Bebesde, negarent Judei piscinam motam fuisse vel turbatam? Suppose a good work done (though no miracle neither) above the power of a man, or any visible secondary cause, there is * one can tell you, that this carries its own evidence without dispute, that if it be not (as we say) of nature, it must needs be of an higher efficiency, viz. of Angels. * And another saith as much, that those instances usually alledged in the old and new Testament, are patterns and presidents, by which we may know what to expect; their tutelage then was more visible, and sensible, because the Church newly planted, needed to be confirmed, but God would have us live by Faith, and expect all our supports in a more spiritual way; though we have not visible Apparitions, yet we have real experiments of this succour. The evil Angels appear not, yet we doubt not of the hurt done by them. Oh how sad is it that we should believe the evil Angels hurt us, though they appear not sensibly against us; and yet we will not believe the good Angels help us, without sensible, or visible Apparitions thereof.

4. You ask, whether had the Saints of God failed or no: if they had looked at their Deliverances to be wrought by the ministry of Angels, unless by some sensible manifestation it had been made known unto them? I answer no, they had not failed; but rather if they had been so spiritual, and had believed as we do, they would have had more in them of the Gospel-spirit, Blessed are they that have not seen, Joh. 20. 29. and yet have believed.

In Sect. 8. 2^d Motive. The Angels are an Ordinance ever present; the proofs make out this, that no place can shut us so in, but God can send his Angels in unto us; but that they are with us unless specially sent, those places in the Acts seem not to prove; they came in extraordinarily, and were owned to do it, because seen to do it.

You say, the Proofs make out, that no place can shut us so in, but God can send his Angels in unto us, which is enough to prove, that men may take from us our Bibles, Teachers, Pastors, or they may imprison us where we cannot enjoy them, but they cannot take from us the Holy Angels. But you say, they are not with us, unless especially sent, and we suppose them sent: But (say you) when sent to the Apostles, they came in extraordinarily, and were owned to do it, because seen to do it; that they came in extraordinarily, was not from their presence, or mission, but (if any thing was extraordinary) it was from the Apparition, Fulgor, and Light that shined in the Prison, and from their opening the Prison doors, and bringing them forth, and speaking audibly, Go, &c. Arise up quickly, &c. And from these manifestations the Angels are owned; but if there had been none of these Apparitions, would you have denied Angel-presence? Cannot the Angels be with us, but they must sensibly appear to us? Such an opinion is a step to Sadducism. And therefore our worthies say otherwise; † Angeli quorum curam ex Dei mandato gerunt, eos nunquam penitus omnino officii genere deserunt. And O ye blessed Spirits (saith * another) ye are ever by me, ever with me, ever about me; I do as good as see you, for I know you to be here, I reverence your glorious persons, I bless God for you, I walk awfully, because I am ever in your eyes, I walk confidently because I am ever in your hands. If you alledge that of Acts 12. 10. That when the Iron gate was opened, and one street passed, the Angel forthwith departed from Peter; another answers, That the departing of the Angel, was only his disappearing, or laying down that bodily shape that was assumed; so Christ is said to leave, and not to leave the World, we affirm therefore that good Angels are our constant Associates till Death; though their influence may be Object. In Motive 3. That they improve other Ordinances. 1. In Religious Services.] The instances still are extraordinary: Acts 10. Luke 1. they came on peculiar messages and such as seldom any now receive; to say that such a seasonable, suitable thought in Prayer was put in by an Angel, because God visibly sent an Angel upon such extraordinary occasions to Peter and Zachary when they were at Prayer, is not so easie to me.

Answer. Here you strain my words; I do not deliver it as my own opinion, but as the opinion of others, saying, it is said, that they suggest suitable, seasonable, and pious thoughts at such a time. So Mendoza in Reg. 1. vol. 1. c. 2. §. 244. p. And for those Texts in Acts 10. Luke 1 they were not urged to prove the extraordinary part (as you call it) of their Apparitions, Occasions, &c. but to prove their ordinary Ministrations in quickning, cheering, suggesting, pious thoughts at such a time; if you would but remember that one passage cited before, That all those instances of the Old and New Testament are patterns and presidents by which we may know what to expect, you would no more oppose extraordinaries to ordinaries; I hope these are comparable, although we have not the like visible Apparitions, yet we may have the like real experiments of Angel-ministration; although now they do not appear in bodily shapes, yet the same offices are by them spiritually and mysteriously performed to us. And on this score are those Texts cited by me, and (as my guides) by those eminently learned and godly Divines, Usher, Clark, Manton, Hall, Bucanus, Polanus, Diest, and others; as you may see in the Prolegomena.

Object. In Motive 4. We fight against Principalities and Powers; that is said, but not said by the help of Principalities and Powers of another kind; that of Revel. 12. 7. refers no doubt to some remarkable dispensation in the Church; and for Revel. 20. 1, 2. is not that Angel that seals up the Devil in the bottomless pit, Jesus Christ?

Answer. We fight against Principalities and Powers by the help of God, and yet the Angels may instrumentally help us. Surely good Angels contend with the evil Angels, and stand most valiantly on our side; the Combat is not only between men and Devils, but between Angels and Angels, Dan. 10. 13. Jude 9. Michael opposed Satan about the body of Moses, so do the Angels still oppose the Kingdom of darkness about the bodies and souls of the Saints, whilst they live, and after death, saith * Trap. That of Revel. 12. 7, 8. you say, refers to some remarkable dispensation in the Church, which is enough for me: but † Zanchy adds, in Apoc. 12. Legimus Michaelem pugnasse cum dracone, nempe pro defensione Ecclesie, & singulorum piorum, adversus omnes diaboli insidias atque injuri-

as.—— And for Revel. 20. 1, 2. some understand it of Jesus Christ; others of Constantine, but others according to the letter of an Angel. I avoid Controversies; and to our purpose the other Texts are sufficient; when Satan besiegeth us, vim habet oppugnantis Angelus, saith * Rivius. The Angels ward off his blows, and help us against him both in soul and body, saith † Dyke.

In lib. 2. c. 1. §. 3. The instance about the woman that was prevented taking Physick, what was there of an Angel in that? she by the good Providence of God quickned that night.—— Can we say the Angels kept the Child in the second instance? natural causes wrought, the fire burned the mothers belly, the child came out in the fire, was soon caught out by the standers by: God did thus far preserve it, but whether mediante Angelo, or no, who can say? And besides the Doctrine is touching the Angels ordinary ministration about birth and infancy; these experiences are of what was done extraordinarily.

Your Objection is both against ordinary and extraordinary Providences, as done by Angels; if ordinary, then nature, if extraordinary, then God (say you) preserves immediately. You object in another place, as if I should admit of no Providence but Angels; but here it seems you admit of no providence by Angels. I desire we may both understand aright. The Learned informs us, that the keeping of Angels is nothing else but a certain execution of Divine Providence concerning us; † Notandum est angelorum custodiam nihil aliud esse quam certam quandam divine Providentie executionem; hence are the Angels called * servants of Providence, and instruments of Providence: † Mr. Pemble tells us, 'That Providence is divided into mediate and immediate; immediate is when God by himself, without the ministry of the creatures, doth preserve and govern things: so he governs immediately, and preserves the first and universal causes of things. Mediate Providence is when God governeth creatures by creatures, as by means and instruments; for God useth the ministry of second causes, both natural and voluntary, either men or Angels, which are the most excellent instruments of Providence in governing the World, as appeareth by places of Scripture, in which their ministry is set forth, both generally and especially. 1. Generally, Heb. 1. 4. Being made so much better than the Angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. vers. 14. Are they not all ministering Spirits, &c. Psal. 103. 20. Bless the Lord, ye his Angels that excel in strength, ye that do his Commandments, &c. vers. 21. Bless the Lord all ye his hosts, ye Ministers of his, &c. Psal. 104. 4. Who make his Angels Spirits, his Ministers a flaming fire. 2. Specially about the good and elect, Psal. 91. 11. For he shall give his Angels charge over thee, &c. and about the wicked, Psal. 35. 5. Let them be as chaff before the wind, and let the Angels of the Lord chase them. 2 Kings 19. 35. And it came to pass that night that the Angel of the Lord, &c. Isa. 37. 36. Then the Angel of the

'the Lord went forth, &c. of this mediate Providence two things especially are to be noted. First, God useth means not necessarily for want of power in himself, but of his own free will, in the abundance of his goodness. Secondly, Providence excludes not, but includes means, which if we neglect (unless God hath revealed that he will not use them) unconscionably, we tempt him. Thus far Mr. Pemble. To apply it; you grant a special and more than ordinary Providence in the preservation of those children mentioned in the Objection; and if Gods works of particular Providence in this World are mediate, as Pemble, and usually mediate as Baxter, whether, or to whom can we refer their preservations, but to the ministration of Angels? The Doctrine (you say) is touching the Angels ordinary ministration, and such was this, in respect of the Angels, the ministry was ordinary: it is ordinary with them, though it may seem extraordinary to us.

Object. In Sect. 4. Psal. 139. 14, 16. Psal. 71. 6. Psal. 22. 9. Psal. 139. 16, 17, 18, the Texts seem to refer the whole Work to Gods immediate hand. If these Scriptures gave any hint of Angels in the Work of infants preservations, I could better subjoyn, And how precious are your thoughts unto me, O ye Angels of God!

Answer. It is true, the Scriptures alledged, refer the whole work of Preservation in the Womb and and in our infancy to God, but not to Gods immediate hand. If Gods immediate hand did all to infants, why are the Angels called their Angels? what need of Angel-ministration as to them? If you say there is no need, sith God if he please can easily guard them without Angels; I answer, the need is not (as Mr. Pemble tells you) by reason of any defect in God to supply his want of power, but further to enlarge and demonstrate his goodness. God could do it of himself, but having ordained such ranks of creatures, he makes all to serve for his own blessed and glorious ends. 'Tis all one to me whether in his acts of Providence of this nature, he expresses the Angels, yea or no; for if usually he works by them, it is as much as if he had named them.

Object. In Chap. 2. Sect. 1. Matth. 18. 10. that the Angels refer to the children in stature, I question. 1. Because these are not apt to be despised, most pity and love little ones. 2. It is not certain the child was an elect child that stood there in the midst, and then good Angels have not a charge. 3. Christ speaks indefinitely of these little ones there meant their Angels, that is, the Angels of all these there spoken of; now do the Angels look to every child that is born in its infancy and childhood? The instances of Christs Angel, Hagar, &c. all extraordinary, and the Angels were seen and heard in this ministration, and therefore herein justly acknowledged, but it is not so with us.

Answer. By little ones, you see I do not excuse the adult, nor would I exclude little children, whom our Saviour propounds as a pattern for the imitation of the adult, v. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

but I would rather take all in. Thus Dr. Zanch. ut Prideaux, and Perkins; and Zanchy, Cum enim ^{supra. l. 3. c. 18.} Matth. 18. Christus dicit de infantibus, angeli eorum semper vident faciem patris, quid aliud inuere voluit quam singulis pueris, ac proinde etiam adultis, certos angelos, tanquam pedagogos & rectores traditos; & constitutos esse. Also Musculus on the place saith thus. † Qui sunt isti † Musculus pusilli? quidem exponunt de pusillis non etate; in loc. sed estimatione; quidam vero de pusillis etate; nihil prohibet de utrisque intelligere; licet ex eo, quod non simpliciter dicit, unum ex pusillis, sed addit, istis, Possit videri dictum de etate pusillis, qualis erat puellus, quem advocatum statuerat in medium discipulorum. But you reason it thus; it cannot be understood of such. 1. Because such are not apt to be despised, most pity, and love little ones. On the contrary, in Mark. 10. 13. Mark 10. you may find the Disciples rebuking those that brought Children to Christ. Whence some observe, that Satan bears a peculiar ill will to children, he hath an evil eye upon them, endeavouring by all means to keep them from Christ, and to hinder their Salvation; and this Satan doth many ways. 1. Through the indulgence of Parents, suffering them to have their own wills. 2. Through evil education, poisoning their tender years. 3. Sometimes under a pretext of Religion, thus of old he instigated not only the Heathen, but even Gods own People, to offer up their children to sacrifice to Moloch, unto Devils. 4. By keeping them from Ordinances, thus he instigated the Disciples here to repel these infants from coming near to Christ, and of late times he hath instigated the Anabaptists to take up this quarrel, to prohibit the Baptism of Infants: And is not this to despise little ones? most pity and love them, but you see all do not so. 2. You reason again, it is not certain that the child was an elect child that stood here in the midst, and then the good Angels have not a charge. Musculus, on the place, argues that Child to be a Believer, and therefore Elect; his words are thus, Talem fuisse, qui in fide Christi aliquid potuerit institui, argumento esse poterit, quod Evangelica commemorat advocatum esse, & constitutum a Christo in medium Apostolorum. — & quia res gesta est in aedibus Petri Capernaum, in quibus Christus aliquoties, imo saepenumero comparuit & miraculose etiam socrum Petri excitavit, credibile est hunc puerum in fide Christi, institutum fuisse nonnihil, quantum per etatem licuerit. But, Thirdly, you reason again, Christ speaks indefinitely of these little ones, Their Angels (i.e.) the Angels of all these there spoken of; now do the Angels look to every child that is born in its infancy and childhood? No; if they are not Elect, the good Angels have no charge of them. Christ speaks not of all children elect and reprobate, but of these little ones, addit istis, pointing to such like as this little one was, whom he set in the midst of them. Ita Musculus & hic puellus, & omnes Christianorum Infantes ibid. ad Christum pertinentes, deque numero fidelium existentes, &c. The instances of Christ and Hagar, which you call extraordinary, is answered before.

In Sect. 2. God keeps children wonderfully, but whether by Angels, or by his own hand, I cannot cannot say, for Scripture doth not say it: it is as easie for God to do it without them, as by them;—for health a poor child may recover: but as God doth not bless the Physick man gives, so he may not use other Physicians, but do it himself. That instance of the Angel at the Pool, Dr. Hammond makes an Angel there a messenger, and the remedy natural, &c. but if done by an Angel, this was extraordinary, and in a visible way, and known to be done by an Angel.

Ans.

Psal. 91.
11.

I hope you will say, God hath the same care to keep children, as the adult; and the Scripture saith, he shall give his Angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways, if yet you will say, it is as easie for God to do it without them, as by them; is not this to be wise above measure? by the same reason you may say, what need of Magistrates or Ministers in State, or Church? what need of any secondary means for our Temporal, or Spiritual good? it is no contradiction that God will watch over us by his own Providence, and that he will have his Angels to attend us; this takes not away from his care, but hereby he declares, and conveys his care and love unto us.

Quoniam per seipsum omnia potest Deus, nec propter prestantissimam virtutem, atque infinitam potentiam ulla prorsus ad agendum instrumento indiget, tamen ita sanctissime ejus voluntati visum est (cujus sunt rationes, consiliaque occulta nobis) ut ad ministerium suum atque ad efficienda ea quae ipse vult, rebus à se conditis uteretur.—For health, you say a poor child may recover, though God may not use other Physicians, whether Men or Angels, but do it himself, I question not what God may do, for he may do what he will; but whether he usually works immediately, or by instruments, you have heard before. That instance of the Angels at the Pool, you say Dr. Hammond interprets was done by a messenger, and by natural means, but all the Expositors that ever I read before him, say it was done by an Angel, and I believe you are of the same mind. As for your Objection of extraordinary, it is now become so ordinary, that I need say no more to it.

Object.

In Sect. 2. The instances in Matth. 21. 16. Those Hosanna's because above nature, or acquired parts, or Parents Education, doth it therefore follow, that certainly they were taught them by the Angels? is this sufficiens enumeratio partium? was the Spirit that seized upon Saul in Naioth an Angel, or done by the instrumentality of an Angel?

Ans.

The instances which you put off upon the account of particular and extraordinary, I shall henceforth put off with silence, for I would not too much tautologize, Crambe recitata mors est. Those Hosanna's of the children, because above nature are acquired parts, or Parents Education, must needs be extraordinary as to us; and if so, either they must be done by God, or his Spirit immediately, and that you have heard is not Gods usual way; or immediately by some instrument or other; and what good instruments can you think of to coyn good impressions on our fancy and imagination but the Angels of God? As for the Spirit that seized upon Saul in Naioth, either it was the evil spirit, the evil spirit from God came upon Saul and he prophesied in the midst of the house; or it was the good Spirit, by which he was rapt, as one bereft of his senses for that time; and if so, I know not but an Angel might be instrumental in it, yet all is put upon the score of the Spirit, because the inspiration was from him. Oh why should we make these clash? though the Angels minister in these particulars, yet we leave unto God the all in all; as 1. The Commission. 2. The Inspiration. 3. The Benediction; the Angels are Cisterns, but not Fountains; we ascribe nothing to them to derogate from God, or Christ, or from the Spirit of Christ.

In Sect. 3. The children preserved, still the same doubt recurs, whether immediately, or immediately.——The instance of the weakly child, and the child nursed at Bolton, is ascribed in the very relation to God and his goodness; no mention of Angels in them.——The same may be said of the other instances for teaching children.——And indeed the same may be said (to save a labour) of most of those Instances in the following Chapter, Sect. 6, 7, 8.

Object.

For Gods work of this nature, whether immediate or immediate, I have answered before, and shall speak to it more anon. But from the Instances, wherein the relation ascribes all to God, and no mention of Angels, I perceive no experience is pertinent with you, unless an Angel be expressly and particularly mentioned. Our Worthies are of another Judgment. Zanchius speaking of the Churches deliverance, and of their enemies ruine by Angels, brings in 1 Kin. 19. 2 Kin. 1. Gen. 19. 2 Kin. 19. and concludes, Innumera hujus exempla non solum in Scripturis leguntur, verum etiam hac etate quotidie inveniuntur.—Sunt enim Angeli ministri Dei in omnibus ipsius judiciis patefaciendis, & executioni mandandis, quoniam à nobis illi non videantur, sed tammodo homines quorum opera illi videntur. And our * Divine

Seneca tells us no less; *The trade we have with good Spirits is not now driven by the eye, but is like to themselves spiritual; yet not so, but that even in bodily occasions we have many times insensible helps from them in such manner, as that by the effects we can boldly say, here hath been an Angel, though we saw him not: and he gives Instance in one John Trelille, a poor Cripple, who upon three monitions in his dream, to wash in the Well of Madernes in Cornwall, was suddenly restored to his limbs. The like instance he gives of John Spangenberg, Pastor of Northense, who no sooner was steeped out of his house with his Family to go to the Bains, then the house fell right down in the place; and he concludes, *our own experience at home is able to furnish us with divers such Instances; how many have we known that have fallen from very high Towers, and into deep pits, past the natural possibility of hope, who yet have been preserved not from death only, but from hurt: whence could these things be but by the secret aid of those invisible helpers? It were easie to fill volumes with particu-

particulars of these kinds. What needs more? you see his instances have in them no mention of Angels, and though you may object with him, as you do against me, yet in every such Instance, enough to fill Volumes, he can boldly say, here hath been an Angel, though we saw him not.

But suppose in some of my Instances I may mis it, and that no Angel either appears in them or was in them, yet that saying of his exceedingly sticks with me, and may in good measure excuse me. Since I am convinc'd that their unfelt hands are in many occurrences of my life, I have learnt so much wit and grace, as rather to yield them too much, than too little stroke in ordering all my concerns. You may suppose I yield them too much, and I may suppose others yield them too little; but if the Question be whether is more faulty? let this moderate man (as he is called) be our Moderator, and you see he will easily and quickly determine the Question betwixt us.

Object. In Chap. 3. Sect. 2. and 3. That good Angels are Gods instruments, in conveying his mercies both to Soul and Body: and that the Holy Ghost, useth the Angels in the work of moving and quickning the heart; Mr. Baxter, and Dr. Rutherford may believe it, and another not believe it, but that he doth all immediately; and how can he be disproved?

Ans. On this hinge hangs the weight of the whole controversy; for if God or the Spirit do all immediately, then away with Angel-ministration, no need of them in any such respect. It seems Baxter's or Rutherford's authority, (and I may add the Authority of [all the afore-cited]) are of no stress without further proof, and therefore I shall lay down a few arguments.

For their ministration in general to the Elect.

1. If God hath his Angels, Messengers, Ministering Spirits, then doth not God all immediately to his Saints: But God hath his Angels, Messengers, Ministering Spirits. Ergo.

The Sequel of the Major is proved, because therefore they are called Angels, Messengers, Ministering Spirits, from their very Office of being sent from God to his Elect:

* Quæris nomen hujus nature? Spiritus est; quæris Officium? Angelus est. What are Angels but good Spirits sent forth by God to minister for the good of the Elect? Heb. 1. 14. Psal. 104. 4. The Minor is granted by all but Sadducees, or Hereticks, whom the Scriptures condemn.

† Aug. in Psal. 104. The Procuring of the Elects good is the special calling of Angels. B. Uffers Cat.

2. If God usually sends forth his Angels to minister to his Saints, then doth not God all immediately, and make no such use of them; but God usually sends forth his Angels to minister to his Saints. Ergo.

The Sequel of the Major is clear; and the Minor is proved by all those Texts, Psal. 91. 11, 12. Psal. 34. 7. Heb. 1. 14. with the rest cited throughout the Treatise.

3. If the Angels actually have ministered, and do minister to the Saints at Gods own appointment, then doth not God all immediately without his Angels as instruments: but the Angels actually have ministered, and do minister to the Saints at Gods own appointment. Ergo.

The Major is clear. The Minor, for what hath been, is confirmed by all the Scripture Texts already alledged; and for what is, you grant the story of Grineus (and such like) comes home, and is opposite; and you think none will deny, but that an Angel may appear now as heretofore, and when he doth so appear, it is to be acknowledged to minister.

For their ministration in special to our Souls.

1. What the Angels can do to our Souls for our spiritual good, they do, and they will do; but they can communicate themselves to our spirits, and our inward man for our good. Ergo.

The Proposition is clear, for else they should not obey God, or love us with all their might; which is contrary to the Word; for their obedience to God, they do his Commandments, hearkning to the voice of his Word, Psal. 103. 20. And for their love unto us, they rejoiced when the World was creating as a dwelling place for us, Job 38. 7. And when Christ came to restore us, Luke 2. 13. And at the conversion of us, Luke 15. 7. And hence we may argue, what they can do for us, certainly they will do. The Minor is cleared above, that they can know our minds, and necessities in a great measure: they can by the mediation of our fancies and inward senses speak to us; they can propound truth to our minds, and persuade us to assent; and as counsellors they can persuade our wills to this and that good; and all this in ordinary.

2. If the Angels are Co-workers with God in inlightning the mind, then doth not God all immediately without them as instruments for our Souls health: but the Angels are co-workers with God in inlightning the mind. Ergo.

The Major is evident. The assumption cleared thus by Zanch. Ad intellectum quod attinet, duo in ejus illuminatione, qua veritatem rerum presertim divinarum percipiat, spectanda sunt; unum est mentis ipsius illustratio ad veritatem percipiendam; alterum veritatis ipsius oblatio ac patefactio, utrumque fit per lumen non Angelicum, sed divinum, ac Spiritus Sancti, ut passim Scriptura docent: Ab Angelis vero tanquam ab instrumentis & cooperatoribus Spiritus Sancti internis esse haud impie dici potest; qui exitatis verbi auditi phantasmatibus in hominibus, tum veritatem mente proponant, tum mentum ut in veritatem propositam intueatur, eique assentiat, communes faciant, illustrent, atque confortent. Simili explicio, ut oculus coloratum quiddam videat, duo ad hoc requiruntur; unum, ut res colorata oculo proponatur videnda; alterum ut oculos ad videndum illustretur; utrumque fit per lumen solis; lumine enim & oculos simul illuminatur, ad videndum disponitur, atque afficitur; & res colorata oculo obicitur, videndaque proponitur; quod itaque oculus videat, totum hoc, quod externas attinet causas, debetur proprie actioni solis, qui suo lumine utrumque prestat, ceterum, fac ut cuius oculus lumine solis illustrandus est, is dormiat, & oculos habet oculos; aliquis vero accedat, & eum à somno ad lucem percipiendam, coloresque visendos excitet; is certe dicetur cooperator solis ad illius viri oculum illustrandum, coloresque patefaciendos, fuisse; nam is etiam ad oculi illustrationem, eoque ad rei colorate manifestationem nonnihil egit, non dissimili modo se habere Deum & Angelum in actione, qua mens nostra ad veritatem percipiendam illuminatur, probabiliter dici potest. Propria, & vere efficiens causa Deus ipse est, suo Spiritu, suoque divino lumini Cooperator fuerit Angelus: huius enim opera, uti dignatur Deus, certe potens ad veritatem menti intus proponendam; & ad mentem ut suos oculos oblate veritati, & proposito lumini aperiat, excitandam. — Ut Deus externo utitur ministerio hominum ad mentes electorum illuminandas, & ad veritatem illis patefaciendam, ac persuadendam; sic etiam interne & invisibiliter utitur eandem ad rem ministerio Angelorum, ita ut ipsi suam habeant actionem in mentes electorum, cum à Deo illuminantur.

3. If the Angels are in their way co-workers with God in moving the will, then doth not God all immediately. But they are in their way co-workers with God in moving the will. Ergo.

idem ibid. The Major, or Sequel is clear, The Minor is proved suo modo, for God and the Angels move the will diversly: Solus Deus proprie agit in voluntates nostras, easque movet & flecit quo vult; Angeli vero ut cooperatores, & qui hortentur potius externis rationibus, quam qui flecent internis actionibus; now that thus they move the will, is proved from the evil Angels, who are instigating us to evil; and by their instigations sometimes prevailing with our wills to imbrace evil; therefore the good Angels do the like to provoke us to good, for their power is greater and their Love is higher than the others malice.] And was not this mentioned by Dr. Rutherford? Shall the Devil work in the Children of disobedience? Ephes. 2. 2. Enormously disquiet the affections, 1 Sam. 16. 15. Yea, inject wicked thoughts into godly men with success, 1 Chron. 21. 1. And shall the good Angels be excluded from all actions, and operations upon the inward senses of man? Tell me, if any man can tell me, with what shadow of truth can the Angels of God be thus excluded? You see his Positions were not without reason. And in your Friends Paper is given this for granted, That the Angel, may be employed by God in some strange deliverances, in recovering of health, in suggesting good motions, &c. It is high time therefore to these disputes to put an end.

Only one thing more, which may stop the mouths of all gainsayers. I cited Mr. Baxter, saying, Gods Works on the World are usually by instruments, and not immediate; and good Angels are his instruments in conveying his mercies both to Soul and Body. Now if this be a truth, viz. If it be Gods ordinary way of Providence to give us our mercies by the Ministry of Angels, then I hope every instance in my Treatise may pass for truth, and every Objection made by you against the same will easily vanish, and at once. And that this Position might be clearly held out, I thought it a point of Prudence to write in a few lines to Mr. Baxter for his Proofs. His Answer to my Letter I shall here annex as the close of all, and then I have done.

Reverend Brother,

I Received yours, and with it your Appendix, and some sheets of your Book; and am glad you have illustrated, and taught men to improve the Doctrine of The Ministration of Angels. And I am sorry that necessity forceth me to fail your expectation, and tell you that unavoidable avocations prohibit me to give you those proofs of my assertion which you desire. In this haste I may only take notice of the state of the controversy, and give you but a touch upon those Reasons that occur at present for my opinion, and a word of the consequence and use.

1. I suppose I may say that our Brethren are agreed with us in all these following Propositions. 1. The objective extent of ministry of Angels is to the benefit of Souls and Bodies; this you have proved, and they deny not. 2. The Scripture more frequently mentioned their Ministrations for the bodies, then immediately for, or on the Souls of men. 3. How they have access unto the Soul, or nobler faculties; whether Spirits intuitively behold Spirits, and immediately operate on them, and converse with them, as animated Bodies behold and operate on each other; and what measure of power Angels have on Souls, are questions that we are all unwilling to determine, and take it to be our duty in modesty to profess, our ignorance of as of things unrevealed; however in some things we may humbly venture upon some conjectures. And we all disclaim and nauseate the presumption of the School-men, that fill their Writings with so many confident assertions and copious Disputations, about uncertain, or unprofitable points, concerning the nature and ministry of Angels. Much more do we all detest the presumption, pride, and vanity of the ancient Hereticks, and the Enthusiasts, and Phanticks of latter times, that pretend to a special acquaintance, with the orders, and operations of Angels, beyond what is revealed, and glory in this as the excellency of their Religion, or several Sects. 4. The ministry of Angels is eminently and chiefly for the Elect and Church, for all things are theirs. 5. Yet doth their ministry extend to others; when mercies are to be conveyed to them, or God to have special Honour by them; God hath not limited this ministration to the Elect, as he hath not limited mercy in the general to them; such common mercy as he vouchsafeth others, he may sometime give them by the Ministry of Angels, especially when it tendeth to the benefit of the Church. 6. There is an extraordinary Ministration of Angels in cases of extraordinary Revelations, Visions, Dreams, Deliverances, Preservations and of other wonders, which all Christians do acknowledge. 7. As to his proximity to the objects and effects, God doth all his works immediately, immediately & virtutis & suppositi, he is intimior intimo nostro, nearer us than we are to our selves: no no creature interposeth between his essence and us, so as to cause or prove a distance; and if God make use of millions of instruments and means, he is yet nevertheless the only prime cause; and doth as much to it himself, as if he had used no instrument at all; there is no more of God in an effect produced without means, than in an effect produced by means; nor is there less of God because he maketh use of instruments; but it is certain that (though God in the sense aforesaid doth all immediately) yet as immediate signifieth without any second cause, so he doth not all immediately. 8. It is therefore no diminution to the honour of God, that he useth the Ministry of Angels in the collation of any of his favours to mankind: had it been a dishonour to God to produce any thing out of himself, or to act by any thing, or to reveal himself in any thing, he had never made the World, which he made to his glory, and not to his dishonour; he hath never the less, because he giveth; nor doth ever the less himself, because he useth his creatures in the work: it is his glory to be a communicative good. 9. We must be careful that we give not to Angels or any creature any part of the service or honour proper to the Creator, though we acknowledge all that to be in them, and by them which is so indeed. 10. We must not direct our Prayers unto Angels, as being uncertain when and how far they are present, and having no order for it from our common Lord; and it being a thing that might easily draw us to Idolatry, which Angels are greater enemies to than we, abhorring more to rob their Maker. 11. It is a dangerous arrogancy to effect a visible Communion with Angels here on earth; or to desire it as the highest attainment of Religion, to have extraordinary converse with them; seeing our Communion with God himself that is our happiness; and that converse with Angels is best for us, which most promoteth our fruition of God, and God knoweth better than we what that is; and therefore as he hath appointed his Angels an ordinary ministration for us, in order to our salvation and preservation thereunto; so it is a dangerous tempting of God for us to seek to put them out of their way, or to pray, or to look for such unusual appearances or works, as we have no promise for, nor full acquaintance with, nor skill to understand or use aright. We know not easily good spirits from bad, and we might so easily be seduced by creatures so terrible and so strange to us, that it is a very great mercy, that God hath committed us rather to the teaching of man, and guideth us to our end by means more suitable to our natures, and useth the appearances of Angels but rarely on some extraordinary occasion; so that what Christ said of rising from the dead, we may say of Angels, he would not be persuaded by them, that will not hear Moses and the Prophets. 12. As it is a very hard thing to receive mercy by the hand of any creature, and not to adhere too much to that creature, and suffer our hearts to be stopt, or diverted, or alienated from God, and the more useful and excellent the instrument is, the stronger is our temptation, and the greater is our danger; so the more we are convinced of the Ministry and usefulness of the Angels to our welfare, the more are we in danger of too much ascribing to them, or adhering to them, and minding of them more than God: And therefore we must carefully watch against this temptation, and take heed lest our hearts take up in these our fellow-servants, by whom they should be raised and drawn to God. And yet as we must not cast away our mercies for fear of over-valuing them, nor reject Magistrates or Ministers, or Parents, for fear of Idolizing them; so neither must we by such fears be drawn from our acknowledgment of the service of Angels, nor deny the mercy of their Ministration, to avoid the abuse of it. In all this I suppose, we are all agreed, and the point that remaineth unresolved, is but this, Whether it be Gods ordinary way to give us our mercies by the Ministry of Angels? not whether rarely he do so, nor whether rarely he do otherwise; but what is the way of his ordinary Providence. And here still profess my Judgment to be for the affirmative: and that among others, for these reasons following.

1. If Scriptures make known to us, that it is the very stated office of the Angels, to be ministering Spirits for the heirs of Salvation, and that about their daily ordinary concerns; then it is Gods ordinary way of Providence, to give us even our ordinary mercies by their means. But the Antecedent is true Ergo so is the Consequent. Were it but some unusual thing with the Angels to be sent out of their way upon such terrestrial errands: or were it usual with them to do only things unusual or wonderful for us, then I confess we could not infer our conclusion from their service; but when it is their very stated Offices not only to do wonders for us, but to serve us in our ordinary concerns, the Consequence is plain. And therefore I find nothing incumbent on me now, but to prove the Antecedent, which is done by these plain expressions of the Scriptures. 1. Such as declare them to be the stated Servants of Christ, Mat. 28. 22. as Mediator and head of the Church, for the promoting of his work of Salvation for his body; as these set together, Matth. 28. 18. All power is given to me in Heaven and Earth, John 13. 3. Ephes. 1. 20, 21, 22. And set him at his right hand in the Celestials, far above all Principality and Power, and Might, and Dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this World, but also in that which is to come, and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the Church. 2. Such as particularly describe their office and work, as Heb. 1. 14. Are they not all ministering Spirits, sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of Salvation? Consider here, 1. That this is their very Office. 2. It is about our ordinary concerns. 3. It is expressed generally, without limiting to any one thing or way; and 4. It is all the Angels, that are put into this office: that these Angels are great in strength, Psal. 103. 20. one of them able to do more than a thousand men, and

Mat. 28. 22.
Joh. 12. 3.
Eph. 1. 20,

Heb. 1. 14.

Psal. 103. 20.

and that they are innumerable, Psal. 68. 17.
 Heb. 12. 22. incomparably more than all men in the World; and then I think it will pass doubt that it is their ordinary work to minister to us in our ordinary concerns. So
 Mat. 18. 10. Matth. 18. 10. I say unto you, that in Heaven their Angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven. This can signify no less, than that every Christian, even the weakest, hath one or more Angels deputed by God to take a special care of him (though the same Angels may also take care of others) and the appropriation can never properly be meant of some rare usual act performed for them, yea, for some very few of them; but must needs mean a stated service. So Psal.
 Psal. 34. 6, 7. This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles: the Angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him and delivereth them. Here is described a stated Charge or Office about all them that fear the Lord, for deliverance out of all their troubles, which amounts to the administration of their ordinary succours. So Psal. 91. 11, 12. for he shall give his Angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways: They shall bear thee up in their hand, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone. What can be spoken plainer to signify a stated office for constant ministration, even to our ordinary preservation in every step we tread! and therefore they are called his Angels and his Ministers, Psal. 104. 4. So Psal. 103. 20, 21. Ye his Angels, which excel in strength, that do his Commandments, hearkning to the voice of his Word. — And ye his Hosts, ye Ministers of his that do his pleasure. So Revel. 12. 7. Michael and his Angels are made the Army that fight against the Devil and his Angels. And if they were not attendant and employed ordinarily in the business of our Salvation, how could the Conversion of every sinner be the matter of their joy in Heaven? Luke 15. 10. This is inserted by their constant presence in the Church Assemblies, obliging us to reverend decency, 1 Cor. 11. 10. And therefore they are described as employed with us, as looking into the same mystery, 1 Pet. 1. 12. and as knowing Gods manifold Wisdom by the Church. Ephes. 3. 10. And therefore Paul's dreadful charge (Oh that all Bishops and Ministers of the Gospel would read it waking!) in 1 Tim. 5. 21. to Timothy, not to prejudge, or prefer one before another, nor do any thing by partiality or according to his own inclination, is laid upon him, as before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Elect Angels; intimating their presence, and interest in our Church-affairs. The Angel of the Lord that defendeth the Church, doth persecute and chase the wicked enemies, Psal. 35. 5, 6. they convey departed souls to blessedness, which is an ordinary work, Luke 16. 22. they are the Reapers that at the last shall bundle up the Tares for burning, and shall sever the wicked from among the just, Matth. 13. 39, 40. and shall gather the Elect from the four winds from one end of Heaven to the other, Matth. 24. 31. And they are part of the Society, to which we are brought by Christ, Heb. 12. 22. and to whom we shall be made equal, Luke 20. 30. I shall not mention the extraordinary ministrations, as their promulgating of the Law, Acts 7. 53. Heb. 22. Their shewing John his Revelations, Rev. 1. 2. And teaching Daniel understanding, Dan. 8. 16, 17. and 9. 21, 22, 23. Their ministering to Christ, Mat. 4. 11. And strengthening him, Luk. 22. 43. with abundance more such instances; it being my business only to prove their Ministration in our ordinary concerns, which the fore-cited Texts do evidently prove. And how many points are currently received among us, that have not a quarter so much Scripture evidence as this hath? Did not greater business call me off, — should stay to improve some other Arguments. As —

2. From the contrary employment of the malignant spirits.

3. From the suitableness of our supposition to all Gods workings, who hath chosen to glorify his Wisdom by doing things by suitable instruments, and concatenated means; and to glorify his goodness by taking his Creatures into the work and honour of doing good, in subordination to him; he could have enlightened and enlivened us without the Sun, but he would not. He calleth his Ministers co-workers with Christ, no marvel then if his Angels have such honour.

These, and other Arguments I must pretermitt, and in the conclusion first lay down some excellent Consequents of this Doctrine; and secondly defend it against the accusations of the contrary.

1. The Doctrine of Angels Ministration acquainteth us with much of the frame of those admirable means by which the providence of God doth work in the governing of the world, and to the glorifying of his name. If this be unknown, we shall be strange to the wonderful appearances of Gods wisdom, and goodness, and power, which will be much obscured by hiding so excellent a part of the effects. As in a Watch, or any excellent Engine, to know the parts in themselves is nothing, unless we know them in their respects to other parts, and their place, and use, and Office in the frame; so is it in this glorious part of the frame of Creation and Providence; to say the Angels are excellent Creatures, and made to glorify their Creator, is but to express their nature and their common end, and not their special office and work, as they respect the whole Society; and the single strings will make no melody, but as they are tuned and touch'd in harmony.

2. This Doctrine of Angels Ministration acquainteth us with much of the unity of the whole Family in Heaven and Earth: when all the parts are so harmoniously connexed in their respects and use. And it declareth the excellency of holy love, and humility, and obedience, which these noble Spirits exercise in their condescension to the meanest Christian at the command of God; and reproveth us that are so scant in love, humility, and obedience, as to be backward to the service and benefit of each other.

3. It serves to take off the inordinate desires of visible and extraordinary converse with Angels; when it is understood that they are appointed to be ordinarily, and invisibly serviceable to us, in a more safe and suitable way.

4. It very much helps our faith in the point of the Immortality of the Soul, and the life to come; when we understand, that there is a World of such nobler spirits imployed about us, and therefore that we are not Creatures so contemptible as to be incapable of another life: And that we shall be made like Angels, and have their Communion in Glory, when we have such communion with them in the state of grace.

5. It shews the glory of our Redeemer, who as head of the Church doth use the ordinary service of such noble Spirits for the welfare of his body.

6. It is some relief to our weak and distant lapsed natures, that as we have a Mediator between us and the Father, so there are (though not Mediators, yet) a glorified World of blessed Spirits, possessors already of the happiness we seek, and helpers to our Salvation; so that in our Meditations of the World to come, we may have some more low familiar thoughts that are necessary to our weakness, and are not amazed and deterred by looking only at the infinitely distant Majesty of God; and, who knoweth not how great an encouragement familiarity is? And how much familiarity is assisted by proximity.

Objection 1. But it will draw down the mind from God.

Answer, Christs humane nature also, and Ministers, and all Creatures may be so abused; but of themselves they are helps to lead us to God.

Object. 2. This Doctrine will introduce the worshipping of Angels, and praying to them.

Answer. We must not forbear declaring the excellency of Angels, nor their confessed extraordinary Ministry for fear of such abuse; therefore neither their ordinary Ministration: nor must we deny the ordinary use of the Sun, lest men idolize it, nor of Ministers of the Gospel that further our Salvation, lest men should worship them with that which is not their due. The Holy Ghost hath expressly warned us, that no man ~~put up by his fleshy mind, and not holding the~~ put up by his fleshy mind, and not holding the ~~bead, &c.~~ bead, &c. Coloss. 2. 18, 19. and so hath cautioned us against this abuse. And we must not deny a great truth in Christianity, for fear of giving occasion to Popish Consequents and misuse of it.

Object. 3. It will fill the World again with a multitude of curious, vain enquiries about Angels, which the Schools abound in.

Answer. We must not shut out eyes against plain truths, lest wanton wits should trouble the World with starting other Questions about unrevealed things: Vain Questions are no where so perillous, as concerning God himself: And yet no knowledge is so necessary, as the knowledge of him.

Pardon, Dear Brother, that in haste I can give you but this short undigested Script, instead of what you desired of me, I rest.

Your unworthy

Fellow Servant

Richard Baxter.

Reverend Sir,

I Have perused your considerations of the Ministry of Angels, those πνεύματα λειτουργικά, as the Apostle calls them. I remember Theophilact speaking of this point calls it, πολλὴ καὶ ἰσχυρὰ τὴν ἀνδραγωγίαν, the exceeding goodness, and care of God; and chargeth us, μὴ ἀμελεῖν τὴν τοιαύτης διακονίαν not to be forgetful of such a glorious service, which we have for our good from these blessed Angels. In the acknowledgment of this truth (their blessed ministration for the good of Gods elect) I find the concurrence of all; in the exemplification of it fully and particularly few or none; in the depravation and prostituting of it to idolatrous purposes more than many. Blessed be God, who hath given you, as to this point, his Spirit; and that light, and understanding, and an excellent wisdom is found in you, as was said of Daniel; in as much that in this Tract we find these blessed Spirits, their service, without diminution of their glory; their rule and power, with subordination to the Father of Spirits; their Ministry to man, without reluctance and disdain; their respect and use from Saints without superstitious adoration, and indeed the whole consideration of them, so far as falls within the knowledge of men, pithily, plainly, powerfully, pathetically, practically, set before us. When the Apostle Paul was wrapp'd up into the third heaven, he heard and saw glorious things, but they were ἀρρητὰ ῥήματα ἃ οὐκ ἔστιν ἀνθρώπου λαλῆσαι, they were unspeakable; but he that giveth wisdom to the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding, hath not only revealed these deep and secret things, but given you utterance and power to express them. Sir, it was ever esteemed a sacred thing amongst the Jews, as is noted by Paulus Fagius, to preserve the memory of any of their Rabbies, who had done some remarkable service for their Law, with this resolution, Let their name be blessed; if the Church in which we live, do not the like for this, and the rest of your Divine Discourses, yet you have a God in whom you trust, that will one day acknowledge it, and these very Angels themselves shall witness your simple service done to them as instruments under the great Jehovah, and Lord of Hosts. Let me only wish you, that you smother not this light, nor vail such an advantage in confining it to the darkness of private use; if any Persons do disgust, yet understanding Persons will say of this, and your other labours, as Alphonsus King of Arragon said of some learned Persons, be mihi dapes, bi convivæ. The Lord sanctifie this, and all other helps to our edification and building up in Christ, till we come to the heavenly Jerusalem, and the innumerable company of Angels, to the general Assembly, and the Church of the first-born.
